The sun had dropped below the fringe of trees. Two straight, thin columns of smoke rose from the neglected campfires. Orde, glancing around him, noticed these.

"Doctor," he commanded sharply, "get at your grub! Make some coffee right off and bring it down. Come on, boys!"

Over a score of men attacked the sluiceway, for by now part of the rear crew had come down river. The pond above had recovered its volume. Water was beginning to trickle over the top of the gate. The men worked up to their knees in swift water. They could not see, and the strokes of ax or pick lost much of their force against the liquid. Down by the sluice a dozen lanterns flickered and blinked yellow against the blue blackness of the night. Orde opened the sluice gates. The water had become too deep for effective work, and a half hour's flow would reduce the pressure. The time was occupied in eating.

When the meal was finished the men lit their pipes and went back to work philosophically.

Near midnight a swaying lantern was seen approaching. Orde heard the sound of wheels. A moment later Daly's bulky form stepped into the illumination of the fire.

Orde wandered over to where his employer stood peering about him.

"Oh, there you are!" cried Daly angrily. "What in h— you up to here?"

"Running logs," replied Orde coolly.

"Running logs!" shouted Daly, producing a much folded newspaper. "How about this?"

Orde lowered the paper to the campfire. It was an extra, screaming with wood type:

WAR!

Rioting and Bloodshed In the Woods. Rivermen and Dam Owners Clash.

There followed a highly colored statement that a skirmish had left the field in possession of the rivermen, in spite of the sheriff and a large posse, but that troops were being rushed to the spot and that this "high handed defiance of authority" would soon be suppressed. It stated that the loss of life was as yet unknown.

"Don't you know any better than to get into that kind of a row down here?" said Daly. "Don't you realize that this isn't the northern peninsula?"

"Sure I do," replied Orde placidly. "Come along here till I show you the situation."

The sheriff did not reappear. Reed evidently now pinned his faith to the troops.

By 3 o'clock the main abutments had been removed. The gate was then blocked to prevent its fall when its nether support should be withdrawn.

Suddenly was heard an exultant yell from one of the axmen. A brief instant later the snapping of wood fibers began like the rapid explosions of infantry fire; a crash and bang of timbers smote the air, and then the river, exultant, roaring with joy, rushed into the new passage opened for it.

Orde stormed into the camp.

"Roll out, you river hogs!" he shouted to those who had worked out their shifts earlier in the night. "Roll out, you webfooted sons of guns, and hear the little birds sing praise!"

Suddenly Orde had froze in an attitude of attentive listening. "Hark!" said he.

Faint, the wandering morning breeze bore to their ears a sound whose difference from the louder noises near at hand alone rendered it audible.

"The troops!" exclaimed Orde, seizing a lantern and returned down the trail, followed eagerly by Newmark and every man in camp.

The men drew a little to one side, watching the dim line of the forest, dark against the paling sky. A man rode out of the shadow and reined up by the fire. "Halt!" commanded a harsh voice. The riverman could make out the troops—three or four score of them—standing rigid at attention. Reed pushed forward.

"I wish to inquire, sir," asked the commanding officer of Orde, "if you have gone mad to counsel your men to resist civil authority?"

"I have not resisted civil authority," replied Orde respectfully. "The reports have been false. The sheriff of this county has arrested about twenty of my men single handed and without the slightest trouble."

"Mr. Morris," cried the officer sharply, "is what this man says true?"

"It sure is. Never had so little fuss arrestin' rivermen before in my life."

"Then why the devil am I dragged up here with my men in the night?" cried the officer explosively. "Who's responsible for this insanity anyway? Don't you know," he roared at Reed, "that I have no standing in the presence of civil law?"

Reed started to speak.

"I've nothing to do with that; settle it in court. And what's more, you'll have something yourself to settle with the state! About, face! Forward, march!"

"Now you see, boys," he said, digging his fists into his eyes, "if you'd put up a row, what we'd have got into. No bluecoats in mine, thank you."

"I tell ye, I'm not done with ye yet," threatened Reed. "I'll sue ye for damages, and I'll git 'em too."

"Now, hop along," urged Orde. "We'll pay you any legitimate damages, of course, but you can't expect to hang up a riverful of logs just on a notion. And we're sick of you. See here, you two; just see that this man leaves camp."

Reed hastily retreated.

"Well, goodby, boys," said Daly. "I'll just get along and bail the boys out of that village calaboose."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Review does not hold itself responsible for opinions expressed by its correspondents

(To The Editor of The Review.)

When the contract for lighting our streets was given to the Light & Power Company for a long period at an exorbitant rate, I penned a warning to the press of this city, against so long a term, stating among other things that electricity, owing to the rapid strides of science would in a short time, be enormously reduced in price. Such has been the case, and now, word comes by cable from London, that Signor Ferranti, the famous electrician, lecturing before the Institute of Electrical Engineers, among other things, prophecies that, before many years electricity will be provided at one-sixteenth the average cost of producing it now, etc.

TELLS THE PUBLIC THE REASON WHY

Quebec Man Cured by Dodd's Kidney Pills

Of Rheumatism, Gravel and Diabetes says he wants other sufferers to have the benefit of his experience

Rousseau Mills, Portneuff Co., Que., Nov. 14.—(Special).—"Tell the public Dodd's Kidney Pills cured me of Gravel, Rheumatism and Diabetes." These are the words of Seraphin Carpentier, of this place.

"For ten years I suffered," Mr. Carpentier continues. "Then I heard of Dodd's Kidney Pills, and decided to try them. Almost from the first they relieved me, and now all my Gravel, Diabetes and Rheumatism have entirely left me.

"I want others to know what cured me, because I do not want them to suffer as I have suffered."

There are thousands of just such living proofs in Canada that Dodd's Kidney Pills always cure Kidney Disease. If you take the disease early they will cure it easily and quickly and you will be saved much suffering. If you have neglected it and let it reach its more dangerous stages, such as Gravel, Diabetes, or Bright's Disease, Dodd's Kidney Pills will cure it. They never fail.

The programme will not be particularly mentioned, but will be worth while, and, as was the case Saturday, will be a pleasant surprise perhaps to those who do come around. Something worth while doing every Saturday night would be a good thing to remember, because such will be the case.

HEIRLOOMS FOR LOCAL LADY

Is bequeathed valuable articles in Will of Deceased Relative Who Died Recently

The will of the late Miss Helen Unwin of Toronto, who died recently, has been filed, and one clause, by which Mrs. Cortez Fessenden of this city and a niece of the deceased, is bequeathed certain valuable articles as follows:

"I give to my niece, Ethel Elizabeth Fessenden, wife of Cortez Fessenden, of the city of Peterboro, the plain gold ring which belonged to my great grandmother; the brooch set with brilliants, which was originally my grandfather's parson's shoe buckle; the filagree silver brooch left me by my mother; one half my blue dessert set; the picture of a peacock worked in wool by my mother; and the old mirror with the tapestry and tortoiseshell frame. My reason for leaving the two latter articles to my niece, Ethel Elizabeth Fessenden, is that my brother has informed me of his intention of leaving to my other niece, Mary Catherine Reynolds, his picture entitled, 'The Death of Douglas,' worked in wool by my mother."

MARRIED

WAGSTAFF — MORRIS.—At Innisfail, Alberta, on Wednesday, November 2, Laura Morris, fourth daughter of Mr. W. J. Morris, formerly of Peterborough, to Jack Wagstaff, of Huxley, Alberta.

WAS ESCORTED TO THE GRAVE BY HIS COMRADES OF THE 57TH FUNERAL OF SERGT. SHARPE

ured tread the 57th Regiment, headed by a firing party of twenty, marched to Little Lake cemetery at three-thirty this afternoon, and laid to rest, with full military honors, all that remained of Staff-Sergeant B. Sharpe.

At three o'clock the military funeral cortege left the armories and marched to the deceased's residence, College street, where the usual service was held.

The body was then placed on a gun carriage by the pall bearers, three of whom belonged to the 24th Field Battery and three of the sergeants of the 57th Regiment. They were Quartermaster Sergeant Collins, Col.-Sergeants Mitchell and Halpin, Sergeants Batten, Cottrell and Matchette. Next preceded by the firing party, composed of members of the 57th, with Col.-Sergeant Smith in charge, came the Regimental band in charge of Col.-Sergeant Edwards and Mr. R. Gliddon. The gun carriage bearing the body followed, then the open hack containing the flowers. The family mourners, followed by the mourners of the regiment came next. A number of the members of the Oddfellows also were in hacks and drove in the procession.

At the grave the service was doubly impressive. After the customary burial ceremony had been pronounced, the firing party took up their positions and fired three volleys, a closing and fitting tribute to the memory of a fellow soldier and worthy comrade.

AN ILLUSTRATED TALK ON "THE SURFACE OF THE SUN"

An illustrated talk on "The Surface of the Sun" will be given this evening at the meeting of the Royal Astronomical Society in the Collegiate Institute.

Dr Marsh will be the speaker of the evening, and as it is well known that he has made a specialty of solar photography, producing some of the most excellent pictures in existence to-day, we are safe in stating that the speaker knows his subject thoroughly.

During the last few years astronomers have found out a great many things in regard to the great sun which have proved very important to the advancement of this branch of the science. Wonderful photographs have been secured which are most interesting and instructive to the amateur.

The public will find these lectures worthy of their attendance. The views are entertaining and instructive. There is no charge.

TECHNICAL EDUCATION

Will be the Subject Treated of by Able Speakers at the Board of Trade Meeting This Evening at the City Council Chamber--The Proposal tofrom Board of Trade Association

An interesting feature of the Board of Trade meeting this evening at the City Council Chambers will be addresses on technical education by Messrs. Hodgson and Hagerman, of the Collegiate Institute and Normal School staffs respectively. Both are thoroughly qualified to speak on this important subject, and their addresses, which will be practical and to the point, will no doubt throw much light on the much discussed question of technical education.

Ald. G. A. Gillespie, president of the local Board, will explain the proposal to have the Ontario Boards of Trade incorporated in an association which would afford a means of co-operation and the quicker attainment of results.

FELL OFF LOAD OF WOOD AND BROKE HIS LEFT ARM

To break his arm after being placed with a farmer, was the misfortune of a young English lad Ryal by name, who has been in this country only one month.

At his home, far across the ocean, Ryal held the position of clerk in a large concern, but he decided to come out to Canada and try his fortune.

He arrived in this city about one month ago, and reported to the immigration agent, Mr. G. H. Howson, who had no trouble in finding work for the young fellow, and accordingly he was placed with Henry Jackson, a farmer, near Fowler's Corners.

The work was different and harder than what he had been used to, but he was made of the right kind of stuff, and gave a good account of himself.

Last week, however, while hauling wood on the farm the load loosened, and part of it fell off the wagon, taking the driver also, and with the result that his left arm was broken.

He was brought to the city and his injuries were attended to by Dr. Cameron. Ryal, who is only nineteen years of age came here alone, and is at present boarding at Noble's Temperance House, and is hoping for a speedy recovery, so that he can get back to his work.

TAKES POSSESSION OF DEADMAN'S ISLAND

Vancouver, B.C., Nov. 15 — This morning Deadman's Island, the bone of contention between Theodore Ludgate and the city of Vancouver, formally passed into the possession of the Vancouver Lumber Company, with which Mr. Ludgate is identified. Mr. Ludgate, accompanied by the Sheriff, went over to the island armed with the decision of the Appeal Court and the Sheriff gravely retired from the island on which Indians are buried, and on which Mr. Ludgate and his men have more than once come into conflict with the police. The case goes to the Privy Council.

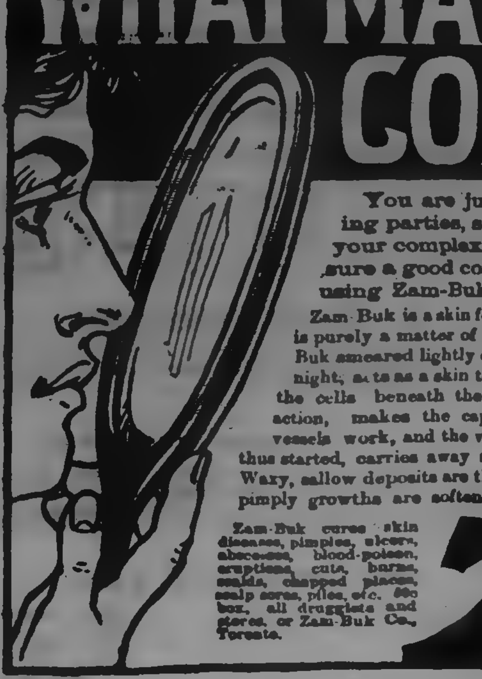
WHAT MAKES A GOOD COMPLEXION?



You are just about to commence the season's programme of evening parties, social events, etc. Why not look your best? Why let your complexion suffer by contrast with other ladies'? Why not ensure a good complexion? You can do this on sound natural lines by using Zam-Buk, nature's herbal balm.

Zam-Buk is a skin food; and complexion is purely a matter of skin health. Zam-Buk smeared lightly over the face, each night, acts as a skin tonic. It stimulates the cells beneath the cuticle to healthy action, makes the capillaries and blood vessels work, and the vigorous circulation, thus started, carries away secreted impurities. Waxy, sallow deposits are thus removed. Hard pimply growths are softened and disappear. That yellow tinge gives place to the pink of health, and the white velvety "look" and "feel" which healthy skin should have.

Isn't this wiser than relying upon talcum powder and cosmetics? These only put on a "complexion" from the outside. It doesn't last. Zam-Buk helps nature to build up a complexion from blood and tissue. It lasts! It won't rub off!

Zam-Buk cures skin diseases, pimples, ulcers, abscesses, blood-poison, eruptions, cuts, burns, scalds, chapped places, scalp sores, piles, etc. 50c box, all druggists and stores, or Zam-Buk Co., Toronto.

VARSITY II. AND R.M.C. MAY PLAY OFF HERE

It is likely that the Peterborough fans will have the opportunity of witnessing a game of exceptional interest next Saturday, when in all probability Varsity II. and R.M.C. will play off for the Intercollegiate intermediate championship.

Dr. McPherson received a message to-day asking him if the grounds would be available and he replied that they would. So, from all indications, the game will be played here.

R.M.C. defeated the Toronto team last Saturday by a 10—2 score, but the latter, by their brace of counters, managed to tie up the round, necessitating a play-off.

To-day's Globe says—

The final game to settle the Intercollegiate intermediate tie will be played at Peterborough on Wednesday, 16th or 23rd. Varsity want to play this week, but R.M.C., who have examinations, may not be able to arrange it. Varsity cannot play on Saturday, as the first team need McDougall and Sifton on the wing line and Ramsay on the back division as spares.

BASKET BALL SCORES

Three games were played in the junior basketball league and resulted as follows—

Maples defeated the Tigers, 3 to 0.

Athletics defeated Cubs, 12 to 4.

In the Collegiate Class League the Mugs defeated the Hoboes in a real fast and exciting game. Score, 15 to 10.

The Rough Riders fell before the splendid combination of Ross Laing's team of Rubes, who played a wonderful game of passing. Score, 17 to 4

The wrestling class held a good session last night, also the swimming club.

Juniors who are in the beginners' swimming class are reminded to be on hand Wednesday at 4.15.

First Aid class meets to-morrow night.

PUCK CHASERS COLUMN

The local Hockey Club is in favor of the twenty-year age limit of the Junior O.H.A., and the representative to the annual meeting of the association to be held at Toronto this coming Saturday will be instructed accordingly. It will, however, be no new role for him, to assume, as at a meeting last year as a representative of the Trenton Club he strongly objected to the limit being placed at nineteen years.

The general opinion appears to be in favor of last season's age limit.

While Peterborough juniors could stand an edict either way, the position of other clubs is different. A semi-final club of last season, with the ages of the players bordering around the 20-year mark, would not favor the lower age, while clubs which have had to stand the ravages made upon it for intermediate men would take a stand just the opposite.

Looking at the matter from the standpoint of which is the better age limit in the interests of the game, the answer is, try nineteen for a couple of seasons, and thereby bring out some material, which the organization needs.

According to the Toronto News Mr R. M. Glover is a nomination for the O.H.A. Executive. Around the e parts it is Dr McPherson.

The local intermediate team will not want for material and at this distance it looks like a strong team to battle for the blue and white. Since the ice of last season disappeared many hockeyists have drifted into the city, and among the numbers are Reynolds, who played defence for Trenton juniors last year, and worked a couple of games in the intermediate series. Kelly, a wing man from Ingersoll intermediates; Sorrel, a forward from Milton; Ross, cover-point and captain of last year's Midland juniors; Marshall, of Deseronto; Bond, the well known cover of Cobourg intermediates, and the Lalondes, of Kingston. The latter are cousins, one having lined up with the Smith Falls Mic-Macs and the other with Kingston juniors. Of the 1909-10 seven Derocher, Glover, Heffernan, McMillan, Ray, Weatherston and Dobson are available.

The frost is off the pumpkin, and there will be only one Junior O.H.A. seven in Peterborough.

That team will be taken in tow by the local club, but will be managed by an executive composed of Messrs. John Oldham, of the West Ends; J. J. Doris, of the T.A.S.; W. O'Brien, of the Peterborough Club; a manager yet to be announced, and another member, who will be appointed by the present big four.

The meeting last night decided the issue, the representatives of the West End and T.A.S. Clubs agreeing to fall in line.

Such an understanding paves a rosy path for a junior team to do battle for this city, and it now remains for the officers behind it, to handle their duties with the best interests of the club to the fore, first, last and all the time.

Such a policy will bring out the material, hand every player a square deal, and build up an organization that will gain the confidence of the public and bring credit to Peterborough.

Cobourg Star— Port Hope has the professional hockey bug and talks of going into a league with Belleville and other lake front towns. Professional hockey may be all right in cities, but when it strikes a town the size of Port Hope they might as well pull the rink down, as it puts a black eye on hockey for all time to come. Port Hope has had its share of professional lacrosse and baseball, and both these games are but memories there now. Cobourg is counted on for the league, but we cannot see it from here.

FIGHTERS OF TO-DAY

Tommy Burns Dope on the Pugilists, Now in the Limelight

The following is my opinion of the present day fighters:

Johnson is a good man and it will take a good man to beat him.

Langford is also a good man and it will take a good man to beat him.

Kaufman is a big, strong, rugged fellow and he has a chance with any slow man in the ring.

Bill Lang, whom I have fought twice will never be a champion, as he is too slow a thinker.

Hugo Kelly has a chance to regain from Papke.

Wolgast is not as good a lightweight as previous lightweight champions. I think if Nelson meets him again he has a chance. If Packy McFarland meets him I will pick Packy to beat him.

Attell is the King of the featherweights and he will take some beating before losing the championship.

England has no good heavyweights. They have a good middleweight in Tom Thomas and they also have a few good lightweights such as Driscoll, Moran, Welsh and Summers, and these have a chance with any of the Americans.

RUGBY

The Toronto Star says of Ross Craig's work for Dundas against T. A. A. C. Craig roughed it unnecessarily, putting Capreol and De Gruchey out at various times. Yesterday's edition has a fine cut of the Port Hope T. C. S. team, and in which Fred. Denison and Pete Campbell figure.

Indian Baseball

The members of the 24th Field Battery are asked to turn out to-morrow night, for the purpose of organizing an indoor baseball team.

TURF CLUB TO PUT ON WINTER MEET

An enthusiastic attendance marked the meeting of the Peterborough Turf Club, held in Mr. G. W. Hatton's office, last evening, and following a discussion on the subject of a winter meet, it was unanimously decided to put on a meet at the local track at a date which would permit of the entry of the horses working on the circuit between Ottawa and Lindsay.

It was also decided to put on a number of matinees, and New Year's Day was suggested as a date for the first.

The club has a balance with which to commence the winter season.

The president, Dr. Johnston, presided at the meeting last night, and other officers present were Dr. King, vice-president; Dr. Leach, 2nd vice-president; F. Jones, secretary; and Merton Storey, assistant.

Members in attendance were Messrs. G. W. Hatton, Fred Jones, Martin Conners, Herb. Kendrey, Wm. Whitton, Jas. Sutherland, Nat. Nicholls, Lakefield.

NOVEMBER ATHLETIC WORLD

The November number of the Athletic World, published by W. J. Taylor, Limited, Woodstock, Ontario, which has just reached this office, is an exceptionally good one, and seems to indicate that the policy of steady improvement which this magazine has so far carried out so well, will continue in the future. The various occurrences of interest in the Canadian sporting world are well described, and attention is also paid to events in other countries, while practically every branch of sport is covered. Lovers of athletics will do well to get this number, in which will be found something to interest everyone, whatever field of sport he particularly favors.

CATTLE MARKETS.

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—London and Liverpool cables quote American cattle steady, at 13¼c to 14½c per lb. dressed weight; refrigerator beef at 10c to 10½c per lb.

Union Stock Yards.

TORONTO, Nov. 14.—Receipts of live stock at the Union Stock Yards were 143 carloads, consisting of 3040 cattle, 1273 sheep and lambs, with 23 calves.

Exporters.

The average price for London cattle last week was $5.90, and to-day $5.80, or just 10c lower.

Butchers.

Prime picked lots, $5.65 to $5.75; loads of good, $5.25 to $5.50; medium, $4.90 to $5.15; common, $4 to $4.50; cows, $3 to $4.60; bulls, $3.50 to $4.50; canners, $1.75 to $2.40.

Stockers and Feeders.

Feeders sold at $5.40 to $5.60 for choice short-keeps; good straight feeders, not fat, $4.75 to $5.25; stockers, $4 to $4.60. These prices show quite a depreciation, and we look for them to go still lower, if these large runs continue, as many of the buyers have got all they require.

Veal Calves.

Thirteen calves sold at $3.50 to $8 per cwt.

Sheep and Lambs.

Sheep, ewes, sold at $4.75 to $5 per cwt., the market closing easy. Prices for lambs ranged from $5.75 to $5.85 per cwt.

Hogs.

No hogs on sale, but W. J. Johnston, buyer for Gunns, reported selects, fed and watered at the market, at $7, and $6.65 to drovers for hogs f.o.b. cars at country points.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, Nov. 14.—(Special.)—At the Montreal Stock Yards West End Market the receipts of live stock for the week ending Nov. 12 were 3100 cattle, 2275 sheep and lambs, 1825 hogs and 485 calves. The offerings on the market this morning amounted to 2200 cattle, 1550 sheep and lambs, 700 hogs and 300 calves.

Prices for the lower grades of cattle were fully ¼c per lb. off from a week ago. A number of full loads of north-west ranch steers were sold at 5¼c per lb., and Manitoba domestic cows at $4.00 per 100 lbs. Choice steers sold at $5.50 to $5.65; good at $4.75 to $5.25; fairly good at $4.25 to $4.50; fair at $3.50 to $4, and the lower grades all the way from $2 to $3.25 per 100 lbs.

Hogs declined 15c to 25c per 100 lbs., with every indication of going lower. Sales of selected lots were made at $7.25 to $7.35 per 100 lbs., weighed off cars, but they say that they will not pay more than $7.25 for supplies for the balance of this week, and that next week $7 will be the ruling figure.

An active trade was done in Upper Canada lambs at 6c to 6¼c, and Quebec stock at 5½c to 5¾c, while sheep sold at 3½c to 4c per lb. The demand for calves was good, and prices for choice milk-fed stock were firm, at 5½c to 6c per lb.

Guelph Junction Railway showed a profit of $9,356.37 for the quarter ended Sept. 30.

TEA CUP INVADES THE OFFICE

A reporter called yesterday afternoon shortly before four o'clock on a department manager of one of Toronto's large industrial concerns and promptly at four o'clock a young lady brought in two cups of tea. The reporter was invited to partake of what proved a most delicious and refreshing beverage, and business being laid aside for a moment, the manager explained that a few months before he he had been to England where he had found the 4 o'clock tea custom practically universal among business houses. He had enjoyed it so much and it had seemed to fit in so well that after coming home he had adopted it in his own office. He said he always used Red Rose Tea because it had the fine flavor and smooth richness of some of the choicer kinds he had got in the old country.

Upon enquiry at the office of the Red Rose Tea Co. it was found that the practice had been begun there only a few days ago, and that with their usual ambition to be a little ahead of the procession they served a cup of delicious tea not only to every member of the office and warehouse staffs but to every stranger who happened to be within the gates at the appointed hour. The tea is served to every one at his or her desk, the drinking occupies only a minute or two and tea is so deliciously refreshing and stimulating that the working efficiency of the staff is increased for the rest of the day.

The remarkable success of Red Rose Tea and the high esteem in which the firm is held by the trade throughout Canada is a striking tribute to the forceful and progressive business methods steadily pursued by Mr. T. H. Estabrooks, of St. John, N.B., the proprietor of Red Rose Tea. This success has made Mr. Estabrooks a national figure in the tea business.

NOVEMBER ROD AND GUN

While big game hunting supplies the dominant note in the November number of Rod and Gun in Canada, published by W. J. Taylor, Limited, Woodstock, Ont., there is in the same issue plenty of material for sportsmen who are not able, for various reasons, to go after moose, deer or bear. In the opening article, Mr. Bonnycastle Dale tells how Indian boys make clever hunters, trappers and fishermen and with what skill they decimate the inhabitants of the forest. Exploration in the Nepigon country, fishing and mountaineering topics, with many other papers, and some fine verses, fill a number which should find its way into all hunting camps. Sportsmen, where-er they may be found, can enjoy some pleasant half hours by dipping into its contents, assured that from beginning to end they will find much to attract and interest them. The completeness of the issue in covering the whole wide field of Canadian sport gives it distinction, and goes far to account for the standing the Magazine has won and continues to deserve.

WENT THROUGH ICE MOOSE MADE ESCAPE

A Hard Luck Story in which the Hunter Got a Ducking

Mr. Amos Shearer, of Shearer's Point, who has been up in the Parry Sound district, on a hunt, returns with a story, which tells of an exciting experience.

While crossing some risky looking ice, it broke under him, and it was a case of a cool bath.

During the ducking, a large moose made its appearance a short distance away, but by the time Mr. Shearer managed to get out of the water, the animal made off and a pursuit turned out to be fruitless.

READ AND ACT

All stories pertaining to camp hunting, dogs or deer, must be told in the back yard, as stories told here, attract attention, and interfere with business.

Now, no one will charge the above gentlemen with apathy, in connection with deeds of the rod and gun, but business is business, and customers must receive first consideration.

Those interested should digest and act.

ONE EACH

A party of hunters of Millbrook, have arrived home from the haunts of some deer and many hard luck tales.

Each of the party, had one deer.

SHORTER SEASON

A local sportsman, of many years, is of the opinion that the duck season should close on the first of December.

He points to the large number of duck this season at Rice Lake. This means that hunters will shoot to their hearts content, and leave hundreds of cripples on the water. He also believes, that the increase in number this year, will result in the killing for outside sale.

KETCHECUM PARTY.

The party, which was composed of eight, had a good outing, bagging their complement by last Friday.

The Eagle Lake Hunt party had only succeeded in bagging one deer by last Thursday, so one of the Ketcheeumers informed the Review.

JUST FIGURES

With every tick of your watch, a child is born somewhere on earth.

With every breath you take, somewhere, somehow, there is a death.

The population of the world to-day is estimated at something like 1,790,000,000.

On this basis it has been figured that during 1910 there will be 35,000,000 deaths.

But the births will more than make up for this great loss. There will be 54,000,000 this year.

In 100 years from now there will be 5,000,000,000 people in the world, but there will be plenty of room for every one of them.

Taking these figures, the population of the earth in 2010 would make 1,000 cities the size of Greater New York to-day.

HISTORIC OLD ENGLAND DESCRIBED LAST NIGHT

At Charlotte Street Church—An Enjoyable Program at Regular Epworth League Meeting

The Epworth League of Charlotte Street Church, was under Literary auspices last night and was one of unusual interest.

Miss Jackson, who had been to England during the summer, was prevailed upon to give some of the details of her trip, and most pleasing it proved. She described completely all the necessary details to observe before and after embarking, in order to secure convenience and comfort during the trip. Then all the scenery on the voyage received due consideration and was ably and attractively described. One could almost picture it as the speaker proceeded.

Miss Jackson made quite an extensive tour through many of the delightful spots of southern England, and north again to London, where she described at length some of the old and historic structures, such as the Tower of London, Trafalgar Square, Madame Tussaud's, Westminster Abbey, and a great many others.

Time would not permit her to describe a minimum of the instructive and delightful sights, which London affords, but her listeners gained an appreciative idea of the pleasure of a trip to England.

An interesting programme in addition to the address was also provided.

A piano solo by Miss Eva Smith and another by Miss Sophie Elliott, were played with excellent effect and were heartily applauded.

Miss Walker in her recitation, "The Pied Piper of Hamelin," despite the familiarity of all with the story, held the attention of all present, and she possesses all the attributes of a perfect reciter.

An enjoyable vocal solo, given by Miss Olive Howell, proved to be a popular number and received great applause.

Miss M. Sherlock also gave a recitation which was well received.

This concluded the programme.

Miss Campbell acted as accompanist.

At the conclusion of the address by Miss Jackson, Mr. H. B. Collier moved a vote of thanks.

Mr. Ira Moore was a very capable presiding officer.

"THIS WOMAN AND THIS MAN" TRUE TO LIFE AND TOUCHING

"This Man and This Woman," is not well named. It should be called "The Power of Love"

It is a matter for regret that there were not more at the opera house to see the above production on Monday evening.

The plot is simple, as natural as life itself. The trusting woman who falls by the designing man. But this trusting woman is resourceful and compels him to marry her at the point of a pistol.

They separate. He longs to see his child who is living in the country. He goes. He wants to take the child back with him. She refuses to leave it. They all go to his home together. She was teaching school to support her family. He was a married man with a fond, though touchy sire.

He learns to love her. She always loved him. The child—that mutual love holds them.

In the last scene they are reconciled. "York State Folks" is natural, is homelike and appeals to the emotion, to the heart. "Way Down East," also does. But here is a production that for real human interest and smooth and natural plot, excells them and must make good. Those who believe in elevating the stage should attend it en masse. It teaches its lesson, it leaves its moral.

There are few climaxes, just the every day story to be found in every day life. The cast is small, but there was not one weak spot in it.

The story is told.

Vekia Moller, the girl who erred, was and fled, but was won by love, was portrayed by Minnie Victorson. She left nothing to be desired. Neither did Norris Townsend, as the first unscrupulous wretch, and afterwards loving husband.

The youngster in the case was good and when put to bed wriggled its toes even as you and the writer when we lived in the days of the used to be.

MILLBROOK

The marriage of Miss Raper to Mr. A. Fallis took place on Wednesday, Nov. 9. Miss Dean's young ladies' Bible class presented Miss Raper with a kitchen shower.

Miss Dean's class is composed of the most highly respected ladies of the community, and we are sorry that so many of them are getting married. We wish them all success.

Miss Alberta B. Williamson was the guest of the Misses Smith's, Bethany, for a few days.

Bethany Anniversary and Fowl Supper was a grand success. Many from the neighboring village attended it, and were heartily welcomed.

CANADA'S PART THAT OF PEACE-KEEPER

Dr. J. A. Macdonald is Unable by Reason of Illness to Attend Banquet of Canadian Club in New York, But His Address is Read.

New York, Nov. 16.—International peace, with incidental reference to tariff matters, was the topic of interest at the annual banquet at the New York Canadian Club. Among the guests was Hon. W. L. M. King of Ottawa.

Dr. J. A. Macdonald of Toronto, it was announced, was unable, owing to illness, to attend, but his address on "Canada in the Anglo-Saxon Fraternity," was read by J. F. MacKay, president of the late Toronto Canadian Club.

Hon. Mackenzie King could see only one danger to the celebration of the centenary of the peace movement—that some indivirual or society would try to usurp it all and create friction. Already he had heard of several proposal for adequately commemorating the centenary. To his mind, it was remarkable that Canada and the U.S. had been enabled to amicably settle all disputes between them, and the moral, he believed, was that there was a waning of the war spirit throughout the world.

Hon. Adam Bell of Nova Scotia showed some independence. Canada, he said, desired to be friendly with the republic, but did not intend to surrender any of her rights to assert her interest at any time. An Anglo-Saxon alliance would ensure the peace of the world.

In Dr. Macdonald's address, he said:

"And to our friends in the United States we give full assurance that while we rejoice to recognize how much of what is best in our life we have in common with them, yet our nationalities are distinct, and the great lakes and the forty-ninth parallel will continue to divide the sovereignities of the Union Jack and the Stars and Stripes. If there are still in the United States any who dream of annexation, Canadians would disturb their dreams with words of truth and soberness. Annexation is dead, and if it ever were a living issue in Canada your tariff laws would have killed it. We desire friendly relations and just trade agreements. We will buy with you, sell with you, talk with you, walk with you, eat with you, drink with you, pray with you, but we will not join your republic or follow your flag.

"Canada's part is that of peace-keeper. She stands for peace, not for her own sake alone, but for the sake of the Anglo-Saxon ideal, and for the world's sake. She will not even consider the possibility of war in the Anglo-Saxon family. The military man who talks of arsenals and fortifications on the great lakes we mock at and laugh out of court. We repudiate as a guilty fallacy the notion that in peace we should prepare for war. Canada's maxim is: In peace prepare for more peace. This century of peace along the international boundary is the pledge and the prelude of an enduring peace more vital, more helpful, more beneficial to both nations and to the world than as yet has been dreamed."

A PUBLIC VENTURE

Dominion Government Will Build Hudson Bay Railway.

Ottawa, Nov. 16.—It is officially announced that the Hudson Bay Railway is to be built and financed by the Government. It will be about 400 miles long, from a point on the Saskatchewan River (The Pas), near the mouth of Pasula and Carrot Rivers, through the valley of the Nelson River to York Factory. The Nelson River will supply abundance of electric motive power.

The Canadian Northern is already built to the Pas, and the G.T.P. have announced that they will do the same from some point on their system. But the Government will not give control of the road to either of these companies. It says in what is an official statement:

"The most ample provision has been made for financing the Hudson Bay Railway through its period of construction, and as one line is all that is necessary, it will be in the interest of all parties, including the people of Canada, to have only the one, which is to be constructed directly or indirectly by the Government. That should be made a first-class road in every respect, capable of accommodating all the traffic brought to it by all the lines of railway that private parties choose to bring into connection with it. Obviously there should be among these tributary lines the most perfect equality, and just as obviously this cannot be secured by having one company build and own the road and giving the others running powers over it. Some way must be found to avoid the complication that will be sure to result from any such arrangement."

It may be, however, that Mackenzie and Mann will get the construction of the road. They have already undertaken the contract for the first bridge across the Saskatchewan.

The Government will also undertake the construction of the docks, and it may be that the crop of 1912 will, some of it, go out this way.

IMMIGRATION COMMISSION

Ottawa, Nov. 16.—Hon. Denis Murphy of the Supreme Court has been named a royal commissioner to investigate the Chinese immigration irregularities on the Pacific coast, and also to enquire into the operation of the act governing the sale of opium. The commissioner will take as the basis of his enquiry the results of the recent departmental enquiry into Chinese immigration, irregularities which resulted in the sending back to China a number of Chinese carrying false certificates as merchants returning to Canada. He will be assisted by George E. McCrossan, barrister, of Vancouver, as counsel.

CEMENT COMES DOWN 10 CENTS

Toronto, Nov. 16.—An announcement was made at a meeting of the directors of the Canadian Cement & Concrete Association by F. P. Jones, general manager of the Canada Cement Co., that an average reduction of ten cents per barrel would be made on the price of cement at various points throughout the Dominion. This reduction has been made possible through the economics effected by merging the largest cement plants in Canada.

MITCHELL IN LINE FOR CHEAP POWER

Mitchell, Nov. 16.—The Niagara power bylaw was voted on yesterday, and carried by a majority of 195. A strong canvass was made against it by an ex-mayor, but he met with little encouragement, and our citizens are rejoicing to-day that they are now on the list for cheap power and cheap light.

To Mayor Campbell belongs special credit for the result. He placed the matter clearly before the electors, and being a progressive business man, they placed full confidence in him, and rallied to his support in carrying the bylaw.

WANTED TO SELL THE GIRL

New York, Nov 16.—When a Chinese merchant of this city offered $250 for a white girl under sixteen years, Irene Stuber, American wife of Tom Lee, a Chinaman, lured her 13-year-old sister to New York from Scranton, Pa., to sell her, according to the story told in court yesterday by the girl's mother. A missionary rescued the girl from a Chinese resort.

RESCUED FROM HORRIBLE DEATH

Niagara Falls, Ont., Nov. 16.—Rescued from a horrible death last night, an unknown man owes his life to Immigration Inspector Prentice. Upon alighting from a car at the foot of Simcoe street, Prentice saw the man lying within a foot of the brink of the precipice, having a sheer drop of over 150 feet to the rocks at the water's edge.

As Prentice watched the man, the latter began rolling towards the precipice's brink. Hurdling the iron railing that runs along the river bank, Prentice caught the man's coat in time to save him from rolling to instant, horrible death.

The man was taken to police headquarters, but was in a stupor, the police say, from drink, unable to speak. The only thing found on him that would give a clue to his identity was the return portion of a ticket from this city to Hamilton.

LIABILITY OF TELEGRAPH COMPANIES

Ottawa, Nov. 16.—The application of the various telegraph companies for the approval of their message forms was before the Railway Commission yesterday afternoon.

During the discussion a question arose as to the liability of a company for a time table, in transmitting a message. Up to the present time the telegraph companies have been liable for the cost only of an ordinary message in the event of a mistake being made, and for fifty times the amount in the case of a repeated message.

It was suggested by the board that a maximum penalty of $500 be fixed. The advisability of making the penalty $200 for an unrepeated and $400 for a repeated message was suggested. The board reserved decision.

DEFENCE IN BLONDIN TRIAL WOULD THROW OUT STATEMENT

Prisoner's Counsel Declares That It Is Inadmissable as Evidence—Miss Wood Gave Dr. Empey Morphia and Strychnine Just Before He Made the Declaration Accusing the Prisoner of Murder.

L'Original, Ont., Nov. 16.—An endeavor by the defence to have the ante-mortem statement of Dr. W. A. Empey of Vars, with whose murder Albert Blondin of the same place is charged, declared inadmissable as evidence, was the chief point in the trial of the latter, which opened here yesterday morning before Justice Britton of Toronto. The statement was laid over till to-day for further authority as to its legality.

E. Meredith, K.C., for the prosecution, in addressing the jury, gave an indication of the course the crown's case would take when he emphasized the fact that the prisoner's wife was working at Dr. Empey's place on the day the doctor was shot, and that this was the first time she had been there for a year and a half. He laid great stress on the doctor's dying statement in which he said that Blondin had deliberately raised the gun and fired at him, and that it was not an accident.

Evidence was then given by Dr. McDougal of Russell, one of the medical attendants of the deceased, and Coroner Boyle of Casselman, the first of which said that Dr. Empey had been clear in mind previous to his death.

That Blondin had summoned Dr. Empey, saying that he was ill, and that he was cleaning his gun before the doctor came, was stated by Louis Groslouis, son-in-law of the defendant. After hearing a shot upstairs, he assisted Dr. Empey, wounded, from the house and then fled with his own and the prisoner's family, as he considered the killer was crazy.

Dr. Empey had made a verbal statement to the same effect to Rev. Jas. Cormack, Presbyterian minister, stated the latter when called. He also gave evidence, which was supported by Mr. and Mrs. L. Feltery, in whose house Dr. Empey died, by Miss Lindwood, a friend, and by Miss Mary Empey, sister, to the effect that Dr. Empey had caused Miss Wood to administer two hypodermic doses of morphine and one of strychnine shortly before making his last statement as to the shooting.

The question of the admissability of this statement was then deferred till to-day on the objection of Mr. Lemieux, for the defendant, though the defence later almost nullified their partial success, when Mr. Lemieux questioned a statement made by Dr. Empey in his dying declaration, although, if this statement were proven incorrect, it might affect the correctness of the whole declaration of Dr. Empey. It would also mean the admission of the latter as evidence, so the matter was let drop.

DISASTROUS EXPERIMENT

Fort Monroe, Va., Nov. 16.—In an experiment to test the effect of an unconfined explosion of high explosive nitro-glycerine, the monitor Puritan was badly damaged in Hampton Roads yesterday, after two charges of 300 pounds each had exploded, one against her after turret, and the other against her armor belt.

In a sinking condition the vessel was rushed to the Norfolk navy yard.

The first detonation and shock was plainly felt in Portsmouth, ten miles away. An hour later, with less shock apparently, another charge was exploded against the armor belt along the waterline of the ship.

The result of the test will have a bearing on the construction of future warships.

TRAGEDIES OF A DAY

A Child Suicide.

Philadelphia, Nov. 16.—Grieving over the death of her mother who died when she was six years old, ten year-old Harriet Owens yesterday ended her life with her father's revolver. Her body was discovered lying beside a wreath, which had been taken from the coffin of her mother.

Lying nearby was a childish scrawl, which said: "Good-bye, papa. I am going to join mother, and I hope that God will forgive me."

Fumes Suffocated Him.

Trenton, Ont., Nov. 16.—George Blakeley, a man about 35 years old, was found dead yesterday morning in the Gilbert House sheds. It seems he went into the sheds about 12 or 1 o'clock, and going into a small office which the hostler uses, he lit a small oil stove, sat down and went to sleep. There was very little oil in the stove, and the fumes from the stove suffocated him.

Son of Toronto Professor Killed.

Seattle, Wash., Nov. 16.—Ernest Welch, alias Tommy Walsh, the longshoreman who died from a beating he said was administered by a gang of thugs Saturday night, is the son of Prof. Thomas Welch of Ottawa, according to the dead man's wife, Mrs. Margaret Welch.

Child Killed By a Car.

Toronto, Nov. 15.—Yesterday afternoon the life of four-year-old David Goldberg, son of Simon Goldberg, 157 West Queen street, was crushed out by a Queen street car in front of his father's office. The car was not running fast.

The boy was crossing the street in front of the car when he fell. The boy's mother saw the accident and was frantic with grief, while the father fainted.

Mother Leaped From Window.

New York, Nov. 16.—Ten minutes after reaching St. Catharines Hospital in Brooklyn, suffering with two broken legs she had received jumping from the third storey of her home while it was on fire yesterday, Mrs. Ray Schustermann of 203 Moore street, gave birth to a baby boy. The child is a healthy youngster, but the mother will likely die.

Conductor Fell Overboard.

Brockville, Nov. 16.—The death occurred early yesterday of George Guilboard, for a number of years a well-known G.T.R. conductor. He was returning from Ogdensburg Monday night on a yacht when he fell off into the river. He was in the water but a short time, and died from the cold shortly after the craft reached this town.

EXPECT FIFTY P.C. INCREASE

Washington, Nov. 16.—Contemplating the adoption of some of the United States Government's census-taking methods in connection with the next census, the Canadian Government has sent to Washington E. S. McPhail of the census bureau of Canada, to consult with Director Durand regarding the operations of the American bureau. The two officials have been in conference for two days.

Mr. McPhail said that, according to official estimates, the next Canadian census, which will be taken in June 1911, will show a populaion of about 8,000,000. This would be an increase of 2,700,000, or about 50 per cent. over the figures of 1901.

"We hope," said Mr. McPhail, "that a large percentage of the increase will be shown on account of American immigration."

SIR HUGH GRAHAM DENIES RUMOR

Glasgow, Nov. 16.—Sir Hugh Graham, speaking to a representative of the Canadian Associated Press, said the report that he is to succeed Lord Strathcona, Canada's High Commissioner, is absurd. He pointed out that there was no vacancy in the commissionership, and stated that Canadians hoped that Lord Strathcona will remain in office for years to come.

Kind Comment.

London, Nov. 16.—Referring to comments by The Montreal Herald and The Daily Witness on speeches of Sir George Doughty and Sir William Grantham, The Chronicle says it is curious that any newspaper in Canada should suppose anyone in this country pays the slightest attention to what these two gallant knights may say.

Honor For Toronto Nurse.

New York, Nov. 16.—Miss Mary A. Smeeton, who graduated in 1908 from Toronto General Hospital, has been awarded one of the Isabel Hampton Robb scholarships at Teachers' College, Columbia University, where she has been taking the course in hospital economics.

Strathcona President.

London, Nov. 16.—At a meeting of the Imperial Exhibition Co., Lord Strathcona was unanimously elected president.

ASQUITH WILL SEND VETO TO LORDS

British Premier Will Send His Bill to Upper House on Condition That no Dilatory Tactics Are Employed—A. Chamberlain to Place Unionist Platform Before Supporters.

London, Nov. 16.—A general election before Christmas is a practical certainty, but the steps whereby this will be brought about are still unknown. The King is evidently taking an active part in the crisis, and his Majesty's influence may have an important bearing on the situation.

It was announced last night that the Government will accede to Lord Lansdowne's demand to have the veto bill submitted to the House of Lords, on condition that no dilatory tactics are employed for the mere purpose of gaining time. As it cannot be supposed that the Lords would accept the bill, this move is not likely to have much effect on the general situation.

Premier Asquith's official statement will not be presented to Parliament until Friday, in deference to Mr. Balfour, who has an engagement to address an important political meeting at Nottingham on Thursday.

An indication of the Unionist policy comes with the publication of the resolution which Austen Chamberlain, after a consultation with Mr. Balfour and Lord Lansdowne, will submit to the Unionist conference at Glasgow on Nov. 25. These resolutions concede that the possession of a peerage should no longer of itself give the right to sit in the House of Lords, and welcome any reasonable proposals which will increase the efficiency of the House of Lords by the addition of life peers, or representatives elected for a term of years from those outside the peerage. At the same time the resolutions maintain that when the two Houses disagree on vital issues, it is the people alone who have the right to decide between them.

Is it a Bluff?

London, Nov. 16.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—In the House of Lords Monday evening Lord Lansdowne sprang a surprise by calling upon the Government to submit the Parliament bill for the decision of Parliament without delay. This will add to the difficulties of the Cabinet, who meet to-day. Rumors are flying about that the House of Lords is ready to accept the Government's plan, with modifications, but in several quarters, especially in the Ministerial ranks, it is described as a mere bluff, or at most an attempt to postpone the election. The Parliament bill has been read once in the Commons.

Lord Rosebery enquired what has become of his proposals for the reform of the Upper House. Lord Crewe promised to make a statement to-day.

After consultation with Mr. Balfour, Lord Lansdowne's statement in the House of Lords that: "Some of us are not without hopes that, although this particular conference has been unproductive of a definite conclusion, another conference may be held which will be more successful."

The News hints plainly that Asquith is experiencing difficulty in obtaining from the crown guarantees that his veto policy would be rendered effective if the Ministerialists are returned to power.

CARS WORKERS ARE ON STRIKE

Amherst, N.S., Nov. 16.—One hundred men in the erecting shop of the Canada Car Co. went on a strike on account of a reduction in the wage schedule. The men are unorganized and have no union behind them, and, if they do not resume work this week, their places will be probably filled at once.

The company contends that the wages paid were unreasonably high. Only pieceworkers are involved in this strike.

J. A. PATTEN TO EMULATE CARNEGIE

Chicago, Nov. 16.—"Judge men by men's standards and not by the bulge or lack of bulge in their wallets. A man should dispose of great wealth for the benefit of the community."

With these declarations as the keynote of his action, James A. Patten, retired king of the wheat pit, yesterday stands committed here to the giving away of the bulk of his millions for the betterment of humanity. It is believed he will do so largely through the Y.M.C.A.

The banquet at which Patten's declaration was made was held in celebration of a successful Y.M.C.A. campaign to raise $100,000. Of the amount Patten personally gave $25,000.

Will Not Be Tried.

Nashville, Tenn., Nov. 16.—The retrial of Robin Cooper, charged with the murder of ex-U.S. Senator Cormack, was indefinitely postponed in the Criminal Court yesterday.

Mr. Cormack was shot to death on Nov. 9, 1908. Col. Duncan Cooper, his son Robin and John Sharp were arrested, charged with the crime. Sharp was acquitted, but the two Coopers were convicted and sentenced to 20 years each. Duncan Cooper was pardoned, and the State Supreme Court granted the younger man a re-trial.

FAVOR TARIFF REDUCTION

Winnipeg, Nov. 16.—There was not a dissenting vote when the Winnipeg Liberal Association passed their resolution in favor of a reduction in the Canadian tariff.

All the speakers were in favor of a lower tariff, differing only in their opinion as to the extent of the recommendation to be made.

Winnipeg's Y.M.C.A. Fund.

Winnipeg, Nov. 16.—Collections for Y.M.C.A. fund here for twenty-four hours ending 1 p.m. yesterday, were $24,000, bringing the total up to $113,000.

Explosion Killed 23.

London, Nov. 16.—A news despatch from Shanghai states that 23 persons were killed by an explosion in a cartridge factory at Paoting.

Defences of the Canal.

Panama, Nov. 16.—President Taft started out for his first active inspection of the canal yesterday. Following his first day of conferences, it was reported that he would recommend in his next message to Congress that $2,000,000 be appropriated to begin works of defence.

A Long Flight.

St. Petersburg, Nov. 16.—Aviator Efimoff, director of the Russian military aeroplane squad at Sebastopol, is planning a flight of army aviators from Sebastopol to St. Petersburg.

REDUCED LIBERAL MAJORITY

Halifax, Nov. 16.—A. E. Wall, Liberal, was elected in the bye-election in Digby yesterday for a seat in the local Legislature by a majority of 277 over W. E. Vanblarcom, Conservative. The seat was made vacant by the appointment of A. H. Gidney, one of the sitting members, to the office of collector of customs for the port of Digby. The Liberal majority at the last election was 547.

WILL ARBITRATE THE DISPUTE

Winnipeg, Nov. 16.—It is likely that determined efforts will be made by the city authorities to obtain a settlement of difficulties with the C.P.R. in connection with the stock yard here. By agreement made in 1882 with the company the city allowed exemption of taxation in perpetuity, provided that the railway would maintain adequate stock yards facilities. These have not been provided, and the city has lost hundreds of thousands of dollars in taxes. The dispute will be arbitrated.

Majority Climbing Down.

Quebec, Nov. 16.—A despatch from Drummondville says that the recount of the ballot boxes in the election of Drummond and Arthabasca resulted in the reducing of Mr. Gilbert's majority to 71, and three polls are still missing, the assistant returning officers having failed to make some essential contestations.

The offical majority had been announced at over 200.

EDICT AGAINST HOBBLE SKIRTS

Atlantic City, Nov. 16.—Declaring that it is a mathematical fact that a girl in a hobble can take a step only half as long as in an ordinary skirt, and that therefore her efficiency as a clerk is reduced just half, department store owners and other employers yesterday issued an edict against the hobble during working hours.

Work of Canadian Artist.

New York, Nov. 16.—Queen Wilhelmina of Holland has purchased a water color painted by Charles P. Gruppe, making a third work by him which she has in her collection.

London, Nov. 16.—The four United States battleships comprising the first division of the Atlantic fleet, under Rear-Admiral Schroeder, passed the Isle of Wight yesterday morning, steaming towards the Thames River.

Melbourne, Australia, Nov. 16.—The Commonwealth yesterday decided not to accept the Canadian Government's proposal to renew the Vancouver-Australia mail service, with calls at Auckland and Sydney only.

THE EXTRA EFFORT

You who are complaining that the world is holding you down and that you never had a chance, get up. No one is hurting you but yourself. It is all rot that opportunity knocks only once. Every morning is live with opportunity for a move towards success. It may not be a big move. There may be no cymbals, big drum or brass band, but you can make every day count. That fellow who's beating you out in life's race at law, medicine, in the store, bank or office; that girl who is going up socially and intellectually—no one is boosting them. It's in themselves. Say, get up. THERE IS OPPORTUNITY EVERYWHERE.

You must win if you are only patient and will keep on trying.

It's not so much doing what you are paid for that counts, as doing MORE than you are paid for.

MR. PUGSLEY LIE DOWN

Busy Mr. Pugsley's latest "vindication" is receiving the satirical comment of the press. Listen, for example, to the Hamilton Herald, an independent paper. "The Dominion Government," it says, "allows Contractor Mayes to win his suit by default. No evidence was submitted. The Government could better afford to pay Mayes all he claimed than to have McAvity subjected to cross-examination."

That is exactly what occurred. Here was the Department of Public Works with three counsel ready to defend the suit, an array of witnesses ready to testify, a strenuous denial on the record that Mr. Mayes was entitled to a cent, all the forces of the Department lined up to fight a litigious contractor, and what happened? The Crown's defence suddenly collapsed like a house of cards.

Less than twenty-four hours before the hearing Mr. George McAvity had been subpoenaed to give evidence as to his dealings with Mr. Pugsley and Mr. Mayes. Mr. Pugsley appears in court, ignores counsel, witnesses and the Crown's defence, takes the case into his own hands and settles it by paying Mr. Mayes nearly $10,000 and costs. And the item for $5,000—the only one in Mr. Mayes' claim, be it noted, in which Mr. McAvity's evidence was material, and which Mr Pugsley himself had repeatedly said was not owing—he agrees to pay in full.

As was sarcastically remarked by the St. John Globe, a Liberal paper. "This case in Mr. Pugsley's department, as handled by the minister himself, is a most excellent precedent, striking in its originality, notable in its simplicity, and wonderful in its results."

ORIENTAL LABOR

When Sir Wilfrid Laurier was in British Columbia he trimmed his sails to the anti-Asiatic winds, which he found prevailing there. One of the statements upon which he relied to show his antagonism to Oriental labor, was an assertion that no Asiatics have been employed on the Grand Trunk Pacific; and that none would be employed on the line in the future. He did his best to persuade the people of British Columbia that it was by the actions of the Government that white labor alone is employed in the Grand Trunk Pacific. The fact, indeed, was made the basis of his appeal to the public.

It is quite true that the Grand Trunk Pacific is unable to employ Oriental labor; but why?

So far as the Dominion Government is concerned the fact is simply that when the Grand Trunk Pacific Act was being passed the Conservative party endeavored to have it made a clause in the charter that the company was to restrict itself to white labor. The Government refused to accept this, and the House of Commons at its instance voted the motion down.

Thus the Dominion Government was asked to prohibit the use of Oriental labor and refused. To this day it has taken no action to debar the company from importing Asiatics to do the work. Certain of its public servants have been emphatically arguing that the company should be allowed the privilege. But in the course of its operations the Grand Trunk Railway needed powers which lay within the gift of the Legislature of British Columbia. When it asked for these concessions the McBride Government granted them only on condition that the company must bind itself to abstain from the engagement of Asiatics. The prohibition is provincial. It is the action of the McBride Government which keeps the Orientals out. Thus Sir Wilfrid Laurier has been taking credit for the action of the Provincial Government.

SIDE LIGHTS

"THOU SHALT NOT STEAL."

Toronto—A post office employee was sentenced to five years imprisonment for stealing two money orders. He leaves a wife and five small children in destitute circumstances.—News Despatch.

"Thou Shalt Not Steal" the angel said as he chiselled a slab of stone,
"I give you the everlasting law that a man's own is his own,"
And then from out of the Master's mine, without a thought of shame,
He took a scroll of burnished gold and he fashioned the block — the same.

"Thou Shalt Not Steal," the church declared, now praise we all our Lord,
He hath led us up from the miry clay to the paths his feet have trod
So they gave their love to the things on high, and thus with sweet accord,
They robbed the starving souls of men to waste it on the Lord.

"Thou Shalt Not Steal" the Nation said, and then it turned its eyes
To a struggling state that was sapped and weak, and it seemed an easy prize:
So the arm of the mighty nation took, with fingers dripping red
As it stole the life of a sister state from the hands of the noble dead.

"Thou Shalt Not Steal," the magnate said, "I do not like that word,"
In a business sense misunderstood by the simple common herd:
I'd rather pay for the things I need, and so without delay,
He bought a legislature that had wisdom to obey.

THE GARDEN WALL.

Kate E. Clark.

When I first saw her she was standing in the garden
Among the flowers all so beautiful and fair,
And the roses all around her they were blushing
'Cause my lady was the fairest flower there.

Rosalie, my dearest little sweetheart,
You're the brightest, fairest flower of them all,
Oh, you little know how near I am my darling,
For I'm peeking at you through the garden wall.

How I sighed and envied all those gay Sweet Williams,
And the Jonquils and the golden Sunflowers tall,
As she plucked and lovingly caressed them
While I stood by outside the garden wall.

I just whistled low and then I softly called her
"Can't you stop," I said, "and listen to my call,
Won't you give, I beg, a little bunch of Heartsease,
To a lonely chap outside the garden wall?"

Oh, Rosalie, my dearest little sweetheart,
You have bound me hand and foot in love's sweet thrall,
And I simply beg and earnestly entreat you
Not to leave me long alone outside the garden wall.

CATTLE MARKETS.

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—London and Liverpool cables quote American cattle weak, at 12½c to 13½c per lb. dressed weight; refrigerator beef at 10c per lb.

GLASGOW, Nov. 15.—Edward Watson & Ritchie report 266 cattle landed from the Pretorian offered. Trade was fair at last week's quotations. Top cattle 14c, secondary 13c to 13½c. Bulls are showing badly and trade is not so good. Top 11½c to 12c. The secondary grade was cheaper owing to ranch cattle on offer at 11c per pound. The Parthenia has not yet arrived.

Toronto Live Stock.

TORONTO, Nov. 15.—The railways reported 175 carloads of live stock at the City Market, consisting of 3280 cattle, 807 hogs, 1856 sheep and lambs and 105 calves.

Exporters.

No export steers were on sale, consequently there were none sold at $6.25 per cwt. Thomas Connor reported to The World that he got about half a load of export bulls, 1400 to 1800 lbs. each, at $4 to $5 per cwt.

Butchers.

Geo. Rowntree bought during the two days 620 cattle for the Harris Abattoir Company—butchers' steers and heifers, $4.85 to $5.60; cows, $1.50 to $4.75; bulls, $3.50 to $4.70.

Stockers and Feeders.

Stockers and feeders were slow of sale compared with two weeks ago, and sold fully 25c to 30c per cwt. lower. Cattle that were selling for $5.30 and $5.40 two weeks ago sold to-day at $5 to $5.10.

Stockers were quoted to-day as low as $3.75 for the first time this season.

Milkers and Springers.

Trade in milkers and springers is still good, but not quite as brisk to-day as it has been. Prices ranged at from $50 to $80 each, and one sold at as low as $40.

Veal Calves.

One hundred and five calves, the majority of which were a skinny lot at best, sold at $3 to $7.50 per cwt.

Sheep and Lambs.

Wesley Dunn, who is the heaviest buyer of sheep and lambs at all times and seasons of the year, quoted sheep, ewes, at $4.50 to $4.65 per cwt., and rams at $3 to $3.50 per cwt.; lambs at $5.75 to $5.85, which shows that there was not much change in prices, but the market was weak at these quotations.

Hogs.

Not many hogs were reported on sale, and there seemed to be little enquiry for them.

Mr. Harris reported $7 for selects, fed and watered, and $6.65 to drovers, for hogs, f.o.b. cars at country points.

The Riverman

Chapter 4

WHEN Newmark awoke once more to interest in affairs the morning was well spent. On the river the work was going forward with the precision of clockwork.

Orde discovered about noon that the jam crew was having its troubles. Immediately below Reed's dam ran a long chute strewn with bowlders, which was alternately a shallow or a stretch of white water according as the stream rose or fell. Ordinarily the logs were flushed over this declivity by opening the gate, behind which a head of water had been accumulated. Now, however, the efficiency of the gate had been destroyed.

"I wonder if we can't drop that gate way down to get something for a head," said Orde to the foreman.

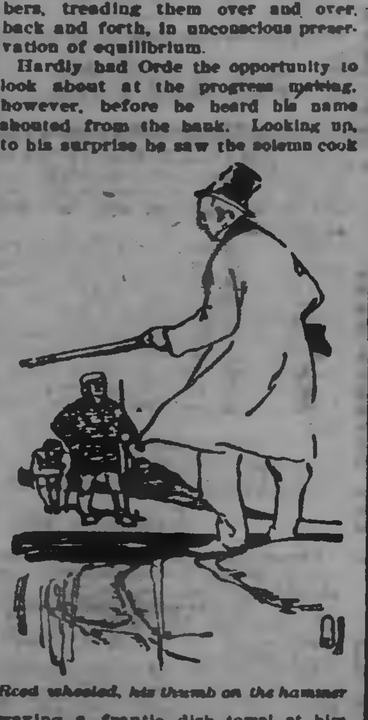
The two men examined the chute and the sluice gate attentively for some time.

"If we could clear out the splinters and rubbish we might spike a couple of saplings on each side for the gate to slide down into," speculated North.

The logs were held up in the pond, and a crew of men set to work to cut away the splintered ends of the old sill and apron. The current rendered footing impossible, so all the work had to be done from above. Wet wood gripped the long saws viselike, so that a man's utmost strength could scarcely budge them. Nevertheless they held to it. Orde, satisfied that they would succeed, departed up river to the rear.

This crew he found working busily among some overflowed woods. They were herding the laggards of the flock. The subsidence of the water consequent upon the opening of the sluice gate had left stranded and in shallows many hundreds of the logs. From the advantage of deadwood, stumps or other logs the "sackers" pushed the unwieldly timbers forward, leaping, splashing, heaving, shoving, until at last the steady current of the main river seized the logs and bore them away. With marvelous skill they topped the dripping, bobby, rolling timbers, treading them over and over, back and forth, in unconscious preservation of equilibrium.

Hardly had Orde the opportunity to look about at the progress making, however, before he heard his name shouted from the bank. Looking up, to his surprise he saw the solemn cook



Reed wheeled, his thumb on the hammer

"What is it, Charlie?" asked Orde, leaping ashore and stamping the loose water from his boots.

"It's all off," confided the cook pessimistically. "It's no good. He's stopped us now."

"What's off? Who's stopped what?"

"Reed. He's drev the men from the dam with a shotgun. We might as well quit."

"Shotgun, hey!" exclaimed Orde. "Well, the old son of a gun!" He thought a moment, his lips puckered as though to whistle; then, as usual, he laughed amusedly. "Let's go take a look at the army," said he.

Orde found the center of the dam was occupied by Reed, his plug hat fuzzier than ever, his coattails and loose trousers flapping at his every movement. Over his shoulder he carried a long percussion lock shotgun. Perched along the bank sat the rivermen, watching him in silence.

"What's the matter?" inquired Orde, approaching.

"If the law don't protect me I'll protect myself," Reed proclaimed. "I give ye fair warning."

"But surely," said Orde, "we have a right to run our logs through. It's an open river."

"And hev ye been runnin' your logs through?" cried the old man excitedly. "Hev ye? First off ye begin to tear down my dam, and then when the river begins a-roarin' and a-ragin' through then you tamper with my improvements furthermore, a-lowerin' the gate and otherwise a-modifyin' my structhre."

He walked back to the waiting row.

"Surely," spoke up Newmark, "whatever the status of the damage suits, you have the legal right to run your logs."

"Per-fect-ly correct, son," he drawled, "but we're engaged in the happy occupation of getting out logs. By the time the law was all adjusted and a head of steam up the water 'd be down. In this game you get out logs first and think about law afterward."

"How about legal damages?" insisted Newmark.

"Legal damages!" scoffed Orde. "Legal damages! Why, we count legal damages as part of our regular expenses, like potatoes."

Orde walked to the edge of the dam and stood looking down current. Then he turbed to the grimly silent rivermen.

"Boys," he commanded briefly, "get your peavies and come along."

"Bring down two logs fairly big and hold them by that old snag," he ordered. "Hold them end on—no, pointing upstream. Fix 'em about ten foot apart. That's it! George, drive a couple of stakes each side of them to hold 'em. Correct! Now, run down a couple dozen more and pile them across those two, side on to, the stream, of course. Roll 'em up. That's the ticket!"

Orde next braced more logs against a convenient bowlder, and an old stall near shore became the third pier in a line below the mill.

"Now, boys," commanded Orde, "shove off some shore logs and let them come down."

The stray logs floating down with the current the rivermen caught and jammed about the improvised piers.

So in ten seconds after the shore logs began drifting the jam formed, low and broad. The weight of the topmost logs sunk those beneath to the bed of the stream. This to a certain extent dammed back the water. Below the improvised dam the water fell almost to nothing, and above it, swirling in eddies, grumbling fiercely, bubbling, gurgling, searching busily for an opening, the river turned back on itself.

"The bigger the pressure the tighter she locks," replied Orde, lighting his pipe.

In order to take full advantage of the water power developed by his dam old man Reed had built his mill nearly at a level with the stream. Now the river, backing up, rapidly overflowed this flat. As the jam tightened by its own weight the water fairly jumped from the lowest floor of the mill to the one above.

"What's the matter here?" he demanded.

"Matter?" inquired Orde easily. "Oh, nothing much—just a little jam."

"But it's flooding my mill."

"I'm not interested."

"I've a lot of grain upstairs. It'll be ruined. You miserable blackguard!"

Reed frantically disappeared, returning bearing an antiquated pike pole, and single handed attacked the jam.

Astonishment and delight held the rivermen breathless for a moment. Then a roar of laughter drowned even noise of the waters.

Only Orde seemed to see the other side. With a few quick leaps he had gained the old man's side.

"Break it!" pleaded Reed. "You're ruining me. I've got all my money in that mill."

"Well," said Orde, "we've got a lot of money in our logs too. Come," taking Reed gently by the arm, "there's no reason you and I shouldn't get along together all right. Maybe we're both a little hard headed. Let's talk it over."

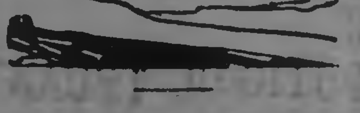
"War's over, boys! Break that jam!"

The crew swarmed across the log barrier to a point above the center pier. This they attacked with their peavies, rolling the top logs off into the current below. In less than no time they had torn quite a hole in the top layer. The river rushed through the opening. Immediately the logs in the wings were tumbled in from either side. At first the men had to do all the work, but soon the river itself turned to their assistance.

The going of the jam drained the water from the lower floors of the mill. The upper stories and the grain were still safe.

By evening the sluice gate had been roughly provided with pole guides down which to slide to the bed of the river. The following morning saw the work going on as methodically as ever. By the end of the second [illegible] the pond was clear, and as Ch[illegible] wanigan was drifting toward th[illegible]ute the first of Johnson's drive floated into the head of the pond.



Chapter 5

CHARLIE'S wanigan, in case you do not happen to know what such a thing may be, was a scow about twenty feet long by ten wide. It was very solidly constructed of hewn timbers, square at both ends, was inconceivably clumsy and weighed an unbelievable number of pounds. When loaded, it carried all the bed rolls, tents, provisions, cooking utensils, tools and a chest of tobacco, clothes and other minor supplies. It was managed by Charlie and his two cookees by means of pike poles and a long sweep at either end.

The packing began before the men had finished breakfast. Shortly after daylight the wanigan, pushed strongly from shore by the pike poles, was drifting toward the chute. The heavy scow threatened to turn side on, and the sweeps at either end churned the water frantically in an endeavor to straighten her out.

As Newmark looked at the smooth rim of the water sucking into the chute he began to wonder why he had come. The noble ship was pointed right at last and caught the faster water head on.

"All right!" Charlie shouted.

Whack, bump, bang, and the scow stopped so suddenly that its four men plunged forward in a miscellaneous heap. The water, backed up behind the stern, began to overflow into the boat. Newmark saw that the scow had run her bow on an obstruction and had been brought to a standstill square beneath the sluice gate. The water was beginning to flow the entire length of the boat. Various lighter articles shot past him and disappeared over the side.

Newmark had an inspiration. The more important matters, such as the men's clothes bags, the rolls of bedding and the heavier supplies of provisions, had not yet cut loose from their moorings. He seized one of the long oars, thrust the blade under the edge of a thwart astern, laid the shaft of the oar across the cargo and by resting his weight on the handle attempted to bring it down to bind the contents of the wanigan to their places. The cookees came to his assistance. Together they succeeded in bending the long hickory sweep far enough to catch its handle end under another forward thwart. The second oar was quickly locked alongside the first, and not a moment too soon. A rush of water forced them all to cling for their lives.

Two or three rivermen appeared at the edge of the chute. A moment later old man Reed ran up, carrying a rope. This, after some difficulty, was made fast to the bow of the wanigan. A short rope from the top of the dam allowed the boat to be lifted free of the obstruction; a cable astern prevented the current from throwing her broadside to the rush of waters; another cable from the bow led her in the way she should go. Ten minutes later she was pulled ashore out of the eddy below, very much waterlogged and manned by a drenched and disgruntled crew.

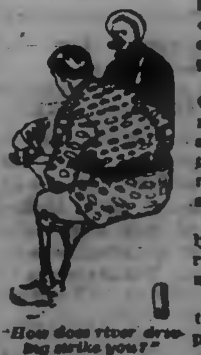
In a couple of hours' run the wanigan had overtaken and left far behind the rear of the drive.

"Well," said Charlie at last, "we better make camp. We'll be down in the jam pretty soon."



"How does river driving strike you?"

"Well," said Orde to Newmark later, around the campfire, "how does river driving strike you?"

"It is extremely interesting," replied Newmark.

"Like to join the wanigan crew permanently?"

"No, thanks," returned Newmark dryly.

"Well, stay with us as long as you're having a good time," invited Orde heartily.

"Thank you," Newmark acknowledged this, "I believe I will."

"That old mossback Reed was right on deck with his rope," remarked Johnny Simms. "That was pretty decent of him."

"Oh, he's a poor old devil," replied Orde easily. "That's the way the Lord made him. He can't help how he's made."

Cows That Never Drink.

The "wild cow" of Arabia, in reality an antelope, the Beatrix oryx, is said never to drink, which is probably correct, for unless these animals can descend the wells they can find no drinking water for ten months in the year. There is no surface water, and rain falls but precariously during the winter. Only once during my journey did I find a pool of rainwater, caught in a hollow rock, and even this I should have passed by without knowing of its existence had not my camels sniffed it from a distance and obstinately refused to be turned from going in that direction. These antelope, however, are provided by nature with a curious food supply, especially designed as a thirst quencher. This is a parasite which grows on the roots of the desert bushes and forms a long spadix full of water and juice. The antelope dig deep holes in the sand in order to get at these.—Wide World Magazine.

THIS PARTY HAD GREAT LUCK AND LOTS OF VARIETY

Seven Deer an Owl and a Lynx Falls to the Lot of the Eastwood Seven Who Spent Fifteen Days at Stoney Lake—Largest Buck of the Season Bites the Dust.

The Eastwood party has returned to the city after fifteen days' hunting at Stoney Creek, bringing with it the biggest buck to come to Peterborough this year. It was shot by Mr. I. Eastwood, the captain of the party, and weighed 215 pounds. The hunters got their full complement of deer.

The members of the party were Messrs. I. Eastwood, staff-captain; Bert Hickey, J. Mervin, W. Gould, C. Herkmier, and Frank Overs, son of Judge Overs, of Pittsburg.

An owl is supposed to be a wise bird, but it was not wise enough to dodge a bullet from the sure-fire gun of Mr. T. Eastwood. However, everything else in the woods was for the solitary owl was Mr. Eastwood's only victim. He shot it in the day time, too.

Mr. Bert Hickey had the most sensational experience of any member of the party.

He treed a lynx, and after he had banged at it seven times the cat tumbled to the ground. Although he had two shots left in his rifle, Mr. Hickey became alarmed when the lynx fell, and imagined the wounded animal had pounced down upon him. He rushed to the camp and was given a bodyguard and returned to the scene. Instead of encountering a wounded animal, infuriated with pain, they found a dead lynx stretched out underneath the tree, exactly where it had fallen dead when the excited nimrod imagined it had jumped for him with designs on his life.

THREE MURDERS IN WEEK; CHICAGO IS TERRORIZED; POLICE ARE BAFFLED

Special to the Review.

Rochester, N.Y., Nov. 16.—Three murders within ten days have caused a reign of terror in Rochester. Patrick Lyons, Benjamin Roache and Chas. Murphy, Geneva, N.Y., were arrested to-day in the latest case, that of the murder of George A. Schuchart, a grocer, who was shot to death as he was closing up his store last night. The police are baffled by the case, because Schuchart had a roll of $100 in currency in his pockets, and the cash register was not touched.

SAW HIS CHANCE AND CLEARED $70.000

Hamilton Times.

Frederick Shipman, a Hamilton man who has made his headquarters in New York for some years, a brother of Ernest Shipman, who married Roselle Knott, gets, as his share for arranging and managing the Melba trip, $70,000. The diva did business to the extent of between $150,000 and $160,000. The expenses amounted to about $30,000, and Melba gets the rest—between $50,000 and $60,000.

The tour lasted about 15 weeks, with concerts several times a week all the way from Halifax to the Pacific coast.

It was Mr. Shipman's ingenious plan to introduce the great concert star to cities of the Canadian West, which had hitherto been denied such opportunity. A guarantee was demanded of most cities, Saskatoon putting up $4,000 in advance Edmonton paid $6,000 for the privilege of the singer's visit, and other well-to-do cities similarly paid a handsome price. Seats sold for five dollars and over, and even at that were very scarce.

Scenes such as never before were experienced are recorded of Melba's visit—of people coming fifty and a hundred miles at a heavy expense to hear her.

At Saskatoon Mme. Melba delighted and attracted by the country and its commercial possibilities, invested four thousand dollars in land near the railway station and made other heavy investments at various Canadian points. Mr. Shipman is now making arrangements for a tour of Mme. Nordica.

A GOLD MEDAL FOR ORATORY

The executive committee of the Literary and Debating Club of the Y.M.C.A. met last evening in the parlor of the Association. The object of the meeting was to draw up a schedule for the season. This was done and was of such a nature as to justify the members in feeling that the club will have the best season's work in its history.

There will be a debate on the evening of Tuesday, Nov. 29th, when two of the best debaters in the Association will meet two others, who think that they are the best. It has not been decided yet who the contestants will be, but the members can depend upon hearing a good discussion.

One of the directors of the Association has presented a gold medal for competition in oratory. This has made it necessary to include in the schedule several nights which will be devoted to that very important line of literary work, public speaking.

The class in Mechanical Drawing will meet as usual this evening. This class is keeping up its attendance well. The students feel that they are improving their time as they could not do in any other way.

The class in First Aid meets tonight under the leadership of Dr. McPherson. Every member should be in his place.

HORSE COULDN'T STAND THE ROW AND BOLTED

Residents of Stewart street, north, laughed long and loud yesterday afternoon, and it happened like this.

A farmer from Smith called at a grocery store in an endeavor to dispose of a quantity of cabbages. But was told that the stock on hand was sufficient.

"That means that you don't want to deal with me," he said. He became very indignant. By the time he reached the sidewalk again, his feelings gave vent to an outburst of sentences and short paragraphs, which can only be explained like this — — — — — —

Householders in the vicinity came to their doors in alarm, and the finale was brought about when the farmers' horse, unable to stand the strain, bolted off as though struck with an airship, and his vociferous owner, carrying a basket of his gardn produce, in hot pursuit. It was learned later that the horse made his first stop at his stable.

ADVANTAGES OF TECHNICAL EDUCATION AT SCHOOLS

The great practical value and timeliness of technical education and manual training were emphasized last night at the Board of Trade meeting by Messrs. Hodgson and Hagerman, of the Collegiate staff of the Peterborough Collegiate Institute.

Mr. Hodgson, who addressed the meeting first, said that technical education was not a fad. It had important relation to the industrial development of the day.

He interestingly outlined the scope of technical education and dwelt on the desirability of having it introduced into the education of the school pupil.

Mr. Hagerman cited Germany as a country from which the lesson of the benefit of technical education could be learned. Germany was the foremost nation in the world in the way of mechanical achievement.

The idea of manual training was to give breadth of thought to the pupils who would follow the trades ideas as a means of livelihood.

CHIEF WILL DEAL WITH YOUTHFUL TRUANT

Magistrate Dumble was called upon to deal with a youthful truant, this morning, and after a talk with the young lad, turned over to the Chief, who will take a course of action, which has in other cases of a similar nature, proven successful.

The culprit will be sent to school and must report regularly to the chief, his teacher also furnishing a report of the puipl's behaviour. If he offends again, the magistrate intimated, then severe measures will be undertaken.

The youngster gave as one excuse that he was told by another pupil, "that he was going to get it" on account of his previous inattendance.

Truant officer, Mr. George Cochrane, had furnished the Magistrate with a report on the boy's attendance and which showed that he had been present at school during this month for one and three half days only.

The Facts About Pe=ru=na.

Is Peruna an alcoholic beverage in disguise? Is it possible to use Peruna as a substitute for whiskey? Do people buy Peruna and use it as a toddy, or a bitters, or a bracer?

It would be the easiest thing in the world for any one to demonstrate the falsity of such statements. Let any one go to the drug store and purchase a bottle of Peruna. Let him undertake to use it as a beverage, or take this remedy in doses considerably larger than those prescribed on the bottle. Would the result be alcoholic intoxication? Nothing of the sort. Let any one try it and see.

Peruna is a medical compound quite heavily loaded with medicinal ingredients. If taken in doses larger than prescribed it would produce a positive drug effect. No one could take it as a beverage. If any one doubts these statements, try it and see. We know that Peruna cannot be used as a beverage; that it will not intoxicate; that it cannot be used as a substitute for liquors. We guarantee that PERUNA CONTAINS NO CHEAP WHISKEY—OR ANY OTHER WHISKEY, for that matter.

It contains a small per cent. of cologne spirits, absolutely essential to dissolve and hold in solution medicinal ingredients, but the drugs contained in Peruna prohibit its use as a beverage. It would be the easiest thing in the world for any one to demonstrate this if they chose to do so.

Peruna is sold everywhere. THE INGREDIENTS ARE PLAINLY PRINTED ON EACH BOTTLE. It has been said over and over again that chemists have analyzed Peruna and found it to contain only cubebs and whiskey. Now we challenge any chemist to demonstrate any such statement. Let any one who has even a smattering knowledge of chemistry purchase a bottle of Peruna and see whether or not it contains whiskey, find out for himself whether or not it is composed of cheap whiskey and cubebs. Of course, cubebs is one of the ingredients of Peruna, but there are many other ingredients. It contains hydrastis canadensis, corydalis formosa, collinsonia, and at least four other medicinal ingredients. To be sure, no chemist could so analyze Peruna as to be able to identify the various medicinal ingredients. This is beyond the ability of any chemist. But any ordinary chemist would be able to say that Peruna is heavily loaded with medicinal ingredients of some kind in addition to cubebs.

Now why are these statements repeated when their falsity could be so easily demonstrated? Simply because there is continued hostility toward Peruna on the part of the medical profession. Very likely the magazines which took up the crusade against Peruna and denounced it as a cheap beverage were misled by statements of the medical profession. Probably they were sincere in their attitude towards it. But now, after all these things have been said and refuted, it would seem to be in order for such people to use a little fairness and common sense in the matter.

Every time any one says that Peruna is nothing but cheap whiskey and cubebs he is telling a lie, an absolute falsehood. Most people intend to speak the truth. But the prevalent habit of repeating other people's statements, without investigation as to their truth, has led many well-meaning people to say these false things about Peruna.

Used according to the directions on the bottle, PERUNA IS A SAFE AND RELIABLE CATARRH REMEDY, but, like any other good medicine, if taken in excess of those doses, it will produce drug effects very unpleasant to the person who takes it.

It is therefore up to every honest person to quit making such statements concerning Peruna, or acknowledge that he is repeating slanders about which he knows nothing. One might just as well say that Castor Oil is an intoxicant; that if taken in large enough doses it will operate as a "booze." If people never tried to see, but simply repeated such statements about Castor Oil, the majority of people would come to believe them. It is no easier to demonstrate such a statement about Castor Oil than it would be about Peruna.

Any one who takes Peruna knows that such statements are false. To say that Peruna is cheap whiskey and cubebs may constitute good material for jokes on the vaudeville stage, but there is no excuse for any one who pretends to be truthful saying over again this oft-repeated falsehood.

THE SURFACE OF THE SUN; A FINE LECTURE

An illustrated talk on that wonderful luminary body, the sun, was given last evening in the Collegiate Institute building by Dr. Marsh, of Springville, and was attended by a larger number than usual. This fact alone was encouraging and signified that increased interest is being manifested in astronomy than formerly.

During the last few years astronomers have found out a great many things in regard to the great sun, which have proved of extreme importance in advancing this form of science. Wonderful photographs of the sun have been secured and these as explained last evening in clear, lucid style by Dr. Marsh, proved extremely interesting and instructive.

Previous to the address the president of the local centre of the Royal Astronomical Society, called on Dr. Marsh for the minutes of the last meeting.

The society now possesses two excellent telescopes and these will be willingly lent to any member of the

To-night an eclipse of the moon will take place at six o'clock.

In discussing the question of the sun when we began, said Dr. Marsh we must have one or two standpoints to go by. First let us look at it as a dominating body, as a body that causes life and growth on the planets. The other side at which we must look is as if the sun were a typical star. There is a difference between the stars and the planets. Jupiter, Mars, Saturn and so on are planets, because they follow a course around a dominating body. The sun therefore is a type of a star. If then we address ourselves carefully to study the sun we can study other stars. The sun is the only star near enough for us to study, and yet when observed through a telescope appears as only a little dot and by actual measurement at the Greenich Observatory the disc of the sun is only thirty-six inches.

In commencing the study of the sun many very difficult problems confront the astronomer. Indeed many people are of the opinion that the astronomer knows very little of the heavenly bodies

One of the difficulties encountered is that of getting the dimensions of the sun The difficulty arises from the gaseous nature of it; then there is the problem of the radiation of its heat, its temperature, the source of heat and where it comes from, and probably the greatest difficulty the chemical constitution of its various parts.

In studying the sun it must be studied in parts and it is no easy matter to divide it into parts in order to study it.

The measurements of the sun are all made from what you see in the telescope and as the result of observation it has been found that the following part ecomprise the orb, namely, the photosphere, Dusky Veil, Reversing Layer, Chromosphere and lastly the great Corona, which is only seen when the photosphere is exactly blotted out by the shadow of the moon.

Dr Marsh then described very minutely with the aid of stereopticon slides shown by Mr. H. O. Fiske, the various divisions of the sun and how they appear when looked at through the telescope.

The photosphere is divided and subdivided into two small particles resembling rice and these particles have been found by measurement to be six hundred and one hundred miles across. Only one-fifth of the sun is so divided yet it is from this source that three-quarters of its heat is derived.

Regarding the origin of sun-spots, there have been nine theories advanced by leading astronomers and the last one and most recent appeared to Dr. Marsh to be reasonable and probable. He then went on and explained the cause of the aurora boreales or northern lights. When there are two or more bodies of sun spots near each other a magnetic field is set up and extends to the earth and affects terrestrial magnetics and hence the above phenomena. The duration of a sun spot is from one day to eighteen months and these change a great deal. There are very few spots near the north or south poles or the equator, so to speak of the sun.

The sun is not a solid body because there is a continual twist of it all the time.

A large amount of useful information was certainly absorbed by those who heard last night's address and at the conclusion Mr. H. B. Collier, president of the local centre of the society made a few remarks in which he thanked Dr. Marsh for his instructive lecture.

The lecture closed about nine-thirty.

THE PROVINCIAL BOARD OF TRADES' ASSOCIATION HIGHLY APPROVED OF

By Peterborough Board of Trade at Special Meeting—Committee Chosen to Examine Constitution—One Speaker Thought Board of Trade's Duties Were Purely Local.

From the sentiment of the meeting last night of the Board of Trade it is desirable that the Peterborough Board be affiliated with the nOtario Association of Boards of Trade at the meetings of which matters of local and provincial import will be taken uo.

Messrs. D. O'Connell and D. W. Dumble spoke at some length on the excellence of this idea from many standpoints. Mr. F. D. Kerr doesn't share their opinions, however, and thought a Board of Trade was essentially a local body that it was going outside its province in looking after matters that effected other than local interests.

The discussion came to a head in a committee being appointed to examine the constitution drawn up at the meeting when the general board for Ontario was formed in Toronto a short time ago and the committee was instructed to report back its findings to a meeting of the local board which will be at the Council Chamber on Tuesday, December 15th.

There was a fairly good attendance at the Council Chamber when the meeting opened last night and Ald. Gillespie explained what was accomplished at the meeting in Toronto when the Ontario Association of Boards of Trade was formed. This was given in exhaustive detail in Monday's issue of the Review. He also read the constitution adopted.

SUGGESTIONS RE LOCAL BOARD.

Speaking relative to the local board he said:

"As you are probably aware, the membership of Peterborough Board of Trade does not exceed 70 members, and for a town of the industrial activity of Peterborough, this reflects an altogether surprising lack of interest in an organization that if enthusiastically supported, can be of great benefit not only to the manufacturing and commercial interests, but to all the component parts of the community. We all admit that there are numerous questions which are of vital importance to Peterborough, but which owing to lack of initiative on the part of any group of individuals, have not been given the prominence or study that they deserve.

A Board of Trade which is at all representative of the whole body of citizens, is a most logical source from which questions of public interest and matters of civic necessity should emanate and the governing body of any town could use the Board of Trade as a means of feeling the public sentiment on any question under discussion if it wished to do so, and the Board of Trade, through its various committees could be the means of intimating to the Council civil legislation of a desirable character. It is a matter of common knowledge that the average by-law is neither understood very thoroughly nor as a matdisposition on the part of the general bodies of citizens to study and analize the average by-law.

I think you will all agree with me that the Board of Trade need not confine its interests absolutely to questions of trade, but could very properly direct its attention to all questions of public and civic interest, for when matters have been analyzed, all municipal acts have a direct bearing for good or the reverse on all the interests, business or otherwise.

The Board of Trade, through having no lack of qualification or numbers can view any question with the widest possible vision. For instance, we recently have witnessed considerable agitation in the public press regarding a garbage by-law. This is a question in which the Board of Trade can very beneficially interest itself, and through open discussion can determine upon the merits and demerits of such a measure and I am sure that you agree with me gentlemen, that there is hardly any question that comes up in which the Board of Trade as a whole, and the members individually are not directly interested.

To be efficient, the Board should embrace among its members, representatives from all classes of the community, professional, industrial, commercial, trading etc., and it appears to me that in a city the size of ours that 70 members is altogether a disproportionately small representation, and I would like to propose that we make a determined effort to bring the membership up to 200 members. This should be by no means a difficult task. I have here a list which includes the manufacturing and jobbing, the retail and the professional people who are not members of the Board of Trade. There are 33 manufacturing concerns who for one reason or another are not represented in this body, 120 retail stores and 76 gentlemen belonging to the profession, which certainly should be interested in Board of Trade work.

I would therefore like to suggest that a committee be formed and a large committee, to deal with the question of increasing the membership. If the proper enthusiasm could be stimulated among the members, it should not be a difficult matter for each member to bring in two others. However, the method of increasing the membership I think could be very properly left to the committee that you appoint for this purpose.

Another reason that I neglected to mention for the bringing of the membership up to the 200 mark, is that we should endeavor to place ourselves in a position to be as prominent a figure in the Ontario Associated Boards of Trade as possible.

I would like some gentleman to express his views on the subject that I have just dealt with."

FAVORED THE IDEA.

Mr. D. W. Dumble thought the suggestion of having a provincial Board of Trade was a good one, and thought that much good could be obtained from the Provincial Board in getting the opinions of the various Boards of Trade that formed it. The consensus of opinion might be taken as the general opinion of the country.

Mr. D. O'Connell expressed his concurrence with Mr. Dumble's ideas. He suggested that the committee be elected for the Peterborough Board as representatives to the Provincial Board.

Mr. Gillespie explained that with the present membership of the local board it was entitled to five representatives.

After a discussion as to the provision of expense money, in connection with the local representatives attending the meeting of the Provincial Board in Toronto, Mr. P. Campbell, the local treasurer, explained that the membership fees were not heavy enough to afford sufficient funds to pay for the attendance at the meetings. Mr. O'Connell suggested two representatives instead of five.

A DISSENTER.

Mr. F. D. Kerr thought the meeting should go slowly in appointing a committee to represent Peterborough on the Provincial Board. In his opinion Ontario was over legislated as it was, and the acceptance of the opinion of the Provincial Board of Trade as the mouthpiece of Ontario would give the association a false weight. He characterized Boards of Trade all over the province, generally speaking, as disorganized units, and didn't think that committees from the different boards should have the privilege of expressing their opinions as representative of the parts of the province from which they came. And their conclusions would have no effect on provincial legislation. He believed that the board should confine its activities to local affairs.

PROVINCIAL MATTERS, TOO.

Mr. O'Connell said that there were local matters and provincial matters also which a Board of Trade had to consider. He believed the matters of provincial import should be considered before a Provincial Board.

He seconded Mr. Dumble's suggestion to form a committee to examine the constitution and report to the board. Mr. Dumble had suggested that the constitution should be amended to make it read that it would be permissable for one member to represent the local board, and that he could have as many votes as the number of representatives of the board was entitled to, according to its membership.

WILL EXAMINE CONSTITUTION

Messrs. Gillespie, Dumble and O'Connell were appointed a committee to consider amendments to the constitution and report to the board at a meeting to be held in a week's time.

SPORTING NEWS

JEFF WOULD SPEND MONEY TO FIND GUILTY PARTY

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 16. — For the first time since his fight with Jack Johnson on July 4, James Jeffries came out to-day with the direct charge that he had been "doped" before the battle, in which he lost the world's championship. He also had a few words to say about the stories hinted recently that the Reno fight with Johnson was "fixed."

A few weeks ago Abe Attell, while in Kansas City was credited with a statement to the effect that the colored champion had agreed to "lay down," but that he had given Jeffries the "rinky-dink," otherwise known as the "double-cross."

Next came John L. Sullivan, with a talk made in Denver, in which he also makes the assertion that the July 4 engagement was to have been a crooked deal, but that Johnson experienced a change of heart during the last twenty-four hours preceding the fray on the desert.

Jeffries to-day branded the Kansas City and Denver stories as lies.

Never from the moment that I signed articles in New York till I went into the ring at Reno was there an understanding between Johnson and myself other than that the fight was to be decided strictly on its merits. Any man who speaks to the contrary tells a lie, and I hereby publicly challenge John L. Sullivan to prove his statements, said Jeffries.

"I trained the best I knew and I fought the best I could. I was beaten and I have kept pretty quiet ever since. A great deal has been said about my being doped. You may say for me that I am positive that I was doped some time during the last few days that I spent at Moana Springs. This is not the talk of a squealer. I have spent a lot of money and am willing to spend a lot more, to land the guilty party, whoever he or they are. The tracks were covered up so thoroughly that it is next to impossible to prove anything."

NEXT BIG RING BATTLE

The next big fight will be between Ad. Wolgast, the lightweight champion, and Battling Nelson, who will endeavor to win back the honors which he won from the late Joe Gans. The following gives the ring careers of the two men:

BAT. NELSON.

Age twenty-eight; nationality, Dane; height, 5 feet 7 1-2 inches; weight, 133 pounds.

Fought his first battle in 1896, knocking out Wallace's Kid in one round. From then fight followed fight in rapid succession, Bat winning a large percentage. His big fights since he appeared in the front ranks were:

1905—Young Corbett, knock out, nine rounds; Abe Attell, no decision, six rounds; Kid Sullivan, draw, six rounds; Jimmy Britt, knockout, 18 rounds.

1910—Ad. Wolgast, lost 4 rounds

AD. WOLGAST.

Age twenty-two; nationality, German-American; height 5 feet 4 1-2 inches; weight, 122-126 pounds

1907—Gene McGovern, won, six rounds; Young Kilrain, knocked out, 2 rounds; Tour Campbell, won, 15 rounds; Jeff O'Connell, won, 15 rounds; Ole Nelson, knockout, 1 round.

1908—Owen Moran, no decision, 6 rounds; Frankie Neil, won, 10 rounds; Frank Connelly, draw, 3 rounds; Young Kid McCoy, knockout, 2 rounds; Abe Attell, no decision, 10 rounds.

SPORTING COMMENT

Business Manager Bancroft, of the Cincinnati Nationals, has signed a contract with Manager Jiminez, of of the Havanna, Cuba, team, to take the Philadelphia Americans to Havana during the month of January and play about thirty games with the Cuban team there. By the terms of the contract the fourteen men who will go are to receive $500 each for the trip making a total of $7,000. In addition they are to have their expenses paid, and their wives also may go along without any additional expense to the players. In all twelve women will accompany the players.

If the Edmonton professional hockey players are not reinstated by the A.A.H.A., there is a proposition on foot to have an interprovincial semi-pro league. Although we do not think this sort of a league would prosper, we place the idea before the public to let them know what is suggested. The proposition is to form a league composed of Lethbridge, Calgary, Strathcona and Edmonton in Alberta, together with Saskatoon, Prince Albert, Moose Jaw and Regina. Edmonton has the following to say about it:—

"There is some good stuff in Edmonton on which to organize a team; a team not too fast to discourage other seven, but fast enough to hold the Fit-Reform trophy.

"Jack Winchester is in the city. Fred Whitcroft is here, as is Harold Deeton near by, while Bert Boulton is in Winnipeg, and Hugh Ross in Moose Jaw. It is possible one or two of these may be found on the eastern line-ups, but the basis for a really fast seven is assured.

Yesterday's Toronto Star says:

"Buck Irving's new Eastern Professional Hockey League appears to be merely a paper organization. Several towns mentioned on the circuit have denounced the organization as follows:

R. M. Glover, Peterboro: "There is no likelihood of a professional team being established in Peterboro whatever. Mr. Meharry, owner of the rink, has been written to on several occasions, but he has not taken any interest in the affair whatever. Nothing has been done towards giving the matter any attention here in any way."

Ottawa Free Press: It is said the Ontario Professional League will be put on the black list by the Stanley Cup trustees. None of their challenges have yet approached cup calibre.

Cobourg World: Rev. Mr. Armstrong, of Trenton, is anxious to form an Eastern Hockey Association, with clubs in Port Hope, Cobourg, Trenton, Belleville, Napanee, Kingston, and Gananoque, and probably one or two other places. The reverend gentleman wrote to Cobourg relative to the proposed organization, and was politely informed that Cobourg was well satisfied with the O. H. A., and would stick. Mr. Armstrong was in Cobourg last Saturday, and had an interview with Purser Bros. on the subject, but the outcome is not known.

Billy Allen, the Canadian featherweight, of Ottawa, went down with a bang before Patsy Kline, of Newark, in the eighth round of a ten period go at Albany, Monday, night, and his friends are claiming that the defeated one was down too time. It was Allen's first defeat and a return bout is being arranged for.

PETE CAMPBELL A TOP NOTCHER NEXT SEASON

Varsity Manager Here Arranging for Rugby Game at Riverside.

Mr. B. H. L. Symmes, manager of Varsity II. rugby team, who meet R. M.C. of Kingston here at Riverside Park Saturday afternoon is in the city completing arrangements for the contest on which rests the intermediate intercollegiate championship.

Mr. Symmes' opinion of Pete Campbell, who works at quarter for Varsity, and who is slated for that position on the first team next season, is that the former local boy is the equal of Foulds, the senior quarter, in kicking, but is not so proficient when it comes to passing. Mr. Symmes claims that Campbell is the equal of any quarter in the business and will be a top notcher next year.

They have the highest number of points for one game, R.M.C. defeating Queen's 61—0 and Varsity turning down O.A.C. of Guelph 66—0. Harry Smith, another Peterborough boy, is on the line-up of the Kingston fourteen.

The officials for the game have yet to be appointed, but the best available will be sent this way.

HEAVY ENVELOPE FOR BIG SIX

New York, Nov. 15—That the management of the New York National League team evidently fears that there must be some fire where there is so much smoke, and will not, therefore take any chance of losing any of its stars to an outlaw league, is manifest to-day in the announcement that Christy Mathewson, the Giants' star twirler, has signed a three-years' contract. Mathewson's salary is said to be $10,000 a year, the largest ever paid to a pitcher.

For about one-fifth of the price we pay we could get hops that make an ordinary lager beer. But we select the finest Saaz hops for REGAL Lager, because we have built its reputation by its merit alone. Try it.

Trinidd's Asphalt Lake.

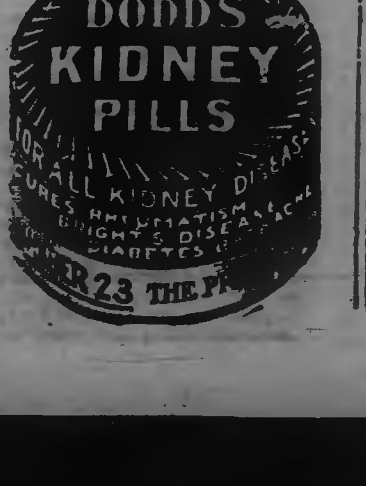
One of the natural wonders of the world is the great pitch lake of Trinidad, the most southerly island of the British West Indies. Paying better than any gold or diamond mine, the lake is locally known as "The Black Diamond." An American syndicate handles most of this natural asphalt under a concession from the Government, and from one corner of the lake obtains 800 tons every day. The material is shipped in enormous quantities to America, England and all parts of the world, where it is in demand for street making.

Close to the village of La Brea, the lake is inspected every year by numerous visitors to the island, for it is a curiosity not to be seen elsewhere. The lake lies 138 feet above the sea and is three miles in circumference. How deep it is nobody knows, for though many attempts have been made to fathom it, all have failed. To all appearances this is indeed the "bottomless pit."

Scientists describe the pitch substance as "bituminous matter floating on the surface of fresh water." For three feet down the pitch is solid enough to bear the weight of men and allow of their digging it up in great slabs with pickaxe and spade. Under that hard substance is liquid pitch cast up by subterranean fires, and under that again is the fresh water of the lake.

Though the syndicate secures several freight train loads every day, next morning when the army of negroes return to their work the surface is level and hard as before. An inexhaustible supply is therefore at hand without any preliminary expense. Alongside the lake is a light railway with iron cars that are run down to the sea—only a short distance—and there the asphalt is transferred to ships. From this remarkable industry the Government of the island receives a substantial part of its revenue every year. Columbus discovered Trinidad in 1498.

Our word "sugar" is said to be derived from the Arabic "sukkar," the article itself having got into Europe through the Arabian Mohammedans, who overran a great part of the world in the seventh, eighth and ninth centuries. According to Dr. Van Lippman, a Dutch writer, as a result of the Arab invasion of Persia sugar found its way into Arabia, whence again its culture was carried to Cyprus, Rhodes, Sicily and Egypt. In the last named country the preparation of sugar was greatly improved, and the Egyptian product became widely famous. From Egypt the industry spread along the northern coasts of Africa and so entered Spain, where, about the year 1150, some fourteen refineries were in operation. Columbus introduced sugar cane into the new world.—Argonaut.



The Queen's Gift.

Many pretty stories have already been told of Queen Mary's kindness of heart, and the latest to hand is a very charming one. A young married woman, who recently arrived at Bridlington with her baby, found herself in very distressing circumstances, and, in her want and perplexity, she wrote a letter to Her Majesty, telling her of her sad and needy position. The Queen promptly had the matter investigated, and it was proved to be a genuine case, deserving assistance. Then the kind Queen sent some money to a trustworthy person to be expended in relieving the woman's distress, and thus rescued her from her sorrowful plight by wise and timely aid. Those who know how royal ladies are inundated with applications for pecuniary help will appreciate the mingled good sense and generosity with which the case was dealt.

The Nurse's Reward.

It is Lady Roberts who tells this story. She was once visiting the hospitals at the base of operations in India, and was so pleased with the nurses' work and their devotion to the sick, that she exclaimed: "Really, I think the sisters deserve a medal for this campaign as much as anyone and I hope they will get one." "I don't know about a medal," said a gallant colonel, who was in attendance, "but they are sure, at all events, to get plenty of clasps."

BROUGHT TO THE HOSPITAL

Man Injured by Train is Likely to Recover—Did not see Train

Mr. John King, the man who was struck by a G.T.R. train near Hastings yesterday morning, was brought to Peterborough last evening on the 8.55 train and taken to Nicholls Hospital in Belleghem's private ambulance. He was able to sit up and was perfectly conscious.

Dr. Marshall, who is attending him, says that his condition while serious, is not likely to cause death.

The injured man stated that he did not see the train approaching nor hear it, and the back of the wagon in which he was seated was struck, and he was hurled to the ground, resulting in the injuries to his head, as stated in last night's issue.

LIFTING BY MAGNETS

A novel experiment is being made near New Orleans, where a barge load of kegged nails is being raised by means of a large lifting magnet. A load of cotton ties, sunk near Natchez, will be next taken up, while a load of woven wire sunk near Pittsburg will be the third task.

The magnet used in the work is three and one-half feet in diameter, and weighs 3,000 pounds. It is dropped into the stream, the current turned on and five or six kegs of nails raised to the lift. A derrick is employed for the purpose. The nails weigh two hundred pounds to the keg, so the magnet lifts from one thousand to one thousand two hundred pounds each trial.

A great saving is being realized by the use of the magnet which could not be otherwise effected. Were a dredge used kegs would be broken open and much valuable material lost. In this way the kegs are raised intact, and the nails are uninjured, except for slight rust. Between 85 and 95 per cent. of the cargo can be raised. It is valued at $45 a ton.

DOES THE BABY PAY?

"Does your baby pay for itself?" said a prominent author the other day.

Sometimes I think not. I thought not recently when my own baby slipped into my study and scrubbed the carpet and her best white dress with my bottle of ink, and again later in the day when she pasted 50 cents' worth of postage stamps on the parlor floor and poured a dollar's worth of the choicest white rose perfumery out of the window 'to see it wain.'

"She has already cost more than $200 in doctor's bills, and I feel that I am right in attributing my few grey hairs to the misery endured walking the floor with her at night during the first year and a half of her life.

"What has she ever done to pay me for that?

"Ah! I hear her little feet pattering along in the hall. I hear her little ripple of laughter because she has escaped from her mother and has found her way up to my study at a forbidden hour. But the door is closed. The worthless little vagabond can't get in, and I won't open it for her. No, I won't. I can't be disturbed when I'm writing. She may just cry if she wants to. No, I won't be bothered for—'Rat, tat, tat, go her dimpled knuckles on the door. I sit in silence. 'Rat, tat, tat.' I sit perfectly still.

" 'Papa!'

"No reply.

" 'Peese, papa!'

"Grim silence.

" 'Baby tum in—peese, papa!'

"She shall not come in.

" 'My papa!'

"I write on.

" 'Papa,' says the little voice. 'I lub my papa. Peese let baby in.' "

"I am not a brute, and I threw open the door. In she comes with outstretched little arms, with shining eyes, with laughing face. I catch her up, and her warm, soft little arms go around my neck, the not very clean little cheek is laid close to mine, the baby voice says sweetly " 'I lub my papa!'

"Does she pay? Well, I guess she does! She has cost me many anxious days and nights. She has cost me time and money and care and self-sacrifice. She may cost me pain and sorrow. She has cost much. But she has paid for it all again and again in whispering those four little words into my ears."

BACK TO LINDSAY

A drunk of last night said that he had come in from Coboconk, but that his family was in Lindsay.

We have enough drunken men, and if you come from Lindsay, you will contaminate the drunks here, was what the visitor heard, after he had been asked by the Magistrate for a reason for coming to this city, and on which he fell down.

The chance of escaping a fine, on condition that he clear out on the first train was accepted.

His Bad-Dream.

Truly oriental was the defense put forward by a prisoner at Alipore, charged with stealing a Hindu idol with its ornaments, he stated that the goddess told him in a dream the night before that, as she was not properly worshiped by the Hindu priest, she would be better taken care of by him, a Mohammedan, and that unless he took charge of her worship she would in her wrath destroy his whole family. The magistrate, however, was not satisfied with the story and sentenced the accused to two months' rigorous imprisonment and to pay a fine.—Bombay Gazette.

When the Loss Was Felt.

Wife (on returning home after a long visit)—Have you noticed that my husband missed me much while I was away, Mary? Maid—Well, mum, I didn't notice that he felt your absence much at first, but this last day or two he has certainly seemed very downhearted, mum.

BROUGHT UP HOT WATER.

The Friction of the Boat Made the Ocean Almost Boil.

The steamship was speeding overseas with a record breaking list of passengers when one of the gay, young and inquiring girls who are found on every trip skipped up to the captain and asked:

"Captain, are we really going fast? It seems as if we were just crawling."

"Fast," answered the captain gruffly, "of course we're going fast. With nothing to see but water and sky you can't judge our speed, but, my dear young lady, the friction of the boat is so great it makes the water hot aft."

"I don't believe it," giggled the girl, and the captain, with a great show of indignation, called for a rope and bucket to prove his words. These brought, he slung the pail down aft of the vessel directly under the drainpipe of the galley, where hot water runs all day, and brought it up smoking, to the astonishment of the awstruck girl.

A long, lean Yankee who had been watching the performance then came forward and drawled, "Say, cap, that must make you change your course mighty often."

"Change my course?" blustered the captain. "What would I change my course for?"

"Well," said the Yankee slowly, "so darn much friction as that must wear the ocean out mighty quick."—Philadelphia Times.

Way to Treat Venison.

"If you don't like venison," he said, "it is because it has not been prepared properly. I think I know the kind you have tried to eat, and I agree with you it is not fit. After the deer has been shot the carcass probably has been allowed to lie around until the blood has discolored the meat and really has almost tainted it. Few hunters dress their game carefully enough. As soon as a deer is killed the carcass should be thoroughly bled, skinned, the entrails removed and the meat hung up in the dry air for some hours. Thorough and prompt bleeding is of the utmost importance. Venison prepared in this way is comparatively light in color—that is, it is a clear, bright red, and the fat is white and clean. There is no strong, rank taste." New York Press.

Revenge.

"Stop!" The brakes of the motor were suddenly applied, a pandemonium of whirling wheels ensued, and the motorist came face to face with Constable Coppem, who had been hiding in the hedge.

"Excuse me, sir," said the portly policeman, taking out his notebook and pencil, "but you exceeded the speed limit by two miles over a measured piece of road."

"I have done nothing of the kind," retorted the motorist, "and, besides"—

"Well, if you don't believe me I'll call the sergeant, bein' as it was 'im as took the time. He's in the pigsty yonder."

"Don't trouble, Robert," the other hastened to reply. "I would sooner pay fifty fines than disturb the sergeant at his meals!"—London Answers.

Faithful Woman.

I tell you that women, as a rule, are more faithful than men—ten times more faithful. I never saw a man pursue his wife into the very ditch and dust of degradation and take her in his arms. I never saw a man stand at the shore where she was wrecked, waiting for the waves to bring back her corpse to his arms, but I have seen a woman with her white arms lift a man from the mire of degradation and hold him to her bosom as if he were an angel.—Ingersoll.

His Way of Doing.

"He said he would clear it all up."

"Did he?"

"No, he didn't clear it up. He cleared out."—Baltimore American.

NO RECIPROCITY NEEDED

The news that delegates, reversing the usual procedure, have left Washington for Ottawa to open negotiations, having some trade reciprocal arrangements in view, has been received with but scant interest in Canada. In fact no one seems to regard reciprocal trade with any interest. On the contrary there seems no one to do it honor. The latest open avowals of hostility have come from Senator Melvin Jones, of Toronto, a staunch supporter of the Government, and secondly one of the Laurier Club, a Toronto organization. At the last meeting of that club Mr. J. T. M. Stewart, one of the leading spokesmen said, and few will dissent from his views; "I don't think the question of reciprocity is a live one in Canada. A few western citizens have expressed themselves in favor of lower tariff, and a great many citizens of the United States. The western men believe it will redound to their benefit and just as firmly the Republican party believes it will redound to the financial benefit of the United States. So long as I believe that, I am not prepared to negotiate along any line. If any Canadians are anxious that the reciprocity cry should be carried farther, let them show us a list of proposed changes, and we'll discuss it. Does the western farmer not want to pay his fair share in the cost of developing Canada? He is not badly used.

The cry for reciprocity comes not from within, but from without. We should steer clear of it." And on the other side of the line the proposition, notwithstanding the efforts of certain traders, does not gain in favor. A leading Republican paper says concerning reciprocity negotiations. "It is announced that progress is being made in the matter of arranging a reciprocity treaty with Canada, and that the President is gratified at the prospect. Of course, no hint is given as to the terms of the proposed dicker. They keep these things secret, as long as they can. Formerly, as in the case of the Roosevelt German agreement of 1907, not even Congress was permitted to know the nature of the deal until all the papers had been signed, sealed and delivered. That cannot occur again. Hereafter all trade treaties must run the gauntlet of both houses of Congress before they can become effective. This is as it should be. It remains to be seen whether the only kind of a bargain which Canada will be willing to accept—Free Trade in natural products—can receive the sanction of the Congress of the United States; or, on the other hand, whether the Canadian Parliament would ratify a treaty which should subject Canadian manufacturers to competition in manufactures from the United States. Let no one be too sanguine over the outlook. Reciprocity between Canada and the United States is still a long way off."

WHEEL OFF THE FLYER

The regular flyer, No 49, which is made up here at the Grand Trunk station and goes through to Toronto, leaving Peterborough at 7.10, a.m., met with an accident this morning which, fortunately, was not attended with any serious results.

She had scarcely reached the crossing on Smith street, near Jackson Park, when the front driving wheel axle of the engine on the right side cracked, leaving the wheel clinging to it by only about one inch of the shaft. Engineer T. Wilkinson immediately became aware that something was wrong and brought it to a stop within its own length. It is fortunate that he did, for in some accidents of a similar nature the driving bar, when detached, has been known to fly up and shatter the side of the engine cab.

Word was immediately sent back to Peterborough apprising the yard crew of the plight of the flyer, and a wire was sent on to warn the incoming Lindsay train to watch out for the crippled train near Jackson Park. At the same time the yard engine was sent out to the scene and brought in the train of coaches containing the passengers, who were placed on No. 21, which leaves here at 8.30 for Toronto.

In the meantime the wheel of the crippled engine, No. 2012, was jacked up, and in the operation it fell off, and the engine was brought back to the yard, from where it will be sent to the car shops for repairs.

The train from Lindsay was only delayed about twenty minutes as a result, and no other inconvenience was occasioned

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Review does not hold itself responsible for opinions expressed by its correspondents

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—From the Lakefield News of November 11th, I note the following—

"The anniversary of the 'Gunpowder Plot' was celebrated in Lakefield in great style on Saturday evening last. About half past nine o'clock the Young Canadians and two 'bus load from Peterborough formed a torchlight procession, headed by a fife and drum band, marched to the market square and burned in effegy Guy Fawkes, accompanied by a display of fire works."

It might have been stated also that a regular hubbub was kept up for hours after the great celebration above referred to, annoying and offending many of our most respected citizens. If this is the mission of the Young Canadians of the Orange Order, then they have lost the good will and respect of a large number of Lakefield Protestants, who are glad and can thank God that they are privileged, while in this twentieth century of progress and enlightenment, but who have no desire to return to the middl eages.

Yours, etc.,
A Lakefield Protestant.

LORDS ARE NOW DECLARING FOR REFORM OF UPPER HOUSE

Asquith's Ready Reply to Lord Lansdowne's Request For Discussion on Veto Bill is Believed to Have Been a Big Victory for the Liberals.

London, Nov. 17.—Pending Premier Asquith's official statement before Parliament on Friday, small hope is entertained of clearing up the involved situation, which has now resulted from the sudden change introduced by Lord Lansdowne's call for the veto bill. The feature which stands out in the present position of the parties is that the House of Lords finally has awakened to the absolute necessity of undertaking self-reform. The Radical leaders view this late repentance with the utmost suspicion, and it remains to be seen whether it will eventuate in an agreement, which the abortive veto conference failed to achieve.

The Parliamentary lobbies yesterday were full of rumors of all kinds—that the King has refused to give the Prime Minister guarantees to increase the number of peers sufficient for the Government's purposes in reforming the House of Lords; that the Ministry would resign; that another party conference would be held.

Nothing definite, however, is known, beyond the fact that all preparations are going on for a general election, and best informed opinion last night believed that, as the Government declines to accept any amendments to the veto bill, Lord Lansdowne, who consulted with Mr. Balfour and other leaders, will either decline to proceed with the bill, or the House of Lords will reject it on the second reading on Monday, and that the dissolution of Parliament will be announced next week.

Lord Rosebery, in the House of Lords yesterday, after declaring that the House stood in a very grave position, announced his intention to ask for facilities for the discussion of his plan for the reform of the House. It is believed that the Lords will proceed immediately with debates on this question.

After meetings of the Privy Council and the Cabinet yesterday afternoon, the Earl of Crewe introduced the veto bill in the House of Lords, where it passed its first reading.

The Morning News, in a serious review of the situation, says:

"In a survey of the theoretical possibilities of the political situation, one is compelled to take into consideration the practically inconceivable proposition that the crown may ally itself with the House of Lords to prevent the legalising of the people's judgment. Such a move would mean a monarchical revolution, added to the peers' revolution, and in such an event the gravest happenings that the country has noted in centuries are to be expected."

A Checkmate.

London, Nov. 17.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—Tuesday Lord Lansdowne called a check to the Government; yesterday the Government got out of the difficulty and replied with a checkmate. In the House of Lords Lord Crewe, responding to Lansdowne's polite demand for the Parliament bill promised it on "take it or leave it" terms. The Government was "willing and anxious to put the bill down for discussion, but were not prepared to accept any amendment on it."

Lansdowne said this was reducing the thing to a farce, and claimed that, because the conference failed, it was no reason that Parliament should be deprived of the opportunity of dealing with these tremendous problems.

Lansdowne declared emphatically for reform of the Upper House. He said it should be reduced in numbers, and no peer should sit purely by hereditary right. The House should be reinforced from outside by nomination or election. The Commons should be reasonably supreme in finance.

Lord Crewe wished for an early date for the second reading of the Parliament bill, and Lansdowne replied that if there were no suggestions for its improvement, and the bill should be accepted, perhaps no great advantage would accrue from its discussion. He would confer with his friends on the point.

Eventually the bill was read a first time. It was decided to discuss Rosebery's reform resolutions to-day.

The date now fixed for dissolution is the 25th, and Asquith's statement on Friday is awaited with intense interest.

CRAWLED THROUGH THE SNOW

Brockville, Nov. 17.—William Neilson of Lyn lies in the Brockville General Hospital in a critical condition, as the result of an injury received while deer hunting in the Madawaska district. Neilson, who is over 80 years of age, had a most unusual and trying experience. Being left alone in the camp on Monday, he thought he would take a little side trip on the lake, a quarter of a mile away, in search of the big game. Getting into the boat, he fell and broke his right leg above the knee. He crawled through ice and snow on hands and knees back to the camp, which he reached in an exhausted condition.

On an improvised stretcher, he was carried three miles to the C.P.R. tracks, and then conveyed five miles on a handcar to the nearest station, where a train was boarded for Ottawa. From there he came on to Brockville. The fracture was not reduced until he reached here yesterday.

KINGSTON BOARD AGAINST 'PROCITY

Kingston, Nov. 17.—The Board of Trade, by a unanimous vote, passed a resolution against reciprocity in trade between Canada and the United States. The members are convinced that lowering of the Canadian customs would be injurious to all Canadian interests. They believe that the tariff must be so framed as to encourage investment of Canadian capital in Canadian enterprises, and to transfer to workshops here the manufacture of goods which we now import from other countries, principally from the States.

Guilty of Manslaughter.

St. Alban's, Vt., Nov. 17.—Mrs. Frank Averill, on trial here for the murder of her husband, was yesterday found guilty of manslaughter, after the jury had deliberated four hours. She will probably be sentenced today. The defence was that the shooting was accidental.

London, Nov. 17.—An Imperial conference on education will be convoked on invitation of the Imperial Government in April, 1911.

FEAR THAT THE WOLVERINE IS LOST

Selkirk, Man., Nov. 17.—No definite news has yet been received of the steamer Wolverine, now missing three weeks, and it is feared that the vessel has been wrecked on Lake Winnipeg, and all on board lost.

She carried a crew of 16 and 66 passengers. There is a remote chance that the passengers are marooned some place and may be weeks in getting out. A number of vessels are known to be frozen in, but there is no word of the Wolverine.

MANSLAUGHTER IS THE VERDICT

L'Original, Ont., Nov. 17.—"Guilty of manslaughter in the first degree" was the verdict returned shortly after eleven o'clock last night by the jury in the case of the Crown v. Albert Blondin of Vars, accused of the murder of Dr. W. A. Empey, by shooting, on Aug. 18. Sentence was reserved till to-day.

The evidence of Blondin himself was the most important heard at yesterday morning's session. The prisoner was much affected while testifying, but maintained a concrete statement of the actual shooting.

"The doctor was my best friend in Vars," he said. "I worked at his house that day. I was taken ill and sent for him. When he arrived I went to put away the gun I was cleaning and it went off. The charge struck the doctor and the recoil struck me and knocked me unconscious on the bed."

Here the prisoner sank down in the witness box and broke out weeping, tears rolling down his pale, furrowed countenance. He denied that he had fire intentionally.

TOLSTOI IS IMPROVING

Aged Author Has Passed Crisis of the Attack.

St. Petersburg, Nov. 17.—The report of the death of Count Leo Tolstoi at Astapova was received here Tuesday night by the various newspapers and agencies. The Novoe Vremya's Moscow correspondent first telegraphed that Tolstoi was dead, but at an early hour yesterday he sent a further despatch, saying that a message had been received from Astapova that Tolstoi was living, and that the crisis of the disease had been passed.

At 4.15 yesterday morning, The Vestnik News Agency reported that the death of Tolstoi was not confirmed.

The reports emananating from Astapova, where Tolstoi has been lying with a high fever for two days, have been conflicting throughout. The official diagnosis, as given by the attending physicians Tuesday night, was that Tolstoi was suffering from an inflammation of the lower lobe of the left lung, but that no immediate danger threatened. His heart action at that time was said to be good, and his temperature practically normal.

Only the day before, according to the doctor's Tolstoi's temperature was 104 and he was in a delirious state.

On Wednesday the attending physicians confirmed the original diagnosis, but added that the inflammation was spreading, and that the condition of the patient was critical, although not hopeless. His temperature during the night rose to 103.64, and he had an attack of bleeding from the lungs. Some time later it was reported that his temperature had fallen to 98.6. Then came the report of his death and finally a message from Astapova, that he had successfully passed the crisis of the disease.

TWENTY WOUNDS

Italian Dying From Results of Drunken Melee.

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Nov. 17.—Voacerji Topetto, an Italian, is in a dying condition at the General Hospital, and two of his companions, Francesio Francorsois and Attieis Stormelli, are also suffering from minor wounds, as the result of a stabbing affray which took place in the Italian quarters Tuesday night at eleven o'clock.

It appears that Topetto was the prime factor in the affair, the others being on the defensive. Topetto, according to Dr. J. P. Gimby, who arrived on the scene about fifteen minutes after the knifing took place, had sixteen to twenty knife wounds on his body. His breast was slashed from shoulder to shoulder, and there was a wound under the arm, from which the breath of the man escaped when he attempted to breathe. His abdomen was cut in such a manner that his intestines protruded, and the doctor was compelled to remove a portion of the stomach. Dr. Gimby stated yesterday morning, that in his opinion, Topetto had no chance of life.

The stabbing took place at the home of E. Palumbo, who conducts a boarding house in a lane leading from Superior street. It appears that Topetto arrived in the house Tuesday night shortly before 11 o'clock. Those who participated in the affair say that he was under the influence of liquor. He immediately created a disturbance, and proceeding upstairs, got the other men out of bed. The melee followed. Francorsois and Stormelli both admitted that they used knives when the man became unruly.

Dr. Gimby was the first to arrive on the scene, and he had applied his needle to some of the wounds of the men when the police made their appearance. According to statements made by the men at the hospital, there was no cause for the stabbing outside of the trouble which occurred Tuesday night.

ROTTEN STATE OF AFFAIRS

New York, Nov. 17.—Meat so decayed that it has to be sprayed with sulphuric acid to conceal its condition, is being sold daily to the public, is one of the disclosures made yesterday by the municipal authorities investigation into general food conditions here. Candy that has been treated with sulphurous acid to prevent stickiness is sold to children, it was also developed.

Investigation of bakeries shows that in over fifty concerns rotten eggs were used in the making of all kinds of cakes.

Three Years For Wounding.

Winnipeg, Nov. 17.—Norris Dalton drew a sentence of three years in Stony Mountain Penitentiary from Chief Justice Howell, at the Assizes here yesterday, on a charge of aggravated assault. While primed with liquor last spring Dalton attacked Levi Dingman with a knife and inflicted severe wounds in the abdomen.

Appeal Against Opium Trade.

Washington, Nov. 17.—What is described as a "monster appeal" is being drawn up by the Chinese, urging Great Britain to abrogate the treaties with China which permit British interests to engage in the opium trade. The petition will be submitted simultaneously to the British and Chinese Governments.

WANT TO BE REPRESENTED

Farmers of the West Will Catechise Their Members at Ottawa.

Saskatoon, Nov. 17.—The executive of the Provincial Grain Growers' Association held a session here, at which E. A. Partridge outlined the co-operative system, whereby farmers would eliminate local stores and middlemen.

A motion was offered to impress federal members with the grain growers' attitude on public ownership, and operation of the Hudson Bay Railway, cold storage, elevators and other questions are to be taken up as early as possible and legislated upon. It was finally decided that delegates from the various constituencies should go to Ottawa, to wait on their members and have them declare themselves in the House on all these topics, and that in future elections the grain growers would vote only for those men whom they could rely upon to uphold the western farmers' views at Ottawa.

Partridge also brought up a new proposition regarding Hudson Bay Railway. As the leader of the Government was opposed to Government ownership and operation of the road, Partridge thought that as an alternative scheme, a co-operative farmers' company should be formed, to secure a charter, and build and operate the road. Five hundred farmers might put up $10 each, when articles of incorporation could be drawn, and application made for a charter. This idea caught the audience so thoroughly, that a motion was passed unanimously endorsing the scheme, and five men came forward with $10 each, to show their earnestness, and others intimated their intention of doing the same.

EVERY ORGAN OUT OF PLACE

Kingston, Nov. 17.—What is regarded as a remarkable case in the annals of medical research, as regards human anatomy was revealed before the medical faculty of Queen's University. Dr. A. W. Richardson was engaged in demonstrating to the class of second year students how to operate for appendicitis, when he made the discovery that the location of the organs of the body of his subject were completely at variance with the location of the organs of the normal man. The heart was on the right side, and the appendix, instead of being on the right side, was located in the corresponding position on the left side, and all the other organs on the side opposite to that on which they are found on the make-up of the normal man.

The members of the local profession say it is the first case of the kind to come under their notice, and the case will go on record as the first in which the whole internal system of a man has been found misplaced in the body, as in that of a convict who died a short time ago at the penitentiary.

MAJOR SAM SHARPE IS NEW PROVINCIAL WHIP

Very Little is Expected in the Way of Announcement in Speech From the Throne at Opening of House of Commons To-day.

Ottawa, Nov. 17.—The speeches from the throne to-day, at the opening of Parliament, will not contain a great deal of notice of prospective legislation.

After the usual reference to the bounties bestowed by Providence, the death of the King will come in for a sympathetic paragraph. The arrival of the warships Niobe and Rainbow will be mentioned, as implementing the legislation of last session.

The Hudson Bay Railway, the deepening of the Welland Canal and Mr. Fisher's copyright act will be referred to.

Regarding the bill creating a commission to regulate international freight between Canada and the United States, it was stated last night that, as such would be of no avail without similar legislation on the part of Congress, Mr. Graham will take up the matter with the Washington authorities, with a view to arranging a conventional treaty respecting this traffic.

Major Sam Sharpe of North Ontario was offered the position of Ontario whip of the Conservative party by Mr. Borden, and accepted. Major Sharpe has only been a member of Parliament for about two years, but he is already one of the most effective men in the House. He has done excellent work in the public accounts committee. He is a youth, as politicians go.

George H. Perley, the chief Conservative whip, stated last night that there would be no change in the sitting of the members. Therefore Hon. Geo. E. Foster will occupy his old place on Mr. Borden's left hand.

Usually there is a caucus of the party on the Friday after the opening of the House, but this session the caucus will be delayed until next week, when all the members will be present. Mr. Borden's program, therefore, will not be ratified until that event.

The debate on the address in reply to the speech from the throne will not begin until Monday, and no idea has been formed yet as to how long it will last. Probably, however, it will occupy most of the week.

LIQUOR CASE OF IMPORTANCE

Toronto, Nov. 17.—From now on no liquor may be placed upon the refreshment tables of secret, fraternal or other societies without making the individual members liable to prosecution for breaking the liquor license act. This is the view taken by the Ontario License Department of a recent decision in the courts, and yesterday definite action was taken by the department upon the case in point. Some weeks ago the caretakers of one or more of the public buildings were warned that the must be careful in permitting the consumption of liquor, but they had no idea that the order meant the barring of intoxicants from the refreshment tables of secret societies.

A second circular was sent out yesterday to the caretakers of all the public buildings (about one hundred in number) in Toronto defining clearly the law upon the point.

The department is acting upon a decision given by Judge Widdifield at Owen Sound in the case of Beckett v. Cahoon, and is of far-reaching importance, for it will have the effect of stopping the supply of liquors by fraternal and other societies to the membership.

The case was tried at Owen Sound, and was an appeal from the decision of the magistrate, who dismissed the case. His honor ruled that a room in which eight men were found drinking came within the act, and a conviction and fine were recorded.

HAD CHOLERA ON BOARD

New York, Nov. 17.—With two deaths during the voyage from what was evidently cholera, and a sick list of nine, including several cholera suspects, the steamer San Giorgio arrived yesterday from Naples and Palermo, and was detained at quarantine for bacteriological examinations in the cases of the sick passengers.

The bodies of the two victims, one a child of two years, who died Nov. 12, and the other the child's mother, who died early yesterday, were buried at sea, the woman just before the steamer entered port.

SIR ELDON GORST TO BE ELEVATED

London, Nov. 17.—Rumors are gaining strength in Cairo concerning the possible departure of Sir Eldon Gorst, owing to an impending change in Egyptian policy on the part of the British Government.

It is asserted, says The Standard correspondent, that the British agent will receive a peerage and go in a diplomatic capacity either to Brussels or to Washington.

Fielding Leaves For South.

Ottawa, Nov. 17.—Hon. W. S. Fielding left yesterday for Montreal. From there he will proceed to New York, and thence south. Mr. Fielding has not decided just how he will spend the six weeks' holiday he has decided on taking, but he will probably travel around a bit. Point Comfort, Virginia, may be his first objective point after New York.

Young Travelers.

Strathcona, Alta., Nov. 14.—Hilda, aged 6, and Phyllis, aged 5, daughters of M. Heath, arrived here Tuesday night after traveling all the way from England unattended. They were both put on train at Sheffield, Eng., tagged like merchandise. A broad leather belt surrounded the waist of each, with painted letters reading "To Heath, Strathcona, Alta., Canada, per Empress of Britain, care C.P.R."

Traveler For Quarter Century.

Brockville, Nov. 17.—Robert Powell, a veteran commercial traveler in Ontario and Quebec for over a quarter of a century, died here at the age of 66, following a nervous breakdown, which brought on apoplexy. His wife, one son and two daughters survive.

WANTED THE RING ONLY

Detroit, Nov. 17.—J. P. Doherty, a tobacco salesman of Guelph, Ont., is here in search of his wife, Pearl Doherty, who left him Nov. 7, after married life of five weeks. Doherty located his wife at the home of her sister and brother-in-law. He registered a protest with G. O. Frick, immigration inspector, alleging that his wife had disappeared while he was on the road, taking with her a valuable diamond ring and a sum of money. Mrs. Doherty informed the inspector and her husband that she held a receipt to show that she had sent him the ring, valued at about $15, by registered mail.

Doherty departed satisfied, making no further claims to the money, which he said she had, and declaring that he had no desire for reconciliation.

KING HOPES TO VISIT INDIA

London, Nov. 17.—It is officially announced that the King and Queen hope to visit India, and hold a coronation during the durbar at Delhi, Jan. 1, 1912.

The Mail, re the King's coronation in India in 1912, says: "We may look to see visits to Canada and Australia in due course, and courts held at Ottawa, Melbourne and Wellington, bearing fresh witness to the grandeur and power of the British throne."

Victoria, Nov. 17.—The fate of the twelve members of the Austrian scientific party which landed from the ship Albatross in the Solomon Island, has been cleared up by the discovery that they fell victims of cannibals. Every man in the party was eaten.

The Albatross expedition was headed by Baron Von Norbeck. Others in the party were Lieut. Budick, Midshipman de Beaufort and nine sailors.

Opposition Convention.

Regina, Nov. 17.—Hon. F. W. G. Haultain yesterday morning announced that he would call a convention of the provincial opposition party, to be held probably in Regina after the close of the session in January or February, when important political questions will be discussed. He declined to make any comment on the report of the elevator commission at the present time.

SAYS IT WAS FIRST DRUNK

Niagara Falls, Ont., Nov. 17.—The man rescued from rolling over the river bank to the rocks in the gorge below Tuesday night by Immigration Inspector Mathew Prentice, gave his name as Arthur Crabbe of Hamilton. Crabbe was charged with being intoxicated. He told Magistrate Fraser that this was his first drunk, and was dismissed.

Told to Mind His Own Business.

Rome, Nov. 17.—The Catholic Congress at Modena passed a resolution protesting against the mayor of Rome's extraordinary letter to the mayor of Montreal.

Liberal newspapers criticize Nathan strongly. The Milan Journal advises him to attend to his business as mayor and leave the Pope alone.

A QUERY

Sir Wilfrid, why don't you send the question of the navy to the people? We will help you solve the difficulty and will tell you just where we stand on the matter. What is the reason that you don't do this? You are at trouble in your own party. Before you are overthrown let us have a chance of expressing our opinion on the naval question.

TECHNICAL EDUCATION

At the Board of Trade meeting on Tuesday night Mr. Hogdson and Mr. Hagerman, of the Collegiate Institute staff presented some brief suggestions on technical education and manual training. Mr Hodgson spoke more as an observer, Mr Hagerman as one engaged in imparting information along the line of both subjects. Neither offered his remarks as a discussion of these subjects, but rather as a brief outline.

If the State will move in the direction of placing within reach practical knowledge to be of value to workers the State will do well.

Employers know that the most effectual way to destroy, in a boy, any ambition to be a skilled mechanic, is to send him through the Collegiate Institute. "John," says the father, "is now too good to be a mechanic. He must acquire a profession."

The one need of the country to-day is for alert, intelligent, capable mechanics. The professions don't count. The ranks are ever full. Who ever saw an advertisement calling for a doctor or lawyer? and in other professions as well. The supply is in advance of the demand.

If technical education is to teach the boy, in advance, the principles of the trade he is to master how early must the boy make a selection of his life work.

If manual training is to teach a boy how to mend tables and chairs and put on weather strips and finish wood or iron work, very well, if the knowledge gained is directly in line with his trade of the future. But will it only be supplanting the jack knife by the saw and plane? It may make him a more useful householder, will it aid him if he elects to be an upholsterer, or weaver.

To make manual training of real benefit we must first sort out the boys, with regard to the future—and sort them early. Will the delights of jack carpentry interfere with the acquisition of solid acquirement in the plain branches of a very plain English education.

Our schools are now engaged in educating the mind. Can they also educate the hand. It is probable the two branches of education can never be carried on side by side without detriment to both. Slackness in one will be blamed on the other.

So if we are to have technical education and manual training, we may make up our minds that it must be done thoroughly, as to equipment, or little good will result.

IN THE "GOOD OLD DAYS"

Fancy hogs soaring to $9 a hundred live weight! We remember dressed hogs, a dozen on a load of grain, at $2.50, and many old residenters will recall it. In those days over 40 years ago, fresh eggs were plentiful at 5 cents a dozen, and fresh butter at 7 cents a pound, and we often carried these products to the store and took the value in trade in the county of Bruce.—Goderich Star.

Yes, in the good old days hogs and eggs were cheap. So was labor. In the good old days. We don't want to look BACKWARD, we want to look FORWARD to a bright future. In the good old days we didn't have the telephone, the phonograph, the typewriter, the moving pictures, the express train. The world was large then, news travelled slowly, the roads were corduroy. We prefer paying a little more for our beefsteak and for our eggs and enjoying the luxuries attendant to our advanced civilization.

The ox is no longer our friend, we plow by steam. We know the wide world as a book. It is by the magic of the telegraph and camera laid at our feet. Is there a war or rumor of war, a revolution or a riot—we read of it in the comfort of our home. Yea eggs come high, but we are willing to pay for them and enjoy the privilege of living in the here and now. The good old days were good enough, but November 17th, 1910, is better.

CHICKENS COMING HOME TO ROOST

Liberal newspapers are demanding sympathy because of the attacks made on the Laurier Government in the bye election in Drummond and Arthabaska. But who taught the Nationalists to see in every expenditure of public money for purposes of defence a deep-laid scheme to entrap Canada into Imperial wars? None other than Sir Wilfrid Laurier himself. His victory in 1896 so far as it was won in Quebec was based upon a campaign of abuse of the Conservative Government for spending about a million dollars to arm the Canadian militia with modern rifles instead of the old Snider gas-pipes in the face of the American threats of invasion over the Venezuela affair.

Mr. Armand Lavergne, one of the leaders of the Nationalists, made an interesting remark in this connection. His father, Judge Joseph Lavergne, represented Drummond and Arthabaska in 1896 and was an intimate friend of Mr. Laurier as the Liberal leader then was. Mr. Armand Lavergne has stated that his father ran his election in 1896 on a denunciation of Sir Charles Tupper for buying those rifles. If Sir Wilfrid Laurier taught the father to see in the spending of one million dollars for rifles a plot against the liberties of Canada, who taught the son to see a similar plot in the spending of fifty or sixty millions on a navy?

In 1896 L'Electeur, which proclaimed itself to be the organ in the city of Quebec of the Liberal paper had this to say:—"Old Tupper has an arrangement with Chamberlain, under which we are to take part in the wars of the Empire. Some day the British officer will visit you, and take the son from his mother, the husband from his wife, the young man from his betrothed, and all will be sent to Africa or to India to whiten the plains with their bones."

"One of Old Topper's whims is Imperial Federation, which signifies an intimate alliance between England and her colonies, especially Canada. One of the conditions of this alliance would be that in time of war Canada would be called upon to pay its share in money and men. In return England would create these droll baronets, knights of this and commanders of that. But the people will remain food for the cannon. Why all these armaments if we are not to have war? Why fight for England? The electors should remember that the benefit of others will not be the ones to support the burden of it. It is the electors who will have to use these carbines and these cannon. The Tuppers, the Angers, the Taillons will be in their ministerial domiciles when they will send us to fight for England. With joy in their hearts and a glass of champagne in their hand they will send our children to Africa or to Asia, whence they will never return. If you vote for the blue candidate you approve of these preparations for war."

In conclusion, the French-speaking voters of Quebec were advised to "vote for Laurier and his candidates if you wish to see your country enjoy tranquility, and not expose yourselves to have to leave one of these fine mornings for distant shores, leaving behind your wives, your children, and all that is dear to you."

There are some peculiarly fine touches in the above, that in regard to sending the children of the Province to Africa, for instance, and that in regard to the creation of "Those droll baronets, knights of this, and commanders of that." There have been a lot of these latter.

What is worrying Sir Wilfrid Laurier in 1910 is, therefore, just what his friends, on the press and on the stump, in 1896 made use of to worry of extending to the members of the present Government any sympathy because of the course the Nationalists are now pursuing. The weapons of Mr. Bourassa and his associates were forged by the friends of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, which friends also showed how much weapons could be used."

A UNIQUE EXHIBIT

Tacoma, Wash., Nov. 17.—The city of Auburn voted "wet" Tuesday, despite the exhibition of two corpses near the polls as examples of death wrought by drink. Undertaker Collins, an ardent prohibitionist, set the corpses in coffins in his display window just opposite the voting place. Above was tacked a sign which read: "They Died of Drink." Voters gazed in horror, crossed the street and voted "wet."

Both bodies were found on the railroad track with whiskey bottles. One had been an English soldier commended for bravery in South Africa.

Drink becomes a disease and has to be treated as such. Exhibiting corpses of people who have died from drink may be a striking way of doing things, but if a drunkard wanted a drink he would steal it from a corpse and drink it. Drunkenness is a disease and is now recognized as such. A man who has the symptoms of pneumonia or typhoid fever may resolve not to take it, but his resolutions will not do half so much good as a dose of physic. A man who is a chronic boozer may resolve and promise, but what good are the promises of a bankrupt? A course in a Sanitarium may do good, and thousands have been helped in this way, but for the masses who cannot afford this treatment there is but one remedy, a course in the church and the grace of God.

AEROPLANE FLEETS

But without waiting for practical utility tests the military nations are equipping themselves with aeroplanes. The German government has ordered forty, designed to carry light guns. American army officers have given it as their opinion that this country shall have twenty at once. Probably Congress will be asked for an appropriation. What Germany has England must have, and a little more, and France will not be behind. As the torpedo boat begot the torpedo boat destroyer, the aeroplane will beget the aeroplane destroyer, and every nation will have to have some.

It is lucky that aeroplanes are cheap compared with Dreadnoughts. But the construction of fleets of them will swell the war budgets of the nations and add something to the burdens of their taxpayers. That is the one certain result of the invention of the aeroplane.—Brandon Sun.

And this in the year of our Lord 1910! We are advancing in knowledge, former methods of teaching in the schools are being declared obsolete the growth of missionary bodies is tremendous. There is now scarcely any region that has not known the story of the cross. Churches are springing up everywhere. Religion was never so POPULAR as it is to-day. NAVIES were never as BIG as they are to-day. ARMIES were never as well manned and EQUIPPED for KILLING as now. Is the world getting BETTER or are we going MAD?

ARE YOU SATISFIED?

Are you satisfied with being an average man or woman? We hope not. Years ago you dreamed that you would be great and rich, that you would be famous. But here you are, grubbing away. Why is it? "I didn't have a chance." Nonsense. You have had just as many chances as the other fellow who has outstripped you in the race. You have just as many as many chances, madame, as that other woman.

In a big insurance company in New York there is a large room in which are employed more than one hundred bookkeepers. Keeping books is not exciting, nor is it inspiring. No man would keep books for amusement, as he would sail a boat or build furniture or mow a lawn or plant a garden.

It has no value as exercise. It is an employment that furnishes no mental relaxation.

Yet, here in this one office are three hundred and more men working from nine o'clock in the morning till six o'clock at night, copying names and items from one book to another, totaling long, dreary columns of figures, writing, blotting, ruling, doing the same thing over and over again for a wage that barely enables them to meet the expenses of living.

Why? Not because they can do no better. Many of them have real ability, and might be doing something just as useful and far more remunerative. Some of them are better qualified in many ways to fill the higher positions than the men now filling them. Yet they remain bookkeepers.

They are average men, and they have found that it is easy to keep up with the crowd.

When they were office boys or cheap clerks they tried hard enough to get ahead, and they did get ahead. They got to the bookkeepers' room.

To get out of that room meant still harder work. They didn't have the inclination for it. They preferred to stay there rather than to find out, by extra study more about the business—rather than by coming down a little bit earlier and quitting a little bit later to gain the extra mastery of detail that would mean advancement.

Most of the men in that room will stay there till old age disqualifies them for further efforts. They they will drift down into poverty and obscurity—not because of lack of opportunity, but because of lack of will to meet opportunity when it came.

In Peterborough there are hundreds of men and women who hold that the world has a grouch against them, and is keeping them down. They are mistaken. The world never kept any man or woman down. The world is looking for the ONE who can DELIVER THE GOODS. When ANYONE can do that the world is ever ready to pay for the same. If a man can do that he need never be idle. If the ability offered is rare, his pay will be high. If it is average, it will be the average pay that he will receive. Are you the average or are you an extraordinary.

Chapter 6

NEWMARK followed the thirty-three days' work of the log drive with great interest. Gradually the men got used to him and ceased to treat him as an outsider.

The drive went down as far as Redding in thirty-three days. The men worked fourteen and sixteen hours at times. Several bad jams relieved the monotony. Problems of mechanics arose to be solved on the spot. Orde solved them by a rough and ready rule of thumb. He built structures which would have furnished a winter's discussion to some committees, just as the loggers had built through a rough country hundreds of miles of road better than railroad grade and smooth as a turnpike, the quarter of which would have occupied the average county board of supervisors for five years.

The drive was to be delivered at the booms of Morrison and Daly above the city of Redding, a thriving place of about 30,000 inhabitants situated on a long rapids forty miles from Lake Michigan.

The last camp was made six or eight miles above the mill. A good proportion of the rivermen, eager for the town, tramped down the road, to return early in the morning more or less drunk. One or two did not return.

Among the revelers was the cook, Charlie, commonly called "the doctor," and he moped about disconsolately. In the evening he looked so much like a chicken with the pip that Orde's attention was attracted.

"I tell you I only had two glasses of beer!" cried Charlie, goaded.

"Then why this joyless demeanor?" begged Orde.

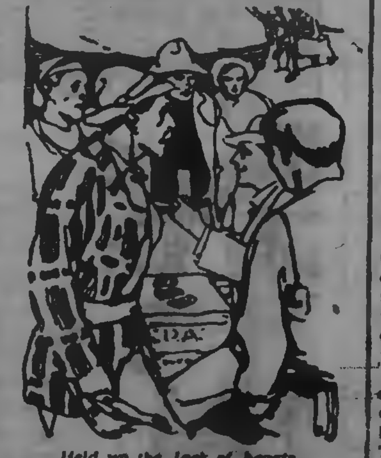
"He got 'bunked.'"

"Tell us!" cried Orde delightedly.

"It was down at McNeill's place," explained Johnny Challan. "They was a couple of sports there who throwed out three cards back up on the table and bet you couldn't pick the jack



Held up the Jack of hearts.

They showed yen where the jack was before they throwed, and it surely looked like a picnic, but it wasn't."

"Three card monte," said Newmark.

"How much?" asked Simms.

"About $50," replied the boy.

Orde turned on the disgruntled cook.

"And you had fifty in your turkey camping with this outfit of hard citizens!" he cried. "You ought to lose it."

At this point Newmark broke into the discussion.

"Have you a pack of cards?" he asked in his dry, incisive manner.

Newmark cleared a cracker box of drying socks and drew it to him.

"These three are the cards," he said, speaking rapidly. "There is the jack of hearts. I pass my hands—so. Pick the jack, one of you," he challenged. "Any of you," he urged. "You, North."

The foreman leaned forward and rather hesitatingly laid a blunt forefinger on one of the cards. It was the ten of spades. "Let me try," interposed Tim Nolan. "I bet I can pick her."

"Oh, yes, you bet!" shrugged Newmark. "And that's where the card sharps get you fellows every time." He deftly flipped the cards.

Nolan, who had watched keenly, indicated one without hesitation. Again it proved to be the ten of spades.

Everybody was ambitious, and the young man, with inexhaustible patience, threw out the cards, the corners of his mouth twitching sardonically at each wrong guess. At length he called a halt. "By this time I'd have had all your money," he pointed out. "Now I'll pick the jack." He made his swift passes and distributed the cards. Then, quite calmly, without disturbing the three on the cracker box, he held up the jack of hearts.

An exclamation broke from the group. Nolan leaned forward and turned over the three on the board. They were the eight of diamonds and two tens of spades.

"That's how the thing is worked," announced Newmark. "Once in awhile you'll run against a straight game, but not often."

"But you showed us the jack every time before you throwed them!" puzzled Johnny Simms.

"Sleight of hand," explained Newmark, "the simplest kind of palming."

"Where'd you get on to doing all that, Newmark?" inquired North. "You ain't a tin horn yourself?"

Newmark laughed briefly. "Not I," said he. "I learned a lot of those tricks from a traveling magician in college."

Orde had sat well in the background, watching intently all that was going on. After the exclamations following the exposure had subsided, he spoke.

"Boys," said he, "how game are you to get Charlie's money back—and then some?"

"Try us," returned big Tim.

"This game's at McNeill's, and McNeill's is a tough hole," warned Orde. "Maybe everything will go peaceful, and maybe not. And you boys that go with me have got to keep sober. There isn't going to be any row unless I say so, and I'm not taking any contract to handle a lot of drunken river hogs as well as go against a game."

"You can't make those sharps disgorge," counseled Newmark. "At the first look of trouble they will light out. They have it all fixed. Force won't do you much good and may get some of you shot."

"I'm not going to use force," denied Orde. "I'm just going to play their game. But I bet I can make it go."

Chapter 7

ABOUT a dozen of the crew appeared in the evening to go with Orde. They set out up the long reach of Water street, their steel calks biting deep into the pitted board walks.

For nearly a mile the street was flanked solely by lumber yards, small mills and factories. Then came a strip of unimproved land, followed immediately by the wooden, ramshackle structures of Hell's Half Mile.

As yet the season was too early for much joy along Hell's Half Mile. Orde's little crew and the forty or fifty men of the drive that had preceded him constituted the rank and file at that moment in town. A little later, when all the drives on the river should be in and those of its tributaries and the men still lingering at the woods camps, at least 500 woods weary men would be turned loose. Then Hell's Half Mile would awaken in earnest from its hibernation. The lights would blaze from day to day. From its open windows would blare the music, the cries of men and women, the shuffle of feet, the noise of fighting, the shrieks of wild laughter, curses deep and frank and unashamed, songs broken and interrupted. Crews of men, arms locked, would surge up and down the narrow sidewalks, their little felt hats cocked one side, their heads back, their fearless eyes challenging the devil and all his works—and getting the challenge accepted. Girls would flit across the lit windows like shadows before flames or stand in the doorways hailing the men jovially by name.

Tonight, however, the street was comparatively quiet. The saloons were of modified illumination. The barkeepers were listlessly wiping the bars. The "pretty 'waiter girls" gossiped with each other and yawned behind their hands.

In the middle of the third block Orde wheeled sharp to the left down a dark and dangerous looking alley. Another turn to the right brought him into a very narrow street where stood a three story wooden structure into which led a high arched entrance. This was McNeill's.

A figure detached itself from the shadow. Orde uttered an exclamation.

"You here, Newmark?" he cried.

"Yes," replied that young man. "I want to see this through."

"With those clothes?" marveled Orde. "It's a wonder some of these thugs haven't held you up long ago. It's dangerous. You're likely to get slugged."

"I can stand it if you can," returned Newmark.

McNeill's lower story was given over entirely to drinking. The second floor was a theater and the third a dance hall. Beneath the building were still viler depths. From this basement the riverman and the shanty boy generally graduated penniless and perhaps unconscious to the street. Now, your lumberjack did not customarily arrive at this stage without lively doings en route; therefore McNeill's maintained a force of fighters. They were burly, sodden men, but strong in their experience and their discipline. To be sure, they might not last quite as long as their antagonists could, but they always lasted plenty long enough. Sand bags and brass knuckles helped some and team work finished the job.

Orde and his men entered the lower hall as though sauntering in without definite aim. The river boss wandered about with the rest, a wide, good natured smile on his face.

Presently he found himself at the table of the three card monte men. The rest of his party gravitated in his direction.

"Do you think you could pick out the jack when I throw these out like this?" asked the dealer.

"Sure! She's that one."

"Well," exclaimed the gambler, "danged if you didn't! I bet you $5 you can't do it again."

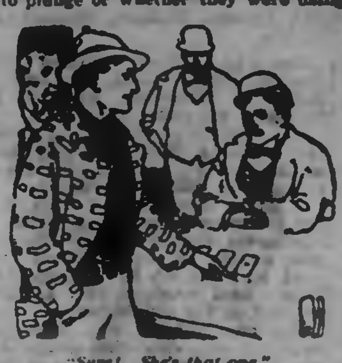
"You've got the best eye that's been in this place since I got here," exclaimed the dealer. "Here, Dennis," said he to his partner. "You try him."

Dennis obligingly took the cards and lost. By this time the men, augmented by the idlers, had drawn close.

Whether it was that the gamblers sensed the fact that Orde might be led to plunge or whether they were using him to draw the crowd into their game it would be difficult to say, but twice more they permitted him to win.



"Sure! She's that one."

Newmark plucked his sleeve.

"You're $20 ahead," he muttered. "Quit it."

"How much do you want to bet?"

"Would you stand for $500?" asked Orde.

The gambler pretended to deliberate, his cool, shifty eyes running over the group before him. A small door immediately behind him swung slowly ajar an inch or so.

"Got the money?" he asked.

"Have you?" countered Orde.

The man nodded. "I'll go you, bub," said he. "Lay out your money."

"Hold on!" cried Orde. "Where's yours?"

"I'm putting up my good money, and I expect to see good money put up in return," said Orde.

The audience now consisted of the dozen of Orde's friends, nearly twice as many rivermen, eight hangers-on of the joint, probably fighters and "bouncers;" half a dozen professional gamblers and several waitresses. The four barkeepers still held their positions. The rivermen were scattered back of Orde, although Orde's own friends had gathered at his shoulder. The mercenaries and gamblers had divided and flanked the table at either side. Newmark, a growing wonder and disgust creeping into his usually unexpressive face, recognized the strategic advantage of this arrangement. A determined push would separate the rivermen from the gamblers long enough for the latter to disappear through the small door at the back.

"That is the jack!" he cried.

"Oh, is it?" sneered the dealer. "Well, turn it over and let's see."

BABIES' SORES IN WINTER

Mothers Should Know About Zam-Buk

Every mother should realize that the skin of her baby is so tender that the secretions of the body often lead to rashes, eruptions, etc., all of which may be removed by Zam-Buk. Scores of restless, crying babies, upon examination are found to be suffering from some form of skin irritation or "heat." Don't let baby suffer when Zam-Buk will cure!

Often, too, in winter, the little ones suffer from chaps on the chin, hands, or other parts of the body. Zam-Buk applied after the bath, and at intervals during the day, will prevent all trouble.

Mrs. L. Wood, of 475 Alexander avenue, Winnipeg, says: "I have proved the value of Zam-Buk when applied to children's sores. Some nasty sores broke out around my baby's mouth, and despite all the preparations used, they refused to heal. I took him to St. Boniface Hospital and he remained there for two weeks. At the end of that time he was no better, and we again took him home. I was then advised to try Zam-Buk and obtained a supply. The effect of the first few applications was very gratifying, and a little perseverance resulted in a complete cure."

Zam-Buk will also be found a sure cure for cold sores, chapped hands, frost bites, ulcers, eczema, blood-poison, varicose sores, piles, scalp sores, ringworm, inflamed patches, babies' eruptions and chapped places, cuts, burns, bruises, and skin injuries generally. WHEN ALL HAS BEEN SAID

A drama of American life, full of absorbing interest and rich in its delineation of human nature, was presented last evening in the Grand Opera House before a fairly good house. Liebler and Company's production of "When All Has Been Said," while a comparatively new offering, yet judging from its reception by Peterborough theatre-goers, may well be assured of well-deserved success. The story of the play is true to life and not characterized by the usual false ideas and conceptions of life so commonly found in productions of its nature. The root of the plot centres around the thrilling and pathetic confession of the woman who erred, and how the love of the husband for the child of his erring wife was strong enough to enable him to forgive his wife, and in the bigness of his heart to forget her misdemeanor.

It was a play, alternately thrilling and touching. The story runs as follows: William Gordon marries a girl, although never fully understanding her disposition. He has decided to run for mayor on the prohibition ticket for business reasons alone. The liquor syndicate is strong in the city, and after threats fail to make him withdraw, conspire together to run the bank, of which he is owner. The straightforward fighting manner in which he opposes the conspirators, the trump cards which he plays at the most opportune and timely moments, furnish intense exciting climaxes, and eventually lead to his tricking his opponents. Just as he is on the verge of success, his wife's confession that she is in the power of his worst opponent, that the child both adored, is not her husband's, shatters his hopes and leaves him a broken-hearted man. An injury which the child sustains, however, in an attempt to save his father's bank from collapse, suffices to bring the husband and wife together, and a reconciliation is mutually effected.

It is a play full of heart throbs and its effect on last night's audience should be sufficient testimony of its powerful workings on the human heart.

The work of the whole cast was flawless and Charles Balsam in his character as Gordon, the bank manager, scored distinctly as a type of the wide-awake, active business man. Emily Stevens, as his wife, gave a perfect impersonation of her part, and the supporting members of the cast were each good.

PARENT FINED $5.00 EVIDENCE OF DEFIANCE

The father of a family of seven children presented himself and accompanied by a young daughter, at the police court this morning, as a result of an information laid by the truancy officer.

His daughter had not been attending school and his Worship held that there had been a display of defiance. No attention had been paid to the principal's report.

The excuse was that the mother was suffering with an injury to her hand and the daughter had to remain home.

"Well, I'm going to fine you $5," said his Worship. "The law says your daughter must be educated. If I was to sit here listening to excuses I would have my hands full."

"I can't pay it. I'm not able to," answered the parent.

"Then you'll go to jail," answered the Magistrate.

The fine must be paid within ten days.

WHAT THE BOARD OF WORKS DID AT MEETING LAST NIGHT

The city engineer reported that much damage has been done by vandalism in Hallowe'en. This was referred to the police commission.

A letter from Grafton & Co., asking for permission to put up an illuminated sign in front of the company's store on George Street was read, and Mr. W. E. Conway, the firm's local manager, was heard in support of the application.

The city engineer was instructed to report as to signs that do not comply with the by-law and as to those having projecting signs, who have not paid the fee called for by the by-law.

Authority was given the chairman of the library board, and the architects to purchase grates and mantles for fire places in the public library.

The chairman of the library board was requested to prepare a list of furnishings required for the library and to ask for tenders.

The request from Mr R. Sheehey to be given the strip of land at the wharf, for which he is assessed $25 a year, for $5 a year, was not acted upon. While he is not using the land for shipping purposes, he will be allowed to hold it by paying $1.50 a month.

An account from R. Wilson, janitor of the city building for $5 will be paid.

It was decided to commence the construction of the sewers on Inverlea and Smith Streets as soon as possible.

A request to have gravel placed on Smith Street was referred to the city engineer for a report.

COMMITTEE WANTS LIBRARY CONSTRUCTION HURRIED

A letter was read from Rutherford Bros. at the meeting of the Property Committee last night asking for a settlement for their work at the Public Library. The matter was discussed with the architects, Messrs W. J. Blackwell and J. E. Belcher.

On motion of the Mayor and Ald. Graham, the committee instructed the architects to see that the work was completed, and that the council intended to enforce the penalties unless it was carried out with dispatch.

POLICE BROKE UP DANCE AT DISORDERLY HOUSE

Chas. Clarke and His Wife go to Jail—James Wilson Fined $10.00 and Roy Wright $5.00 — Other Prisoners Taken From House Were Discharged.

Roy Wright—Fined $5.00 or thirty days.

The above judgements were handed out by Magistrate Dumble at the police court this morning, during a session, the full particulars of which would not make an edifying report.

A BIG TIME.

The police had received complaints of misconduct at a house occupied by Charles Clarke at 389 Aylmer street, and last night decided to take action. A dance had been arranged for, and during the evening the invited guests made their way to the house. About eleven o'clock the merriment was at its full height. There were young and old married couples present. There was also an old man, who gave his age as 78. James Wilson, too, was there.

The scene inside was not conducive to elevating the morals of the company. The ladies smoked cigarettes, the men drank. Some of the latter were in the knocked-out class. Children of tender ages were participants in the entertainment.

There must have been other things going on in the house, for the tenant, Clarke, pleaded guilty this morning to being the keeper of a disorderly house. His wife made the same plea when the charge of being an inmate was read. Other men were charged as being frequenters and women as inmates.

AN INVITATION.

The majority pleaded guilty, but as considerable light on the affair was furnished during the progress of the court they changed their plea to not guilty, with the explanation that they were only at the house on invitation to the dance, and that nothing outside of a little drinking took place.

The list of informations made out by Chief Thompson, who was in charge of the raid last night, numbered nineteen. He was assisted by P.C.'s Newhall, Meagher and McGinty.

"I worked hard while he was in jail last summer," sobbed Mrs. Clarke, as she and her husband stood up before the magistrate. "All that is wrong at the house is the bit of drink he brings in. I wish you would put him on the blacklist."

"She sits with a nursing baby, smoking cigarettes, and the house is in a filthy condition," put in the chief.

"I will make an order giving your children over to the Children's Aid Society," said his Worship. "you are no fit person to take care of them."

Mr. Wood here explained that the society could take the two eldest children, but not the three-month-old child. It will remain with the mother.

Thos. Clarke, the father of Chas. Clarke, and who is 78 years of age, was discharged. "It may be that you couldn't help yourself as you had no other place to live," said the magistrate.

"I understand that this man is responsible for the liquor on the premises," said Mr. Wood.

They were discharged.

"He takes other men there," offered the chief.

It was $10, to be paid in ten days or thirty days on the hill.

There was no evidence against Albert Wright, a youth.

Roy Wright was just in to pass the night. It cost him $5.00, or thirty days.

Fred Brooks was a stranger and they took him in. He was discharged.

Harry Flinders and his housekeeper, Florence Flinders, got off. Florence did most of the talking and said that she had called at the house on one occasion to do some sewing as she had no machine, and her attendance last night was the result of an invitation.

The court brought up another matter about some men and women who called at her house on Mark street recently, but it was all straight, so she said.

Another woman, with her son and daughter, were discharged. The Chief submitted that she was a hard worker. Her daughter explained that she had called at the house for her mother. "It was just a little amusement; I thought it no harm," said the mother.

Matthew Robertson claimed Newmarket as his home and said he boarded at the house. He will likely remove.

Brock Wright and his wife, Pearl Wright, were also eligible for dismissal.

REDUCED JUDGMENT.

Later the magistrate decided to reduce the judgment at first meted out to Clarke and his wife.

He sent Clarke to jail for thirty days, and his wife for a period of twenty days without the fine.

The Orient Can Hear Other Music Than Its Own Can Can Since Sousa's Marches Have Been Canned

John Philip Sousa, who is to be here shortly with his distinguished band, has been responsible for a number of clever remarks, but one of the cleverest is the phrase he coined concerning music as presented through the medium of the graphophone.

"Canned music" is what the bandmaster calls it, and "canned music" it is likely to remain for all time to come.

As in the case with the food products which are put up in tins, the music thus dispensed may be transported to the farthest parts of the earth without difficulty. Just now the Chinese are reported as being in the seventh heaven of delight through listening to Sousa marches and other compositions by the first conductor of all concert bands.

Those of us who appreciate music will be interested in the "fresh" variety of music as distinguished from the "canned" when John Philip Sousa leads his men in a program to be given at the Grand next Tuesday, Nov 22. There is much which will be of interest, and two young women soloists who have already made their marks in the world of music. The nicest part of it all is the interpretations will not be "canned"

KING SUMMONSES LAURIER

Special to the Review.

Ottawa, Nov. 17.—King George has summoned the Privy Council to meet to discuss the House of Lords question. Sir Wilfrid Laurier Sir Richard Cartwright, Sir Elzear Taschereau, Sir Charles Fitzpatrick and Sir Charles Tupper are the Canadian members of the Imperial Privy Council, and got notice to attend at a London conference, at which it is expected the suggested policy of taking steps to reform the House of Lords will be discussed.

However, these Canadian Privy Councillors were unable to attend and Laurier and Cartwright, in their full uniforms of state, as head of the Commons, and the Senate, stood near Earl Grey, Canada's Governor-General, when he opened the Canadian Parliament this afternoon for the 1910-11 session.

TO-DAY'S WIRES

Ottawa, Nov. 17.—The third session of Canada's eleventh Parliament opened this afternoon with all the customary official, social and military display. The attendance of members was large, though all have not yet arrived for the session.

The military escort was furnished by the 50th P.L.D.G. and the G.C.F.C. provided the guard of honor in front of the legislative buildings. The battery fired the salute from Nepean Point as his Excellency drove up from Rideau Hall.

Special to the Review.

London, Nov. 17th.—Twenty thousand persons, including members of wealthy and aristocratic families of England have signed the petition aimed to save Dr. H. H. Crippen from execution next Wednesday for the murder of his wife, Belle Elmore Crippen. This is the largest number of names ever attached to an English petition praying commutation of a death sentence.

Special to the Review.

Montreal, Nov. 17.—The trial of the three men, Perrault, Chevior and Derome, accused of having been the cause of the death of Cecile Michaud, the 13 year old girl, whose body was found in Westmount, was ended today in the King's Bench, and the three were acquitted of the charge of murder, the first two, who took the girl out for an automobile drive, are held in $10,000 bail each to answer to charge of abduction.

ANOTHER HUNT CLUB HOME WITH THEIR SHARE

The "Green Island Hunt Club" returned to the city last night from their annual hunt on Lake Memesogamesing, Parry Sound District. They report having had a splendid time and brought back one deer each. In the district where they hunted there is already ten inches of snow, and in travelling from their camp to the railway sleighs were used to good advantage. They report having passed several camps where women were hunting with their husbands, and in most cases the women had shot one deer. The personnel of the above club this year was Robert Neill, E. F. Mason, W. J. Coleman, and Felix Brownscombe, all of this city; James N. Shannon, of Toronto; Charles Tanner, of Lakefield; E. Gregory, of Lindsay, and Rev. A. M. Irwin and W. E. Benan, of Newcastle. The Rev. G. W. Henderson and Mr. J. D. Collins are both members of the club, as also are Rev. E. J. Shorey and Charles McCallum, both of Cobourg, but these were unable to join in the hunt with the others this year.

YOUNG CONSERVATIVES ORGANIZE FOR SEASON

LARGE AT HOME IN HONOR OF MISS GOODING

A very large at-home was given yesterday afternoon by Mrs J. R. Stratton of Strathormond, Peterboro' to introduce her niece, Miss Alberta Gooding. The event took place in the hall of the conservatory of Music, which was brightened with elaborate decorations, consisting of walls tapestried with national bunting, ceiling and wall festoons of lines of vari colored electric lights. Palms were the motive of the floral decorations, and an orchestra walled in by palms furnished music. Several tables were massed with flowers sent to the debutante. Mrs. Stratton, assisted by her niece, received, wearing a black panne velvet gown with handsome jet garniture; diamond and pearl ornaments; very large white panne hat faced with black velvet, with large white willow plumes and bouquet of white chrysanthemums. The debutante was charming in a gown of shell pink satin, with overdress of crystal net trimmed with pearls, bandeau of pearls, and bouquet of pink orchids and lily of the valley. The tea table was bright with beautiful floral decorations; the centrepieces was a pyramid of Richmond roses flaming amidst a setting of asparagus fern, at the corners were gold baskets of Richmond roses looped to the centrepiece with scarlet baby ribbon, and from each trailed down over the table edge similar set with roses in the imitation of a climbing rose vine. Mrs. T. F. Mathews and Mrs. A. H. Stratton presided over the tea and coffee urns, and were assisted in the tea room by Mrs. Claude Fox, Toronto; Misses F. Steveley, London; Iona Heintzman, Toronto; McFaul, Collingwood; Muriel Rogers and Muriel Burritt, city. In the evening a delightful dance, given by Mr. and Mrs. Stratton was enjoyed. Frelick's orchestra of Toronto supplied the music.

FOURTH TEAM FOR CITY LEAGUE

Inquiry has been made through the local press as to where the fourth team for the city league will be obtained. There is no cause for any worry from this source. The fourth team will be entered all right.

Further information will be given later.

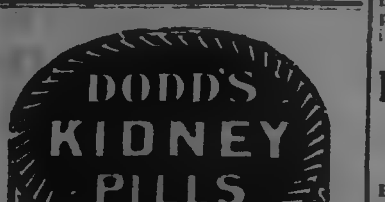
SPORTING COMMENT

Winnipeg fight fans claim they have found the coming champion the man to whip Jack Johnson. He is also colored, "Big Smoke" Robinson is the name he goes by. He has a splendid physique, is a good boxer, has a terrific wallop and apparently plenty of pluck. He has put to sleep everything in the heavyweight line in the west by the knock-out route and the Winnipeg fans, who are legion, are trying to match Robinson up against some of the real classy big fellows. Pugilism is booming in Winnipeg just now and there are weekly fights with a thousand or two thousand in attendance.

"Hans" Wagner is about to begin his baseball life all over again. Fred Clarke, manager of the Pittsburg team, has decided to try the "Flying Dutchman" at first base when the 1911 practice starts. Clarke has had no end of worry about first base since a few years ago, when he decided "Kitty" Bransfield had outlived his usefulness as a Pirate. He has tried several men, but all have failed to hit the right mark.

Merely to show the diversity of Clarke's experiments at first, the names of Pittsburg first basemen since 1904 follows—In 1905, Clancy and Howard; 1906, Nealon; 1907, Swacina, Storke and Nealon; 1908, Gill, Storke, Swacina and Kane; 1909, Abstein and Hyatt; 1910, Sharpe, Flynn and Kading.

Wagner played first in several games for the Pirates the past season. Now the question arises, will McKechnie be able to fill the bill at short?



Y.M.C.A. NOTES

The First Aid Class spent a most profitable time last night under the direction of Dr. McPherson.

The following games are scheduled in the various leagues, 4 to 4.40 p.m. to-day:—Rough Riders and Mugs of the Collegiate Class League will play their game scheduled for Friday.

The games in the intermediate league to-night:— Burglars vs. Sawbones, Pirates vs. Rowdies.

Business Boys' League.—Victors and Giants, Dreadnaughts and Indians.

The senior league players are requested to be on the floor so that the games may start on time.

The games for Friday in the Collegiate League will bring together the famous "Blue Jay Hoboes" vs. the World renowned Whirlwinds.

The eclipse of the moon last evening was attended by heavy passing clouds, and the event was a great disappointment to many.

COST IN LIVES OF BOILER EXPLOSIONS

Nobody will ever know how many boilers blew up in the United States in 1909, but anyone who will take the trouble may learn that at least 550 of them did. That is at the rate of an explosion for each sixteen hours and six minutes in the year. In those 550 boiler explosions 227 persons were killed outright and 422 others were injured. Considering the modest and unobtrusive way in which the slaughter goes on this is a pretty good score.

There is one class of boilers, and one only, concerning which official statistics exist, and even these are incomplete; and this is the locomotive boiler. The Interstate Commerce Commission is able to announce that from July 1, 1904, to June 30, 1909, 265 persons were killed and 3,656 were injured in explosions of locomotive boilers; but not even the Interstate Commerce Commission knows how many boilers were blown up to accomplish this result.

From unofficial sources it may be learned that in 1907 there were 57 locomotive boiler explosions, which means that one out of each thousand in use that year blew up, killing 101 persons, or nearly one-fourth of the total killed in boiler explosions that year, and injuring 68. In 1909, there were 42 explosions of locomotive boilers, which was 7.6 per cent of the total number of explosions, in which 44 persons were killed, which was 19.2 per cent of the total number killed in explosions, and 60 were injured.

Saw mills, which have a pretty hard reputation in such things, only scored 34 explosions; but then saw-mills are not nearly as numerous as locomotives. There were 45 person killed in these accidents, which was one more than was credited to the locomotives, and 41 were injured.—From "When the Boiler Blows Up," in December Technical World Magazine.

ENJOYABLE DANCE LAST EVENING

About eighty couples participated in a most delightful dance last evening in the T.A.S. Hall, Simcoe street. It was under the auspices of the Knights of Columbus. The earlier part of the evening was whiled away in cards, and dancing was commenced about ten o'clock. Refreshments were served to the merry-makers between eleven and twelve after which dancing was continued until about two o'clock.

The successful evening was largely due to the efforts of a committee of eight, of which Dr. McNulty is chairman.

The party dispersed shortly after two.

COUNTING THE PEOPLE.

First Census Proposal in England Raised a Fine Row.

It was in 1733 that a proposal to count the people was first made. Thomas Potter, son of the archbishop of Canterbury and member for St. Germans, introduced in that year a bill "for taking and registering an annual account of the total number of the people and of the total number of marriages, births and deaths and also of the total number of poor receiving alms from every parish and extra parochial place in Great Britain." It was inevitable, of course, that directly this proposal was made the precedent of King David should be quoted. And many were the jeremiads as to the alternative evils which would befall the country. Those submitted to David were mild in comparison. Mr. Thornton, member for York city, said:

"I did not believe that there was any set of men or indeed any individual of the human species so presumptuous and so abandoned as to make the proposal we have just heard. I hold this subject to be totally subversive of the last remains of English liberty. The new bill will direct the imposition of new taxes, and indeed the addition of a very few words will make it the most effectual engine of rapacity and oppression that was ever used against an injured people. Moreover, an annual register of our people will acquaint our enemies abroad with our weakness."

Matthew Ridley, another opposing member, added that his constituents looked on the proposal as ominous and feared lest some public misfortune or an epidemical distemper should follow the numbering. However, the bill passed the commons only to be promptly rejected by the lords. Not until 1800 was the proposal again made, and on this occasion it was brought to a successful issue. The first census of England and Wales was taken in March, 1801.—Westminster Gazette.

GENEROUS GEORGE.

Washington's Tips and Compliments to Patty and Polly.

Those who take tipping in the somewhat solemn spirit of the social investigator may find their minds enlivened by the perusal of an excerpt from the writings of our first president, which shows what a graceful turn appreciation and courtesy may give to the custom.

In 1789, on his return from his New England progress, Washington lodged at Taft's inn, at Uxbridge, Mass., where the domestic service—as at many inns in the country—was performed by the landlord's daughters. Somewhat later Washington wrote to Mr. Taft:

> Hartford, 8 November, 1789.
>
> Sir—Being informed that you have given my name to one of your sons and called another after Mrs. Washington's family, and being, moreover, very much pleased with the modest and innocent looks of your two daughters, Patty and Polly, I do for these reasons send each of these girls a piece of chintz, and to Patty, who bears the name of Mrs. Washington and who waited upon us more than Polly did, I send 5 guineas, with which she may buy herself any little ornaments she may want, or she may dispose of them in any other manner more agreeable to herself.
>
> As I do not give these things with a view to have it talked of or even to its being known, the less there is said about it the better you will please me, but that I may be sure the chintz and money have got safe to hand let Patty, who I dare say is equal to it, write me a line informing me thereof, directed to "The President of the United States at New York." I wish you and your family well and am your humble servant, GO. WASHINGTON.

The Shark Is a Slow Swimmer.

One ill service nature has done the shark—namely, that of placing a triangular fin on his back which acts as a danger signal and gives warning of his approach. Happily the shark has not been gifted with sufficient sagacity to be aware of this peculiarity, for had he been so he would unquestionably abandon his habit of swimming close to the surface of the water and would in that case be enabled to approach his victim unobserved. The shark is a slow swimmer for his size and strength. Byron observes, "As darts the dolphin from the shark." But Byron was a poet and does not appear to have been a close observer of the habits of inhabitants of the water or he would have known that a shark would have no more chance of catching a dolphin than a sheep would of overhauling a hare.

Sardine Fishing.

In sardine fishing there are many uncertainties. There is a twenty-eight foot rise and fall of tide in the bay of Fundy, and especially constructed wooden picket inclosures are staked out in the water to gather in the fish. Last season a man erected an inclosure in what he supposed to be excellent fishing territory, but got nothing. He deplored his loss and for a time failed to go near it. "Why don't you seine it again?" somebody asked. "What's the use?" he replied. "Let me try it," the other persisted. "Yes, and you may have all the fish you get." The other man pulled out $1,700 worth at one haul.—Frank Leslie's.

TAR AND FEATHERS.

People who read of tarring and feathering know that the punishment is a very unpleasant one, but few imagine how terribly painful and dangerous it is. Hardened tar is very hard to remove from the skin, and when feathers are added it forms a kind of cement that sticks closer than a brother. As soon as the tar sets the victim's suffering begins. It contracts as it cools, and every one of the little veins on the body is pulled, causing the most exquisite agony. The perspiration is entirely stopped, and unless the tar is removed death is certain to ensue.

But the removal is no easy task and requires several days. The tar cannot be softened by the application of heat and must be peeled off bit by bit, sweet oil being used to make the process less painful. The irritation to the skin is very great, as the hairs cannot be disengaged, but must be pulled out or cut off. No man can be cleaned of tar in a single day, as the pain of the operation would be too excruciating for endurance, and until this is done he has to suffer from a pain like that of 10,000 pin pricks. Numbers of men have died under the torture, and none who have gone through it regard tar and feathering as anything but a most fearful infliction.

TOBACCO IN THE ARCTIC.

Resource of Miners When They Can Neither Chew Nor Smoke.

"When the wind is blowing thirty miles an hour and the temperature is 40 below it is some cold," said a man from Alaska. "If a man used tobacco in the ordinary way out of doors during such weather and got his lips wet through smoking a pipe or chewing he would be apt to get into trouble. First thing he knew he'd have his lips cracked, and they would be raw all winter long.

"The regulars stationed at the military posts up in Alaska found that if they tied a tobacco leaf in their armpit previous to undesired duty they would become very sick and could pass the post surgeon for hospital, getting rid of detail work they wanted to avoid.

"The miners up there learned something of this and found that the tobacco craving could be satisfied by binding a quantity of the leaf either in the armpit or against the solar plexus. This avoided broken and bleeding lips during the winter, and they weren't prevented from smoking indoors as well if they wanted to. It was the outdoor smoking or chewing that made all the trouble."—New York Sun.

In the office, in the early morning or late at night, before or after the steamheat is on, it is of importance to have extra heat. NOVEMBER CROP BULLETIN, 1910

The following statement of crop conditions in Ontario on the first of November, based upon the returns of a large number of correspondents, has been issued by the Ontario Department of Agriculture. It is the final crop bulletin for the year.

FALL WHEAT

While a number of correspondents speak of the yield and quality of fall wheat as being the best for years, others complain of the grain being less plump than usual, owing to dry weather at the time of filling. Taken as a whole, however, fall wheat may be classed as better than an average crop.

SPRING WHEAT

Less spring wheat is being grown than formerly, Goose wheat being the variety chiefly raised. The crop was fully up to the standard this year in every respect.

THE NEW FALL WHEAT

An increased acreage of wheat has been sown this fall, and as most favorable conditions existed at seeding, and since that time, the crop is now looking most promising. In fact some correspondents express a fear that the young fall wheat may have too much top for entering the winter. Only scattering mention was made of injury to the crop by Hessian fly, wire-worm, or other insects. Sowing ranged from the last week of August to the first week of October, the bulk of the crop being put in during the first and second week of September. Dawson's Golden Chaff is still the favorite variety of fall wheat. Red Clawson and over forty other named varieties following.

BARLEY

This grain has turned out well, taking the Province over. The sample was generally plump, and while some discoloration was reported, that is not now considered a serious drawback, as most of the barley raised in this Province is fed to live stock.

OATS

Oats were rather short in the straw, but the heads were well filled with grain of good weight, and where the crop was not knocked down by rain storms just before cutting it was an unusually good one. On account of wet weather when harvesting oats were harder to gather than in the case of the other spring grains.

RYE

This grain is not largely raised in Ontario, but where grown it is classed this season as from fair to good.

PEAS

This crop has been somewhat discouraging to most growers this year. The vines suffered from drouth, and a green aphis also affected them, and as a result the pods were but poorly filled in most cases. The pea weevil was also reported in several localities.

MIXED GRAINS

Correspondents are hardly as enthusiastic over the growing of mixed grains as they were a year ago. It is claimed by some that it is difficult to get the various grains to properly ripen together; but others still point to the advantage of a greater production by the combination. Mandscheuri barley and Daubeney oats are still the favorite mixture, while some prefer to add peas. Peas and oats, barley and peas, also have their advocates.

CORN

While spring conditions were unfavorable for this crop, the summer and fall were ideal for its growth, and the term "splendid" is sometimes used by correspondents in describing the result. Corn escaped fall frosts almost entirely, was well cobbed, and matured in excellent condition both for husking and the silo.

TOBACCO

This crop ranges from fair to good as far as yield is concerned. On high land growth was checked by drouth early in the season, and hail in midsummer did injury to some fields; but fine, open weather later helped growth, and conditions at harvesting were favorable. The leaf is said to be curing well.

BEANS

Beans may be described as a medium crop, the early planted fields doing better than those put in late, which were caught by rainy weather at harvesting.

BUCKWHEAT.

Some fields were caught by early frost and there was also injury from rain at the time of cutting; but the crop generally may be classed as an excellent one as to both yield and quality.

CLOVER SEED.

Ontario farmers are paying more attention than formerly to the raising of clover seed. The seed has been a favorable one for this purpose, and the general results have been satisfactory. There were only a few complaints of midge, and these were chiefly from the western part of the Province.

POTATOES.

The crop is credited with a large average yield, and many of the returns speak of their excellent quality. There are some complaints of rot on heavy soils, however, and also among some potatoes in cellars. The crop was dug and housed under ideal weather conditions.

TURNIPS.

This class of roots has done better than was expected when correspondents reported in August. There will be a fair yield, and although, as a rule, only medium in size, the quality of turnips is in general first-class. A few remained to be pulled as returns came in.

MANGELS.

A good crop of mangels of excellent quality is reported, and all were safely placed under shelter by the end of October.

CARROTS.

Carrots are not largely raised as a field crop, but where grown this season they were a success.

SUGAR BEETS.

These roots are increasing in popularity for feeding to live stock. They were a good crop where grown and were all harvested as correspondents wrote.

FRUIT.

The season of 1910 will be remembered as one of the poorest on record for apples, all the good winter varieties being exceedingly scarce. Spring frosts and wet weather at the setting of the fruit are given as the chief cause of the poor yield. Some correspondents charge that there is a too general neglect of Ontario orchards, and claim that where spraying and reasonable care were given to fruit trees there were satisfactory results this season. Pears, peaches, and plums were more plentiful than apples, although the surplus was not large. In many parts of the province high winds blew off a considerable quantity of fruit before it was fit for marketing. Grapes, strawberries, and other small fruits yielded well.

LIVE STOCK.

Fall pastures have been all that could be desired, and, where not overstocked have kept grazing animals in fine condition. All classes of live stock have been remarkably free from serious diseases; in fact there is practically a clean slate. Horses are in considerable demand and at higher prices than formerly. Cattle did unusually well on the grass and all ages and classes can find a ready market at better prices than for many years. Young beef animals especially are hard to procure. There have also been too few sheep for the demand. A large and steady traffic has been done in swine. The recent drop in market values has checked sales somewhat but the supply on hand is barely normal. All over the Province a larger number of silos than usual have been erected this year many of them made of concrete.

DAIRYING.

The milk flow was well maintained by the excellent fall pastures, thus prolonging the dairy season. Butter has gained upon cheese, taking the Province as a whole. As between butter and cheese prices have rather favored the former, and the local demand for butter appears to be increasing. The general quality of both creamery and home-made butter has been high this year. Condensed milk factories in the Oxford district, and the shipping of cream and casein over the border along the St. Lawrence, have also helped to lessen the cheese production of the Province. Shorthorns and Holsteins are about equally popular among Western Ontario dairymen, while Holsteins have a large lead in eastern Ontario, Ayrshires and Shorthorns coming together in second place.

The good prices obtained for poultry products this season have led farmers to give more attention to this industry. Eggs have been in great demand all season at paying prices, and chickens fit for market have also commanded high rates. Common farmyard fowl have been almost completely exempt from disease, but complaints have come from some of the Lake Ontario counties of serious losses among turkeys from a disease known as "blackhead." The wet weather of July also was hard upon this class of poultry. Geese and ducks have kept in good condition. While considerable improvement has recently taken place in the care of poultry in this province, some of the returns point out that but few farmers keep an actual record of profit and loss from this branch of their business. Correspondents variously estimate the profit per hen at from sixty cents to one dollar.

FARM LABOR.

Help on the farm has been scarce this season, especially in the case of experienced and capable men. The opening up of new country to the north and west is still drawing away some of our young men, and while some of the immigrants who have taken their places have given good satisfaction, others are described as being very inexperienced, poor learners, and practically of no help upon a farm. The use of improved machinery an exchange of work, and more pasturing of land are looked to by some correspondents as the best way to meet the scarcity of rural labor. The consensus of opinion is that little or no change is likely to take place in the rate of wages in the near future. Domestic servants are almost impossible to secure, the attractions of the town being greater than those of farm life for the great majority of the girls.

THRESHING AND MARKETING.

While some correspondents state that threshing was completed, and others say that none has been done on account of the rush of other fall work, the bulk of the reports were to the effect that grain separation was well advanced generally. Grain has been moving but slowly to market, except where some farmers have been pressed for ready money. The price of wheat is such that owners are holding back for a rise, or else will feed a good share of it later if present values of live stock continue. Most of the barley is now fed on the farm, and less of the oat crop is sent to the market than formerly.

FALL PLOWING.

Reports as to the progress of fall plowing vary greatly, even in same localities; but as a whole the work was fairly advanced when correspondents reported, with prospects of completion in good time. The land early in the fall was considered rather dry and hard, but timely rains came and put it in splendid condition for plowing. Silo filling, early threshing, and the poor handling of plowing teams by many of the newer class of farm laborers, are the chief reasons given by those who reported the work as backward.

FODDER SUPPLIES.

Farmers face the winter with more assurance than for years, owing to the general sufficiency of all classes of fodder. There is a surplus of hay, ranging from $8 to $16 a ton, according to the nearness to good markets, and there is plenty of straw. The largely increased silo accommodation, with the big corn crop, has lessened the call on other fodders. The abundant fall pastures, and the growing of millet or Hungarian grass, have also enabled farmers to husband their regular winter feeding supplies. As usual, considerable oil cake, and bran, shorts and other mill feeds, will be purchased, but more charily than formerly, as the prices for all these commodities are high, and many farmers are now studying feeding equivalents. There has been a brisk demand for beef cattle, sheep and hogs, all the season, and this has left less live stock on hand than usual. There is also the important fact that Ontario farmers, after the hard lesson of two or three years ago, have learned to feed more wisely, and there is now but little waste of fodder.

PETERBORO HAS A GREAT RECORD

Dr. Hodgetts, the medical health officer of the commission has been delivering educational addresses throughout Canada, as regards public water supplies. In a recent lecture in Western Ontario, Dr. Hodgetts emphasized the fact that in guarding the purity of her unequalled inland water system, Canada was far behind most nations except perhaps the United States.

Dr. Hodgetts pointed out that a large percentage of sickness happening in the cities and towns is due directly to the pollution of the stream lake or river, from which the municipality draws its water. Cholera, diarrhoea, and typhoid are the outcome of sewage contaminated water. The typhoid bacillius is especially active through this agency, and it is now almost the general rule to consider that a continued typhoid death rate of over 20 per 1,000 population is an indication that the public water supply is greatly at fault.

The Canadian mortality tables for 1909, to which Dr. Hodgetts referred, are interesting insomuch as they show that purity of water and absence of certain forms of disease go hand in hand. For instance here are the deaths per hundred thousand people from typhoid, in various Canadian cities:—

Edmonton	76.0
New Westminster	58.3
Rossland	25.0
Vancouver	8.8
Victoria	10.0
Winnipeg	38.4
Moncton	8.0
St. John	31.2
Halifax	4.0
Sydney	11.7
Fort William	94.6
Kingston	31.2
Niagara Falls	24.3
Ottawa	31.2
Peterboro.	5.9
St. Catharines	24.3
Stratford	29.7
Toronto	25.7
Charlottetown	8.3
Montreal	53.8
Quebec	5.3
Saskatoon	66.6
Sherbrooke	78.4

These figures are altogether too high as the experience and statistics of other countries prove. To combat these evils Dr. Hodgetts advocates better health laws, the enforcement of which should in the main rest with some centrally organized Federal department co-operating with the health department of the various provinces. He declares the provincial health laws at present are largely non-efficient and that municipal authorities do pretty much as they please through lack of proper restrictive or corrective powers.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Review does not hold itself responsible for opinions expressed by its correspondents

(To the Editor of the Review.)

Sir,—The charge of being a soulless religion, brought by an eminent preacher against Protestantism, considered as a whole, appears to have been like the arrow that killed Ahab, King of Israel, "A certain man drew a bow at a venture and smote the King of Israel between the joints of the harness.—1 Kings, 22, v. 34. I feel sure that you will agree with me in the conviction that a religion of some sort is necessary to secure and promote the well being of the community in this life alone, even without reference to the great hereafter. I would therefore call your attention, as briefly as the subject will admit of, three different forms of religious belief, claiming our acceptance at the present day, Anglicanism, Puritanism and Undenominationalism.

What is known as Anglicanism had its origin when the Church of England was reformed and reorganized, more than 300 years ago. It is important to notice that the work was taken in hand and accomplished by the lawful authority of the bishops and clergy, and confirmed by the representatives of the laity in parliament, by the statute known as the Act of Uniformity. We learn from the Liturgy and articles what those principles were, upon which the work of reform was carried out.

In the first place Holy Scripture is accepted as fully inspired and infallible, and the supreme rule of faith, but not without note or comment, for the church is the judge in controversies of faith. (Acts 20.) Proceeding, then, in accordance with this principle, the reformers rejected the claim of the Bishop of Rome to universal supremacy, service in Latin, communion in one kind and other corruptions specified in the 39 articles. They claimed to represent the same historic Church of England, the Catholic Church in England, that had existed since the apostles' time, and mentioned in the Magna Carta of King John as the Ecclesia Anglicanae, the Church of England saying that "for many years past the service in this Church of England hath been in the Latin tongue." (Preface to Prayer Book.) They then proceeded to translate the ancient Latin services into English, simplifying the arrangement so as to fit them for congregational uses and providing for the reading of the whole Bible, or nearly so, in the course of the year, in the daily and Sunday services. Much of the ancient ritual was obtained, which they considered necessary for the reverend celebration of divine service and ministration of the Sacraments, according as it is related in Acts 20: "Every particular or national church hath authority to appoint, change or abolish rites and ceremonies not commanded in scripture, so that nothing be contrary thereto."

Certain doctrines that have been matters of controversy are plainly stated in various parts of the Liturgy. We are said to be born in sin and the children of wrath, and are made by baptism the children of grace. That the inward and spiritual grace in baptism is a new birth unto righteousness; that the Lord's Supper is not only for a remembrance of the death of Christ, but that the outward sign is a means whereby we receive the inward grace, the benefits of the sacrifice and death of Christ, that in and from the Apostles time, there have always been three orders of ministers, bishops, priests and deacons, so that to this day none are permitted to officiate in the Anglican Church, unless episcopally ordained. A Roman priest subscribing to the formularies is recognized as a lawful minister without further ordination, but a Presbyterian or other non conformist minister however learned and experienced and having given full proof of his ministry, is only received as a layman and put on probation in the diaconate. In the ordination collects it is stated that God by His Spirit hath appointed Divers orders of ministers in His Church. Add to all this the formula of ordination "Receive ye the Holy Ghost for the office and work of a priest in a church of God, now committed unto thee by the imposition of our hands, whose sins thou dost forgive they are forgiven, and whose sins thou dost retain they are retained." And for the consecration of a bishop this formula, "Receive ye the Holy Ghost for the office and work of a bishop in the Church of God, now committed unto the thee by the imposition of our hands, in the Name, and remember that thou stir up the Grace of God which is given thee, by the imposition of our hands.' Thus it is taught by the Church of England that each duly consecrated bishop receives the same supernatural gift, empowering him with the authority to ordain to the ministry and "Have the care of all the Churches" as Timothy received from St. Paul, and so handed the Divine Commission from age to age, according to Christ's promise: "Lo, I am With You Always Even unto the end of the World." Thus no man is accounted to be a lawful bishop, priest or deacon, except he hath episcopal ordination (Preface to Ordination Service.)

In the 11th article on Justification the word "only" plainly refers to our "merits or deservings" and not obedience to God's commandments, and a devout use of all the means of Grace, especially the two sacraments, which we are taught in our church catechism, are "generally necessary to salvation."

To all this the Anglican clergy are committed by the following obligation

I assert to the 39 articles and to the Book of Common Prayer, and of the ordering of bishops, priests and deacons. I believe the doctrine of the Church of England as therein set forth to be agreeable to the Word of God, and in public prayer, and administration of the sacraments I will use the form in the said Book prescribed and none other except so far as shall be ordered by lawful authority.

This is the law and testimony of the Anglican Church. If you don't believe me look at the Book.

Yours truly,
E. SOWARD,

PARTIES IN BRITAIN SEEM DISPOSED TO MAKE TERMS

Mr. Balfour at Nottingham Gives Keynote for Unionist Campaign—He Offers Reform of Lords Instead of Abolition of Veto.

London, Nov. 18.—Politically, this was an uneventful day, with the exception of Arthur J. Balfour's speech at Nottingham, which was awaited with keen anticipation, as an exposition of the Unionists' election program. Declaring tariff reform to be the great constructive policy of the party, he pledged himself it would not increase the cost of living to the working classes. If there were such increase, he pledged the party to reduce indirect taxation on tea, sugar, etc., proportionately.

The Nationalists and Socialists, continued Mr. Balofur, were driving the Government into an attempt to destroy the constitution by the abolition of the Lords' power of veto. This he characterized as a revolution financed by American gold. If it was to such degradation that party Government had brought the country, then party Government had broken down.

"If we alter the constitution and the bidding of log rollers, who care nothing for our Empire," said Mr. Balfour, "we are not longer capable of self-government."

He appealed to every man to see that Britain should manage its own affairs. The Unionist leader spoke for an hour and a half, and had a magnificent reception.

It is evident, however, that, except on the question of reform of the House of Lords, on which the Unionist party is now firmly committed to Lord Rosebery's scheme, the Unionist platform stands the same as at the last general election in all its principal planks.

Mr. Balfour, while he referred only incidentally to the home rule question, sufficiently indicated that he was in as complete opposition to it as ever. Thus the Unionist election policy in the main will be to pit reform of the House of Lords against the Liberals' demand for the abolition of the veto power of the Lords.

The situation between the opposing forces last night appears less aggravated. The disposition on the part of the Liberal side is to give the peers a longer time to debate the veto bill, possibly even to the extent of admitting a reasonable amendment, provided this did not interfere with the principle of the bill.

The Standard in an editorial declares that there would be no constitutional crisis but for this American [illegible] of the Nationalists. "It is Redmond's, not Asquith's crisis," says the paper. "Redmond's patrons are not the poor, like Parnell's, but the affluent. It is the American business man, the American capitalist and millionaire who are financing the home rule party for purposes of their own. They do not love England, and they want to prevent the adoption of tariff reform."

In the House of Lords, sitting as a committee of the whole yesterday, the Earl of Rosebery moved a set of resolutions of last March, which have been accepted already by the Lords. His new resolutions, which were yesterday adopted without division, were:

(1) That the House of Lords shall consist of lords of parliament (a) chosen by the whole body of hereditary peers from among themselves, and by nomination by the crown; (b) those sitting by virtue of their offices and qualifications held by them; and (c) those chosen from outside.

(2) That the term of tenure of all lords of parliament shall be the same, except in the case of those sitting ex-officio, who will sit only so long as they hold the office, by reason of which they sit.

Speaking in support of his resolution, Lord Rosebery said that he believed that, on these principles, it would be possible to reform the Upper Chamber to a large extent, solve a great constitutional problem, and maintain the ancient constitution of the country without convulsions incident to a reform by general elections. In case of a disagreement between the two Houses the dispute should be settled, Rosebery said, by a joint conference, by referendum. There could be no question as to the choice of the country between a reformed House of Lords and the intolerable tyranny of a single chamber.

Lord Curson strongly urged the adoption of the resolutions, as a practical and generous plan for a reformed Upper House, in which the hereditary element would not exercise a preponderance influence.

Baron Courtney thought the resolutions vague and illusory, and disagreed completely with the view of the Government that the constitutional conference having failed, it was impossible for Parliament to reach an agreement. He deplored that a threat had been made to take the matter out of the hands of Parliament, and to appeal to the man on the street.

Lord Lansdowne, having supported the resolutions on the ground that it was necessary to bring the Upper House into closer relations with the democracy, and the Earl of Crewe declaring that he would not vote against them, as he thought that a great deal might be said in favor of Lord Rosebery's propositions, the resolutions were carried without a division of the House.

Their Backs to the Wall.

London, Nov. 18.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—At Nottingham yesterday great enthusiasm characterized the proceedings of the meeting of the National Union of Conservative Associations. The Duke of Portland said the situation was most serious and momentous, the safety of the Empire hung in the balance, and they must fight with their backs to the wall; more than that, they must enter the enemy's territory. (Cheers.)

Henry Chaplin, M.P., said at present the country was being ruled by John Redmond, the sworn enemy of England, who with his pockets stuffed with the gold of foreign millionaires, aspired to dictate our destinies.

Ormsby Gore, M.P., said the only opposition to the colonial preference he had found in Canada was in a few recently arrived hothead Radicals and a few more Canadian cranks.

HANGED!

The Man Who Murdered Two Montreal Policemen Executed This Morning.

Special to the Review.

Montreal, Que., Nov. 18.—Timothy Candy, who May 6th last murdered two city policemen while being placed under arrest for theft, was hanged in Montreal jail this morning.

The condemned man walked firmly and bravely to the scaffold and showed no signs of fear.

The execution was conducted by Arthur Ellis, an English hangman, who had a record of 88 hangings. The arrangements were carried out without the slightest hitch, and Candy died without a tremor on the springing of the trap at 7.56.

WILL CONSULT THE GRADUATES

Kingston, Nov. 18.—There are 2,900 graduates of Queen's University, and they will be consulted on the question of separation from the church. The trustees were in session Wednesday afternoon and yesterday morning, and afterwards gave out the statement that the graduates would be asked to express their approval or disapproval of the proposed changes in the constitution of the university, as it relates to the Presbyterian Church.

The majority of the trustees are still in favor of removing denominational restrictions. They hope to have such an overwhelming majority in favor of separation from the students, that those now opposed to it will withdraw.

A committee, composed of Principal Gordon, Rev. and J. K. MacDonald, Toronto, are to prepare the necessary circular and report at a later meeting.

FOR WAR?

Another Dreadnought Has Been Ordered by Little Japan.

Special to the Review.

London, Nov. 18.—Japan is going to increase her navy.

An order for a huge armored cruiser of the dreadnought type has been placed with the Vickers-Maxim, English shipbuilding firm, it was learned to-day.

The war craft will be the latest fighting type and will cost $12,500,000.

RECIPROCITY WILL BE DELAYED

Washington, D.C., Nov. 18.—Experts here now admit that it is next to impossible to get any reciprocity agreement with Canada sanctioned at the short session of Congress, which meets next month.

Minister of Finance Fielding and his associate of the Customs, Hon. Wm. Paterson, are expected to come to Washington early in January to take up the final stage of negotiations for such a treaty.

It is said by tariff experts and negotiators that this conference will possibly last a fortnight. In this case it will be the first of February possibly before the matter is sanctioned by the President.

For the President to put the matter before Congress will likely require another week, and, with the inevitable causes of delay, it would be near the first of March or time for adjournment, before the matter could be sent to Congress.

The Galt Court of Revision reduced the assessment on hotel property in Galt by $24,750.

Daring Aviator Instantly Killed at Denver.

Ralph Johnston Tries to Give the Public a Thrill After Mounting 500 Feet When He Plunges to Instant Death.

Denver, Col., Nov. 18.—With one wing tip of his machine crumpled like a piece of paper Ralph Johnstone, the brilliant young aviator, holder of the world's altitude record, yesterday dropped like a plummet from a height of five hundred feet into the inclosure at Overland Park aviation field, and was instantly killed.

When the spectators reached him, his body lay beneath the engine of the biplane, with the white planes, that had failed him in his time of need, wrapped about like a shroud.

Nearly every bone in his body was broken. Johnstone had gambled with death once too often, but he played the game to the end, fighting coolly and grimly to the last second to regain control of his broken machine. Fresh from his triumphs at Belmont Park, where he had broken the world's record for altitude with a flight of 9,714 feet, Johnstone attempted to give the thousands of spectators an extra thrill with his most daring feat, the spiral glide, which has made the Wright viators famous. The spectators got their thrill, but it cost Johnstone his life.

RALPH JOHNSTONE.

In the fatal flight Johnstone, after a few circuits of the course to gain height, headed toward the foothills. Still ascending, he swept back in a big circle, and, as he reached the north end of the enclosure, started his spiral glide. He was then at an altitude of about 800 feet. With his planes tilted at an angle of almost 90 degrees, he swooped down in a narrow circle, the aeroplane seeming to turn almost in its own length. As he started the second circle, the middle spur, which braces the left side of the lower plane, gave way, and the wing tips of both upper and lower planes folded up, as though they had been hinged. For a second Johnstone attempted to right the plane by warping the other wing tip. Then the horrified spectators saw the plane swerve like a wounded bird, and plunge straight toward the earth.

WIFE AND SON CONVICT HIM

New York, Nov. 18.—Lee F. Woodward, 43 years old, a college graduate, and a member of an old and honored Pennsylvania family, was sentenced yesterday to five years at Sing Sing, and adjudged a habitual criminal by Judge Malone of the General Sessions. It was an affidavit from Woodward's divorced wife that caused the judge to give the prisoner the limit for his offence. He has served several prison terms.

Last February, Woodward, who was then living at Columbus, N.J., passed a bad check for $50.

Mrs. Carrie Woodward, the men's former wife, said: "In my belief, he is beyond redemption. Nothing can induce him to lead an honest life. Our son, now 21 years old, joins me in appealing to you to inflict upon him such punishment as will, in your wisdom, relieve us and society from the menace of his presence. Our only daughter, who died at 16, told me on her deathbed that her father's conduct had broken her heart, and filled her life with shame, and that she did not care whether she lived or died."

Will Recommend a Bishop.

Kingston, Nov. 18.—A meeting of Catholic bishops will be held here shortly, to recommend to His Holiness the Pope, a successor to Archbishop Gauthier. The papal bulls are expected Saturday. Archbishop Gauthier decided to remain in Kingston over the new year. Before leaving the congregation will present him with a purse of gold.

Sent Back for Cholera.

Quebec, Nov. 18.—After a good deal of discussion between the health officers and the company, the Royal George of the Canadian Northern line, which reached port early in the day, was sent back yesterday evening to Grosse Isle. There was a sick Russian on board, and the port physician claimed that it was a case of Asiatic cholera.

IS THIS THE MYSTERIOUS AIRSHIP?

Calgary, Nov. 18.—At last comes vindication for certain "seers" in Canada, who, for some time past have been made the butt of rude jokes because they claimed to have seen a mysterious airship which traveled with wonderful speed.

The mysterious machine, according to a man here, who as yet travels incog., is a reality, and in it he claims he has gone 100 miles in an hour. It is rather staggering to hear him tell of leaving a point near Calgary at 9 p.m. and reaching Portland, Ore., the following night an hour before the bells rang midnight.

The machine is equipped with a 90 horse-power, six-cylinder engine. The wings measure 27 1-2 feet from tip to tip, and from the nose to the tip of the tail the measurements is 32 feet. The machine will, it is believed, carry four passengers, though three is the largest number he has had in it so far.

Many improvements of a birdlike nature are incorporated in this latest invention. When the inventor makes his next machine it will have several pairs of wings. That is the way he will increase its carrying capacity, as well as by enlarging the wings. He declares it is capable of extension to at least six pairs of wings.

All the steering is done by a wheel like that of an automobile. The circular motion guides it sideways. The post is set in a slot, and moving it backward and forward raises or lowers the machine. The speed is also governed from attachments on the steering wheel.

LATE TICKS FROM WIRES

The Cunard Line will build a $2,[illegible],000 liner to accommodate 3,790 passengers.

Twelve men were rescued from a French steamer, which was on fire, near Dover, England.

A bill to provide Bible reading in the state schools of Queensland has passed the State Parliament.

An application has been made for an investigation into the United Shoe Co. of Canada under the Combines Investigation Act.

Henry L. Stimson, the unsuccessful candidate for governor of New York, certified to the Secretary of State yesterday that his campaign cost him $1,[illegible].65.

Percy Aitken, station agent, and Arthur Cummings, were burned to death in the depot at Tait, Sask., and John Hamilton met the same fate in a small blaze at Winnipeg.

The changes proposed in the Australian tariff, leave untouched any general revison. In reference to the naval defence bill, Attorney-General Hughes stated that the Government does not intend to take any contribution from the Imperial Government.

MME. LINA HAS THE AGREEMENT

New York, Nov. 18.—Mme. Lina Cavalieri Chanler, wife of Robert Winthrop Chanler, is still in possession of the famous ante-nuptial agreement between them, and is not inclined to let go of it, it would appear from what the fair singer's brother Oreste Cavalieri, said when he arrived on the steamer George Washington from Europe yesterday.

"The Chanlers have made several propositions to my sister Lina," said he. "They want to get back that paper, that agreement. They don't care if she stays in Europe or comes to America, but they do want that agreement which the husband signed."

Told that there was a report that $25,000 had been sent abroad for which Sheriff Bob's wife was to promise that she would remain in Europe, he had only one word of comment: "Ridiculous." He said it would not surprise him if his sister left France for America about December first.

Passengers Are Safe.

Katalla, Alaska, Nov. 18.—All the passengers and crew of the wrecked steamer Portland arrived here safe yesterday afternoon. They are being housed in the local hotel, and the homes of citizens, and will proceed northward on the next steamer.

It was stated yesterday that D. M. Stewart, former general manager of the Sovereign Bank, Toronto, was thought to be one of the passengers.

Ocean Liners In Collision.

New York, Nov. 18.—In a collision in the Hudson River yesterday between the French Line steamer La Lorraine and the North German Lloyd liner Prins Friedrich Wilhelm, as they were drawing out into the stream to sail for Europe, both steamers were badly damaged above the waterline. Neither was in condition to proceed with her voyage yesterday.

SPEECH FROM THE THRONE FORESHADOWS BILL-OF-FARE

Reciprocity With United States is the Biggest Item in Government's Agenda for the Coming Session—Bouquets for Ex-Conservative Whip.

Ottawa, Nov. 18.—The formal opening of the third session of the eleventh Parliament of Canada took place yesterday amid auspicious surroundings. The clear, frosty air of the November day made dame fashion don her best attire. The scene within the newly-decorated chamber, after the Commoners had been called to the bar, was both brilliant and inspiring. The new scheme of decoration in the red chamber includes the coats of arms of the different provinces in an elaborated scroll design at the head of the pillars that support the arches of the galleries.

After the Commons had retired to their own chamber, the House did business for a few minutes, and then adjourned until Monday, when the speech from the throne will be discussed.

There was an interesting reference to the change among Conservative whips, carrying out the reorganization scheme, when Sir Wilfrid Laurier announced the personnel of the committee to select the standing committees of the House, the name of George Taylor, former chief Conservative whip, was included. Mr. Taylor immediately arose and asked that George H. Perley be submitted. While agreeing that this should be done, Sir Wilfrid regretted that Mr. Taylor should be retiring from the post he had occupied with such credit to himself and the Conservative party for twenty-five years. Mr. Taylor had been a good fighter, and as chief whip, had performed his duties to the satisfaction of both sides of the House.

R. L. Borden remarked that Mr. Taylor had rendered very eminent services to his party. While he was truly a good fighter and a fair fighter, he was yet as strong a Tory as was to be found in the Dominion of Canada. The Premier should not have used the past tense, for, said he, "The member for Leeds not only has been, but is, and will continue to be a good fighter."

Arthur Gilbert, the M.P. for Drummond and Arthabaska, will not take his seat on Monday, and it may even be later, as his election has not yet been gazetted.

The speech from the throne, as read by His Excellency, Earl Grey, was, in part, as follows:

Hon. Gentlemen of the Senate,
Gentlemen of the House of Commons:

When I prorogued Parliament in the month of May last, I was about completing the term usually allotted to the office of Governor-General, but it has pleased His Majesty King George V. to continue me as his representative in Canada, and therefore it is my great pleasure again to greet you at the opening of this new session.

I meet you under the shadow of the calamity which has befallen this country and the whole British Empire, in the demise of our beloved sovereign, King Edward VII. His death is mourned, not only by his subjects the world over, but also by all civilized nations, who had learned to appreciate the many gifts and qualities which had earned for him the name of peacemaker, by which he will be known in history.

It is with great pleasure that I congratulate you on the ever growing prosperity of this favored land.

Trade and commerce are advancing in all directions with rapid strides. The total volume of imports and exports far exceed all previous records, and the growth of our industries and internal trade keeps pace with the development of our external commerce.

The conditions now existing over the whole country conclusively demonstrate that even with lesser production at some points, the vastness and variety of our resources ensure at all times a high degree of progress for the whole country.

Marked progress is being made in the construction of the National Transcontinental Railway, and a large quantity of grain is this season finding an outlet from the west to the great lakes over this new highway.

The construction of a line of railway to Hudson Bay, which has occupied the attention of the people for many years, has assumed practical shape. Already a contract has been awarded for the construction of bridge forming part of this railway across the Saskatchewan River at Pas Mission, and the work is now in progress. During the present session a measure will be laid before you providing for the prosecution and completion of this work with all possible speed.

"While recognizing the importance of the Canadian home trade and the great value for our staples in the United Kingdom, my Government feel that they should avail themselves of every opportunity to promote friendly commercial relations with the British colonies and foreign countries, so that our surplus products may be admitted in the markets of those countries on the most favorable terms.

In pursuance of this policy commercial arrangements involving reductions of our customs duties have been made with Italy and Belgium, and a reduced schedule of duties has been granted to the Netherlands.

The desirability of more equitable tariff arrangements between the United States and Canada has long been felt on this side of the border. The commercial policy of the republic has not hitherto favored imports from Canada. We have bought largely from the United States, but they have bought much less from us in return. It is gratifying to find that a more liberal policy is favored by the neighboring country, and that the Government at Washington expresses a desire to establish better trade relations with the Dominion.

Following the negotiations which took place some months ago between the President of the United States and my Government, the results of which were at the time communicated to Parliament, a further conference between representatives of the two countries has been held at Ottawa. While no conclusions have been reached and no formal proposals made, the free discussion of the subject that has taken place encourages my Government to hope that at an early day, without any sacrifice of Canada's interests, an arrangement may be made which will admit many of the products of the Dominion into the United States on satisfactory terms.

A very careful enquiry into the conditions of trade and transportation between the British West Indies and Canada has been held by a royal commission appointed by his late Majesty, including among its members two of my Ministers. The report of the commission will be laid before you.

Bills will also be introduced respecting copyright, banks and banking, terminal elevators at the head of Lake Superior, and with regard to the investigation and betterment of industrial and labor conditions and other subjects.

Gentlemen of the House of Commons:

The accounts of the last year will be laid before you. The estimates for the coming fiscal year will be submitted for your approval at an early date.

Hon. Gentlemen of the Senate:
Gentlemen of the House of Commons:

These important subjects and all matters affecting the public interest I commend to your best consideration, and pray that divine providence may guide your deliberations.

PARLIAMENT DISSOLVES ON THE 28TH NOVEMBER

(Special To The Review.)

London, Nov. 18.—Parliament will be dissolved Nov. 28th, according to an announcement by Premier Asquith to-day. This insures the general elections before Christmas. The Premier was defiant when he arose to address the House of Commons today, and made it plain that the Liberals were determined that the people should have the opportunity to say whether the Lords are to be retained as part of the British legislative system.

ECHO OF CONGRESS

Special to the Review.

Ottawa, Nov. 18.—The objections that were raised to Dominion troops acting as a guard of honor at the great Eucharistic Congress at Montreal are to be aired in the Canadian Parliament. The first blast in connection with the Eucharistic Congress held last summer at Montreal has been heard in Parliament. Senator Landry has given notice of the following resolution which he will move in the Senate: That an humble address be presented to His Excellency the Governor-General, praying that His Excellency will cause to be laid before the Senate, copies of all orders-in-council, of all decisions rendered by the Military Council or some of its members, and all correspondence concerning the guard and escort of honor applied for in August and September last, on the occasion of the visit in Quebec and Montreal of His Eminence Cardinal Vanutelli.

Senator Landry is a Quebec Conservative. It will be remembered that the 65th regiment of Montreal appeared under arms at the procession in Montreal.

NEW POLICE INSPECTOR

Toronto, Nov. 18.—Maurice Emmons, Kenora, has been promoted to the position of divisional inspector of provincial police, and will have charge of the new western division, created by a sub-division of the northern division. The western division will comprise all points west of Sudbury on the C.P.R., the G.T.P., and the C.N.R. The new division is the result of the work of the department during the past ten months. In the last four months the department has had more cases than in the previous six.

LOCAL APPLICATION PLEASE

The Board of Trade will meet on Tuesday night to discuss "Municipal Ownership by Commission" and receive the report of the committee on the constitution of the Ontario Association of Boards of Trade. The Board of Trade of Welland is a power because it is united and enthusiastic. So is the Board of Trade in Guelph. It may be a power in Peterborough. There is nothing to hinder it but itself. But the policy of Peru is of little interest here, and if the Board wants to be felt as well as heard, it will deal with live local matters in a live local way. Municipal ownership by commission is a live subject for discussion, and is one that is occupying the attention of municipalities more and more. Gentlemen, when this is discussed, will you kindly discuss it with a view to local application and local possibilities?

WORDS, WORDS, WORDS

The wind jammers are hard at it at Ottawa. Some are there because they bought the position. Some are there because they had good friends. There are those who have been able to tack the letters M.P. behind their names, because of real ability to fill the place. But whoever they are and wherever they come from most of them will if tapped, let forth WIND, WIND, WIND. Hansard will grow and history will be made. Cut out of the debate that which does not have to do with the real live issue in hand and you could put all the necessary speech in your pocket.

Leave all the verbiage in and a wheelbarrow load of words results. WORDS, WORDS, WORDS. Sic 'Em Tory, Sic 'Em Grit.

MONEY

That the love of money is surely the root of all evil. It makes folks hate, murder, lie and commit all kinds of crimes. And what good is it? We cannot eat it, or drink it, or breathe it, or sleep on it, or wear it. If you were on an island alone with a billion dollars you would starve to death. The love of money pollutes politics and creates wars. There's enough in the world for all, but most people are not satisfied with enough. I can't help it. Beware of dishonest money. It can't buy happiness or peace of mind. You can only get solid and pure happiness out of money you honestly worked for. It's a law of Nature. So don't envy anybody their money. Get busy and earn your own. Don't gamble.

Outcault is the man who is responsible for Buster Brown and Tige, and gets off some good things. This is one of them. The love of money possesses nearly all of us. A woman who for years had saved and labored traded her farm for a $3.00 violin. Her farm was worth $2,000, and she was duped into a belief that the violin was a Strad, and worth $5,000. The LOVE of money has ruined her. She may lose her reason. We are familiar with the case of Michael Fraser. It is very plain that it is not the old man that the heirs are anxious for. Every hamlet holds some descendant of Shylock, whose money is HIS GOD. Eli Hymen rag picker, Toronto, was taken to a hospital with THOUSANDS OF DOLLARS SEWED IN HIS DIRTY VEST, and thousands of dollars in securities in the banks. He died howling "My vest, my vest!" None of Hymen's relatives would own him when living. THEY WENT TO LAW OVER HIS CARCASS WHEN HE DIED IN ORDER TO PROVE RELATIONSHIP.

Burglars risk their lives for money. Men give short weight for money, turn sharp corners for money. Women give their husbands stories of fictitious expenditures for the house that they may have a few extra dollars for themselves. The child tip-toes his way to his mother's purse for a few cents. "I have a million, but I want another million." Money goes at the theatre, at the store, at the bar. But money is absolutely powerless to give us happiness or health. "My kingdom for a half hour's more life." But they buried her just the same, and she [illegible] ruler of a kingdom—died on schedule time.

DON'T GIVE HIM UP

We cannot let Federenko go. We must brave the Russian bear.

Who is Federenko?

He, poor devil, is a political agitator, who has escaped to Canada. He fights for life, he fights for his country, he fights for better conditions.

Should we hand him to Russia he would go to Siberia, to the mines. He would likely die a lingering death.

We have freedom in Canada. Is it too much to say that Russia is one large penitentiary. We can protest and protest long and loud.

No one will cast us in jail.

A protest in Russia dies away in the mines and is lost in the groans and sorrow that come up from them.

ORIENTAL LABOR

When Sir Wilfrid Laurier was in British Columbia he trimmed his sails to the anti-Asiatic winds which he found prevailing there. One of the statements upon which he relied to show his antagonism to Oriental labor was an assertion that no Asiatics have been employed on the Grand Trunk Pacific; and that none would be employed on the line in the future. He did his best to persuade the people of British Columbia that it was by the action of his Government that white labor, and white labor alone, is employed on the Grand Trunk Pacific. The fact, indeed, was made the basis of his appeal to the public.

It is quite true that the Grand Trunk Pacific is unable to employ Oriental labor; but why?

So far as the Dominion Government is concerned the fact simply is that when the Grand Trunk Pacific Act was being passed the Conservative party endeavored to have it made a clause in the charter that the company was to restrict itself to white labor. The Government refused to accept this, and the House of Commons at its instance voted the motion down.

Thus the Dominion Government was asked to prohibit the use of Oriental labor and refused. To this day it has taken no action to debar the company from importing Asiatics to do the work. Certain of its public servants have been emphatically arguing that the company should be allowed the privilege. But in the course of its operations the Grand Trunk Pacific needed powers which lay within the gift of the Legislature of British Columbia. When it asked for these concessions the McBride Government granted them only on condition that the company must bind itself to abstain from the engagement of Asiatics. The prohibition is provisional. It is the action of the McBride Government which keeps the Orientals out. Thus Sir Wilfrid Laurier has been taking credit for the action of the Provincial Government.

GENTLEMEN! ARE YOU GUILTY?

The time has come when we must put aside all false ideas of conventionalities and deal with facts as they are" said Dr. C. Gordon Hewitt of Ottawa, speaking in convocation hall last night to a mass meeting of the Women's Institute of Ontario on the subject "House Flies and Public Health." The address relieved in a large measure of technical phrases and strikingly illustrated was listened to in rapt attention.

That the ordinary little house fly so small as to be beneath contempt was a serious menace to the health of the nation, and largely responsible for the periodical outbreaks of typhoid cholera, tuberculosis and kindred diseases was clearly proven.

Dealing with local conditions in the city and the best measure of prevention to be adopted to minimize the spread of contagious diseases Dr. Hewitt emphasized in particular the absolute necessity for better attention to the removal of stable manure and urged the most rigid cleanliness with respect to the ordinary GARBAGE CAN WHICH WAS A PROLIFIC SOURCE OF PROPAGATION.

"During the Spanish-American and South African wars" said Dr. Hewitt "science was puzzled to account for the abnormal number of deaths from typhoid fever which was out of all proportion to the condition of the water or other causes. The cause was finally traced to the presence of the camp fly. Since that time medical attention has been more and more directed to the subject until to-day the nation is becoming thoroughly aroused."

"If one-tenth of the number of cases of mortality which occur every year through preventible contagious diseases took place in the High-class Holstein herds of the province we would soon have a cabinet meeting summoned" said Dr. Hastings. "We will have typhoid fever until our milk supply is as pure as our water supply and until we get rid of the house fly."—Toronto World.

For months we have been endeavoring to point out to the Board of Health and to the City Council that the system of GARBAGE BURIAL and GARBAGE BURNING was nothing short of criminal. These august bodies have gone on doing NOTHING with the matter except SHELVE IT. Gentlemen do you plead GUILTY or NOT guilty?

THE GLOBE EDITOR ILL

Rev. Dr. Macdonald is ill. We are sorry for this. We do not agree with the editor of the Globe in politics, but we cannot help but admire his ability. He is equally clever at speech or writing, and if anything should place him on the retired list a distinct gap would be made in Canadian newspaper circles.

HIP HIP FOR SARA

Sara Bernhardt attributes her remarkable resistance against the ravages of time to the liberal use of lemons.

We want all the girls, young, aging and elderly, to sit up and notice Sara.

"The Divine" Sara is 65 years old. She is a great-grandmother, but looks like a bride of 30.

Lemons!

She has been on the stage, working hard and late, since long before many who read this were born, and she's still at it.

Lemons!

She packed a theatre at Chicago the other night, and every critic was dumbfounded at her joyousness, sprightliness and youthful appearance.

Lemons!

Just think of it! Hardened old Chicago crazy with adoration for a 65-year-old grandmother!

Do we need to say anything further, girls?—Port Huron Times

Yes, and we know a human crab who was once all warped with rheumatism. He took olive oil. He is not a crab now, but a lively, jolly man.

Olive oil, ye rheumatics, ye stiff-jointed, sour-faced, cross-grained sons of guns; olive oil three times a day after meals.

And again, we know of a human who was nearly up the flue with kidney trouble, and he tucked himself on to a dairy and drank buttermilk. He is cured now.

Eureka!

Lemons for complexion, and the battle against hardening of the arteries; olive oil for rheumatics, and buttermilk for kidney trouble.

THE NAGGING WIFE

Tolstoi has a grand wife. He is to be envied. Upon her has rested the whole burden of the management of the household, both on the estate and in Moscow. She has controlled, directed, managed everything. She has borne him thirteen children, all of whom she has nursed herself, besides acting as their teacher until their tenth year. In addition to her household cares, she has worked laboriously as copyist and translator for her husband. She has for years copied his illegible manuscripts for the printer. 'War and Peace,' which he revised again and again, she copied no fewer than seven times. Another work she copied no less than sixteen times, and then translated it into French. A Russian author says—"She cares for him like an indefatigable nurse, makes his clothes with her own hands, and only parts from him for the briefest time possible."

Countess Tolstoi will go down into posterity as the unknown wife of a well known man. Good wives like her are rare. Nagging wives are very common. True, it always takes two make a family difference, but the nagging wife will nag without cause or the slightest provocation. That's why he gets out on a toot once in a while. That's why he forgets to come home sometimes till it's late. He works hard all day and doesn't feel like being nagged all evening. She doesn't realize that she is a crank. She doesn't understand what makes the children so ill-tempered and unkind to each other. Poor soul, SHE, THE NAGGING WOMAN, is to blame.

By Stewart Edward White

"No!" roared Orde. "You turn over the other two!"

A low oath broke from the gambler, and his face contorted in a spasm. For a moment the situation was tense and threatening. The dealer, with a sweeping glance, again searched the faces of those before him. In that moment probably he made up his mind that an open scandal must be avoided. Force and broken bones, even murder, might be all right enough under color of right. If Orde had turned up for a jack the card on which he now held his fist and then had attempted to prove cheating a cry of robbery and a lively fight would have given opportunity for making way with the stakes. But McNeill's could not afford to be shown up before thirty interested rivermen as running an open and shut brace game.

"That isn't the way this game is played," said the gambler. "Show up your jack."

"It's the way I play it," replied Orde sternly. "These gentlemen heard the bet." He reached over and dexterously flipped over the other two cards. "You see, neither of these is the jack. This must be."

Orde, his fist still on the third card, began pocketing the stakes with the other hand. The gambler reached across the table.

"Give me the other card," said he.

Orde picked it up, laughing. For a moment he seemed to hesitate, holding the bit of pasteboard tantalizingly outstretched, as though he was going to turn also this one face up. Then quite deliberately he handed the card to the gambler.

"All to the bar!" yelled Orde.

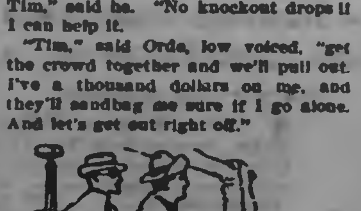
"Get them to give you another, Tim," said he. "No knockout drops if I can help it."

"Tim," said Orde, low voiced, "get the crowd together and we'll pull out. I've a thousand dollars on me, and they'll sandbag me sure if I go alone. And let's get out right off."



Chapter 8

JACK ORDE was the youngest and most energetic of a large family that had long since scattered to diverse cities and industries. He and Grandpa and Grandma Orde dwelt now in the big, echoing, old fashioned house alone save for one maid. Grandpa Orde, now above sixty, was tall, straight, slender. His hair was quite white and worn a little long. His features were finely chiseled. Grandpa Orde had been a mighty breaker of the wilderness, but his time had passed, and he had fallen upon somewhat straitened ways. Grandma Orde, on the other hand, was a very small, spry old lady, with a small face, a small figure, small hands and feet. She dressed in the then usual cap and black silk of old ladies. Half her time she spent at her housekeeping, which she loved, jingling about from cellar to attic storeroom, seeing that Amanda, the maid, had everything in order.

To these people Orde came direct from the greatness of the wilderness and the ferocity of Hell's Half Mile. Such contrasts were possible even ten or fifteen years ago. The untamed country lay at the doors of the most modern civilization.

Newmark, reappearing one Sunday afternoon at the end of the two weeks, was apparently bothered. He examined the Orde place for some moments, walked on beyond it. Finding nothing there, he returned and after some hesitation turned in up the tar sidewalk and pulled at the old fashioned wire bell pull. Grandma Orde herself answered the door.

"Will you kindly tell me where Mr. Orde lives?"

"Pardon me," persisted Newmark. "I am looking for Mr. Jack Orde. I am sorry to have troubled you."

"Mr. Jack Orde lives here," returned Grandma Orde. "He is my son. Would you like to see him?"

Newmark entered the cool, dusky interior and was shown to the left into a dim, long room. He perched on a mahogany chair and had time to notice a bookcase with a white owl atop, an old piano with the yellowing keys, haircloth sofa and chairs, steel engravings and two oil portraits when Orde appeared.

Newmark had known Orde only as riverman. Like most easterners, he was unable to imagine a man in rough clothes as being anything but a rough man. The figure he saw before him was correctly dressed in what was then the proper Sunday costume.

"Oh, it's you, Mr. Newmark!" cried Orde. "I'm glad to see you." He led the way into the hall and to another brighter room, in which Grandma Orde sat, a canary singing above her head.

"Mother," said Orde, "this is Mr. Newmark, who was with us on the drive this spring."

"Mr. Newmark and I spoke at the door," said she, extending her frail hand with dignity. "If you were on the drive, Mr. Newmark, you must have been one of the high privates in this dreadful war we all read about."

"I'd like to see you get any three men to agree to anything on this river."

Newmark laughed. At Orde's suggestion the two passed back into the remains of the old orchard.

"Where have you been for the last couple of weeks?" asked Orde.

"I caught Johnson's drive and went on down river with him to the lake. I do not like the life at all, but the drive interested me. It interested me so much that I've come back to talk to you about it. I'm going to ask you a few questions about yourself."

"Oh, I'm not bashful about my career!" laughed Orde.

"How old are you?" inquired Newmark abruptly.

"Thirty."

"How long have you been log driving?"

"About six years."

"Why did you go into it?"

"Because there's nothing ahead of shoveling but dirt," Orde replied, with a quaint grin.

"I see," said Newmark after a pause. "Then you think there's more future to that sort of thing than the sort of thing the rest of your friends go in for—law and wholesale groceries and banking and the rest of it?"

"There is for me," replied Orde simply.

Orde flushed slowly and shifted his position.

"I'm not asking all this out of idle curiosity. I've got a scheme in my head that I think may work out big for us both."

"Well," assented Orde reservedly, "in that case—I'm foreman on this drive because my outfit went kerplunk two years ago, and I'm making a fresh go at it."

"Failed?" inquired Newmark.

"Look here," said Newmark, abruptly changing the subject, "you know that rapids up river flanked by shallows, where the logs are always going aground?"

"I do."

"Well, why wouldn't it help to put a string of piers down both sides, with booms between them to hold the logs in the deeper water?"

"It would," said Orde.

"Why isn't it done, then?"

"Who would do it?" countered Orde. "If Daly did it, for instance, then all the rest of the drivers would get the advantage of it for nothing."

"Get them to pay their share."

Orde grinned. "I'd like to see you get any three men to agree to anything on this river."

"How many firms drive logs on this stream?"

"Ten," replied Orde without hesitation.

"How many do they employ?"

"About 500 men."

"Now, suppose"—Newmark leaned forward—"suppose a firm should be organized to drive all the logs on the river. Suppose it improved the river with piers and dams, so that the driving would be easier. Couldn't it drive with less than 500 men and save money?"

"It might," agreed Orde.

"If such a firm should be organized to drive the logs for these ten firms at so much a thousand, do you suppose it would get the business?"

"It would depend on the driving firm," said Orde. "You see, mill men

Not Guilty of Murder.

Montreal, Nov. 18.—In spite of a mass of evidence, none of which was conclusive, Judge Bazin was obliged to declare that Chevrier, Pocult and Derome could not be held on the charge of murdering the Michaud girl, so the trio were allowed to go on bail. The charge of abduction is still hanging over their heads. As the case now stands, the murder of Miss Michaud will probably go unavenged.

T. B. Cousen, injured at Eden Mills by a beam falling on him, is dead as a result.

NEW STAR IS DISCOVERED

Rev. Dr Marsh, of Springville, has received a telegram from Harvard College Observatory, Cambridge, Mass., as follows;

"A telegram has been received at this observatory by Capt. T. E. DeWitt Veeder, superintendent of the United States Naval Observatory, stating that on Nov. 11th, he saw Cerulli's Comet in right ascension, 3 hours, 38 min. 27 sec., and declination plus 8 degrees, 9 mins. 11 secs. The comet is visible to astronomers through a small telescope."

A telegram has also been received from the Harvard College Observatory from Prof. Frost, director of Yerkes Observatory, stating that Halley's comet was observed by Prof. Barnard on Nov 11th, at right ascension 12 hours, 4 mins 21 secs and declination minus 14 degrees, 54 mins. 15 secs. Magnitude 11.

A NEW STAR IN SAGITTARII.

From an examination of the photographs of Harvard Maps of the Sky, Miss A. J. Canron has discovered that a new star appeared in Sagittarius on August 10th, 1899. Its approximate position was 18 hours, 12 mins. and declination minus 25 degrees 14 mins. A photograph taken on August 9th, 1899, shows no trace of the object, although the adjacent stars of the magnitude of 11.5 are seen. The outburst was very sudden as in the photograph taken next evening, August 10th, 1899, the Nova, or new star, is a conspicuous object with the magnitude of 8.5. The light faded rapidly from magnitude 8.6 on August 25th, 1899, to 10.5 on Oct. 13th, 1899. After that the decrease was more gradual. The last photograph in which the new star is visible was taken in October, 1901, when the star was very faint in the 13th magnitude. This is the third new star that has been discovered at Harvard in the past six weeks.

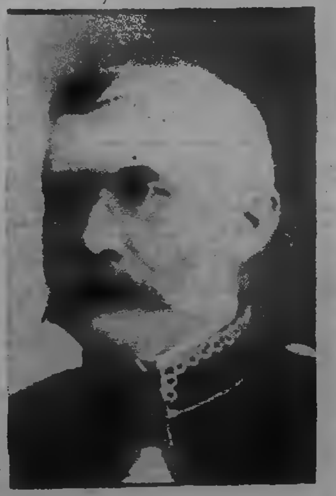
TRIBUTE TO FAITHFUL OFFICER

(Lt.-Col. Halliday, M.D., Presented With Large Piece of Silver-Plate—Banquetted by Officers Mess.)

A farewell smoker, in honor of Lieut.-Col. J. T. I. Halliday, M.D., on his retirement from the 57th Regiment after twenty years of faithful service, was held last evening in the officers' mess rooms of the armories. It has been a long time since Dr. Halliday has been the recipient of eulogism and praise to such an extent as he was last night, and the whole affair was abundant evidence that his services to the regiment in past years have been recognized, and that his fellow officers are genuinely sorry to lose him from their ranks.

The affair was of an informal nature, and all of the officers of the regiment were present. From about 8.30 till 10 o'clock games were indulged in, while music of an excellent nature was provided by the 57th band, under the direction of Mr. Gliddon. Lieut. Backham with his phonograph put on some excellent records.

About 10 o'clock all adjourned to the mess room, where long tables were spread with good things furnished by T. Hooper. They were very attractively arranged and inviting. Before the guests sat down a flashlight photo of the group was taken by Mr. F. Roy.



LT.-COL. J. T. I. HALLIDAY

Major E. B. Clegg was toastmaster and apparently was right at home in that capacity. His genial humor and capacity for saying the right thing in the right place put all in good spirits. He occupied the position at the head of the table, which was spread like a T, and on his right sat Lieut.-Col. Halliday the guest of honor of the evening, and to his left Lieut.-Col. Stevenson, present commanding officer. The others at the same table were Lieut.-Col. Miller, Adjutant D. Walker and Major Eastwood.

Previous to the banquet, however, all the officers and the band assembled in the armories, and Lieut.-Col. Halliday, in a few well-chosen and appreciative words, expressed his regrets at leaving their midst, and thanked them for the loyal and gratifying way in which they had rallied around him, and aided him in the past years when he was its M.O.

LETTER OF REGRET.

In commencing the proceedings at the festive board, a letter of regret at being unable to be present was read from Capt. H. A. Morrow, a former adjutant of the 57th.

Lieut.-Col. Miller, in his recitation, "Glencoe," was the first number on the program. He received great applause.

Captain W. H. Cluxton was enthusiastically applauded in his vocal rendition of "Pat Malone Forgot that he was Dead."

TOAST TO GUEST OF EVENING

Col. Stevenson then proposed a toast to the guest of the evening. the wheel to make Canada worthy of high consideration in the British Empire and before the whole world. I know that in rural districts they have a false idea of the navy which I with my colleagues of Canada, and the majority of both Houses have decided upon creating."

"Some demagogues—there is no other expression I could use to qualify them, have tried to frighten them with the prospects of conscription and forced service. There has never been in any political campaign in this country or elsewhere more dishonest affirmation. Even in England, the greatest maritime power which has ever existed, conscription has always been an unknown rule. It would be ridiculous to suppose that the maritime law would be more severe here than in England. And more again, the forced service has always been a part of the military service in Canada in case of invasion; this disposition of the law, of the Canadian militia has been voluntary illuminated by us in the navy service. Conscription is no more to be feared to-day than it was at the time when Commandant Fortin was asking for volunteers for the service of Canada. Our autonomy has been equally saved by a clause which gives the Parliament the absolute control of a service which is of its own creation, and which could not work unless by the authority of the representatives of the people.

(Signed) WILFRID LAURIER.

IN POSTAL AT LOCAL OFFICE

the report of the Postmaster-General makes interesting reading—

Gross Revenue. Amount Orders Issued. Allowance

Colonel Halliday said he believed a military training should be a necessary part of the training of every young Canadian and he always urged it upon the young men. "We have a regiment of which we are all proud, the very name of it is enough to make our blood thrill with pride. Personally I have felt it an honor to belong to the 57th regiment. It has always been a regiment to be proud of. I look back upon past associations in the old mess rooms with pleasing memories." Words of farewell are always sorrowful and I have none to say to-night, said the Colonel. While an ex-officer, he wished to be always with the regiment in spirit and often in presence.

CANON DAVIDSON.

Canon Davidson, chaplain of the regiment, next spoke. He wanted to further express the warm fellowship existing between the officers and the retiring colonel. One's heart is thoroughly warmed when looking back at past friendships. It united all more closely both in heart and body, and as he looked back twelve or fourteen years, faces gone from our midst are recalled. He then briefly recalled the names of former commanding officers of the regiment.

MAJOR EASTWOOD.

"We see in our retiring officer, Col. Halliday, an example to be emulated," said, Major Eastwood. "We should strive to advance the regiment as he has done. There has been in my heart a personal affection for Colonel Halliday, a feeling that would remain as long as life lasted.

Captain McPherson was then called on for a song and gave the boys the ever popular "Drill ye tarriers drill," giving a fine interpretation of the idea.

TOAST TO THE PRESS.

The toast to the fourth estate was responded to by Mr. F. H. Dobbin for the Daily Review and by Mr. F. D. Craig of the Examiner staff.

Captain Watts' solo "My Old Kentucky Home," in which all joined in the chorus, proved to be a popular number.

CAPTAIN D. WALKER.

We have been particularly fortunate in our colonels said Captain Walker. During the period of service of Colonel Halliday the regiment began

RUSSIAN LION TALKS ABOUT HIS TRAINING

Mindful of the fate of James J. Jeffries at Reno, Nev., last July, George Hackenschmidt, the "Russian Lion," and one of the greatest athletes that Europe ever sent to this country, is going about getting into shape for his coming big matches in this country in a most leisurely manner.

Hackenschmidt has some excellent ideas about training, and though most of them are based on old-time training methods, he is nevertheless one of the most practical and up-to-date wrestlers in the business to-day. No detail of his work is to small for him to give serious attention to, and he is what might be regarded as a deep student of every kind of athletic sports.

When "Hack" landed in this country a short time back he found himself while in rare condition as far as his general health was concerned, at least fifteen pounds overweight. He had done little or nothing in the wrestling game for several months, and although daily work with the dumbbells had kept his muscles pliable and fresh, he had accumulated a lot of surplus flesh.

Immediately after he had landed here he was advised by his new manager, Jack Curley, of Chicago, that his time for the four months and a half that was the life of his contract, had been booked almost solid. The big Russian was amazed, and started in at once to get himself into condition.

"Do not match me with anything that is too tough for a couple of weeks at least," he told Curley. "It will take me that long to get my muscles into good condition. After that the flesh will come off naturally, and I will be ready for any of them."

Curley followed these directions to the letter, and "Hack" set to work to do his part of it.

"There are two ways of getting one's self into condition for an athletic contest," the big foreign star stated during the first workout in Chicago and while getting a rubdown from his trainers. "One is the natural way, which I call the correct way. The other is the unnatural way, or the wrong way.

"By the natural way I mean to take the work in training that you are likely to get in the match for which you are preparing.

"By the unnatural way I mean to take a lot of Turkish baths and the like, and to work up sweats in unusual ways.

"The natural way, if gone about in a careful, painstaking manner, will fit a man for a wrestling match or other athletic contests in a perfect manner. The other will upset your nervous system in seven out of ten cases, ruin your stomach and kindred organs and doubtless shorten your life.

"Take Mr. Jeffries, for instance. They tell me that when he started in to train for his proposed match with Johnson he took a lot of baths and sweated off his flesh at a tremendous rate. That was the worst thing that could have happened to him. Af- Although they finally got him down to weight and so that he looked all right to the average eye he didn't have a particle of endurance.

"What Jeffries should have done was to fight his way into condition. He should have taken on several minor bouts before the big one came round. Then they would have found out what was the matter with him and had time to remedy it, if it could be remedied. At any rate, the minor fights would have saved his backers a world of money.

"I intend to wrestle myself into condition. I am going to take on any and all sorts of wrestlers for three or four weeks, and at the end of that time I will have "time," which is a great thing in wrestling, down to a ninety and will be otherwise perfectly fit for severe tests.

"The only thing that ever bothers me after a long layoff is my grip. The muscles of my forearms knot up some, but after a few days that wears off. I believe I am in better health to-day than ever before."

SACRED HEART CHURCH ATHLETES ORGANIZE TEAM

The athletic section of the Sacred Heart Church will be represented on the ice this season by a hockey team, but no further decisive step will be taken for the present.

The meeting held last evening in the rooms at the church was an enthusiastic one. If a junior city league is formed a seven could be entered and in the event of such an organization not materializing a team will likely be placed in the senior league.

The officers elected last night were:—

Hon. President—Rev. Dr. O'Brien.

THE CADETS TO COME WITH THE R.M.C. TEAM

Kingston, Nov. 18.—About the only local interest in football is now centred on R.M.C. who play Varsity II. in Peterborough on Saturday for the intermediate I.C.R.F.U. championship. Kingston's only hope for a football championship is in R.M.C. and all local enthusiasts are dead anxious to see see them win. That the Soldiers will acquit themselves nobly, and that this is the feeling of their supporters is evidenced by the extensive preparations which are being made to give the Cadets the heartiest support.

The Cadets themselves are overjoyed with the permission granted them by Commandant Crowe to attend the championship game between Varsity II. and R.M.C. at Peterborough on Saturday. Not in years have the soldiers' sporting aggregations been accompanied by any large number of supporters on their trips and the innovation is a welcome one both with the Cadets and their city friends. A special train will be run from here on Saturday morning and the Cadets will attend in a body, accompanied by their officers and other military supporters. Hundreds of Queen's students will also go along to cheer their erstwhile rivals on to victory. The Soldiers are in the pink of condition, their prospective line-up being the same as played last Saturday. They are perfectly agreeable to have Marty Walsh, Ottawa, as referee, and it is considered probable that Varsity will agree, as Marty gave fine satisfaction here last week. The train will go by way of Belleville and will reach Peterborough at 12.30 o'clock, returning to leave at 7.30, arriving here about 11 o'clock.

CLOSE BASKETBALL SCORES

Two of the fastest and closest games of the season were played last night in the Intermediate Basketball League. The Burglars made good and stole the game from the Sawbones by one point. Score, Burglars 20, Sawbones 19. Referee A. Fitzgerald.

The second game between the Pirates and Rowdies was even more close five minutes overtime being played before the game was stored away in the Pirates treasure box. Score, Pirates 19, Rowdies 11. Referee, E. Hanwell.

In the Business Boys' League the Giants defeated the Victors. Score, 2 to 1.

Dreadnaughts defaulted to Indians.

Collegiate games this afternoon and senior games to-night.

A GAME WITH LINDSAY.

There is to be an excursion from Lindsay for the big football game on Saturday and the boys from the L. C.I. are coming down in force and have asked for a game of basketball with a team from the local association Collegiate gymnasium class. Physical Director Thompson has notified them that they will be accommodated with pleasure. A team to represent the local Collegiate Class will be selected this afternoon. It is not known just what time the basketball game will start but will likely be early in order to let the visitors catch the 9 p.m. train.

GAME TOURNEY.

A game tournament for school boys has concluded at the Y.M.C.A. and in which sixteen members took part. Some boys handed in their entry too late, but they may start in another tournament which commences Friday night.

W. Heaslip was the winner, with 10 wins and 6 losses; W. Long was next with 9 and 7, and H. Knapman third with 8 and 8.

Saturday night a tourney will be held for business boys for the individual championship of the section. The championship for the Boys' Department will then be played off between the two leagues.

to prosper and he wished to add his appreciation to the many other tributes which had been showered upon the colonel. He then proposed a toast to his comrades-in-arms, the trailing clouds of glory. It was enthusiastically drunk.

TOAST TO BABIES OF THE REGIMENT.

The toast to the babies of the regiment was replied to by Lieutenants K. G. Leck and Cameron in brief, witty speeches.

Captain A. P. McLean and Major Bennett also made short popular speeches. Major Hayes in a song was heartily applauded.

Major E. B. Clegg in a brief speech endorsed the sentiments of the previous speakers.

TOAST TO EX-OFFICERS.

The toast to the ex-officers was carried out amid great enthusiasm, Colonel Miller made a splendid speech. He felt it would ever be a great honor and pleasure to be present at the festive board on such occasions. He was always proud of the regiment, having watched it grow from a struggling body to its present excellent condition. Every man should feel that the only way in which the regiment can be further increased in efficiency is by feeling that a personal responsibility rests upon him. His words received hearty endorsement.

Mr. Ritchie, another ex-officer, spoke briefly.

The affair was brought to a close by singing and going through several popular military amusements ending with the singing of Auld Lang Syne in which all joined hands and the National Anthem.

BROUGHT UP HOT WATER.

The steamship was speeding over seas with a record breaking list of passengers when one of the gay, young and inquiring girls who are found on every trip skipped up to the captain and asked:

"Captain, are we really going fast? It seems as if we were just crawling."

"Fast," answered the captain gruffly, "of course we're going fast. With nothing to see but water and sky you can't judge our speed, but, my dear young lady, the friction of the boat is so great it makes the water hot aft."

"I don't believe it," giggled the girl, and the captain, with a great show of indignation, called for a rope and bucket to prove his words. These brought, he slung the pail down aft of the vessel directly under the drainpipe of the galley, where hot water runs all day, and brought it up smoking, to the astonishment of the awstruck girl.

A long, lean Yankee who had been watching the performance then came forward and drawled. "Say, cap, that must make you change your course mighty often."

"Change my course?" blustered the captain. "What would I change my course for?"

"Well," said the Yankee slowly, "so darn much friction as that must wear the ocean out mighty quick."—Philadelphia Times.

Cows That Never Drink.

The "wild cow" of Arabia, in reality an antelope, the Beatrix oryx, is said never to drink, which is probably correct, for unless these animals can descend the wells they can find no drinking water for ten months in the year. There is no surface water, and rain falls but precariously during the winter. Only once during my journey did I find a pool of rainwater, caught in a hollow rock, and even this I should have passed by without knowing of its existence had not my camels sniffed it from a distance and obstinately refused to be turned from going in that direction. These antelope, however, are provided by nature with a curious food supply, especially designed as a thirst quencher. This is a parasite which grows on the roots of the desert bushes and forms a long spadix full of water and juice. The antelope dig deep holes in the sand in order to get at these.—Wide World Magazine.

A LETTER FROM SIR WILFRED

Montreal, Nov. 17 — The following are the principal extracts from Sir Wilfrid Laurier's letter to La Presse about the naval policy of his Government, which appear in a late edition of that paper this afternoon:

"The Mother Country has shown such a great confidence in our loyalty that she has abandoned to us her arsenals and fortifications, and it is for the Canadian people to see to their own laws; there own commercial arrangements with the other countries, and imposes taxes as she see fit on the products throughout, even when they are manufactured by Great Britain.

WHERE WOULD OUR COMMERCE BE?

"In 1867 Canada had only the Gulf to protect. To day we have all the Maritime Provinces: Halifax, St. John Cape Breton, Prince Edward Island and all the Pacific coasts, St. Juan Gulf, Vancouver, Victoria, Esquimalt, Prince Rupert, and the surrounding towns etc., and don't you believe that there is not a permanent danger on the Pacific coasts, where the fisheries, forestry and mines represent millions to protect? Where would our commerce be at this hour when Canada is preparing herself to offer the shortest line between Europe and Asia, so that precious trade which is going on between the two continents could pass on her ships and railways, if by a false economy we are losing in business hundreds of millions?

MERCHANT MARINERS

"And more, how can we prepare our compatriots for oceanic navigation if we don't give them occasion to learn on training ships? The enrolments of our marine being limited at three years of service they could then attain to important positions in the merchant navy. This navy employs captains, foremen and clerks, as well as carpenters, electricians mechanics, stokers and marines. I don't think that I am at the head of Canada for my own satisfaction. My duty is to make a country powerful and well considered, and I don't believe that my compatriots of the Province of Quebec are, in this respect, of a different disposition than I am. More than that, they would have the right to blame me if I should run away before the task after my shoulder had been put to the wheel to make Canada worthy of high consideration in the British Empire and before the whole world. I know that in rural districts they have a false idea of the navy which I, with my colleagues of Canada, and the majority of both Houses have decided upon creating."

"Some demagogues there is no other expression I could use to qualify them, have tried to frighten them with the prospects of conscription and forced service. There has never been in any political campaign in this country or elsewhere more dishonest affirmation. Even in England, the greatest maritime power which has ever existed, conscription has always been an unknown rule. It would be ridiculous to suppose that the maritime law would be more severe here than in England. And more again, the forced service has always been a part of the military service in Canada in case of invasion; this disposition of the law of the Canadian militia has been voluntary illuminated by us in the navy service. Conscription is no more to be feared to-day than it was at the time when Commandant Fortin was asking for volunteers for the service of Canada. Our autonomy has been equally saved by a clause which gives the Parliament the absolute control of a service which is of its own creation, and which could not work unless by the authority of the representatives of the people.

(Signed) WILFRID LAURIER.

A couple of booklets are being distributed by Cressman's shoe department, exploiting the "Shoes for Women," retailed by the department. They offer the "Pingree-made" shoes and also the goods made by the Julian and Kokenge Co. The shoes are said to be as good as the printing in the booklets—this in the very best style of the art. One of the booklets is a historical review of shoe fashion and is for women, and is beautifully illustrated with many colored plates. The booklets are worthy of being preserved for their beauty and daintiness, let alone for the facts set out in telling of the shoe attractions enshrined in the very fine goods.

DETECTIVES TOOK SAMPLE OF WINE

Analysis Showed Percentage of Alcohol to be 4.59—Legal Percentage is 2.50—Norwood Liquor Case Enlarged To be Continued Here Next Thursday.

At the conclusion of the evidence for the prosecution, in a charge of illegal sale of liquor, against Larry Kiloran of Norwood, which was brought before County Magistrate Edmison by Chief Inspector Ayerest of Toronto, at Norwood yesterday, Mr. G. N. Gordon, on behalf of the accused asked for an enlargement, on the grounds that he had been mislead by the information.

Mr. Gordon asked that as the evidence showed that the alleged sale was through a servant of the accused the case be enlarged to allow of him, bringing before the court, evidence to meet it.

The prosecution agreed to take counsels explanation and grant an enlargement, as it was not their desire to proceed without giving the defence, the opportunity of producing evidence to show innocence if possible.

Mr. J. H. Burnham is acting for the prosecution. The case will be continued at Peterborough, next Thursday at one o'clock.

There are two charges preferred, but the most recent, that of a violation of the liquor law, on fair day, October 12, is the one before the court at present.

On that date, two detectives from the department, went to Norwood and adopted the usual methods. They swore they were served with beer and port at the hotel, and a quantity of the wine was secured in a bottle and sent to Toronto for analysis.

The report showed the percentage of alcohol to be 4.59 and this is against 2.50, which is the legal percentage. Both beverages are allowed to be offered for sale in hotels, under the Local Option Law, which is in force at Norwood, but the percentage of alcohol must not exceed 2.50.

The late Mr. Taylor was a son of Mr. and Mrs. William Taylor, of the custom house, and a brother of Mrs. Walter Stocker, Mrs. E. Mitchell and Mrs. Thomas Byers, of this city.

A telegram from Toronto, notifying them of the critical condition of the deceased, was received yesterday afternoon. They left on the 4.38 train, arriving in Toronto just as the sufferer had passed away.

Deceased was about forty-three years of age and had resided in Toronto and Montreal most of his life. He was president of the Tile-setters Union and works superintendent of the Canadian Plate Company. About twenty-one years ago he married Charity Maud Decker of this city, survives him.

The other surviving relatives are his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Taylor; three sons, Ernest Hilbert, Curtis and William; three sisters, Mrs. Walter Stocker, Mrs. E. The new church will seat twelve hundred, and a committee of sixteen was appointed to confer with the architect as to the best methods of making the improvements to the present Church.

Rev. Mr. Potter is the pastor of the church, and his former congregation here, together with citizens in general, will be pleased to hear of his success.

SENT TO THE HILL

Albert Butt Sentenced to Jail for Period of Three Months.

It is the act of an ingrate. He did the women out of his board bill, and then stole her watch.

Three months in jail.

Butt had previously pleaded guilty to stealing a gold watch, the value of which was $20.00, from Richard O'Rourke, with whom he boarded, and ran up a board bill of $60.00.

On a Saturday morning, Mrs. O'Rourke sent him to market giving him $5.00 for purchases. Butt took a gold watch belonging to Richard O'Rourke and neglected to return it.

His explanation, as given by his counsel, Mr. Basil Hall this morning was that he lent the watch to another man, who afterwards offered him $7.00 for the timepiece.

He fell down.

LAVERGNE PRESENTS NATIONALISTS ATTITUDE ON CANADIAN NAVY

In Address Before the Students of the University of Toronto Says French-Canadians Are Not Disloyal to the Empire.

Toronto, Nov. 19—Armand Lavergne, the mild young hero of French Canada, who has assisted in making Premiers tremble and Governments totter and constitutions shake to their parchment foundations, addressed the Varsity "Lit" last night in Convocation Hall, which was two-thirds filled for the occasion.

President Wilkie's introduction was punctuated with applause for the loyal students uttered and the praise of free speech, British rights and equal opportunities which he voiced.

Mr. Lavergne in the opening of his address deprecated the ordinary conception of the habitant as a simple, primitive creature, with home-spun cap on his head; who speaks a language which in France would be called patois, with a sprinkling of English words! and that the only ruler he knows is his parish priest, who will give him a seat in heaven if he pays his dues, and consign his heretic neighbor to a warmer place.

No purer or better immigrant came to any country. They were great explorers, Champlain, Marquette, La Salle and other travelers remaining as types, and the gentilhomme of the old regime was a good fighter who had learned to look on his conqueror as an equal.

"We think the best way to save the Empire, to upbuild the Empire, is to work for our own country. We think the only way to maintain the integrity of the Empire is to maintain the autonomy of its component parts.

"We think that this policy of Imperial relation, of taking part in every war, be it just or unjust, that Britain sees fit to undertake means a considerable change, and the people should be given an opportunity to express their opinions about it.

"We French-Canadians have no other country but the land of our love and the land of our hope," said Mr. Lavergne, speaking of the French connection.

But he thought that Britain acted as much for her own interests. She preferred her Anglo-Japanese alliance to the salvation of British Columbia for her own flesh and blood. Still he believed that they ought to defend the colonies of Great Britain.

"I myself, with my Nationalist reputation, belong to the militia of this country," he said. "But I think we should not jump blindfolded into the maelstorm of militarism. I think we can say we shall never be any cause of conflict for Great Britain. We think the Parliament of Canada should be put on an equal footing with the Parliament at Westminster. We should abide by the old British principle, 'no taxation without representation.' I see no way to that without decentralization. The best way of settlement is through the Imperial Conference."

"Our navy can be put to service outside Canada, and without the consent of Canada. This is an entire change of the constitution. I believe in a navy, if it is a Canadian navy. It should be under the control of the Canadian Parliament. It is quite different when it is under the Governor-General in council. If Parliament were not sitting it could be consulted in fifteen days. If the governor himself had power to send the fleet to war what was the good of consulting the Parliament afterwards?

"This was the position they had taken in Drummond and Arthabasca. They had spoken the same language, he asserted, "as he had just used.

"We did not need racial appeals in Drummond and Arthabasca. Common sense gave us the victory.

"But I want to make a full confession. Racial appeals have been made, but not by our side. It was by those who went among the parishes and said 'Vote for the navy and Imperial preference.

"I have in the course of my career appealed to my countrymen when I appealed to them to arise above party, and when my fellow-countrymen have been told that the English were narrow, and I appealed to them not to accept such a view. I have appealed to them when I asked them to respect the rights and liberties of the English-speaking minority."

SUFFRAGETTES ON WARPATH

A Thousand of Them Storm Parliament Buildings in Vain.

London, Nov. 19.—The militant suffragettes re-opened hostilities against the Government yesterday, and marching 1,000 strong on the Parliament buildings, gave the police a lively fight. The women, many of whom were placed under arrest, were led by Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst.

The suffragettes had determined, if possible, to force the police cordon about the House of Commons and, reaching Premier Asquith, to insist upon the introduction of a woman's suffrage bill. The police, however, were too strongly entrenched, and the women who tried every means in their power to force the line were thrown back.

Repeatedly they retired breathless and disheveled, only to have their places on the fighting line taken by reserves.

Before the House of Commons had adjourned for the day 108 suffragettes and supporters had been jailed. After the women had exhausted themselves the arrests occurred with monotonous regularity. The women presented a sorry spectacle when the battle was over. The dresses of many were torn and their hair hung down. Hats, handbags and bits of feminine apparel and torn banners littered the ground.

BAR NEGROES FROM UNION

St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 19.—President Gompers, in his speech at the Federation of Labor banquet Thursday night, advocated the elimination of negroes from the labor unions of America. He said the supremacy of the Caucasian race in the unions should be maintained.

"There are 8,000,000 negroes in the United States," said Mr. Gompers, "and to my mind they cannot all be expected to understand the philosophy of human rights. I do not believe they should be permitted to join our unions, lacking as they do for the most part the very necessary knowledge of what our unions really stand for in the economic world."

A CUFF LINK LEADS TO ARREST

Brockville, Nov. 19.—Roy Halladay, a young married man, employed as a cheesemaker at Phillipsville, was brought here by Constable Russell of Delta yesterday, and later at the Police Court was committed for trial on a charge of indecent assault. The information, as laid, alleges that three weeks ago Halladay, whose family were away on a visit, secured a ladder and entered the home of a neighbor, the house being occupied solely by a maiden lady of middle age, who is deaf. She fought him off, and a cuff link dropped on the floor provided a clue to Halladay.

WILL TAKE ALL PRECAUTIONS

Ottawa, Nov. 19.—G. W. O'Halloran, Deputy Minister of Agriculture, within which Department the control of quarantine lies, stated yesterday that the Department had taken every possible precaution in regard to the suspected case of cholera at Quebec. Dr. Montizambert, the superintendent general of public health, left for Quebec early yesterday morning. Bacteriological examinations at Washington and McGill will decide whether the case is one of cholera.

Talked of Lynching.

Welland, Nov. 19.—Robert Bright, a negro resident of Fort Erie, Ont., is accused of attempting to hold up Mrs. Coakley of Bridgeburg. She was walking home from a neighbor's house and was attacked by the negro, it is alleged. Robbery is believed to have been his purpose. Bright was captured a few moments later by two men. A crowd of forty men assembled around the lock-up and talked of lynching.

NEWSPAPER BURNED OUT

Rosthern, Sask., Nov. 19.—The plant of Le Patriote, a newly established newspaper at Duck Lake, was totally destroyed by fire Thursday night, caused by the explosion of the tank of a gasoline engine. Chas. Smith was so badly burned that it is feared he cannot recover. He was rescued by F. R. Morse, editor of the paper. Smith's two children and another girl were also burned badly and the library of F. R. Lebauchir, valued at $5,000, was totally destroyed. The newspaper plant was valued at $3,000, and building at $15,000. Insurance on plant and building $2,500.

PRISONER THRICE ATTEMPTS SUICIDE

Pottsville, Pa., Nov. 19.—Frank Mitchell, who confessed to the murder of Mrs. Mary Richards and the mistreatment of her daughter, Mrs. Peter Faulds, at Aucheys, after he was caught robbing the house, made three attempts at suicide in his cell in the county prison here, once by hanging, once by setting his bed afire and lying on it, and then by hitting his head against the wall.

CRIMEAN HERO'S LAST ROLL CALL

Cobourg, Nob. 19.—Peter Mulvaney aged 98, died yesterday in the House of Refuge. He was a Crimean veteran and fought with the 9th Regiment of Foot at Alma, Balaclava and Sebastopol, where he was badly wounded in the head and thigh. He received several medals and a pension of a shilling and three pence a day. He will be buried on Monday with military honors from his own home.

CHURCH AFTER TOLSTOI

Russian Prelates Are Willing to Take Him—He is Too Ill to Receive Message.

St. Petersburg, Nov. 19.—Emperor Nicholas yesterday had an audience with the procurator of the holy synod, M. Lukianoff, to whom he expressed the wish that Count Tolstoi be buried according to the orthodox rite, even if a reconciliation between the author and the church were not effected.

The holy synod has been discussing the question of rescinding the old decree of excommunication against Tolstoi. Premier Stolypin is urging the synod to lose no time in deciding the question one way or another. He points out the consequence of refusing Christian burial in some form.

The repudiation of his error on Tolstoi's part, however, is absolutely necessary before the synod can go against the canon law regarding excommunication. It is believed that the Bishop of Tamboff has gone to Astapova to ascertain the views on this point of Tolstoi, either from himself or his immediate friends.

The text of the telegram from the Metropolitan Antonius is as follows:

"Since the very first moment of your rupture with the church I incessantly prayed, and I pray now that God may restore you to the church. Possibly He is soon to summon you to the judgment seat. I implore in your sickness now to reconcile yourself with the church and the orthodox Russian people. May God bless you."

Count Toherkoff and the other attendants decided not to submit the telegram to Tolstoi in his present condition.

It was learned that Tolstoi's condition was practically unchanged yesterday afternoon. Four physicians are making constant efforts to aid the heart, the weakness of which is the source of the chief danger. Other symptoms are said to be encouraging. The fever has disappeared, and the inflammation of the lungs has made slight progress since Thursday.

The novelist remains conscious, and although extremely weak, is cheerful and confident of ultimate recovery.

BAD FIRE AT FLESHERTON

Flesherton, Nov. 19.—Flesherton was visited by a conflagration yesterday morning which did about $13,500 damage, and wiped out one of the main business block in the place. The chief losses were: W. Buskin, block, including grocery, postoffice, insurance, and commission merchant offices, barber shop and large warehouse; value $10,000; insurance $3,600; John Sproule, boarding house and barn, value $1,500; no insurance; O. W. Phillips, barn and damage to household goods, $800; fully insured. R. J. Sproule, personal effects, $500, no insurance; Thomas Fisher, barber shop, loss $150; Mrs. Hastie, keeper of boarding house, damage to household goods $400; insurance $350; W. M. Trimble, postoffice fittings, $150; M. Scully & Co., office fixtures, $50. The fire was discovered at two o'clock yesterday morning.

BODY IN TRUNK THAT OF MALE

New York, Nov. 19.—An autopsy yesterday established the male sex of a body found in a trunk in a West 54th street tenement last Thursday night. The left lung showed evidence of a hemorrhage, which probably resulted from asphyxiation.

Dr. Lehane and Prof. McAllister both declare that the body was placed in the trunk while the victim was still alive, but undoubtedly unconscious.

Although the corpse, it is believed, had been in the trunk eight years, the murderer's precaution in placing it in a hermetically sealed case of zinc and plaster of paris resulted in its preservation so as to make the determination of sex comparatively easy.

THE COLONIES AND NAVAL BILL

London, Nov. 19.—In the House of Commons Sir Edward Grey said he has already been in communication with the colonies in reference to the naval prize bill, and it is not proposed to take further action at the present time.

South Africa's contribution to the Imperiay navy amounts to $433,000.

HUMAN LIFE HELD CHEAP

Fort William, Nov. 19.—Giving as his opinion that human life is held as cheaply as that of cattle on the docks of Fort William and Port Arthur, Acting Mayor Rankin of Fort William yesterday announced his intention to inaugurate a campaign for a commission of enquiry, and the ultimate supervision of harbor by the Provincial Government.

The death rate in the two harbors for the past three years has been approximately two a month, largely due to falling from buckets and accidents on the package freight vessels.

THEY WANT TO KNOW

Orangemen Asking Government About Eucharist Congress.

Ottawa, Nov. 19.—The expected discussion in Parliament upon the Eucharistic Congress, and especially the participation therein of the militia, will apparently take place first in the Senate. Curiously enough the question will be raised by Senator Landry, probably the most ultramontane of any leader in the Conservative party, and he will demand the production of all decisions rendered by the militia council and of all correspondence concerning the guard and escort of honor applied for in August and September last on the occasion of the visit in Quebec and Montreal of his eminence Cardinal Vannutelli.

Dr. Sproule, M.P. for East Grey, who is the most prominent Orangeman in Canada, yesterday gave notice of a number of questions to the clerk of the House. The first relates to the action of the Speaker. Dr. Sproule asks if, since Parliament prorogued, the Speaker attended any function or gathering attired in his official robes or apparel, and if so, where and when. He desires to know if it was not the duty of the Speaker, in appearing at any function dressed in his official robes, to be preceded or accompanied by the sergeant-at-arms, carrying the mace, which is the emblem of the authority of the House. If so, is there any precedent to justify it?

Coming to the telegram of Justice Girouard, the member for East Grey asks:

How or by what commission or otherwise, was Justice Girouard appointed the deputy of the Governor-General, or the administrator of the Government, last summer or fall? If so, what authority did the commission confer upon him? Did the administrator of the Government send a telegram or message to Cardinal Vannutelli on his arrival in the country? If so, what were the contents? If so, by whose advice and authority was it done? Was he acting under the advice of his constitutional advisers?

LATE TICKS FROM WIRES

Ringling Bros., the circus men, have bought a large tract of land in Saskatchewan.

Juan Burcel, a Mexican, who, it is claimed, was 122 years old, died at San Diego, Cal., yesterday.

Mrs. Laura F. Schenk was indicted yesterday afternoon at Wheeling, Va., on the charge of attempting to murder her husband by poisoning.

George Jamieson of Chatham was carting a number of crates of chickens when his horse ran away. His ribs were broken and he was injured internally.

Mrs. Allan Howie of Barrie met a violent death by falling down the cellar stairs. She was found dead by her husband at the foot of the stairs. Three sons reside in Toronto.

Prof. Adams of McGill is now making an examination into the alleged case of Asiatic cholera at Quebec, and until his report has been received by the provincial authorities, no action can be taken one way or the other.

SIGNATURES SHOW DOUBT OF GUILT

London, Nov. 19.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—A letter accompanying the Crippen petition which was sent by Newton & Co. to the Home Secretary, says:

"As a whole, the signatures have been obtained spontaneously and in no way by canvassing or anything of that kind. We venture to think that a very large number of serious thinking people have a strong feeling that whatever the suspicion in this case may be, certainly the guilt has not been proven against our client."

Counties Buy Toll Road.

Brockville, Nov. 19.—The purchase of that portion of the Lowell Plank Road Co.'s road between here and Lynn was completed yesterday, and the property is now owned by the counties to become a part of their good roads system.

It has been decided to abolish the two toll gates on Dec. 14.

Smallpox at Ottawa.

Ottawa, Nov. 19.—A case of virulent smallpox has been discovered in Ottawa. Mrs. Quinn of 448 Bay street came to this city from North Bay ten days ago, and yesterday was found to be suffering from a very bad type of smallpox.

Theatres on a Union Basis.

St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 19.—Applications for affiliation from the White Rats and the Actors' Union of America, representing 10,000 vaudeville and legitimate actors, were received by the A. F. of L. convention yesterday.

The acceptance of the application will mark an effort to put all theatres on a thorough union basis.

A Telegraph Exchange.

Chicago, Nov. 19.—Announcement was made yesterday that Thomas W. Carroll, general superintendent of the Postal Telegraph Co., has resigned this position and will become attached to the office of the general manager of the Western Union Telegraph Co. in New York.

THE CRISIS NOW AT HAND; MOMENTOUS STAGE IN HISTORY

Premier Asquith Says the Commons Will be Dissolved on Nov. 28 and Government Will go the Country on Veto Question.

London, Nov. 19.—Yesterday's brief sessions of the two Houses of Parliament are likely to prove to be the turning point in the history of the House of Lords as at present constituted.

The older Conservatives view the march of events with anxious concern, and are loudly lamenting the disappearance of the hereditary principle as the basis of the Upper Chamber; but, whatever may result, a second appeal to the nation arising from the struggle between the two houses, appears certain, as it does that henceforth elective and selective bases will enter into the constitution of the House of Lords.

Interest in the situation has now been transferred to the constituencies. The belief to-day is that the Lords will not attempt to pass the second reading of the veto bill on the conditions imposed by Premier Asquith.

Mr. Asquith will open the Liberal campaign with a speech at the National Liberal Club to-day, and in it he is expected to develop the Government's policy at length. All the other leaders are booked for speeches in quick succession.

It is the intention of the Government to pass the essential features of the budget, namely, the income tax, tea duty and sinking fund provisions; remove the pauper disqualification for old age pensions, and to dissolve Parliament on Nov. 28 should the Lords in the meantime reject the veto bill.

Presenting his program in the House of Commons yesterday, Premier Asquith said that he had hoped, up to the last moment, that the veto conference would reach a settlement. There never had been a more honest or more sustained attempt of men of strong and conflicting convictions to find a basis of agreement upon which to build a structure promising stability and endurance.

"The House," said the Premier, "will be prepared for my announcement that the Government has advised His Majesty when the work is accomplished to bring both this session and this Parliament to an end. It is useless to continue the farce longer. To reform the House of Lords and at the same time permit it to retain its right of veto of necessary legislation, is simply to make a farce of Government. The suggestions of compromise that have been made have not been for the interests of all of the people. The Government has a distinct program planned and that program is to be carried out.

"The Cabinet has discussed all of the suggestions of compromise and has decided that none of them is feasible. It has therefore recommended to King George that Parliament be dissolved on Nov. 28. It would be the idlest affectation to pretend any doubt as to what the real decision will be," he said, referring to the result of the general elections.

Pressed for a statement on the subject of guarantees from the crown, Premier Asquith said that his declaration of last April still represented the deliberate intentions of the Government.

"I decline now," he declared, "and shall continue to decline to make a statement regarding the advice which I may have given or hereafter may give. The King stands aloof from all our political and electoral controversies, and it is the duty of his subjects, as well as of his Ministers, to maintain secure his absolute detachment from the arena of party struggles."

The Liberals of the Lower House generally interpret Mr. Asquith's statement yesterday as indicating that he has obtained a conditional guarantee from the King.

The debate dragged on throughout the afternoon to an almost empty house. Mr. Redmond took no part in the discussion, but it is understood that the Nationalists fully approve the Government's proposals. Mr. Balfour declared the Premier's course "unprecedented and unconstitutional," and Barnes, a Labor party leader, said his party would not vote if a vote were taken.

MURDERS, ATTEMPTED MURDERS AND ACCIDENTS

Many Police Killed.

Mexico City, Nov. 19.—One hundred persons, including the chief of police, were killed in riots at Puebla yesterday, according to statements of passengers arriving last night from that city. They say the trouble began yesterday morning when a number of policemen, headed by the chief, attempted to break up a meeting of anti-re-electionists, which was held in a large hall.

As Chief Cabrera and his men advanced towards the building, a door was opened by a woman, who shot and killed the chief. Many other policemen were killed.

Murdered His Father.

Muncie, Ind., Nov. 19.—Benjamin Smith, 22 years old, a farmer, yesterday led officers to an abandoned well near his home, and there showed them the body of his father, with head crushed in, and bearing other evidences of murder. Smith was arrested Thursday night after he had appeared at a neighbor's with blood-stained hands a few hours after his father had been missed. He accounted for his appearance by saying that he had been beaten by highwaymen.

Client Shoots Broker.

Chicago, Nov. 19.—Shot twice in the side and once in the arm at his offices in the Unity Building here yesterday, Richard A. Connell, a real estate operator and a prominent Mason, was so seriously wounded that he will probably die. Connell's assailant was Moses Adner. "They skinned me out of $3,500," was the only statement Adner would make.

Hung In Tree All Night.

Harvard, Mass., Nov. 19.—An explosion in the automobile he was driving along a lonely country road Thursday night blew Thomas W. Silliker, a chauffeur, high in the air and landed him in the branches of a tree, where he hung unconscious by his clothing until yesterday, when he was discovered by a farmer.

New C.P.R. Service.

Antwerp, Nov. 19.—It is reported that the C.P.R. Co. is planning a direct steamship service between Antwerp and points in the United States

Four Bullets Missed Their Mark.

Pointe a Pitre, Guadaloupe, Nov. 19—An attempt on the life of Acting Governor William Fawtier was made Thursday, but he was unharmed. A carriage occupied by the governor was fired upon at the very spot and at the same hour of the day that an attack was made upon Governor Gautret's carriage in September. Four bullets from a revolver passed the upper part of the vehicle.

Brakeman Killed.

Bridgeburg, Nov. 19.—John Murphy was instantly killed about 4.20 p.m. by falling off a Grand Trunk freight pulling into the yard from Black Rock. He got on the train, but dropped a parcel and in trying to get it fell under. He was about 30 years of age and unmarried, and was employed as brakeman for the M.C.R. He lived with his father at Amigara.

Mistaken for Dog; Killed.

Pottsville, Pa., Nov. 19.—Mistaken for a dog in the gathering dusk Thursday evening, Michael Bolemius, a 12-year-old hunchback, was run over by a heavy delivery wagon and killed, after having been knocked down by the horses of a preceding wagon. Death was instantaneous. The drivers were yesterday exonerated from blame.

Found Dying In Street.

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Nov. 19.—George O'Hara of Toronto, 20 years of age, until recently fireman on the steamer City of Windsor, hailing from Collingwood, died at the General Hospital at noon following injuries received here during the night.

O'Hara was picked up on the street in a helpless condition and hurried to the hospital. He had severe bruises about the head, and it is not known how they were inflicted. Anthony O'Hara, a brother, and his mother, reside at Collingwood.

Fatally Crushed.

Chatham, Nov. 19.—Christopher Boyce, while moving his traction engine Thursday night, got under the boiler to make a repair. In some way the boiler fell on him and fatally crushed him.

BUTTER IS DOWN, WHILE EGGS ARE SOARING HIGH

Another crowded market hall, the high price of eggs, and the abundance of large juicy turkeys were the features of the market session to-day.

The attendance was probably the equal of any so far this season, and every available corner and table was monopolized. It has been a long time since such large turkeys have been on the market, and though the prices were large also, purchasers were found for them. A sixteen-pound turkey brought $2.50. And, talking of eggs, think of paying 35 cents for a dozen eggs. But those who wanted them could not get away from the price; it was the standard to-day.

Butter, fortunately, was slightly lower, some of it selling at 25 cents, and some at 26 and 27 cents.

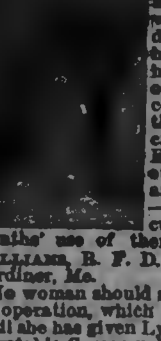
Plenty of port, both live and dead, was on the square, and apples by the barrel were a little more plentiful.

No change in the potato outlook was reported, the prices remaining similar to last week.

This morning's quotations were as follows—

Butter, 25c to 27c per pound.
Eggs, 35c per dozen.
Geese, $1.20 each.
Turkeys, $1.50 to $3.00 each.
Chickens, 45c to 70c pair.
Potatoes, 75c to 80c bag.
Apples, $3.00 and $4.00 barrel.

The smaller vegetables were about the usual price.



ANOTHER WOMAN CURED

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Gardiner, Maine.—"I have been a great sufferer from organic troubles and a severe female weakness. The doctor said I would have to go to the hospital for an operation, but I could not bear to think of it. I decided to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Sanative Wash—and was entirely cured after three months' use of them."—Mrs. S. A. Williams, R. F. D. No. 14, Box 39, Gardiner, Me.

No woman should submit to a surgical operation, which may mean death, until she has given Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made exclusively from roots and herbs, a fair trial.

This famous medicine for women has for thirty years proved to be the most valuable tonic and renewer of the female organism. Women residing in almost every city and town in the United States bear willing testimony to the wonderful virtue of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It cures female ills, and creates radiant, buoyant female health. If you are ill, for your own sake as well as those you love, give it a trial.

Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., invites all sick women to write her for advice. Her advice is free, and always helpful.

The Daily Review

SATURDAY, NOV. 19, 1910.

A SUGGESTION

Sir Wilfrid submit this Naval Bill to the electorate. It's up to you. And we would suggest that petitions be furnished the electorate for signature.

RAHAB

Rahab the Harlot, is going to be the subject upon which Rev. Robert Pogue will speak to-morrow night in St Paul's church. This ought to draw a live crowd. We have sermons on card playing, dancing, etc., and Rev. W. C. Riddiford preaches to-morrow night on The Theatre, but a sermon on a sporting lady should attract a bumper house.

THE DEAD AVIATOR

Ralph Johnstone you have gone to join the great host. We don't believe you went to hell. You died a martyr to the cause of aviation. Your wings on your machine folded and you dropped to death and the crowd tore your dismantled aeroplane to pieces and carried it away as a ghastly souvenir. But they will soon forget you Ralph Johnstone, air man, bird man, now fallen and dead, for the world soon forgets. It's natural to forget for if we did not this world would be one vast mad house. Johnstone, you're dead, one of thirty-seven who have fallen from the skies.

CUT IT OUT

We are in sympathy with the Lord's Day Alliance when they take the part of the masses, who perhaps, but for their intervention might have to work in the mines, on the railway, or at the smelter seven days a week. We have no use for the wide, open American Sunday, but when the Lord's Day people set to work and try to have store-keepers fined for selling ice-cream, candy or cigars on Sunday, as they are now doing in Toronto, we can't see ANY sign of the GRACE OF GOD in them. We don't think if Christ went to Toronto He would be running around looking up such things as this. He would be in the WARD or in the JAIL, or in the BOARDING house where the stranger lived. Cut it out gentlemen, it's peanut religion with so many big things at stake.

THE SPITTER

If you spit on the sidewalk in Boston you are going to be arrested. If you spit on the sidewalk in Peterborough you are merely adding another little puddle to the hundreds. A San Francisco resident was the first victim of the new anti-spitting crusade which Police Commissioner, Stephen O'Meare inaugurated in Boston.

The real crusade, however, began on Wednesday. In his order issued on Tuesday night the commissioner announced that one arrest would be made in each of the 15 divisions on Thursday, two on Friday and three on Saturday and successive days until the carelessness of Bostonians and visitors is checked.

Patrolman James M. Nelson, however, felt that he scarcely need to wait until Thursday as he saw Meyer Stone spit on the sidewalk almost in front of him.

Stone was in front of 1038 Washington street when he was caught by the patrolman. He was indignant over his arrest and claimed to be a resident of San Francisco, unfamiliar with the laws of the east that make for health.

We would invite Mr. Stone to Peterborough, where he can slobber anywhere without any one bothering him.

FIRST AID

During six months ending July 31st, there have been reported by the Department of Labour, as happening in Canada, no less than 2083 industrial accidents, that is, accidents occuring to workmen in the course of their employment, and in 656 instances, results were fatal. These figures do not represent the many accidents happening to citizens generally, or which there is no definite information. On an average in Canada, there are annually over 3,000 deaths from accidents, 40 per cent. of these being males, of between the ages of 15 and 44 years. Of the total number of deaths, only 28 are from freezing, and 49 from sunstroke, while the drowning accidents total over 700. Deaths from accidents are nearly double the deaths from typhoid fever, and if, as computed, there are six accidents to each death, then there are over 20,000 accidents each year in the Dominion. It is for the purpose of reducing suffering that the Canadian branch of the St. John's Ambulance Association has been formed.

There is a branch in Peterborough in connection with St. John's church. It's fine to be able to do more than crowd in when a man is knocked unconscious in a runaway, or when he cuts an artery, or has his leg broken. It's worth while when a person is fished out of the water unconscious to be able to do more than say, "poor fellow, poor woman." It's something to be able to rob death. We are asked to eulogize the St. John's Ambulance Association and we do so with pleasure.

JUST FOR TO-DAY

The chairman of the hymnal committee of the Anglican church, J. Edward Jones, Toronto, has dismissed the claim of W. G. Huckle, the convict sent to Kingston penitentiary from Hamilton, to authorship of the hymn, "Just for To-day." Ven. Archdeacon Wilberforce, of Westminster Abbey, writes to Mr. Jones: "The hymn, 'Just for To-day' is from an ancient Roman Catholic source. One of the verses omitted began, or ended:

"Teach me to live as Mary's child
Just for To-day."

The nun who wrote the hymn was a highly gifted English woman, and sister of the famous "Punch" artist, Bernard Partridge. Her father was the late Professor Richard Partridge, F.R.S., president College of Surgeons, professor of anatomy to Royal Academy.—Herald, Hamilton.

It doesn't make any difference who wrote the hymn, whether it came from the solitary cell of a nun or the cell of a prisoner, the sentiment is sublime. Just for to-day. In these lines are the story of no ambition, no plans for self, for posterity other than the simple, sweet confiding trust in Him who keeps. We are glad Huckle didn't get away with this bluff. We prefer to think a good woman wrote it. It will sound better, ring truer by far than if a whiskey detective penned the lines.

A BUG FOR A PET

Helen Ware, the actress, has a live bug for a mascot, an Egyptian scarabaeus, which ate its way through the folds of a mummy cloth and was found there a year ago. Its mate was dead, but this one was very much alive. Miss Ware keeps it in a tiny cage in her dressing room. It does not drink water, but it nibbles, once every week or so, at a piece of lettuce. The bug is about the size of Miss Ware's little finger. Now wouldn't that make the risibilities rise. We have heard of women making pets of dogs and cats, and one woman came into notoriety by having a pig for a friend and making it sleep in bed with its dear fat head ensconced on a pillow. But Miss Ware with a bug from the corpse of a mummy.

This is at once original. However we have seen people with bugs who did not pose for the camera as Miss Ware did. Why doesn't she marry and have not a bug, but a baby?

BRIBERY BY PUBLIC WORKS

When E. M. Macdonald, M.P., served notice on the city of Lethbridge that it would get no post office until it voted Liberal, he was simply following the regular Liberal plan of bullying constituencies by promising unnecessary public works if they vote Liberal, and threatening to withhold needed public works if they vote Conservative. Here, for example, is the sort of campaign which the Liberals ran in Halifax against Mr. R. L. Borden and his colleague, Mr Crosby—

Promise that the Canadian Pacific would come to Halifax.

A union depot.

A steel bridge across the Narrows.

A steamboat pier at Dartmouth.

The Halifax and Musquodoboit Railway.

In addition it was urged that the Government had incurred an expenditure of $5,000,000 on the port; that it had built a $259,000 Customs House; that it had spent $200,000 in improving the post office; had spent $100,000 on the coast of Halifax County; that it had re-opened the dock-yard; that it had manned the forts with Canadian troops.

Then, when Halifax voted Conservative the Liberal newspapers served notice that the Nova Scotia constituencies which had dared to vote Conservative must expect punishment. The Halifax Chronicle said on the day after the election, "In this election all the most important public interests that Liberals in Halifax have been struggling for for years, and that Tories have pretended to desire, were hanging within our reach. The Government policy meant the beginning of a new era for the port of Halifax. . . . And now, just at the critical time, when these things were within our grasp, our own people, misled by a trecherous Tory newspaper and by unpatriotic Tory leaders, have by their votes, thrown our great opportunity to the winds." And later on, "If the Government takes the people of Halifax at their word, who will have cause to complain?" And again, "They have declared by their votes that they do not want these things, and if the Government is disposed to take them at their word, and extend these favors to other constituencies and other ports which have been loyal to their interests, the Tories of Halifax and their dupes will have themselves to blame."

The Chronicle said in the same issue, "Halifax has, if the verdict of the electors mean anything, declared that it does not want to share in the great traffic of the Dominion, and does not want the N.T.R. and the All-Red Line. Certainly it will never get either by the election of Borden and Crosby. Let there be no mistake about that."

After having had time for reflection, the Chronicle returned to the subject as follows. "Halifax, Colchester and Cumberland, through which the National highway runs, have declared against the All-Red Line, National ports, etc. Let the Liberal Government take heed of these emphatic expressions of opinion, for they are unmistakeable. . . . Let, then, our statesmen, like good constitutional governors, revise their plans, and so remodel them as not to encroach on forbidden ground. Fortunately, there were other constituencies which were not purblind, and which will make room, so the splendid structure may not lose its symmetry, nor be shorn of its usefulness to Canada. With these exceptions, so far as these Maritime Provinces are concerned, let the good work go on."

That is the political school in which Mr Macdonald has been trained. That is the manner in which the Laurier Government spends the money raised by taxing all the people of Canada, Liberals and Conservatives alike.

"Salvador" BEER

THE FAMOUS NATIONAL DRINK

There's a story behind "Salvador" beer—Canada's most famous brew—that carries us back to the year 1651

The Grand Duke Ferdinand, the Bavarian monarch of that period, established the now famous cloister brewery on the Nockerberg Mountain, near Munich, and appointed Father Sale the chief brewmaster.

The product of the royal brewery was first known as "Father Sale's Beer," until the more convenient title of "Salvador" was adopted, about a century later.

For over 150 years "Salvador" was brewed under the patronage of the Bavarian royal family. In 1806, Franz X. Zacherl acquired control of the cloister brewery and purchased the secret formula of the royal brew.

From that day to this the formula and sole European rights have been the most jealously guarded inheritance of the famous brewer's family.

The rich, mellow flavor of "Salvador" is only attained by a special aging process, and if the output of the cloister brewery was great enough the people of Bavaria would drink no other beer.

Mr. Lothar Reinhardt completed his extensive studies of German brewing in this famous cloister brewery, where he secured the secret formula and process for brewing "Salvador." He has the sole right under the Canadian Government Copyright and Letters Patent to manufacture this famous brew.

Reinhardts' "Salvador" has become "The National Drink by a rigorous adherence to every detail of the original process devised by Father Sale in 1651.

Compared with all other brews, "Salvador" beer is worth a dollar a drop, yet it costs no more than just ordinary beer.

Every pint of "Salvador" is matured in wood for at least six months before bottling.

"Salvador" is not only a pure, sparkling and refreshing brew; it also possesses tonic qualities which make it the beer par excellence for family use.

Always order "Salvador" if you want the best beer brewed.

HOW TO CURE STOMACH TROUBLE

A Great Sufferer From Indigestion Tells How She Was Cured

Stomach trouble is a general name for all forms of indigestion, whether great pain after eating, belching of wind, heavy feeling in the stomach, nausea, or the sharp pains that often make you think you have heart trouble. There are two things noticeable in indigestion. One is that doctors always find indigestion a prominent symptom in a bloodless run-down state. The other, that sufferers usually find relief when a tonic is taken that restores the general health. Without a doubt stomach trouble is simply stomach weakness, and the cure is to make the stomach strong enough to digest food without trouble. Any other treatment is patchwork and cannot cure. As the processes of digestion are controlled by the blood and nerves, the stomach that is too weak to digest food needs a tonic to give it strength. And in all the world there is no better tonic than Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. They actually make new, rich blood, tone the nerves and so strengthen the stomach and all the bodily functions. We submit the following as proof that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills will cure even the most obstinate cases of stomach trouble. Mrs. John Graf, Fort Saskatchewan, Alta., says: "For years I suffered great torture from indigestion. I took many different medicines, but instead of benefitting me I was growing worse all the time till my stomach got so bad I could neither eat or drink without pain. Even cold water would cause me suffering. Nor did I get any relief when the stomach was empty, as I still suffered from a horrid burning pain. I went to Edmonton and consulted one of the best doctor's there, but he told me that he could do nothing for me, that all I could do was to diet. For some time I took only hot water and a small piece of brown bread for my meals, but even that did not help me and I got so weak and run down that I despaired of ever being well again. I bought a so called electric belt and wore it for six months, but it was simply money wasted. Then one day a friend asked me why I did not try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I did not know they were intended to cure indigestion but being assured that they were, decided to try them. I soon found the Pills helping me, but my condition was so bad when I began using them that I continued taking the Pills for about five months before I felt that I was completely cured. Then I could eat any kind of food, and although more than two years have passed since my cure, I have not since had the least sign of the trouble. I can most heartily recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to anyone suffering from this terrible trouble."

Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

PRISON REFORM

Subject Before Guild of Goodfellowship To-morrow Afternoon

The Guild of Good Fellowship will occupy the Princess Theatre as usual, on Sunday afternoon from three to four o'clock, when the subject will be "The Punishment of the Criminal and Prison Reform." No doubt a large number of men will be present, as the question is a live one.

An increasing interest is being displayed in these weekly meetings, and suggestions are continually being received from the men, so as to make them as helpful as possible. There are two ways of spending Sunday afternoon—one is to waste it by slacking, and the other to improve the whole man by taking part in some good movement such as this. Which do you choose, friend? Come along to the Princess Theatre to-morrow afternoon at three o'clock.

This Old Gentleman Cured of Rheumatism

By One Box of GIN PILLS

YARMOUTH, N.S.

"I have been bothered with Rheumatism for the past year and have taken a good many different kinds of medicine and found no relief for it.

One day a friend advised me to try GIN PILLS, and after taking one box of them, I felt like a new man, I thought I would write you a few lines to let you know how thankful I am for the relief they gave me, and would advise all sufferers from Rheumatism to try GIN PILLS."

WM. CONTY.

Don't bother with liniments and so-called "blood purifiers". They won't help your kidneys—and Rheumatism is caused by weak, strained or irritated kidneys. The only possible way to cure Rheumatism, is to cure the kidneys. GIN PILLS will do this as nothing else will.

DELIGHTFUL ENTERTAINMENT

(At Lakefield)

Lakefield citizens turned out in large numbers last night to attend one of the best concerts given in their town hall, and showed their appreciation by encoring every number on the programme. Ostensibly, the concert was to help out the music fund of the Anglican church of St. John the Baptist, which object was easily achieved, but a far more important result, namely, the presentation of a high class concert, was successfully carried out. The Rev. F. J. Sawers was fortunate in enlisting in his venture the services of Miss Helen Davies and Mr. R. J. Devey, to whose finished work the success of the evening was mainly owing. Peterborough also furnished a delightful quartette from St. John's choir, who scored a great success in the tuneful number from the "Gondeliers," "A Regular Royal Queen," also Mrs. R. Davidson, an established favorite with Lakefield. The surprise of the evening was the appearance of Mr. T. Woodworth, also of Peterborough, an actor-elocutionist of the highest order, very seldom to be found. His numbers, given in the truly artistic spirit, had to be supplemented each time he appeared, and either tragic or gay, the audience was captured from start to finish. A most pleasing feature of the concert was the most excellent numbers by the Lakefield performers, who in solo and chorus, rose to the occasion, giving evidence of most careful training. The Rev. F. J. Sawers made a thoroughly genial chairman, and the arduous duties of accompanist were skillfully carried out by Mr. R. J. Devey. At the conclusion of the concert all the performers were kindly entertained at the rectory.

PROGRAMME.

Pianoforte Duet, "Duet in D," Mrs. R. J. Devey and Master Cyril Devey; vocal solo "Nora Malone," Miss Marguerite Webster; quartette, "Killarney," Mrs. R. Devey, Mrs. Seward, Mr. H. Morphet and Mr. J. H. Sawers, St. John's Church, Peterborough; vocal solo, "The Carnival," Mrs. R. Davidson; recitation, "The Vagabond," Mr. T. THE COMING OF SOUSA'S BAND

Next Tuesday, Nov. 22nd, Sousa and his world-famous Band will visit Peterboro. There are only a few places in Canada that will have the privilege of hearing the celebrated organization as only Kingston, Peterboro, Hamilton, London and Toronto will be visited. The Band will arrive in Peterboro by special train from Kingston at 7.45 p.m., where they appear in the afternoon, and consequently the local performance will not commence until 8.30 p.m.

To John Philip Sousa belongs the credit of composing more catchy instrumental numbers than any other producer, many of which are played by the 57th Band. It is the kind of music that appeals to all classes, gets your feet going and the small boy's "whistler" working overtime.

Mr. Sousa will be assisted by Virginia Root, Soprano Soloist, Nicoline Zedeler, violiniste, and Herbert L. Clarke, cornetist. The seat sale opened this morning, and judging by the heavy advance sale, Sousa will be greeted with a bumper house.

ADDRESSES AT CONSERVATIVE CLUB

SISTER ASSOCIATIONS ENTERTAINED AT ST. LUKE'S

The rectors of All Saints and St. John's Churches and the members of their A. Y. P. A., were entertained by the Association of St. Luke's last evening, the occasion being a very enjoyable one.

On the platform with Mr. Harry Moore, who acted as chairman, were Rev. H. R. Trumpour, Rev. Chas. Carpenter, and Rev. Dr. Langfeldt. A very kind letter was read from Rev. Mr Davidson, expressive of his regret at his inability to be present.

Rev. Dr. Langfeldt, opened the proceedings with devotional exercises, and afterwards, during the transaction of several business matters, the rector proposed to make Mr. and Mrs. Reg. Turner, honorary members of the A. Y. P. A. The proposal was agreed to, and eight other new members were accepted.

The following musical programme was then given.

Instrumental Solo — Miss Alice Neil

Song — Mr. Chas Coleman.

Recitation — Mr Jos. Halpany.

Vocal Solo — Miss Quartermaine.

Duet — Mrs. and Miss Hinchcliffe

Comic Song — Mr Jos. Halpany

Address — Mr. W. H. Cluxton.

At the conclusion of the program the guests were tendered a banquet, Messrs. Coleman Bros., catering. Speeches were made by the attending clergymen, and others and a pleasant social hour was spent.

Miss Morphet and Miss Horsefield won the prizes offered in a guessing contest. The evening was brought to a close at 11 p.m. and voted a big success.

A hearty vote of thanks was passed to Mr. J. J. Turner for his kindness in decorating the hall with flags of all nations for the occasion.

INCREASE IN PRICE OF HARD COAL ON THE WAY

Reports from all over the province indicates that the price of chestnut coal is due for an advance.

The retailers have received notice to this effect, but as to what course will be undertaken, tow the consumer, is not at present st ted.

Chestnut coal sells at $7.50 a ton here while the price in Toronto is $7.25, the extra freight distance being responsible for the higher price in Peterborough. Out of every five carloads of coal coming here, three are of hard coal, this kind being that much more in demand.

PROTESTING AGAINST DIVERSION OF WATERS

Col. Sam. Hughes Claims That the Trent System Southward is Being Robbed of Its Natural Share of Flow of Water.

The following letter will be of interest to power users in navigation through the Trent system. This letter has also been sent to the Ministers of the Dominion and Provincial Governments of the Departments interested in the regulation of and conservation of the water resources of the Midland District.

Lindsay, Ont., 10th Nov., 1910.

Dear Sir James.—The following data re the deflection of the waters of Hollow Lake and the adjoining height of land plateau in Haliburton, from the natural channel via the "Gull" and "Trent" River system, to the "Muskoka" River system, explains itself.

It is respectfully submitted for consideration, investigation and action to restore the said waters to the natural channel.

1. Hollow Lake formerly emptied out at the south-west corner near Minden Bay. The waters flowed via Trout Lake via Sonora (not St. Nora), as incorrectly named, Little Kushog to Boshkung and onward. In periods of overflow, Trout entered Bosking via Hawk and Gull Lakes also. Thence it flowed via Gull river past Minden, and, onward by Elliott's Falls, Coboconk, Rosedale, Fenelon Falls, Bobcaygeon, Luckhorn, Burleigh, Lakefield, Peterborough, Hastings, Heeley's Falls, Campbellford and Frankford to Trenton.

2. In the early days when lumbermen were administers in that country, the Lake Simcoe interests, wishing to obtain a better flow down Black River to Lake Couchiching, blocked the unused passage to Trout Lake, by filling up with brush, mud, etc., and opened a channel to connect with Raven and Wren on the head waters of the Black River

3 The next move—made also in the early days—was when the Muskoka lumbermen began Hollow Lake operations. To facilitate these, they being chiefly the same men as were interested in the Black River and Lake Simcoe regions, a cutting was made at the west side of Hollow Lake, so as to permit of the flow being into Lake of Bays, or Trading Lake at Dorset, and thence via Baysville and Bracebridge to Muskoka Lakes, and the other channel was blockaded.

4. Some years ago to partially restore the natural routes, but not the natural channel, Gilmour Bros., lumbermen, deflected the waters of the Black River at the foot of Wren Lake into Sonora Lake, and brought their logs by a transilde from Lake of Bays near Dorset, over the dividing ridge. It was then pointed out to them what was best, easiest and natural, via; to re-open the blockaded natural passages from Minden Bay locality into Trout and close the artificial one into Lake of Bays, and the minor one into Raven and Wren. But the Muskoka interests were dominant.

5. In the early days, the Superior lumber interests of Lake Simcoe and Muskoka were paramount in Hollow Lake region. Indeed, no limits were then held by operators interested in the Gull waters; so such changes were carried out with impunity and without objection or permission from anyone in authority. Indeed, no one was then interested except those making the changes.

6. But, with the disappearance of the timber, other important interests arise making the conservation of the water to its natural channels most important.

7. The Gull River route has become a great factor in development of power and in navigation. Called upon to feed the Trent Canal both ways, from Balsam Lake, the old route will thus be further deprived of the waters naturally belonging to it which are taken to Lake Simcoe side for canal purposes. Places such as Minden, Elliott's Falls, Norland, Coboconk, Rosedale, Fenelon Falls, Bobcaygeon, Buckhorn, Burleigh, Lakefield, Peterborough, Hastings, Heeley's Falls, Campbellford, Frankford and Trenton, will not be accorded their full flow. Thus the entire route will be doubly deprived of its full natural water rights.

In the interests of justice, of manufacturing and of Trent Canal navigation, may I be permitted to assert that the waters of Hollow Lake and the vast height of land region around it should be restored to the natural channel via Gull River and Trent system.

Faithfully,

SAM HUGHES.

In Sudden Emergencies

like illness, it is often necessary quickly to raise the temperature of a room. For instance, in those hours between midnight and dawn, when the day temperature has been allowed to drop, if you are called upon to get up, the room is chilly and cold. It takes a long time to start up a furnace or fire and raise the temperature by ordinary means.

You can instantly heat a room to any desired temperature with a

PERFECTION SMOKELESS OIL HEATER

Absolutely smokeless and odorless

It quickly gives heat, and with one filling of the font burns steadily for nine hours, without smoke or smell. Has automatic-locking flame spreader which prevents the wick from being turned high enough to smoke, and is easy to remove and drop back, so the wick can be cleaned in an instant. It has a cool handle and a damper top.

An indicator always shows the amount of oil in the font. It has a filler-cap which does not need to be screwed down; it is put in like a cork in a bottle, and is attached to the font by a chain.

The burner body or gallery cannot become wedged, because of a new device in construction, and consequently it can always be easily unscrewed in an instant for rewicking.

The Perfection Oil Heater is finished in japan or nickel. It is strong, durable and well made, built for service, yet light and ornamental.

Sir.—A visitor to the city was wondering what made the commissioners cut off certain of the licenses in the city. He has solved the question. He is a good customer of a certain hotel in the city and wanted to have a conversation with his better half in Detroit, and the hotel man went down to the central telephone office and told them not to let him do it. Ain't that the limit and going some? America for mine. Well, the visitor had his conversation in spite of the hotel man.

Both camps are confident of victory.

HERE'S FROM HAVELOCK

An Accident—Debate—Paper Chase—Personal

One of our George Street mercantile establishments was the scene of an interesting ... on Tuesday afternoon, and the brand of pugilism displayed by the combatants has lead the spectators to believe that someone may soon be brought forward from our little burg, who will wrench the championship belt from Johnson. The proprietor and a citizen resorted to the scientific game in order to decide an argument, but no more serious damage was done than the breaking of three valuable pipes, those of the two contestants, and the kindly person who volunteered to act as referee for the bout, but who lost his three dollar pipe in an attempt to break a clinch.

AN ACCIDENT.

Mr. Watson Parks of Round Lake had his arm cut on Thursday morning while working at Mr. Robt. Rogers' timber camp at Oak Lake. He was assisting in skidding when the wound was inflicted. He was brought to Havelock where several stiches were required to close up the cut in his arm.

ANOTHER DEBATE.

The local High School, at the meeting of the literary society on Friday evening next will debate on the question "That Fashions are more use to the World than tobacco." Another fine programme will be presented including a dialogue by the First From of the school.

PAPER CHASE

The High School pupils believe in the development of the muscle as well as the mind, and that plenty of exercise acts as a stimulant to study. On Thursday evening, the boys of the High School room held a paper chase, and the boys had a good run although the hares succeeded in keeping pretty well ahead of the hounds during the chase.

The High School and fourth class boys are fitting up the basement of the school for gymnasium purposes. It is a good idea, and the School Board should encourage them in the work, by assisting them in the purchase of the necessary articles.

The Junior W. A. of St. John's Church, will hold a social in the basement of the church on Wednesday evening next.

OLD PROSPECTOR TELLS HIS STORY

His Real Trouble Started When Rheumatism Got Him

Plasters, ointmen s and sulphur were alike useless but Dodd's Kidney Pills made a new man of him.

Princeton, B.C., Nov. 18.—(Special.)—All over Canada people are telling of the great work Dodd's Kidney Pills are doing, and even in the Rocky Mountain fastnesses where nature hides her mines, men are telling of cures made and suffering relieved by the great Canadian Kidney remedy. Wm. Murray, sixty-six years old, who has tramped the frontier as lumber jack, rancher, prospector, miner, hunter and trapper, and who has friends all over the west, is one of these. Many a tale of hardship and danger he can tell, but his first real trouble came when Rheumatism claimed him.

"I slipped on the mountain side and strained my kidneys and then my troubles all seemed to set in at once, I had nearly all the symptoms of Lumbago, Sciatica, Neuralgia, Diabetes, Dropsy and Bright's Disease," Mr. Murray states.

"Then I broke out in a terrible rash that spread all over my body and kept me in tortures. I tried all sorts of liniments and ointments and took sulphur enough to start a little hades of my own. But it was all no use. Then I tried Dodd's Kidney Pills, and all I can say is they made a new man of me."

Crippen's Father Dead.

Los Angeles, Nov. 19.—Myron Crippen, 83, father of Dr. Harvey Hawley Crippen, convicted of murder in London, died here yesterday as the direct result of privation and worry over his son's fate. Since Crippen was arrested, the aged man has been penniless and dependent upon charity.

After his son's arrest, the regular remittance which the doctor used to send his father ceased. The elder Crippen's plight was pitiful in the extreme. For several weeks he had haunted the newspapers containing news of his son. The few pennies he was able to gather together all went for newspapers, leaving nothing for food.

He was delirious all Thursday night and continually cried out for his son, and mumbled over and over: "It will not be long before I go, but my boy is innocent. He was a good boy; he was a good boy."

Wants Phosphates.

Kingston, Nov. 19.—James D. Keeley, aged 70, a pioneer of Railton, is dead.

A report from U. S. Consul Johnson is that there is a chance for a big boom for the phosphate and feldspar mines in this district. As Germany has placed an export duty on potash, and the States has been securing its supply there, it will now turn to Canada. Tests of feldspar are now being made, and if they turn out well, the demand will also be great. At present feldspar is used chiefly in the manufacture of crockery. Chicago men are interested here in taking the samples.

Montreal, Nov. 19.—C. R. Hosmer yesterday admitted that he and a syndicate of financiers, among whom are F. W. Thompson and H. S. He was surprised at how the sores healed—"I took your NEW METHOD TREATMENT for a serious blood disease with which I had been inflicted for twelve years. I had consulted a score of physicians taken all kinds of blood medicine, visited Hot Springs and other mineral water resorts, but only got temporary relief. They would help me for a time, but after discontinuing the medicines the symptoms would break out again—running sores, blotches, rheumatic pains, looseness of the hair, swellings of the glands, palms of the hands scaling, itchiness of the skin, dyspeptic stomach, etc. I had given up in despair when a friend advised me to consult you, as you had cured him of a similar disease 8 years ago. I had no hope, but took his advice. In three weeks' time the sores commenced to heal up and I became encouraged. I continued the NEW METHOD TREATMENT for four months and at the end of that time every symptom had disappeared. I was cured 7 years ago and no signs of any disease since. My boy, three years old, is sound and healthy. I certainly can recommend your treatment with all my heart. You can refer any person to me privately, but you can use this testimonial as you wish. W. 10 GOOD REASONS WHY THE "FORD" IS A GOOD BUY

BECAUSE it is built of vanadium steel, the best material that money can buy.

BECAUSE it will travel from 25 to 35 miles on 1 gallon of gasoline.

BECAUSE it has more power per pound of load than any car built.

BECAUSE it will climb any hill on high gear that any other car will, and many that many of them cannot climb.

BECAUSE it has more tire and cubic inches of air space in them per pound of load than any other car.

BECAUSE it will travel more miles on one set of tires than any other car.

BECAUSE it has an automatic cooling and an automatic oiling system, doing away with all gears and pump for this purpose, thus insuring simplicity and eliminating many troubles.

BECAUSE the whole car is the simplest that brains can invent.

BECAUSE it is built by a man who has never designed a failure, therefore you have no chance to take.

BECAUSE Henry Ford has capital enough to buy and pay spot cash (and does it) for enough material to build 25,000 cars at one time (one year's output) and thus save one-third the cost.

For these reasons he can give you a 5 passenger touring car complete for $975.00.

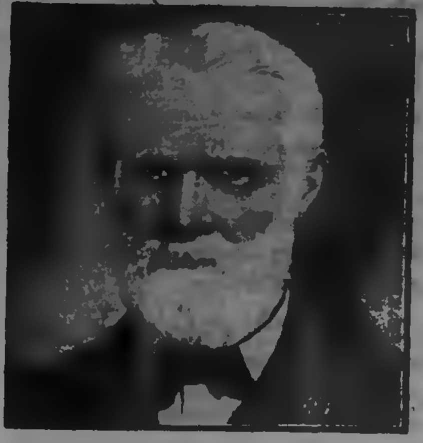
"Fruit-a-tives" Keeps Health Perfect



WILLIAM PARSONS, Esq.

OTTERVILLE, Ont.,
July 8th 1910.

"I am a seventy-nine year old man, and a great believer in, and user of "Fruit-a-tives". It is the only medicine I take, and I can truly say that "Fruit-a-tives" and exercise keep me in my present good health.

Stricture of the Bowels, was the complaint I suffered from and I found "Fruit-a-tives" to do me more good than any other remedy. My doctor advised me to stick to "Fruit-a-tives" and I have done so with the best results.

I have been in business here for a good many years and have been a resident of Otterville for over fifty years, so that if you think this little reference from me will serve to induce some others to try "Fruit-a-tives", I hereby authorise its publication.

WM. PARSON.

Obstinate Constipation, Paralysis of the Bowels and Stricture of the Bowels can never be cured by common purgatives, salts, senna, "liver pills" and oil have positively no action on the liver. They do not increase the secretion of Bile, which nature provides to move the bowels. They merely irritate the membranes lining the intestines. One may as well try to cure a headache by pounding one's head against a stone wall, as to try to cure Constipation with common purgatives. "Fruit-a-tives" is the only true liver stimulant. "Fruit-a-tives" is fruit juices and nerve tonics, and will always restore the liver to its proper condition and cure the most obstinate cases of Constipation.

THE HERO OF THE AGES; OR THE GREATEST VICTORY EVER WON

Comments on the S. S. Lessons by Evangeline

Nov. 20th—Matt. 20: 36-56

THE HERO OF THE AGES.

Before the vision of Gethsemane, which forms our lesson to-day, we bow in silent adoration. Words are meaningless to convey a true conception of its meaning. What it means to every devoted follower of Christ can be expressed only in heart throbs.

Angels and archangels veiled their faces, and the countless hosts of heaven wept as their Champion entered the arena to settle for ever the supremacy between darkness and light, death and life, hate and love.

"Now," He said, in triumph, "shall the prince of this world be cast out'."

There had been

TROUBLE IN HEAVEN.

We read of it in Rev. 12, 7-10; "The great dragon was (to be) cast out, that old serpent called the devil and satan, which deceiveth the whole world, he was (to be) cast out into the earth, and his angels with him"

The beloved disciple who had wakened up to the tremendous issues at stake when recording the Revelation said: "I heard a loud voice saying in heaven, "Now is come salvation and strength and the kingdom of our God, and the power of His Christ, for the accuser of our brethren is cast down which accused them before our God.'" (Read in Job. 1; 11, Zech. 3; 1, Luke 10; 18, John 12; 31, of the position satan held previous to this as accuser of God's people in heaven.)

Satan met his first defeat when he attempted through the Roman dragon "to devour the (Christ) child as soon as it was born." He met a second in our Lord's temptation, He was now to meet at the cross and in the resurrection, when "the Man Child who was to rule all nations was caught up to God and His throne." One has only to read the newspapers to see the defeat he is meeting with in our own day in the overthrow of his unparalleled deception of the Christian age the false church, and of paganism, and the removal of that blindness which happened into Israel which prevented them from recognising Christ as their true Messiah, as well as the Saviour of the Gentiles. Sooner than we think perhaps, will he meet his final and everlasting defeat at our Lord's second coming, for things seem to be heading up with amazing rapidity for the international crisis when the prince of this world, who for so many centuries has had it pretty much his own way on earth, will be hurled into the lake of fire. Rev. 20; 10.

With every fibre of His being quivering with holy indignation at the fearful havoc that the old serpent, in the first garden had wrought to His beautiful creation — death-sweat — thorns—pain—sorrow—He now stepped forth alone into the devil's first battle ground—the garden—to meet the hosts of darkness who had come to fling themselves against Him full force.

It was not a fist-to-fist encounter, nor a two-to-one, nor a ten-to-one, but a ten-thousand to-one conflict. All the imps of hell had formed a confederacy to down Him.

The fight that was on would decide whether

HE WAS NO MATCH FOR THE DEVIL,

as God in Eden said that He would be when in pronouncing His condemnation He predicted, "He shall bruise thy head."

It had to be settled whether God was able or not to turn him out of heaven whether He was able or not to turn him out and keep him out of the hearts of those who would rely on Him for salvation from sin. It was to be eternally settled whether he was to have everything his own way or not.

"Then cometh Jesus with them into a place called Gethsemane and saith unto His disciples, sit ye here while I go yonder to pray, and He took with Him Peter and the two sons of Zebedee and began to be sorrowful and sore troubled. Then said He unto them, My soul is exceeding sorrowful even unto death; abide ye here and watch with Me. And He went forward a little and fell on His face and prayed, saying, O My Father, if it be possible let this cup pass from me, nevertheless not as I will but as Thou Wilt."

What was in the cup to have caused such inexpressible dread!

There was in it intense physical suffering. Farrar says, "Death by crucifixion seems to include all that pain and death can have of the horrible and ghastly dizziness, cramp thirst, starvation, sleeplessness publicity of shame, continuance of torment mortification of untended wounds all intensified to the point at which they can be endured at all, but just stopping short of the point which would give to the sufferer relief in unconsciousness."

Others had seen and heard but Jews knew all about the horrors of it long before He experienced it.

Was He less of a hero then, than than many a martyr who for the love of Him braved the fires of the Inquisition with a song of triumph

That was not all. There was loneliness in the cup. The more highly organized a being is the more sensitive he is to pain. What He was about to suffer from lack of sympathetic appreciation staggered Him. The heart that had always clung with such unspeakable devotion to His Father was beginning to suffer in anticipation the agony of sin for God can not look upon sin even when laid upon His own Son.

Meyer says "When the love that had filled our life with music is suddenly silenced, when we are misunderstood, misrepresented, maligned by our dearest, when we see lover and friend stand afar off with veiled faces, when we are called to suffer through the vices and sorrows for those we love as ourselves, then may we know in a small measure what was in the cup."

He was less of a hero, then, than many a missionary who for love of Him braved loneliness unspeakable in a strange land and among an unsympathetic people.

But that was not all. The condemnation of the whole human race by a loving but righteous God was in it, and as their substitute He was to drink the bitterness of God's righteous indignation against sin. He was to bear the blame of their wrongdoings as though it were all His fault.

It was this intensity of feeling and dread which

PROVED HIS HEROISM

Indifference to danger is not the highest form of courage.

Peloubet relates an incident of two soldiers who were charging up hill with their regiment in a desperate attempt to capture a battery. When half way up one of them turned to the other and said, "I believe you are afraid."

"Yes I am," was the answer; "and if you were half as much afraid as I am you'd have run long ago."

Napoleon's attention was once called to the white face of an officer as he was rushing into an engagement, and the insinuation was made that he was a coward.

He replied, "That is the bravest officer in the army, for, though realizing more than the others his great danger he goes bravely forward into the thickest of the fight."

True heroism is not dullness of feeling, nor deadness to danger; it is the most sensitive nature, the most vivid consciousness of appalling pain and danger going deliberately right into the thick of it.

No, no had He lacked courage, He could have beckoned "twelve legions of angels" to His side. Had He lacked courage He would not have refused the anesthetic offered Him by the women at the cross.

No wonder then that it was with that He anticipated a conflict in which for a time the foe would "bruise His heel," and seem to triumph in reducing the human race to throw away heaven and hope and trample on the grandest manifestation of His love that He could possibly have given.

UNSPEAKABLE HORROR

No wonder that He was so appalled by the prospect that His poor human nature, smitten by the first great wave of anguish, shivered from stem to stern, collapsed under the strain.

Three times it seemed as though the foe might triumph, so fearful was the conflict, but victory was His.

The cup which He drained to its bitterest dregs became

THE INTERNATIONAL CHAMPIONSHIP CUP OF THE CHURCH

—the cup of blessing.

The fight was over. No longer would satan rule in the realm of the heavenlies, for he was cast out into the earth. God's will was done. He had met the king of terrors and vanquished him, though it would cost Him every drop of His life blood ultimately.

With a glad shout of triumph, "Father, glorify Thy Name," the hosts of hell fled panic-stricken to wait the final consummation of that victory when "The Lord Himself shall descend with a shout" to cast him and his hosts into that "lake that burneth with fire and brimstone."

Yes, the glad day is coming when Jesus, the Christ, will be recognized as the Hero of all ages, and when He shall reign in a world which shall be restored to the condition which He originally intended.

A MOTHER'S PRAISE

Mothers are always willing to shower their praises on a medicine that not only relieves their precious little ones from pain but removes the cause and keeps them well, bright, active and happy. Such a medicine is Baby's Own Tablets. No other medicine for little ones has received such praise from thousands of thankful mothers. These Tablets never fail to relieve the little ones from any of the many little ills that afflict them. Mrs. Thos. Hodgson, Rivier du Loup Station, Quebec, writes, "I always keep Baby's Own Tablets in the house and have given them to my two little ones with the best results. I always recommend them to my friends as they are a grand remedy." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

AN ARGUMENT

A vigorous wordy assault was directed against the Review this morning for its attitude on the navy bill.

"Why, the navy is an absolute necessity to the country," he said.

Of course this point was a matter of opinion.

"Why should Sir Wilfrid Laurier go to the country on the navy question," he continued. "The council is thinking of altering the by-law to permit a local firm to erect a big sign. Are they going to submit the question to the electoral No. The people elected them and have confidence enough in their ability to trust them with the transactions of the city's interests. The representatives at Ottawa are elected by the the people. Why, then, can't Sir Wilfrid Laurier and his government be allowed to transact the business of the Dominion with the same freedom that the people's civic representatives are permitted to have in the carrying on of the city's affairs."

"When an important matter comes before the council," ventured the reporter, "a by-law is prepared and submitted to the voters. The Canadian navy is the biggest Dominion issue of to-day. Why shouldn't the people have a say in the matter just the same as the civic electors have when an important issue is before the council and a by-law is submitted?"

"Well, you see—getting milder again, ain't it?"

"Yes. Good day."

"Good day."

Do your baking with flour made exclusively of the HIGH-GRADE constituents of the HARD-WHEAT berry

Have you ever baked with flour made exclusively of the high-grade constituents of the hard wheat berry? If you haven't, now is the time to try PURITY Flour.

Only the cream of the Manitoba hard wheat—the best wheat in the world—is used for PURITY Flour. More than that, only a portion of the flour milled from this wheat goes into the sacks and barrels branded PURITY.

PURITY Flour consists exclusively of the high-grade constituents or portions of the Manitoba hard wheat berry.

Every wheat berry has both low-grade and high-grade constituents which are separated during our process of milling. So exact is our process that it entirely eliminates all the low-grade portions from the flour which is finally branded PURITY.

The greater strength of PURITY Flour makes it go farther in the baking. With it you can make more loaves to the sack or barrel than you have ever succeeded in doing before. The loaves will be more nutritious, too, because they contain the high-quality gluten, starch, phosphates and other muscle-building and blood-enriching elements of the hard wheat berry.

Naturally flour that consists exclusively of the high-grade constituents of the best hard wheat has greater strength and nutriment, superior color, more delicate flavor.

If you'll just try to realize fully what it means to your cooking-reputation you'll soon be using PURITY Flour.

Of course, PURITY Flour will cost you a few cents more than lower-grade hard wheat flour or soft wheat flour.

But PURITY is very economical because it makes "More bread and better bread." The cost per loaf is no more than when using weaker flour, and the food value is much greater.

Tell your grocer you are in a hurry to try PURITY Flour. He will supply you promptly.

When you see the batch of beautiful snow-white loaves, with their soft, evenly-textured crumb and dainty golden-brown crust, you'll be proud of your success with PURITY Flour. When you taste and enjoy the superb flavor of such high-class bread you'll be prouder still.

If you don't want to buy a large sack or barrel, you can get a small bag. PURITY is packed in 7, 14, 24, 49 and 98 pound sacks. Also in barrels and half-barrels.

Make certain the PURITY trademark is on the sack or barrel you buy, for that is your guide to the strong, reliable, high-quality flour that makes

Dr. J. W. Browett then read the following address:

Peterborough, Nov. 18, 1910.

Dear Mr. Dunlop:

As teachers, officers and scholars of Murray street Baptist Sunday school we wish to express to you our very hearty appreciation of your services. Since your appointment on October 1st, 1907 we have enjoyed your unremitted attention to our interests. Under your direction our sessions have been characterized by promptness, system and order. You have gathered about you new and valuable workers as teachers and officers, and have won by your strong, brotherly manner the fullest confidence and co-operation of our whole school.

Your ability as a professional man has been recognized as evidencing in your advancement by the Board of Education of our city, and now the Department of Education has appointed you to a responsible position in the principal city of our province. We congratulate you upon your success, and are thankful that we have had the benefit of your guidance in the spiritual work of teaching the young to devote their lives to Christ.

We have no doubt that your talent will still be exercised in larger spheres for Him who is our Lord and Master.

We are thankful for the co-operation of Mrs. Dunlop in the Sunday school, and shall never know how much we owe her for the work accomplished.

And now as a small token of our esteem for you and Mrs. Dunlop, may we ask your acceptance of this hall clock, which bears your inscription.

(Signed)
REV. J. R. WEBB,
Pastor.
DR. J. W. BROWETT,

The clock was beautifully inscribed on an inscription plate:

"Presented to Jewellers.

Mr. Dunlop replied on behalf of himself and Mrs. Dunlop, thanking one and all for their kindness and assuring them of their continued interest in the welfare of Murray street church and Sunday school.

Letters of regret at their inability to be present were read from Messrs. T. F. Matthews, J. P. Cunningham, L. J. Petit, and others.

After the presentation refreshments were served and a social hour spent.

A vote of thanks was moved by Mr. T. Riddfell, seconded by Mr. W. G. Shiner, and was passed to Dr., Mrs. and Miss Joy Browett for their kind hospitality, and a pleasant evening was brought to a close by singing "Blest be the Tie that Binds."

AN EXCELLENT CONCERT BY POPULAR ENTERTAINER

Well Known Reciter, Assisted by Local Musicians, Gave High-class Program Last Evening.

That popular entertainer and elocutionist, Jessie Alexander, delighted a large audience last evening in the Conservatory of Music Hall, when, assisted by Miss Edna Pringle, soprano soloist, and the Conservatory orchestra, a program of exceptional merit and real worth was given by the above artists.

Miss Alexander's reception must have indeed proved gratifying. She, in addition to a pleasing personality, possesses the gift of mimicry, and a voice combining strength and sweetness so much sought after by successful professional reciters. Her dramatic interpretation of several numbers and sympathetic voice left nothing to be desired, and her work last night must have given her a warm and welcome place in the ranks of her hearers.

Miss Edna Pringle, the well-known local soprano soloist of Charlotte St. Methodist church also surpassed herself last evening, and received several appreciative encores. Her medium and lower range notes were perfect, revealing a thorough understanding of expression and a sense of harmony in keeping with the meaning of the composition.

The excellent body of musicians composing the Conservatory orchestra also interspersed the program with several selections, which proved agreeable variations in the evening's entertainment.

The first number, a stirring march by Schulz entitled "Rapez," and the "Sicilian Chimes," reverie, were probably the most popular, judging by the applause they received. The orchestra has been brought to a high degree of efficiency, and is composed of musicians thoroughly competent.

"The Coming o' the Bag Pipes," by Miss Alexander, was recited with thrilling effect, and at the tense moments she had her audience on edge with excitement, the recitation possessing that touch of militarism which was needed to add to its effectiveness.

Her ludicrous and accurate imitation of the typical Londoner's dialect was very amusing, and her encore was enthusiastic and hearty.

Her other numbers were also in the same high class, and she repeatedly was compelled to respond to encores. Should Miss Alexander have a return engagement in this city there is assured for her a flattering reception.

The following was the programme rendered last evening—

(a) March—Rapez........................Schulz

Miss Pearl McKee was accompanist for the evening, and much of the success of the various musical numbers was due to her musical skill.

MUNICIPAL GOVERNMENT DONE BY COMMISSION

The Board of Trade on Tuesday will discuss municipal Government or, Government by Commission. The World dealt with the matter editionally on Friday as follows:—

The city of Guelph is gradually being governed by commission instead of by council. They must have two or three commissions or more there now administering the public utilities and one thing or another, and now the board of trade is recommending the council to apply to the legislature for a commission of the fire department, either giving the jurisdiction to an existing commission or creating a new one.

The World believes in Government by commission and a great many other people are of the same opinion. It certainly has justified itself wherever it has been tried in the United States or in Canada. The people of Calgary in the west are also asking for government by commission.

Our suggestion therefore is that government by commission be made available by a general law, that is, that it is up to the legislature of Ontario, led by Sir James Whitney, to introduce an amendment to the Municipal Act which will give government by commission as well as by elected councils, and so, whenever a clearly expressed vote of the people is recorded in favor of government by commission the municipality can automatically avail itself of such a law.

We do not know of any act that would be so far-reaching in its effect and so productive of good as the passing of government by commission law, leaving it optional with the municipalities whether to adopt it or not. Always remember what was pointed out by one of the best English political writers some years ago: that only those countries are progressive that make experiments in government and that instead of talking about government by commission for fifty years, the thing to do is to try it in a more or less limited way for a time.

Such a law as we suggest will allow the experiment to be thoroughly made. No harm will be done to anybody and most likely the key to improved municipal governments will have been found for this country, as it has been found for others. We do not propose to load up Sir James personally with too much work, but surely he has some young man in his cabinet to do it, or he might name a little commission to draft such a law by the forthcoming session.

THE CHIMES FUND

A Detailed Statement of Its Position

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—Some statement seems to be called for in regard to the present position of the Chimes project. Through the wide generosity of some fifteen hundred present and past citizens we have now a subscription list of a little over $5,100, of which $4,400 stands to the credit of the fund in the bank. With this sum we could purchase at once and install a Chimes of ten good bells. This would be quite sufficient for church purposes, and be a good ordinary chime of about the same character as several in Ontario, and better than some others.

But in the public interest we are unwilling to order any ordinary chime unless compelled to do so. Our Peterborough bells will be unique as given by the community generally, and one of its objects accordingly will be to play those national and other airs which unite us as a community, and thereby to foster patriotism and national and civic sentiment. This feature, which under the circumstances seems so very important, will require eleven bells at least, while one or two more would be a valuable addition.

In the early stages of this big movement it was not necessary, nor was possible to set the exact sum required, and even now it is impossible to calculate exactly the cost of the tower work and incidentals, but as far as we can see, $5,600 will obtain and install eleven bells from 3,000 to 2,500 lbs. up 5,500 or 270 lbs., according to the different tenders. We have no funds or guarantees on which to fall back, so either we must order a Chime which would be disappointing to many as not having the required range, or the order must not be delayed until further support be forthcoming.

If the required sum seems large, we have to realize that it is no larger than the cost in other cities which have obtained this boon, though the cost has been quickly forgotten while the great public asset remains.

In Cobourg $5,000 was paid in connection with a much smaller chime. In Petrolia over $6,000, and in Stratford $9,000 for Chime and clock. In these and most cases the cost has been borne by a comparative few, in Petrolia and in Woodstock by one patriotic citizen. Now that we Peterborough people are doing this thing in such a united and happy fashion is it not well that we should at least attempt the very best that is possible.

The committee are carefully scanning the situation, and if the limit of public support is shown to have been reached they will expend the money already so generously given as well as they can, even though the results be below the mark set. In the meanwhile we are making no uncomfortable appeal, but merely state the present position on the chance that some other public spirited citizens may add to and render more effective what their fellow citizens have already done.

The bulk of this great work having been accomplished, there is certainly a striking opportunity now to finish it in such a way that instead of being anything ordinary, it will distinguish our city and be a pride and joy to all citizens.

Yours faithfully,
J. C. DAVIDSON.

Measure the oven bottom of other ranges—especially those with swing doors—and see if the ovens come up to this specification

"Peerless Peninsular" is a big, honestly built range—full size—with all the new conveniences of the most expensive steel ranges—and with the durability of cast-iron which is superior to steel in lasting qualities.

ROYALIST MAKES BRUTAL ATTACK ON FRENCH PREMIER

First Thought of M. Briand is For the Safety of the Man Who Attacked Him—Man Acted in Behalf of a Society of "Camelots du Roi."

Paris, Nov. 21.—Imposing national ceremonies in the Tuileries Garden yesterday, in connection with the dedication of a statue erected to the memory of Jules Ferry, the French statesman, were marred by an assault upon Premier Briand, who while walking with President Fallieres, was struck twice in the face by a royalist.

The Premier was not seriously hurt. The vast crowd in the garden set upon the Premier's assailant, and only determined intervention by the Republican Guards saved him from being beaten to death.

The incident occurred at the end of the exercises, which were attended by thousands. Premier Fallieres, M. Briand and other Ministers were walking toward the gateway, when a man broke through the Republican Guards that lined the road, leaped to M. Briand's side, and, raising his clenched fists high in the air, brought them with full force upon the Premier's face. M. Briand reeled, but did not fall. As friends rushed up to assist him, he cried: "I am all right; we must protect my assailant."

The very audacity of the assault rendered the crowd momentarily speechless, but a shout of anger and cries of "Kill him," arose quickly from all sides, as men fought their way to lay hands upon the assailant. He was kicked and beaten and badly injured before the Republican Guards, urged on by the Premier, succeeded in rescuing him.

The man was taken before a magistrate. He gave the name of Lacour, and said he was a member of the executive committee of the Camelots du Roi, an organization of young royalists, and that he wished to strike at the republic in the person of M. Briand.

The Camelots du Roi met last night, and unanimously elected Lacour vice-president of the association, in token of their sympathy and admiration for his act.

The statue to M. Ferry was erected by the public school children of France and the colonies, two million of whom each contributed one cent. The ceremonies, while honoring M. Ferry, as a statesman and upbuilder of the colonies, especially honored him as father of the public schools of France. A golden book, containing the names of the two million subscribers was placed in a receptacle beneath the statue. There was a great procession of school children and orations were delivered by Premier Briand and other noted public men.

The Passing of A Famous Man

COUNT LEO TOLSTOI.

The great Russian philosopher and philanthropist.

TOLSTOI PASSES AWAY AFTER FIVE DAYS' ILLNESS

Aged Philosopher and Writer's Family Are Around His Bedside at the Last—Has Been for Many Years a Philanthropist and a Powerful Religious Force in His Country—Was Eighty-Two Years of Age.

Astapova, Russia, Nov. 21.—Count Leo Tolstoi died peacefully yesterday morning. Countess Tolstoi was at his side when the end came. It was recognized long before that his case was hopeless, and at 5 o'clock in the morning, after the countess had been summoned and the other members of the family had gathered in an adjoining room, the physicians issued a bulletin, announcing that the activity of the heart had almost ceased, and that Tolstoi's condition was extremely dangerous. Several of the physicians were greatly overcome by the approaching death of Russia's greatest writer.

His heart beat its last apparently without a clear moment to enable him to say farewell, or cast a forgiving look upon his wife and children.

The countess all day long was unceasing in her pitiful imploring of one doctor after another to gain entrance to where Tolstoi lay.

After the first cardiac attack, Dr. Thtchurovsky promised that he would announce her presence to Tolstoi at a favorable opportunity.

The second attack came just after a two hours' sleep. The members of the family were hurriedly summoned. The condition of the patient, however, was so grave that he was put to sleep again by injections of morphine, as the only means of deferring the end. The family were then admitted for a few moments to the bedside.

Another attack occurred about three o'clock, and the family gathered again. The countess was with difficulty prevailed upon to retire. Later, when the end came, in addition to the countess, four sons and three daughters were present.

Tolstoi, accompanied only by Dr. Makovetsky, left his home as Yasnaya Polyana, for the purpose of ending his days in solitude, to which he more and more inclined during his later years. His pilgrimage led him to the monastery at Shamardine, in the Province of Kaluga, where he remained as the guest of his sister Marie, who is a nun in the cloister.

Learning that his retreat had been discovered, he insisted upon proceeding on his journey to the Caucasus, where he hoped to spend his last days, close to the Tolstoian colony on the shores of the Black Sea. But during the railroad journey he was overcome with exhaustion and the cold, and Dr. Makovetsky was compelled to have him transferred to the flag station at Astapova, where he was made as comfortable as possible in the rude wooden buildings.

For five days he had lain there, suffering first from bronchitis, and later from inflammation of the lungs. Specialists were called from Moscow and other places, but, notwithstanding their utmost efforts, the heart of the great Russian responded but feebly to the restoratives and stimulants administered.

Countess Tolstoi was admitted to the sick room for the first time Saturday night, but her husband failed to recognize her. She had hastened to the bedside, when she learned several days ago, that his illness was serious, but the physicians had deemed it advisable that she be kept away from the count, fearing that her presence might cause the patient emotion. Other members of the family were from time to time admitted to the presence of their father, and his daughter Alexandra has been in constant attendance.

Few Russians have ever more fully incarnated the contradictions as well as the qualities of the race than Count Tolstoi, who was both aristocrat and plebeian. Fewer have had his astonishing experiences or shown his extraordinary versatility.

Student and man of the world; soldier sharing in the perils of national defence; hero in the struggle against famine and death; practical philanthropist leading the movement for social betterment and civic reform; literary man, easily at the summit of his art; and religious teacher with a world-wide following — Tolstoi would have been a commanding personality in any country.

It was his genius in the intellectual field that made his power cosmopolitan, and though he wrote only Russian, his speech on any importa question was waited for and quick ed thought to the ends of the car

Tolstoi was especially a power to reckoned with in his own count Born in 1828, shortly after the s pressed insurrection of Decembri against Nicholas I., he lived to se Czar summon a representative ass bly from which, as many belie the full constitutional freedom 150,000,000 people is sooner or late emerge.

Brought up as a royalist, Tol passed with advancing years into camp of the opposition, and, altho out of touch with the revolution whose policy of violence was aga his most cherished convictions, never ceased to condemn the meth of the autocratic regime.

The stormiest period of the re movement left him unscathed. M a time suspected of complicity the conspirators, who found con in the spirit if not the letter of writings; many a time driven to expedient of publishing in the censored press of foreign lands articles which could not see the light in his own—Tolstoi swerved from his plain speech neither to the right nor to the left.

The Ban Not Removed.

St. Petersburg, Nov. 21.—The church, in the persons of the Metropolitan Antonius of St. Petersburg, Vladimir of Moscow, and Flavian of Miev, and Loukianoff, chief procurator of the Holy Synod, decided last night to leave things as they are with respect to Tolstoi. A plenary synod has not been called, and telegraphic instructions have been despatched, informing that requiems are not permissible. Burial, according to the Arthodox Church, is considered out of the question.

A MEMBER

Toronto, Nov. 12.—That the Jews of Toronto are fully in earnest with regard to having special representation in the Dominion and Ontario Parliaments and the municipal council was proven last night at a meeting of the Citizens' Independent League in the Lyric Theatre on Agnes street. The gathering was large, and the declaration of each speaker that the time had come to cut loose from both political parties was received with enthusiasm. M. Speigel was in the chair, and on the platform were many Jews who have hitherto been prominent in "the ward" as Conservative or Liberal workers.

FERRY IS SWAMPED AND FOUR PERSONS DROWNED

While John Sherwood, a Night Ferryman is Bringing a Party of Six Youths From the American Side at 2 a.m., the Boat is Filled by Wave and Sinks.

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Nov. 21.—In one of the saddest drowning accidents which ever occurred on the St. Mary's River, four young men lost their lives Saturday night, and three others of the party were saved. The drowned are: Fred. Parker, 24, son of J. Parker, Wemiss street; Cecil Brown, 17, son of Mrs. Elisabeth Brown, Grace street; Reginald Levi, 18, son of Mrs. Mary Levi, Abbott street, and John Sherwood, 45, a night ferryman, known as "Peg Leg." The rescued are: Clifford Dilks 16; Norman Tragenza, 18; Alex. Biron, 30.

The accident took place while the party of seven were returning in a rowboat from the Michigan side at two o'clock yesterday morning.

Sherwood was known as one of the most fearless men on the river, and, although he had been warned by customs and immigration officers to discontinue the practice, persisted in bringing parties across the river during prohibited hours. He was warned by a resident Saturday night, after depositing one load on the Canadian side, to refrain, but immediately left for Michigan, and, while waiting for his boatload, is said to have imbibed somewhat. The party was made up at two yesterday morning, and left the slip just above the ferry dock in a small boat, which was overloaded. A strong current sweeps around the pier on the Michigan side, throwing swift waters towards the Canadian shore. With a moderate east wind and the strong swell thus made, immediately dangerous waters were entered. Biron, who was an experienced riverman, became alarmed, when a couple of waves were shipped and suggested that the boat be bailed, and a can was procured. The members of the party were engaged in bailing when two heavy swells struck the craft and the boat immediately filled and sank.

Parker, Brown and Levi dropped in their heavy clothes and immediately disappeared, and Sherwood, who had but one leg, grasped the oars and his crutch, and made for the Canadian side. He was seen for some distance by those rescued, but eventually disappeared. Biron, Tragenza and Dilks clung to the boat, and their shouts were heard on the Michigan side. The Superior Steel Trust supply boat and the tug Sabin proceeded to the scene of the accident and rescued the men, who were all exhausted and could not have lasted much longer, as the strong current spun the boat around like a top. It is said that the barge Marquette, which had just locked through on the Michigan side, may have made the swell which swamped the boat, although Biron attributes the accident to wind and current.

The families of the young men are prostrated by the accident, and the Soo is in gloom, as all were popular. A large number of small craft were on the river yesterday with grappling irons, endeavoring to recover the bodies, but up to the present without avail.

CONSULS-GENERAL ARE VERY HUFFY

Ottawa, Nov. 21.—The feature of the drawing-room held in the Senate chamber on Saturday evening by the Governor-General and Countess Grey, was the renewed refusal of the consuls-general of foreign countries to attend. The senior consul-general in Canada is Col. J. G. Foster, representing the United States. In Ottawa, besides him, there are the representatives of China, Japan and Belgium. In Montreal there are the consuls of Germany, France, Holland, Argentine Republic, etc.

The question is one of precedence. The consults are offended that they are placed after the mayor of Ottawa, in the order in which they are presented to the Governor-General. They claim that their mission to this country is diplomatic, and that, accordingly, their status in this country is higher than mere trade representatives.

However, Canada being still a colony of Great Britain in a technical sense, the Government of Canada does not recognise them as diplomatic representatives, although on occasion they have acted on diplomatic missions, as, for instance, when Col. Foster took part in the recent negotiations regarding the tariff between Canada and the United States. The contention of the Canadian Government seems to be borne out in the case of several representatives, as they live in Montreal and not in the capital. Their mission, therefore, could hardly be diplomatic.

JOE CHAMBERLAIN WARMLY APPROVES

London, Nov. 21.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—Rt. Hon. Joseph Chamberlain has written to Mr. Balfour, warmly approving the latter's Nottingham speech. "I wish my health permitted me to take my stand on the platform with you, to promote the great national and imperial reforms, which you described. That I cannot do, but my best wishes go with you in your fight for freedom, union and progress."

Lord Roberts has postponed his resolution on imperial defence in the House of Lords, so Lord Crewe today moved the second reading of the Parliament bill. It is expected that Lord Lansdowne will take the opportunity of meeting Asquith's challenge that the Unionist proposal for reform of the House of Lords is mere spectre.

John Redmond's 200,000 "good American dollars" are playing an increasing part in the Unionist campaign. Everywhere the Government is accused of rushing the election at the bidding of the funded Irish leader. It is seriously suggested that a hat, covered with dollar signs, should be carried in derision in every constituency, kicked through the streets and burned.

FARMER MAKES GRUESOME FIND

Brantford, Nov. 21.—A farmer named William Moore made a gruesome find near Whitemans' Creek, about four miles from this city, on Saturday afternoon. The body of an unknown man was found hanging to a tree, where it had evidently been for some months. Although the surroundings had frequently been used as a picnic resort during the summer, the remains had not been discovered. An inquest has been ordered.

High Constable Kerr, who is investigating, believes the body, which was almost entirely decomposed, to have been that of an Englishman, Ernest Mitchell, whose grip and clothes, including a Masonic apron and certificate, were found in a bush a few miles from Whiteman's. Efforts are being made to identify the remains.

DEMANDS SENATOR'S WITHDRAWAL

Boston, Nov. 21.—Governor-elect Eugene N. Foss issued a statement last night in which he demands that Senator Henry Cabot Lodge withdraw from the field for re-election. In the event of a refusal, Mr. Foss declared he would go into every section of the commonwealth in a campaign to defeat the Senator.

Mr. Foss says in his statement: "His election to the Senate would be a repudiation of the great victory of the people at the last election. He was on trial as much, if not more than Governor Draper, and if he had been the condidate, my majority would have been double what it was.

"The issues on which the fight was made, on which I was elected, was honest tariff revision downward, lower duties on the necessaries of life, free raw material, untaxed food supply, reciprocity with Canada, and mere democracy in our form of government.

"We all know where Senator Lodge stands on these issues and where he has stood all these years. To re-elect him would be a step backward, and Massachusetts has never learned to walk backward."

COUNSELLOR HOYT DIES

Washington, Nov. 21.—Henry Martyn Hoyt, counsellor for the United States Department of State, died at his home here yesterday morning from peritonitis. Mr. Hoyt was taken ill in Canada while there in connection with the reciprocity negotiations between the United States and that country. Since his return to Washington last Monday, he had been confined to his home, and physicians considered the case extremely serious from the beginning.

Second Blaze In Four Days.

Niagara Falls, Nov. 21.—Fire of unknown origin did considerable damage to the Silver Oneido Community here yesterday. The fire broke out in a storeroom on the second floor of the building. This was the second blaze in the plant within four days.

LATE TICKS FROM WIRES

The missing steamer Wolverine is sunk in shallow water at Swampy Harbor. The crew are safe.

Alex. McRobb, a Brantford fireman, was fatally shot by Earl Sayles while they were out rabbit shooting.

At Whitby, for conspiracy to abduct a 16-year-old girl, Edward Finlayson, Toronto, was sentenced to 2 1-2 years, and Emma Ocamb to two years.

George Ballantyne, a young Caradoc farmer, died in Vedona Hospital, London, from a kick received from a colt on Thursday. He was 24 years of age.

Lees Court, at Favershaw, Kent, the ancestral home of the Earl of Sondes, with its priceless contents, was burned yesterday. The damage is estimated at $500,000.

Peter Kostoff, aged 22, Macedonian, was caught in the machinery of the sand tower at the Barber Asphalt Co. plant, Eastern avenue, Toronto, Saturday afternoon and crushed to death.

The steamer Royal George has been released from quarantine and arrived at Montreal. The case of illness on board has been pronounced a mild case of cholera, by Dr. Adams of Montreal.

State Superintendent of Insurance Hotchkiss of New York has authorized the Sovereign Fire Insurance Co. of Canada and the Marine Insurance Co., Ltd., London, to do business in that state.

It is reported that a British and German warship have arrived at Corinto, Nicaragua. Their presence in Nicaraguan waters, it is said, is due to the refusal of the provisional Government to recognise concessions granted by Zelaya to Englishmen and Germans.

PEACE OF PORTUGAL MENACED

Paris, Nov. 21.—A despatch to Le Temps from Lisbon says that the peace of Portugal is menaced by the attitude of groups called Carbonari, who participated in the revolution. They refuse to lay down their arms, and are embarrassing the Government by their imperious demands. They declare that they are ready to place 10,000 fighting men in the streets, if their demands are not complied with. Their leader, a naval officer named Machado, was active in the revolution.

The Government's proclamation granting the right to strike, has led to the general abuse of this prerogative, and it is feared that a strike which has been begun by the tramway workers, the river boatmen and electricians, will be followed by a strike of the railroad employes and the gas men.

A Naval Wedding.

New York, Nov. 21.—Admiral of the fleet Lord Fisher of Kilverstone K.C.B., and Rear Admiral Sir Frederick Fisher, G.C.V.O., of the British navy, were arriving passengers yesterday by the White Star liner Baltic. They will attend the wedding at Philadelphia on Tuesday of the Hon. Cecil Vavasur Fisher, Lord Kilverstone's son, and Miss Jane Morgan, daughter of Randall Morgan of that city.

Miss Morgan marries into a naval family with good grace. She is one of the few women in the world with a master mariner's license.

Apartment House Fire.

Ottawa, Nov. 21.—An apartment house and three stores at the corner of Bank and McLaren streets, owned by W. H. Wooding, were damaged to the extent of $15,000 by fire last night. The blaze was caused by a heater. Insurance on the building amounted to $7,000.

DOCTOR GETS TWENTY YEARS

San Francisco, Nov. 21.—Twenty years' imprisonment was the sentence imposed on Saturday on Dr. Robert Thompson, alias James Grant, for causing the death of Miss Eva Swan by a criminal operation. His offence was aggravated by the fact that he mutilated the girl's body so as to jam it into a trunk and then buried it in quicklime under a cottage in the suburb, which he rented for a month.

DEBATE ON THE ADDRESS

Ottawa, Nov. 21.—When the House of Commons reassembles to-day, the first item of business on the order paper to be dealt with will be the debate on the address, in reply to the speech from the throne.

The debate is not expected to be lengthy this year. H. B. McGiverin, M.P. for Ottawa, will move the address, and the seconder will be Ernest Lapointe, M.P. for Kamouraska. R. L. Borden will speak for the Opposition, and he is to be followed by Sir Wilfrid Laurier.

Vancouver Labor Temple.

Vancouver, Nov. 21.—The contract for Vancouver's Labor Temple will be signed by the Trades and Labor Council next week, and construction commenced this month. It is to be a six-storey building, and will cost $130,000.

Will Run for Mayor.

Belleville, Nov. 21.—Ald. Ackerman has announced himself as a candidate for the mayoralty for next year. He has been a member of the council for years.

THE MEXICAN INSURRECTION

Mexico City, Nov. 21.—The insurrection which was said to have been planned for yesterday against the Government of Mexico failed to materialise, although at several outside points there were minor outbreaks.

A newspaper correspondent who returned to Mexico City last night from Pueblo, said that not more than 40 persons were slain in the fight at the house of Aquilo Cerdan. Sixteen of the dead were revolutionists, he said, and the others were members of the police force, soldiers and spectators. The correspondent estimated the number of wounded at about 125, and among them were a large number of innocent spectators.

STABBED BY HER HUSBAND

Sault Ste. Marie, Nov. 21.—Mary Nipolitano, a married Italian woman, living in the Italian colony, is a patient at the general hospital, suffering from stab wounds, said to be fatal, inflicted by her husband, Peter Nipolitano, who, in a fit of jealousy, attempted to kill her.

The husband returned from a trip out of town, and, finding a number of men in the house, attacked the woman with a knife. She proceeded to the river front, and was in the act of throwing herself into the water, when frustrated by passers-by.

The husband took to the woods, and has not yet been apprehended.

Laurier Is Sixty-Nine.

Ottawa, Nov. 21.—Sir Wilfrid Laurier, on the occasion of his 69th birthday, yesterday received cables of congratulation from King George, Mr. Joseph Chamberlain, Gen. Louis Botha, Premier Asquith and many others. A large number of people called at his house, to convey their congratulations personally.

Wants Bigger Discount.

London, Nov. 21.—Mayor Beattie, at a meeting of the water commissioners Saturday, urged a 25 per cent. discount in power rates, instead of a 10 per cent., claiming that the city would not compete with the reduction made by the London Electric Co.

TOLSTOI IS DEAD

Tolstoi is dead.

When will we have another such great man?

We have novelists in every garret. Read to-day, they are forgotten to-morrow.

Great men are rare.

They are pitiably few.

Tolstoi was one of the FEW intellectual giants of his age.

When a giant in mind passes away the world is poorer than when a great millionaire goes from us.

We have lost a great man who will now know what long has baffled him—THE BEYOND.

A FARMER'S CLUB

They have organized a Farmers' Club at Zion. This is a splendid move. Farmers' Clubs beget statesmen, city-men, big men. Our greatest men come from near the soil, and from the solitudes of the farm and country. The Farmers' Club is the place where one can think on his feet and debate, and argue intelligently. Many a member of parliament first heard the sound of his voice in public at a Farmers' Club.

BLOOD IS THE PRICE

Another brilliant aviator has met a horrible death, being smashed into a poor broken head in the presence of a crowd of onlookers. Is the game worth the candle?—Stratford Herald.

Yes, the game is worth the candle. Is Canada worth the candle. The candle, was the toll of many lives, the pioneers who died fighting the Indians, the wolves, the bears, the hardships. Anything worth while costs blood. The path of progress is through pain. None of our discoveries but that came by blood. Is China open, is Japan, is South Africa? Blood was the price. Are we crossing the ocean in safety. Blood was the price. We have explored the depths of the sea in submarines. Blood was the price. We must win the air. It will take blood, but we must win it, and blood will be the price.

THE COMING MAN

An Orillia bridegroom, immediately after the wedding, went upon a wedding tour alone, leaving his bride to fix up the house and get it into shape for housekeeping. Can it be possible that "the coming man" has been discovered?

We are of the opinion that quiet weddings at home or in the church, are vastly more desirable than these splashes. It's very few fellows who can afford to make a BIG NOISE when they are wedded. As for her, unless she is a VAIN bird, she naturally desires a quiet wedding. But her parents her brothers and sisters don't want to be outdone. There was a SPLASH up the street, and Mary Jane has to splash also. And the wedding tour! By the wailing wall of Jerusalem, how many a poor groom has put on a front at a wedding he could ill afford. Married quietly and spent the honeymoon at the new furnished nest at home. Isn't this more sensible than putting out a bluff and charging the hack hire and borrowing money for the trip? It looks that way.

—Life.

Next Thursday the American Republic will celebrate Thanksgiving Day. Our Thanksgiving is over. Many of us had nothing specially to be thankful for, except for the fact that we were alive and healthy. After all that's the main thing in life, abounding health. We are so healthy that we can't find time on Thanksgiving Day to be thankful. DOESN'T LIFE HIT IT OFF RIGHT?

In 1810 our American cousins then enemies, were fighting hardship and living near to the Infinite whatever the infinite may be. In 1910 the descendants are multimillionares or paupers in comparison. Churches are everywhere, the church bells will ring next Thursday in Uncle Sam's land, but the millions will not attend, they will go to the matinee, to the football match, to the bar, anywhere but the church. Yes, a few will go to church, but Uncle Sam, great in his own mind, doesn't feel the need of being particularly thankful now. It's money, riches, power and pleasure. Thanksgiving Day has LOST its significance across the line.

WHY IS IT?

"It's easier to raise $1,000 through a football or hockey game than through a meeting in aid of foreign missions," says the clergyman. And he is right.

"It is easier to bring 500 young men together at a prize fight than at a young men's debate," declared the Y.M.C.A. worker. And he is right.

"It's a lot easier to induce women to read the society column of the newspapers than it is to get them to read the church column," laments the woman church worker.

"Yes," sums up the pessimist, in lugubrious accents, "it's easier to get people to do empty-headed things, and bad things, than it is to induce them to do sensible things, and good things."

This is right. The empty-headed tendencies are the line of least resistance; they're human tendencies, some way or other.—Ottawa Free Press of them would take?"

Stewart Edward White

h, yes!"

Vell, then we'll figure how many driving there is for each, and many men there are, and what it for wages, grub, tools. We'll just to figure as near as we can to the ual cost and then add a margin for fit and for interest on our investnt."

Amanda now announced dinner.

Newmark looked puzzled and as he rose glanced surreptitiously at his atch. Orde seemed to take the summons as one to be expected, however. fact, the strange hour was the ual Sunday custom in the Redding that day and had to do with the church freedom of Amanda and like.

THREE LIVE SUBJECTS

Three Peterborough parsons talked on live subjects yesterday. The Harlot, The Theatre, and Prison Reform were discussed by Rev. Mr. Pogue, Rev. W. C. Riddiford and Rev. Charles Carpenter, respectively.

Mr. Pogue said that harlots were not all bad, and that the crime of prostitution, although decried by the public, was not condemned any more in the Bible than many other evils that we wink at as a people. THIS IS TRUE. If a woman falls she falls by LOVE. If she is to be won again LOVE must win her. Drawing in the skirts is devilish, and the woman who draws away from a fallen sister is certainly no candidate for heaven.

Rev. Mr. Carpenter believed in capital punishment, but not in hanging or electrocution. He believed in putting the felon to death by sleeping him away. This is certainly a humane way "TURN ON THE GAS." The gas is turned on and the murderer goes to sleep and does not wake up. We do not hang, or shoot or electrocute impounded dogs in big cities. They sleep them to death. Is a man less than a dog? "Walking to the scaffold with a firm step" is A RELIC OF THE DARK AGE. Electrocution is a slight advance. There was a tense movement when the current was turned on and the body became rigid. This is barbarous. The unfortunate man fell asleep peacefully. He will never wake up. Isn't this more in accord with THE SPIRIT OF THE TIMES:

Rev. Mr. Riddiford's sermon was rational. He did not condemn the theatre wholesale. He did not fly off at half cock like many people who never saw a good show, but who believe the way to the theatre is the entrance to hell. Mr. Riddiford held that some plays were good and leave a lesson not soon to be forgotten. Many plays were bad and the need for reformation was apparent.

However, people generally seem to prefer to go to the theatre and pay fancy prices rather, than give a nickel to the Lord at church on Sunday. Why is it? Is the church to blame?

CENSUS OF MANUFACTURES

On first of June next a census will be taken of the manufactures of Canada. It will ascertain the capital employed in works in 1910, together with the value of lands, buildings and plant, the kind or class of products of the works by quantity or number of finished articles and their value in the year.

These statistics will relate generally to factories employing five hands or more during the year, but in such industries as flour and grist mills, brick works, saw and shingle mills, electric light and power plants, and a few others where the value of products is large in proportion to the number of persons employed returns will be required without regard to the number of employees. The employees of works will include managers, superintendents, etc., on salaries; officers, clerks, etc., on salaries; operatives or workers classed as over and under 16 years on wages, and piece-workers employed outside of the works.

Salaries, wages and payments to all officers and employees will be entered on the schedule for the census year by sex, and will include the aggregate weeks employed in the year, average hours of working time per week, and aggregate wages paid to them in the year. The aggregate weeks of time and the aggregate wages paid will refer to the whole body of employees for the year, while the average hours of working time will refer to an average computed for all employees in the year for one week only. For piece-workers outside of the works the statistics are required to show by sex the aggregate payments made to this class in the year, and also the aggregate value of their products.

The power employed in the works will show the number and horse power of steam, gas and gasoline engines, water wheels and electric motors, as well as the power sold to or bought from other public or private companies. The fuel used at the works will show the quantity of coal, wood or other fuel and its value laid down at the works, including transportation and duties. The coal will be classified by measure to show whether it is foreign or Canadian.

Custom work and raw materials will be reported by kind or class, and entries will be made to show amounts received in the year for custom work and repairs, and the cost, value of raw or partly finished materials used at the works.

The kind or class of products of the works in 1910 will be entered by separate name if more than one is made, the quantity or number of each finished article and the value of separate products in the year.

The aim of this record is to show the extent and variety of manufactures in each province and district; but it will be understood that the statistics as compiled and published will give away no records of individual business. Totals will be published only where three or more industries of a class or kind are reported.

All information here referred to will be collected by enumerators on schedule No 9.

The census of the dairy industry, relating to the production of butter, cheese, cream and condensed milk will be taken on schedule No 12, and will show for each kind of product its quantity and selling value, and the quantity of milk and cheese used for conversion at the factories, the number of patrons, and the amount of money distributed to them in the year.

CREMATION

St. Thomas Times.

A young couple married. She loved him madly. He loved her devotedly. The good die young, and he died. She did not bury him; she had him cremated, and his ashes placed in an urn. In the course of time young fellows came courting her, and tried to persuade her that they ought to pay for her board, but she said her heart was with the ashes in the urn, and they withered away into thin air. But there was one desperate and persistent fellow who hung around after all the others had left, and finally she married him to get rid of him—a sort of defensive movement. She grew to love him without knowing anything about it, and he didn't know it either.

One day it rained and next morning the steps were coated with ice. As he opened the door to go to the office she saw the condition of the steps, and a great wave of love swept over her, and she rushed and got the urn and sprinkled her first husband on the steps, so that the second husband could walk down in safety. That is love.

This is a clever little skit. There is little doubt, however, that cremation will one day be the most desirable method of dealing with the dead. It is the most healthy. It is sure against death by burial. There are a startling number of people who have been buried alive, and who, on the grave being re-opened, have been found with their hair pulled out, their fingers bitten. Cremation is growing in practice. Cremation is sane and sensible. An urn with the ashes of the beloved in it is more preferable than a hole in the ground and food for the worms.

The Riverman

By Stewart Edward White

"It would depend on the driving firm," said Orde. "You see mill men have got to have their logs. They can't afford to take chances. It would not pay."

"Then that's all right," agreed Newmark, with a gleam of satisfaction across his thin face. "Would you form a partnership with me having such an object in view?"

Orde laughed.

"I guess you don't realize the situation," said he. "We'd have to have a few little things like distributing booms and tugs and a lot of tools and supplies and works of various kinds."

"Well, we'd get them."

"How much are you worth?" Orde inquired bluntly.

"Twenty thousand dollars. How much capital would we have to have?" asked Newmark.

Orde thought for several minutes.

"We would need somewhere near $75,000," he estimated at last.

"That's easy," cried Newmark. "We'll make a stock company—say 100,000 shares. We'll keep just enough between us to control the company—say 51,000. I'll put in my pile, and you can pay for yours out of the earnings of the company."

"That doesn't sound fair."

"You pay interest," explained Newmark. "Then we'll sell the rest of the stock to raise the rest of the money."

"I must have something to live on," said Orde thoughtfully at last.

"So must I," said Newmark. "We'll have to pay ourselves salaries, of course, but the smaller the better at first. You'll have to take charge of the men and the work and all the rest of it. I don't know anything about that. I'll attend to the incorporating and the routine, and I'll try to place the stock. You'll have to see first of all, whether you can get contracts from the logging firms to drive the logs."

"How can I tell what to charge them?"

"We'll have to figure that very closely. You know where these different drives would start from and how long each of them would take?"

"Oh, yes!"

"Well, then we'll figure how many days' driving there is for each, and how many men there are, and what it costs for wages, grub, tools. We'll just have to figure as near as we can to the actual cost and then add a margin for profit and for interest on our investment."

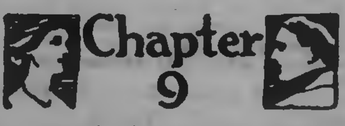
Amanda now announced dinner.

Newmark looked puzzled and as he arose glanced surreptitiously at his watch. Orde seemed to take the summons as one to be expected, however. In fact, the strange hour was the usual Sunday custom in the Bedding of that day and had to do with the late church freedom of Amanda and her like.

"Come in and eat with us," invited Orde.

But Newmark declined.

"Come up tomorrow night, then, at half past 6 for supper," Orde urged him. "We can figure on these things a little."



Chapter 9

"I THINK I'll go see Jane Hubbard this evening," Orde remarked to his mother as he arose from the table.

Every Sunday Jane Hubbard offered to all who came a "Sunday night lunch," and the refreshments were served by the guests themselves. Orde found about the usual crowd gathered. Jane herself, tall, deliberate in movement and in speech, kindly and thoughtful, talked in a corner with Ernest Colburn, who was just out of college and who worked in a bank. Orde, standing in the doorway, looked upon quite the usual thing, only he missed the Incubus. Searching the room with his eyes, he at length discovered that incoherent, desiccated, but persistent youth vis-a-vis with a stranger. Orde made out the white of her gown in the shadows, the willowy outline of her small and slender figure and the gracious forward bend of her head.

"So you're back at last, are you, Jack?" drawled Jane in her lazy, good natured way. "Come and meet Miss Bishop. Carroll, I want to present Mr. Orde."

Orde bowed ceremoniously. The girl inclined gracefully her small head with the glossy hair. The Incubus, his sallow face twisted in a wry smile, held to the edge of his chair with characteristic pertinacity.

"Well, Walter," Orde addressed him genially, "are you having a good time?"

"Yes, indeed!"

His chair was planted squarely to exclude all others. Orde surveyed the situation with good humor.

"Going to keep the other fellow from getting a chance, I see."

"Yes, indeed!"

Orde bent over and, with great ease, lifted Incubus, chair and all, and set him facing Mignonne Smith and the croquet ball.

"Here, Mignonne," said he, "I've brought you another assistant."

He returned to the lamp to find the girl, her dark eyes alight with amusement, watching him intently.

"Walter is a very bright man in his own line," said Orde, swinging forward a chair, "but he mustn't be allowed any monopolies."

"How do you know I want him so summarily removed?" the girl asked him.

"Well," argued Orde, "I got him to say all he ever says to any girl, 'Yes, indeed!' so you couldn't have any more conversation from him. Besides, I want to talk to you myself."

"Do you always get what you want?" inquired the girl.

Orde laughed.

"Any one can get anything he wants if only he wants it bad enough," he asserted.

"Some people," she amended. "However, I forgive you. I will even flatter you by saying I am glad you came. You look to have reached the age of discretion. I venture to say that these boys' idea of a lively evening is to throw bread about the table."

Orde flushed a little. The last time he had supped at Jane Hubbard's that was exactly what they did do.

"They are young, of course," he said, "and you and I are very old and wise."

"Now, tell me, what do you do?"

"What do I do?" asked Orde, puzzled.

"Yes. Everybody does something out west here."

"I'm a river driver just now."

"A river driver?" she repeated. "Why, I've just been hearing a great deal about you from Mrs. Baggs."

"Oh!" said Orde. "Then you know what a drunken, swearing, worthless lot of toughs we are, don't you?"

"There is Hell's Half Mile," she reminded him.

"Oh, yes," said Orde bitterly, "there's Hell's Half Mile! Whose fault is that? My rivermen's—my boys? Look here! I suppose you couldn't understand it if you tried a month. But suppose you were working out in the woods nine months of the year. Suppose you slept in rough blankets on the ground or in bunks, ate rough food, never saw a woman or a book, undertook work to scare your city men up a tree, risked your life a dozen times a week in a tangle of logs, with the big river roaring behind just waiting to swallow you; saw nothing but woods and river, were cold and hungry and wet and so tired you couldn't wiggle. And then suppose you hit town, where there were all the things you hadn't had, and the first thing you struck was Hell's Half Mile. Say, you've seen water behind a jam, haven't you? Water power's a good thing in a mill course, where it has wheels to turn, but behind a jam it just rips things. Oh, what's the use talking? A girl doesn't know what it means. She couldn't understand."

"I think I begin to understand a little," said she softly. "But they are a heartless class in spite of all their courage, aren't they?"

"Heartless!" exploded Orde. "There's no kinder lot of men on earth. There isn't a man on that river who doesn't chip in five or ten dollars when a man is hurt or killed, and that means three or four days' hard work for him. And he may not know or like the injured man at all. Why"—

"What's all the excitement?" drawled Jane Hubbard behind them. "Can't you make it a to be continued in our next? We're most starved."

"Yes, indeed!" chimed the Incubus.

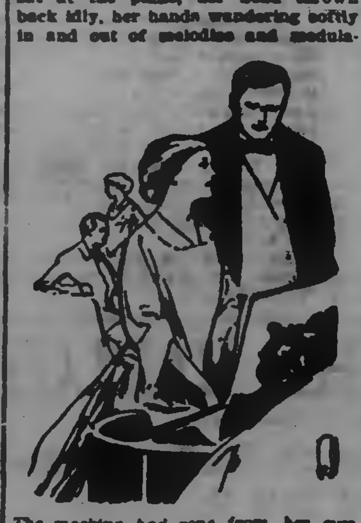
To Orde's relief no one threw any bread, although the whole hearted fun grew boisterous enough before the close of the meal.

In spite of her half scornful references to "bread throwing" Miss Bishop joined with evident pleasure in the badinage.

After the meal was finished Orde, with determination, made his way to Miss Bishop's side. She turned to the piano, struck a few chords, and then, her long hands wandering idly and softly up and down the keys, she smiled at them over her shoulder.

Song followed song, at first quickly, then at longer intervals. The girl still sat at the piano, her head thrown back idly, her hands wandering softly in and out of melodies and modulations. Orde finally saw only the shimmer of her white figure and the white outline of her head and throat. At last her hands fell in her lap. She sat looking straight ahead of her.



The mocking had gone from her eyes and mouth.

Orde came to her.

"That was a wonderfully beautiful thing," said he. "What was it?"

She turned to him, and he saw that the mocking had gone from her eyes and mouth, leaving them quite simple, like a child's.

He hesitated and stammered awkwardly. "It was so still and soothing it made me think of the river sometimes about dusk. What was it?"

"It wasn't anything. I was improvising."

"You made it up yourself?"

"It was myself, I suppose. I love to build myself a garden and wander on until I lose myself in it. I'm glad there was a river in the garden—a nice, still, twilight river."

At this moment the outside door opened to admit Mr. and Mrs. Hubbard, who had, according to their usual Sunday custom, been spending the evening with a neighbor. The company began to break up.

Orde pushed his broad shoulders in to screen Carroll Bishop from the others.

"Are you staying here?" he asked.

"I'm visiting Jane."

"Are you going to be here long?" was Orde's next question.

"About a month."

"I am coming to see you," announced Orde. "Good night."

He took her hand, dropped it and followed the others into the hall, leaving her standing by the lamp. She watched him until the outer door had closed behind him. Jane Hubbard, returning after a moment from the hall, found her at the piano again, her head slightly one side, playing with painful and accurate exactness a simple one finger melody.

Reaching his home, Orde walked confidently to the narrow stairs and ascended them. Subconsciously he avoided the creaking step, but outside his mother's door he stopped, arrested by a greeting from within.

"That you, Jack?" queried Grandma Orde.

"Mother," said he abruptly, "I've met the girl I want for my wife."

Grandma Orde sat up in bed.

"Who is she?" she demanded.

"Her name is Carroll Bishop," said Orde, "and she's visiting Jane Hubbard."

"Yes, but who is she?" insisted Grandma Orde. "Where is she from?"

Orde stared at her in the dim light.

"Why, mother, blest if I know that!"

LAID AT REST

On Saturday afternoon at two o'clock an impressive funeral service was held at the home of the late lamented Harry Cox, 496 Rogers street, whose death occurred on Thursday.

The funeral was largely attended and evidenced the general feeling of regret expressed by the community at the death of such a generally respected resident. Floral offerings of wreaths and anchors were numerous and beautiful. The service at the residence was followed by a still more solemn ceremony at St. Luke's church, conducted by Rev. Dr. Langfeldt and Rev. E. H. Coon.

The deceased was a much beloved and energetic member of Court Chemong, Independent Order of Foresters, and at the funeral on Saturday that body was represented by quite a number of the members, who followed the remains to their last resting place in Little Lake cemetery.

DR. CRIPPEN MUST DIE

(Special Cable To The Review.)

Dr. H. H. Crippen must die on the gallows, Wednesday, for the murder of his wife, Belle Elmore Crippen.

His last hope of escape was swept away to-day, when home secretary, Winston Churchill, held ineffective the petition praying commutation of Crippen's death sentence.

Crippen when informed of the House Secretary's decision said: "I Will Soon be With my Father, I am Ready for the End."

He added, "I Shall Die With the Firm Conviction That, Eventually, the Proof of my Innocense Will Some Day Become Known."

A LIVE CONSERVATIVE CLUB; FINE PROSPECTS FOR WINTER; MEETING ON SATURDAY NIGHT

The Conservative Club bids fair to have a prosperous and lively winter. A large number are signing the membership roll, and the spacious, well-warmed and well-lighted rooms will be the scenes of much activity, both political and social, this season.

Mr. C. N. Brown is an energetic and ever-popular president.

Throughout the season informal meetings will be held on Saturday evenings in which what has taken place before Parliament during the week will be discussed, also affairs of the deepest interest at the present time.

On Saturday evening Mr. J. H. Burnham, Captain White and others addressed those present. The many reciprocity and other questions were dealt with.

Take in Turn Rule—

Mr. Burnham said—"I think I have some fair degree of knowledge of the history of Canada, but not in anything I have read is there even an approach to the present crisis in our Canadian affairs. Sir Wilfrid Laurier acquiesces boldly in the doctrine that the church is superior to the state in everything. If to-morrow his church told him that he was steering in the wrong direction politically, he would put about and do as (what he terms himself to be) a loyal and a fervent Catholic" should. While every man has a perfect right to profess any religion he sees fit to profess, he must stop short of preaching or acting treason to the state, if we are to preserve our liberties. What are tariffs, navies, treaties or political opinions in comparison to liberty? For my own part I will vote for no man, Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Mr. Borden, or anybody else who does not make it clear that no one set of religious people shall govern, by divine right, any other set in regard to their opinions, whether religious or political. Recent events, both here and at the Vatican disclose a state of affairs that must alarm all people who are not asleep or hopelessly steeped in political partyism. The Pope said (Catholic Register, Sept. 29, 1910) "He (Pope Leo XIII) censured a form of democracy which goes so far in its perversity as to attribute sovereignty to the people." And then Father Vaughan, the distinguished Jesuite, says, (Catholic Record, October 20, 1910) "I tell you there is no army in the world so thoroughly organized so ready for service, so absolutely reliable, as the Catholic Church."

And then, to make it still plainer, Mr. Bourassa said at the Eucharistic Congress, with Sir Wilfrid Laurier beside him on the platform, "Canadian statesmen have assured the representatives of the head of the Catholic Church, that here in Canada the State bows to the supreme authority of the church." Surely this, then, is the real issue. Our leaders have acknowledged the supremacy of the Catholic hierarchy over the State. Who, then, are our real rulers? Have we not a right to ask ourselves this question? Is this new move of the church not an auger to popular liberty? Or have we decided to look in future for guidance to this great and powerful ecclesiastical organization? Was it not easy for our chief and leading representatives to contradict all rumors by saying which side they are on, that of the hierarchy or that of the people? They have declared, you say. Yes, some of them have spoken and the church has been assured of their "loyal and fervent" submission. And when we use the word 'submission' it is well to remember that submission is the word the church itself employs. It means a great deal."

THE LEAGUE OF GOODFELLOWSHIP

The attendance at the League of Goodfellowship is still growing, the Princess Theatre being fairly well filled yesterday afternoon. The subject chosen was "Prison Reform." The Rev. C. Carpenter in his opening address said that he had chosen this subject on account of the day being set apart, throughout the diocese for special intercession for prisoners. He found many difficulties, he said, in considering the question of prisoners, and prison reform. There are three classes of prisoners, the weak, the vicious, and midway between the two, the intellectual. He considered the great majority to be of the "weak" class. Many through faulty training in childhood, and the absence of true home life, and others were the dupes of cunning, unscrupulous companions, and often the dupe is in prison whilst the real offender goes free. A great difficulty exists in the case of young lads, for if they are fined, the punishment really falls on the parents or the family and if they are sent to prison, their families possibly suffer by the absence of the lad's earnings, and they themselves become tainted by prison life and often fairly started on the course of the habitual criminal.

He advocated flogging (but not in the degraded fashion of the "cat-'o-nine-tails") as really the most humane treatment in the end and as acting as a deterrent by fear of future floggings.

Then as to the vicious, men who commit crimes against the person it seemed when there were only two alternatives. One was to make a man suffer through his skin, the other to confine him in a lunatic asylum. For undoubtedly many of the perpetrators of the numberless, horrible crimes which shock our senses, are on this particular point at any rate insane.

Amongst the intelligent prisoners, he classed forgers, embezzlers and bogus agents and advertisers, who lure on the poor and the ignorant to make themselves rich. Fining this kind of criminal is quite useless, and the state should investigate the bonafides of such advertisers, and publish a "black list" of these deliberate swindlers, without waiting for some individual who has been bitten, to prosecute. Severe punishment should be meted out to offenders of this kind.

In the case of murder, he was in favor of capital punishment, but not not by the inhuman method of hanging: nor yet by electrocution, but by a lethal chamber, where the prisoner would go to sleep to wake no more. He suggested that juveniles should be confined in a reformatory, and that prisoners should be allowed to work upon such labor that they might earn enough to support their families during their own incarceration.

He finally suggested more drastic treatment of petty offenders to whom detention was no punishment, but who regarded prison, much as a winter home.

An interesting discussion followed Messrs. Powell and Sharpe sang a duet "Star of the East."

"RAHAB THE HARLOT"

Subject of Sermon in St. Paul's Church---Big Crowd Hear It.

"By faith the harlot Rahab, perished, not with them that believed not, when she had received the spies with peace."—Heb. 11, 31.

Those who had the opportunity of hearing Rev. Robert Pogue last evening in St. Paul's church, preach on the above text, listened to one of the ablest sermons delivered in Peterborough for a long time.

DOORS OF THE CHURCH SHOULD BE OPEN.

In beginning his sermon he stated that some commentators had sought to substitute another word for the word harlot, as there would be some who would seek to show that Christianity was an immoral religion. But, it is now the glory of the church and of Christianity that her doors are always wide open to all classes of people.

CHRIST CAME TO SAVE SINNERS.

The sins of the harlot might not be any more heinous than other sins known by other names. Rahab was no more a child of the Evil One before her knowledge of God, than are many others who have sought the forgiveness of God, and are sanctified by the blood of Jesus Christ. We should remember that it was just to save such characters that Jesus Christ came into the world. The story of the harlot is an evidence of the goodness of God. When we see men in the gutter and women who have lost their purity, we pull in our skirts. But while we hate their sin, we should love the sinner.

In the great sea of humanity, there are men and women who are sunken in sin, and if you and I have the spirit of God we will go down after them.

THE HARLOT'S CHARACTER.

First she was a harlot. She was defiled both in body and mind. Second, she was a liar, and a lie is a lie and every lie is as black as hell and no amount of whitewashing can make a lie a white lie. Thirdly, she was a traitor.

She was clever, but real cleverness in itself has no moral good. There is something in every man and woman worth saving. The soul of the most lowly man in the world cost the blood of Jesus.

CLEVER, SINFUL MEN ARE POWERFUL.

There are men who have gone to the extremes of sin because they were clever. These men saved could be mighty for God. When the grace of God gets hold of souls like these they are worth twenty ordinary men. By their wit and cleverness they could exert a mighty influence for God. Men like these have been known to do more when converted to God than dozens of others. Still the facts above stated do not put a premium on sin. God came here to lay hands on brains that they might be of use to Him.

DO NOT WASTE YOUR TALENTS.

There are congregations and ministers who lay over-emphasis on the salvation of the soul, but the religion of Jesus Christ stands for the salvation of life and the cultivation of the beautiful. A man who has the gifts of art and music and other gifts, should not waste their talents on that which is useless and light. It is the same with brains. The above statement is used of course in its widest signification.

THE CONVERTED HARLOT.

There were gleams of gold in the character of the harlot Rahab. Although she was a liar and a traitor yet she in all her sin did more for God in her way than some church members. She did a mighty work for God when converted. The inspired penman gives pages to her, where only lines to another.

"When the angels of God write your life, how much space will you receive?" Possibly there are others who socially, you would not touch, yet pages will be filled by the angels with what they accomplished.

RELIGION DOES NOT AFFECT THEM.

There are men and women who, sitting in the pews and listening to the words of pleading, will be quickened into paths of good and begin to live the life of Christ and there will be others sitting beside you, who will regard it with frivolity.

Then the harlot because she was a woman of intellect, began to reason. She began to have faith.

FAITH WITHOUT WORKS.

Faith without works is dead. The harlot coupled works with faith and showed from her window by a sign that she was a believer in God. She besought the two disciples of God to save her and her father and mother and sisters and brothers.

How many are there, professed Christians, brought up in Christian homes who have shut themselves in and prayed God to save father, mother, brother or sister.

Rahab, although a harlot, when converted, became a lady, an elect lady.

When Joshua and his hosts came against Jericho, the token of God was hung from her window and she was saved.

ARE YOUR DEAR ONES SAVED?

"In the days coming when judgment will be meted out will God know you by your token of faith? Around you are your friends; are they saved? Oh if you would only emulate Rahab when she was converted. There are all around you, parents, children, friends, unsaved. Time is flying and when you and I kneel at the Great White Throne, what shall you be able to say. Where are the men and women you have saved?

CHRISTMAS EVE AT BE

Continuation of Descriptive Articles on the Holy L

We never spent such a Christmas eve before! At 9 p.m., shortly after table de'hote at our hotel outside the Jaffa gate of Jerusalem we started for Bethlehem, the spot of all others in the world to visit on Christmas Eve.

It was one of the most brilliant moonlight nights I have ever known. I think I could have read by that moonlight! We had a good Syrian driver, a pair of perfect little Arabian horses and a native carriage with excellent spring and all these combined to give us a marvellous drive that night, a drive which would have made the hair of an English coachman stand sheer on end. We started off at a hard gallop which increased in speed every minute. We dashed down past David's Tower and the steep citadel swinging round the sharp curve by the Birket or Sultan or lower pool of Gibon. Then up the opposite hill we galloped, past the station into the Bethelem road through the Rephain Plain. We whizzed past trees and stone fences till the wind whistled in our ears. The glorious moonlight and the keen fresh air with just a suspicion of frost in it raised the spirits of our spirited little steeds so that they needed no touch of that long cracking whip, the driver simply shook his reins and gave that peculiar long "y-u-u-u-p" deep down in his throat with the Arabic driver affect and on we sped faster and faster. We swung round corners and bumped, jumped and thumped over the holes in the road, which was really good for a Turkish road, till at last we drew rein at the Convent of Mar Elias to breathe the horses. This gave me time to look around at the surrounding scenery and to draw breath myself for the rushing rate at which we had been doing had quite taken it away.

We had noticed the fields of Rephaim, the valley of the giants, spreading out in the moonlihgt as we left Jerusalem and now we saw how beautifully undulating was the land all around with picturesque olive yards sloping down on every side till they were lost in the shadows of the valley beneath. The whole country is very lovely and looked more so in the moonlight to-night than when we had seen it three years before in the daylight. This Convent of Mar Elias is built on the spot where tradition says Elijah rested on his flight to Horeb. Last time they showed us a marvellous stone on which he slept and which bears the impress of his body. These holy men of old, according to some modern traditions, must have had wonderfully hard bodies of ponderous weight for they left their impress everywhere on stone, often on granite. Such for stance as Mahomet's impress of fi and foot on the granite under dome of the rock, and St. Peter's on the wall of the Mamertine Prison in Rome, and even with our Lord, wh is said to have left the impress o of His feet on Mount Olivet at His ascension. How can such silly superstitions be still held in this 20th century.

At Mar Elias also is the well of the Maji near which they are said to have rested on their way to Bethlehem to find the young Bable who was to be king of the Jews, and in the waters of which they first re-discovered the guiding star to their great joy.

Then we started off again, soon picking up the same speed, galloping up and down the hills and passing at flying pace Rachel's Tomb which looked picturesque enough in the moonlight. It is the usual Moslem erection with a domed roof, but very probably does cover the spot where Jacob laid to rest the beloved of his heart. This tomb we also visited three years ago and then we were most fortunate in doing what few travellers have the chance of, viz: getting inside and seeing the sarcophagus of whitewashed plaster over stone. That sight I shall never forget. A number of Russian Jews and Jewesses, mostly the latter, who had lost sons and relatives in the Jewish massacres, which were then taking place in Russia, had been admitted and they were weeping and wailing around that tomb as only Orientals can. The women were beating their breasts and the men tearing their garments, wild shrill cries filled the air and real tears were streaming down their furrowed cheeks. Rachel weeping for her children and would not be comforted because they are not. Matt II., 18.

Soon the lights of Bethlehem are visible and then we rattle down the narrow street where there is only larger and more roomy part of the cave where Jerome of Latin Vulgate fame meditated, and wrote and lived for many of the 90 years of his life, 331 to 420, A.D., was locked to-night on account of the thronging crowds so our guide took us across the Roman Catholic portion of the church that we might descend by their own particular staircase into the grottoes. As we passed through the church we noticed many of the women of Bethlehem in their peculiarly picturesque costume worshipping here, but most of the people in this large and handsome church were walking about and talking and did not at all impress one with their reverence. Indeed, the sacred surroundings were rather spoilt to us by an incongruous element when we got down into Jerome's grotto, first because our guide would talk such absurd English. It was quite impossible to repress a smile when as he showed us the tomb of Paula, the devoted adherent and lady friend of Jerome, he gravely informed us that her "Porken" was buried beside her, he meant her daughter. Exactly opposite to Paula's tomb is that of Jerome. I

LET IT DROP

This pro. hockey business is becoming tiresome and should be shelved. Saturday's despatch to the Review stated that Peterborough would be represented in the Eastern Ontario League. The meeting was held in Port Hope Friday night, and Saturday's Port Hope Guide in the report of the proceedings says:

"The professional hockey league will go, notwithstanding the many reports to the contrary. Representatives from Trenton, Picton, Belleville and Port Hope met here last night, and just as the business was concluded, Peterborough wired that they intended to enter a team and asked to be included in the schedule. The schedule, however, had been arranged, but at the next meeting it will be amended and the Peterborough club given dates."

The Belleville Intelligencer of the same date goes further and says:—

"The rink manager at Peterborough 'phoned that he had been out of town for three weeks and was not responsible for the stories which had appeared in the Peterborough papers. He said he wanted to enter the league and would produce a team. The Association decided to take the matter into consideration."

The Review called up Mr. Jack Meharry, the manager of the local rink, this morning, and was informed that no such statements were made by him.

Let us hope that the last of this proposition has been heard, for PETERBOROUGH WILL NOT HAVE A PROFESSIONAL TEAM.

SPORTING COMMENT

Arrangements had practically been completed for Ralph Johnstone, the daring aviator, who plunged 800 feet to death at Denver Friday to return to vaudeville this winter and tour the big cities of America and Europe at a salary of $350 a week. Manager Appleton, of the Temple, Hamilton, a friend of the dead aviator, had a letter from him the other day. Johnstone was well known in many Canadian cities, where he appeared in a thrilling bicycle act before going in for aviation. "He was the most courageous man I ever met," said Appleton. "He did not know fear."

GOT A CHANCE

It is up to Frank Beal to Show that he Can Make Good

"Thank you very kindly, your Worship."

This from Frank Beal, charged with theft, when Magistrate Dumble allowed him to go on suspended sentence at the police court this morning.

Beal has been in jail three weeks. During that time he has not partaken of the liquid which, according to his story, made trouble for him at the White House, when he stole certain articles.

His Worship pointed out to Beal the ruinous results which would attend him if he continued to gratify his appetite for drink, and the possibilities before him, if he would leave it alone.

It was for him to choose which course he would pursue.

Henry Gordon Knocked Down by Team of Horses at Crossing

Henry Gordon, employed at the Quaker Oats Co., and residing on Park street, was rather seriously injured about the head by being knocked to the ground by a team of horses at the Water street crossing to the market on his way home, Saturday evening, shortly after six o'clock.

A team travelling south on Water street, took a sharp turn to go across the market square and Gordon was knocked down before he could get out of the way.

P. C McGinty telephoned for Dr. McNulty, who attended to the injuries.

WARRANT FOR CONDUCTOR

Wanted for Stealing Fares and Selling Tickets

(From The Montreal Gazette)

Judge Lanctot, at the request of the Crown Prosecutor, has issued a bench warrant for the arrest of E. Smith, a former sleeping car conductor in the employ of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company, who at one time ran between Montreal and Vancouver, and latterly between Montreal and Toronto.

Early in October information reached the Crown authorities which led up to Smith's arrest for stealing sleeping-car fares, and for stealing and selling railway tickets to various persons in Montreal and elsewhere. Smith had a preliminary hearing and was committed for trial to the Court of King's Bench, his case being set for the 10th. When called, he failed to appear, with the result that his bail was forfeited and a bench warrant issued for his arrest.

The case caused a good deal of interest in railway circles, and it is probable that other than railway people will become interested, as the names and addresses of quite a number of people with whom he has been doing business are known, and it is likely that before the matter is finally disposed of several of the hunters for bargains in railway transportation will be dealt with.

"It is really too bad," said a high official of the Canadian Pacific on Saturday, "that the travelling public should suggest such dishonesty to conductors. If passengers would refrain from making conductors steal from the company by offering them facilities and inducements to do so, it would be better for them in every way. We have the names of a good many men who have done this, in Montreal and other places, and they include some pretty prominent men. Morally they are as guilty, if not more so, than the conductors whom they train to become thieves, and the practice of trying to get this cheap transportation at the expense of the company and the honesty of the conductors cannot be too sharply repressed.

"In the present instance it has led to the ruin of a young man and the breaking up of his home. While we are sorry for those who suffer by it, the company must stop this business of stealing fares, and prosecution will follow every instance that is discovered."

TOURING IN THE OLD BIBLE LANDS

owes him a great debt for the preservation in his day of the written text of our Holy Bible." As we left his grotto we were taken past a little altar beneath which an iron grating covered a small deep cave into which, according to tradition, were thrown the headless bodies of the murdered babes of Bethlehem, the first innocent members of the noble army of martyrs in [illegible] times. There is a pretty painting beside it of the Christ Child, so like the painter Stutt's beautiful conception of Him in his sweet pictures, "The 1st Sight of the X" and "A Little Child Shall Lead Them," and around the beautiful Child are gathered the baby martyrs in loving adoration. It was a pretty added touch that just then as we stood there looking at the pictures by the light of our uplifted tapers a dear little baby girl in her dark eyed Syrian mother's arms beside us, suddenly held up her little arms to the Christ Child in the picture with a quick "Ah!" of joyous, surprised greeting. She thought it was another baby for her to kiss.

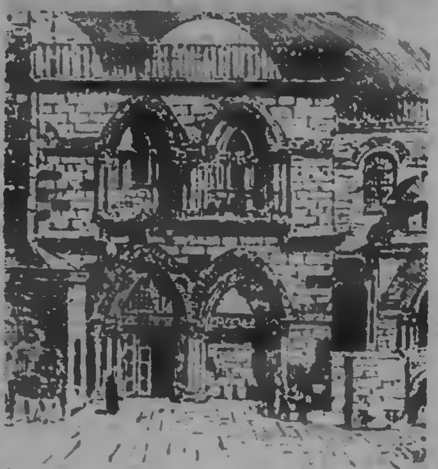
Coming at length out of the wax lit air of the Church of the Nativity, we were joined by Mr. B——, the young English manager of our hotel. He had heard us express a wish before we left to visit the Holy Fields at midnight, and had kindly followed us on horseback, knowing from experience that it was needful for us to have an escort for this, so before long he had arranged it with our quaint guide, and we had started off to the fields "Where shepherds watched their flocks by night all seated on the plain." We descended by a rocky and precipitous path and I was glad to hold to a strong arm as we slipped and slid along down it. At last after a long half hour of this, we came to the little village of Beit Sabur, where the modern shepherds live. There we made quite a commotion for some one had the key of the grotto of the shepherds, and the difficulty was to find who that one was. Mr. B—— roused up the wrong person first, for it was nearly 11 p.m., and the village was wrapped in slumber. Then the "wrong person" went off with him and our boy guide to rouse the right person, who lived right at the other end of the village, while we waited in patience. But the sounding of knocks of Mr. B—— over the "wrong person" had roused all the dogs in the neighborhood, and when you have once heard a night chorus of eastern dogs you will not soon forget it. And the dogs in turn had roused their masters, for within ten minutes of the first bark we had five stalwart shepherds standing beside and suspiciously eyeing us. I must say I eyed them also with some misgiving. My husband grasped his big stick and surveyed them calmly. Happily, Mr. B— soon joined us, saying that the key-keeper was dressing himself and would soon be down with the guide. And he, too eyed those staring and muttering shepherds, and I know he too was nervous for he alternately whistled—when a man is nervous he always whistles to keep up his heart—and entreated us not to take any notice of the men. At last the key custodian and our young guide arrived, and we started off in solemn procession to the fields of the shepherds—our quaint guide had got it upsidedown—he was going to show us the shepherds' of the [illegible], perhaps those five shepherds who were sullenly marching behind us all the way confused him.



The Holy Sepulchre.

As we descended still a rocky, narrow path, we came down into the fields lying peacefully in the glorious moonlight, the olive trees throwing their dark shadows here and there and accentuating the moonlight. It was a beautiful scene, and it did not need much imagination to picture David, the shepherd, guarding his flocks here by night, and gazing up into the same glorious moon and starlit sky, as he sang his shepherd's Evensong, the 8th Psalm—

"When I consider Thy heavens,
The work of Thy fingers,
The moon and the stars which Thou hast ordained,
What is man that Thou art mindful of him?"

Or even farther back one's thoughts could wander to the days when David's ancesters, the sweet and loving Ruth gleaned, poor and sorrowful, in the very fields where she afterwards walked as the happy and honored wife of Boaz, the great grandfather of David.

Looking Down on Nazareth.

Arrived at the grotto, we descended some steps, and, tapers being lit, we examined it by their flickering light. A very old tradition makes the shepherds to have been sheltering from the winter night's cold in this grotto, when in the field in which it is located there appeared that glorious heavenly host praising God and saying "Glory to God in the highest, on earth peace, good-will toward men." (Luke II, 13-14).

For centuries a church and a monastery stood on this spot. I have an idea that this grotto formed the crypt of the church, which might have stood over it. About half a mile to the north is the tower of the Flocks," which Paula mentions as having stood in the fields of the shepherds. In this grotto are some fallen shafts of columns, a few medieval wall paintings, and a small altar. I was glad to see the shepherds who had followed us down into the grotto cross themselves devoutly in front of this altar, for I felt sure they would not attempt to rob or murder us after that.

Mosque of Omar

Coming out into the bright moonlight again, we sang "While Shepherds Watched Their Flocks by Night, All Seated on the Plain," etc. It was so sweetly solemn to sing it there where the angels sang their glad song to the listening shepherds nineteen hundred years ago. Here, where love became incarnate that love might suffer and redeem. This incarnation is the miracle of miracles, more wonderful even than the miracle of the resurrection. I recalled just them words, which I had heard from the lips of the Rev. E. W. Moore more than a quarter of a century ago. "How wonderful that mighty stoop from the throne of His glory to the cradle of His humility as the Babe of Bethlehem. In Me it is even more wonderful in its humility, in its utter emptying Himself of His glory, than the cross itself." It was the place, the time, to understand just something of that "mighty love, mighty to save."

If "music hath charms to soothe the savage heart" at least it seemed then to calm the shepherds of Beth Sahar, for, as we sang our Christmas hymn they moved quietly away in another direction, and we saw them again no more, for which we were not sorry. Mr. B. told us afterwards as we drove home, that he had a paid of loaded pistols in his breast pocket, which he always carried there on expeditions such as these, and and sometimes it is needful at any rate to show them.

The midnight chimes were coming over the fields to us from the bells of Bethlehem, as we retraced our steps and climbed back over the steep ascent, and they were celebrating the midnight mass in the Church of the Nativity, as we regained our carriages. We came home at much the same break-neck pace, and it was just 2 a.m. as we went to bed at Jerusalem, tired and sleepy, but very happy to think over again in dreams our Christmas Eve at Bethlehem.

PAINTS TOLSTOI AS AGED CRANK

(OTTAWA FREE PRESS)

The news that Leo Tolstoi has withdrawn himself from his family and placed himself in seclusion can hardly come as a surprise to those who have been following the later years of his erratic genius; indeed, the wonder is that it did not happen before. It used to be said of Thomas Carlyle that he was good company everywhere except in his own home. The same thing has been said of other geniuses, both before and since Carlyle; but if we are to believe Mr Aylmer Maude, (whose interesting volume "The Life of Tolstoi: Later Years," recently published, is one of the books of the year), it is more true of Tolstoi than of all the other cranks put together.

Most people like to think of Tolstoi as a man of genius and a religious visionary, but Mr. Maude paints the picture of an aged crank always at issue with his family about the "simple life," unable to solve in his own household the economic problem on which he preaches to mankind, capable of a harsh fanaticism to his nearest and dearest when they were unable to fall in with his scheme of life, but incapable of organizing an idea or adjusting it to circumstances that must exist in the world as it is.

Mr. Maude assures us that the friction which arose in the Tolstoi circle was "not to any great extent due to personal causes, but arose inevitably from the clash of Tolstoi's gospel with the established order of life," as "is indicated by the fact that in other families one or more members of which adopted his ideas, similar friction always showed itself."

Whether that is a reflection upon the families or the ideas is a matter for conjecture, but the conclusion cannot be avoided that it were better if the missionaries of this gospel neither had families nor owned property. These men of genius have strong wills and imperious tempers when they are opposed, though they are simple and lovable as children to those who understand them and can manage them, which it is quite apparent the Tolstoi family cannot do with their genius.

SALON APPROVED OF PORTRAITS

Mr. Louis Mendel had the distinction of having four of his portraits shown at the London Salon this year. This distinction is a particularly high one as the committee on selections is formed of the most authorative and discriminating artists in the Old Country and they are called upon to choose from an almost countless number of pictures.

Mr. Mendal will display the portraits in his studio case in a short time.

REV. W. C. RIDDIFORD TELLS WHAT HE THINKS OF THEATRE AS MODERN INSTITUTION; THE LOCAL PICTURE SHOWS

Rev. W. C. Riddiford, pastor of the Park street Baptist church, discussed the ethics of the theatre last night in a broad and generous spirit. His sermon wasn't in the nature of an attack. It was simply an honest opinion.

AN ELEMENT OF DANGER.

There was an element of danger in the modern theatre. But the theatre could be made a mighty agency for good, and no man could help his age unless he elevated the forces of good he saw in the institutions of the age for the betterment of mankind.

GOOD AS WELL AS BAD.

The theatre as it was now—what tendency had it on the morals of the community; what was it doing for the furtherance of the Kingdom of Jesus Christ?

To denounce the theatre unqualifiedly would be a collosal blunder. The preacher didn't by any means think that all plays were bad and that all actresses and actors were immoral.

THE INDECENCY OF THE STAGE.

The theatre's chief indecency was in its display of nudity. "We are low enough, God knows," said the speaker, "without being brought down to the level of the beasts."

The decollete gown, the short skirt, the tights that were an insult to womanhood. No man should countenance these on the stage. He wouldn't let his mother, his wife or sister appear in the public gaze clad in such fashion. All offerings and members of the theatrical profession were not in the same category, and "far be it from me," the speaker said, "to question the virtue of the average actor or actress."

RELIGION SCOFFED AT.

But the ethical side of the theatre as a modern institution had the tendency to lowering the ethical standard of womanhood. Religion was also frequently ridiculed on the stage and life in many places was overdrawn to an extreme limit.

VICIOUS CHARACTERISTICS.

The characters assumed by some of the players were of a most repulsive nature, and often had the effect of shaping, to some extent, the lives of these portrayers. As an example this current news showed that the man who for ten years had played the part of Judas Iscariot in the Passion Play had committed suicide.

And the part of Carmen was a most unattractive one for any woman to play. To do justice to the presentation of this character the actor would have to become imbued with the spirit of the wanton. As the actress thought over this night after night as she lived the part time after time on the stage, who could tell what effect it might gradually have on their own life?

"No daughter of mine," exclaimed the preacher, "shall go on the stage to play the part of the harlot."

THE QUESTION AND THE ANSWER

The question of great moment to the Christian was: "Should a Christian become a modern theatre goer?" We could not afford as Christians to support anything that did not live up to the ethical standard of Jesus Christ. That was the answer.

If actresses and actors would give their wonderful talents to active Christianity, if those splendid voices and magnificent personalities of the stage could be heard in the church choir, and in the pulpit what a difference it would make in the Christianization of the land.

During the sermon Mr. Riddiford remarked on the creditable tone of the programs in the local picture houses. Some pictures of a questionable character were occasionally shown, but these were the exception. The speaker wanted to know how the picture show managers could be expected to cater to higher tastes and present clean and educative pictures if the preachers and church-goers didn't support the entertainments and encourage the managers to do so.

BOY BANDITS MURDER MEN

Special to the Review.

Chicago, Nov 21.—Two new murders, both by a trio of boy bandits who are more desperate and wanton than the famous "Carharn bandits" of several years ago stirred the police to-day to war of extermination.

The new murders have thrown the residents of Northwest Chicago into terror.

Neither of the slain men has been identified.

HE IS HERE—THE MAN WHO MAKES MINSTRELS

Mr. Holly Shepard, "the man who makes minstrels" has arrived in the city, to take charge of the talent for the minstrel show, under the auspices of the Belmont Club, and of which two performances will be given at the Grand Opera House on Thursday and Friday, December 15th and 16th.

Mr. Shepard is accompanied by his wife, a talented musician and who assists him as pianist in his engagements.

At Bay City, Mich., last Monday and Tuesday, Mr. Shepard made his 22nd appearance and his show played to an audience of 4000. He missed the present smallpox outbreak at Saginaw, being enabled to leave that city just before quarantine proceedings went into force.

Rehearsals will commence this evening at the club rooms. Nothing but clean and refined dialogue, will be used in the show, the possibilities of which Mr. Shepard is justly optimistic.

CRIME AFFECTED BY WEATHER

London, Nov. 17 — Sir John Macdonell, one of the Masters of the Supreme Court, made an interesting statement in an address which he delivered at University College recently.

"Although the weather cannot be always safely predicted," he said, "statisticans can always tell what will be the number of indictable offences committed in any given period.

"There is always one marked class of crime in winter and another in the summer, and suicide always takes its regular curve culminating at midsummer."

Sir John also discussed the rapid changes in modern criminal law and the problem of prison reform.

"Criminal law and our methods of dealing with criminals are changing quickly," he said. "We are now faced with one of the greatest problems that affect society.

"Nearly every civilized country is dealing with the problem. Holland and Norway have introduced new criminal laws, and Austria, Germany and Switzerland are preparing new codes.

"We are doing piecemeal what other countries are doing wholesale, but the changes have been very marked, so that 20 years ago seems a great time in criminal annals.

"The problem is to reform the criminal and at the sametime to protect society. We wish to deter and we wish to reform, but it sometimes happens that methods that are reformative are less deterrent, and those that deter do not always reform or educate, and short sentences may not be always wise or humane."

Sir John Macdonell referred to the influence of some modern books and a play and a poem in opening the eyes of the public to the need for prison reform. The list he gave was:

Tolstoy's "Resurrection."

Dostoieffsky's "Crime and Punishment."

Mr. John Galsworthy's play, "Justice."

Oscar Wilde's "Ballad of Reading Goal."

"The criminal law only reaches some—not all," said Sir John. "Some of the evil-doers, and some of these the most dangerous to society, escape because the long arm of the law is not long enough to reach them. This covers certain complicated cases of fraud and deceit."

FIREMEN DID GOOD WORK; AN OLD LANDMARK BURNED

The fire department was called out this morning shortly after four o'clock, to a blaze at the corner of Brock and Aylmer streets, and they did effective work, confining the fire to a small space, thereby preventing a serious conflagration.

From a cause unknown, the fire started in the smaller of the two buildings, in which was stored cutters and other vehicles, all of which were destroyed.

The fierce flames threatened the home of the family of the late Wm. Logan, which is only about twenty feet east, and also other frame buildings.

The larger building, which is used as a blacksmith and repair shop, was only slightly scorched on the roof, despite it being connected to the other which was practically destroyed.

Very little insurance was carried.

Owing to the excitement and danger of the occasion Mrs. Logan was prostrated, and is under the care of a physician.

The burned building, with the other, had been occupied for the past fifty-five years by the late Mr. Logan.

REVIVAL AT MARK STREET

Services Commenced Last Night With Large Congregation Present

A series of special revival meetings began last night in Mark street Methodist church, the pastor being assisted by Evangelist R. H. Whiteside. A large congregation assembled to hear this successful winner of souls, and under the speaker's calm but earnest appeal it was evident that a profound religious conviction was being produced in many minds. A number expressed a desire to lead a Christian life before the service closed.

The congregational singing was hearty and inspiring. The solo given by Mr. Whiteside, with guitar accompaniment, was very effective.

It is expected that the meetings will continue for two weeks, opening each night with a song service at 7.45.

MR. R. L. BORDEN AND SIR WILFRID CROSS SWORDS AGAIN

Conservative Leader Congratulates the Premier on Attaining His Sixty-Ninth Birthday, and Hopes to See Him Lead the Opposition.

Ottawa, Nov. 22.—Much interest centred around the opening debate of the House of Commons this session, and from the time of assembling until adjournment the galleries were crowded with spectators. The burden of Sir Wilfrid Laurier's speech was upon the contest in Drummond and Arthabaskaville, while Mr. Borden confined himself to a discussion of the problems presented to the Premier on his recent tour of the west, and a reference to the tariff issue, combined with the reciprocity negotiations.

There were a few preliminaries, one when R. L. Borden extended to Sir Wilfrid Laurier congratulations on his attainment in good health and spirits of the age of 69 years. He was glad to know that the cares and responsibilities of office sit so lightly on the shoulders of the Premier. He hoped that if such should be Sir Wilfrid's lot in the future, he would still have strength and energy to retain the leadership of the opposition.

Sir Wilfrid, who was somewhat surprised and visibly affected, said that he was more touched than words could express. Up to the present time there had been one invincible objection to his becoming an opposition leader, the will of the people. He would when retired by the will of the people no doubt become a private citizen.

In presenting the report of his enquiry into printing bureau affairs to the House, Hon. Charles Murphy announced that later on he would move to have the report considered by a joint committee of the House and Senate.

The first bill of the session was introduced and explained by Mr. Lancaster. It is an amendment to the Railway Act, to compel the holding of inquests in all cases of death by railway accidents.

In response to an enquiry by Mr. Borden concerning Federenko, Mr. Aylesworth said that he believed that the order for extradition was at the moment subject either to an appeal, or that the decision was being reviewed under habeas corpus proceedings. Until such proceedings were closed, it was not likely that the evidence would be sent to Ottawa for review.

Sir Frederick Borden assured the Opposition leader that Major-General French's report would be tabled without delay.

H. B. McGiverin (Ottawa), in moving that an address be presented to His Excellency, referred to the fact that this was the first time that a member from the capital had been given this honor. As regards reciprocity, he said Canada had been ready for thirty years to discuss the question, and to come to an understanding that would be mutually advantageous to the two countries. Canada was still ready to go to Washington, but he did not think the Government of the Dominion should act arrogantly. The matter of the recent negotiations had been gone about as sensible business men would have done. The negotiations was re-open.

E. A. Lapointe, Kamouraska, who seconded that address, advocated a closer commercial agreement with the United States. Turning to the navy, he said their dearest interests, their religious priviliges, were bound up in the conservation of imperial supremacy. "We must not be turned from our duty," he said, "and our responsibility by chimerical hypotheses and the platform of imaginary perils."

R. L. Borden, who followed for the Opposition, paid a tribute to the services rendered to Canada by Earl Grey, and deplored the absence of Mr. Fielding. The result of the fisheries case before The Hague tribunal was a matter upon which he could well congratulate the Minister of Justice.

Turning to the reciprocity negotiations he said it was only fair and right that the people of this country should be informed upon what principle the Government proposed to act. After showing that Canada purchased five hundred million dollars' worth more goods from the United States than they purchased from the Dominion during the last six years, and that Great Britain purchased over $270,000,000, more than Canada purchased from the old land during the same period, he asked what were the benefits to be expected by a lowering of duties or by reciprocity.

After dealing at length with the investigation into the spending debts and the recent disclosures in connection with the printing bureau, Mr. Borden concluded by remarking that while "the mills of the gods grind slowly they grind exceeding fine" and the responsibility of the loss of the people's money would be laid upon the shoulders of the men who were to blame, namely, the Government.

Sir Wilfrid said that, whereas Mr. Borden believed that there was danger in the west to British and Canadian connection, he himself had found no trace of any such danger. Every man who came to the west had been proud to become a Canadian and a British subject.

The Premier then reviewed the tariff negotiations to date, describing the recent conferences in Ottawa as "informal pour parlers" to see if it was possible to reach a common basis on which a new policy could be based.

Sir Wilfrid touched on the bye-election result with the remark that history teaches us that there are defeats more honorable than victories. That election was won, he said, by a combination of what is left of the once great Conservative party in Quebec, and certain young reactionaries, who were brought up in Liberal principles, by appeals so desperate that, when the smoke of battle had cleared away, the public conscience was aroused to shame and indignation.

The law of last session had not been condemned by the electors. That bill provided for a naval service, but nowhere did it state that the service was to be created by conscription or by forced enrolment. But those who attacked the law did not say there was to be no forced enrolment and that there was to be no conscription.

Mr. Paquet: "I said that."

Mr. Monk: "I said that also."

Sir Wilfrid Laurier: "I am glad to know there are two men who oppose that naval policy who told the truth in that election, but they were given the lie by those who assisted them."

Sir Wilfrid then quoted from a pamphlet circulated in the constituency in which the horrors of conscription were described. He said the man who wrote the pamphlet was ashamed to put his name to it, but it was circulated by the connivance of the Conservatives and the Nationalists. A member of the House of Commons in the course of the campaign had said: "We have had enough of England and the English."

Hon. Mr. Foster and F. D. Monk also spoke, after which Hugh Guthrie moved the adjournment of the debate.

216,000 POUNDS OF MEAT STOLEN

New York, Nov. 22.—Dr. William Mabon, superintendent of the State Hospital for the Insane on Ward's Island, testified yesterday before Commissioner Fosdyck of the department of accounts, in the last three years, during which he has been superintendent, 216,000 pounds of meat intended for the patients had been stolen.

The exposure of long-standing frauds of such magnitude came through the arrest last week of Simon Katsenstein, a refuse collector, who had the contract to remove bones and fat from Ward's Island. He is out on bail, specially charged with the theft of seven barrels of meat and chicken, which, when seized, were found to be thinly covered on top with a layer of bones.

Commissioner Fosdyck believes the frauds will run into much larger amounts than are shown in Supt. Mabon's estimate. He thinks they may go as high as 150,000 pounds of meat a year, or $450,000 pounds for three years involved.

EXHUMED THE BODY OF KETCHEL

Grand Rapids, Mich., Nov. 22.—Going to Grand Rapids for the purpose of securing evidence for the defence of the slayer of Stanley Ketchel, murdered middleweight champion of the world, two attorneys from Springfield, Mo., together with the undertaker who had charge of the Ketchel funeral, and the sexton of the local Polish Cemetery, surreptitiously exhumed the body of the dead fighter yesterday.

The sexton says the two men closely examined the bullet wound in Ketchel's breast and minutely inspected the head for other suspected wounds. The action was a violation of the state health laws.

A SHORTAGE OF LABORERS

Fort William, Nov. 22.—The early departure of the foreign element to their native countries for the winter, and resulting shortage of laborers in Fort William, has crippled the staff of the C.P.R. freight sheds, and, unless 300 or 400 men are secured immediately, it is feared a blockade will result. Where 600 men were engaged early in the spring, it is now impossible to muster more than 400.

Employment agents in Montreal, Toronto and Winnipeg have been asked to supply 500 men.

During the 1910 season of navigation approximately 700,000 tons of bituminous coal was unloaded at the Canadian Pacific docks, about 100,000 tons more than was ever handled by any other single dock on the continent. Several more cargoes of anthracite will be brought here before the close of the season. While the figures have not been compiled, it is known that hard coal receipts for the season are considerably larger than during any former year.

Boisterous Buffalo.

Winnipeg, Nov. 22.—Word has been received here that the Montana authorities have entirely changed their attitude towards the proposed hunt by Canadians of the old bulls of the Pablo buffalo herd. These animals are striking terror throughout the Flat Bush Reserve, near Missoula, Mont., running amuck, and even tearing down buildings. Montana will be glad to have them exterminated.

Real Blood Shed.

Paris, Nov. 22.—Real blood was shed in two French duels yesterday. Count Raymond de Castellane spitting Count de L'Estrange's right arm in the first duel, and George Casella punching his little rapier through Jean Marnoid's right arm in the second affair of honor. None of the participants was seriously wounded, and honor was perfectly satisfied.

NEW BOGEY THIS TIME

Lloyd-George Says it is Home Rule in New Campaign.

London, Nov. 22.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—Speaking in the east end of London, Lloyd George said that the schemes for the reform of the House of Lords the Government would consider at leasure. Under that enumerated by Lord Lansdowne every radical bill would be sent to a referendum. The Government would have none of these shams.

The Chancellor was in excellent form, his wit biting as ever. The huge hall wherein he spoke was filled with an enthusiastic crowd.

Referring to the Tories' sarcasm about Redmond as a "dollar dictator," Lloyd-George remarked that their bogey time was a German invasion. Since then, he asked, had the British aristocracy started despising American dollars, which had buttressed many tottering nobles' houses.

As regard the constitutional issue, no country in the world would stand the British second chamber. It was like, he said, running a horse car and an electric car on the same track.

Lloyd-George reminded the Conservatives that a large portion of Redmond's funds came from Canada. He claimed that, when Canada and Canadian statesmen were to be used as excuses for taxing bread, then Canadians were kith and kin beyond the seas, but when they subscribed to enable Ireland to obtain the same self-government they possessed, they were called aliens tearing down the constitution. (Applause.)

Humorously the Chancellor took his hearers to the oversea dominions in search of a similar institution in imagination. The interviewed Australians, then enquired if they were anything like the descendants of the French filibusters in Britain, and they got the reply that they had a few years ago bushrangers, who, however, had only stolen seven cattle, not land. These had been hanged before they had the opportunity of founding families.

Examination proved that packed with the whitefish was a large 'longe. The latter being a game fish, it was confiscated. McMann is a fish buyer.

DEFACED VALUABLE TABLETS

Philadelphia, Nov. 22.—Dr. Herman V. Hilprecht, the famous scientist, who resigned two days ago as head of the Department of Assyriology and Semitic philology and Archaeology at the University of Pennsylvania, in his letter of resignation openly charges that while he was away on his vacation last summer, his office was broken into, his desk ransacked, and many valuable papers stolen.

The hardest blow of all, he declares, was when he discovered that the ancient tablets he dug from the mounds at Babylon and deposited in the University museum had been mutilated, defaced or stolen. The tablets bore the inscription upon which he had based his most famous theories.

HE MUST PAY THE PENALTY

Dr. Crippen is Told That There is no Hope For Him.

London, Nov. 22.—No pardon or commutation of sentence will be granted to Dr. H. H. Crippen, the American wife-slayer.

This was the decision yesterday of the Home Office. After a thorough review and investigation of the case, Home Secretary Winston Churchill announced that Crippen must hang as previously sentenced, on Wednesday. When Crippen was informed early yesterday that his last hope was gone he betrayed no emotion.

Crippen, however, had realized earlier that there was no hope of clemency from the Home Office, and on Sunday issued a lengthy statement, which took three columns in a Sunday paper, reiterating his innocence and declaring that if he had unlimited means at his command, as had the crown, he would not have been convicted. Additional expert medical testimony, he said, would have shown that the body found under the Hilldrop Crescent house was not that of his wife, Belle Elmore Crippen, the actress. Conscious of his innocence, he declared he had kept up hope until the failure of his appeal, which he had been convinced would reverse the judgment of the court. That had overwhelmed and crushed him, as he had hoped till the last of still being able to build up a home with the woman (Miss Leneve), without whom life was not worth living.

The fact that Crippen had previously determined there was no hope from the Home Office, is believed to have enabled him to bear up so well yesterday when informed that Churchill had decided against him.

"I am ready for the end," he said. "I shall die with the firm conviction that eventually the proofs of my innocence will some day become known."

Had the Home Office interfered, Crippen declared, it would have been an unexpected mercy, the first shown him since his trial began.

For the first time since he has been in custody, Dr. Crippen broke down completely late yesterday, the cause being a visit to the Pentonville jail by Miss Leneve, the girl for love of whom Crippen killed his wife.

The meeting between the two was pathetic in the extreme, and a dramatic forerunner of their final meeting to-day. Miss Leneve was the first to weaken yesterday. She began to weep, and at sight of her tears, all attempts at self-control on the condemned man's part were abandoned, and he gave himself over to the first tears he has shed since his arrest.

Crippen and the girl talked together for nearly half an hour, in the presence of two warders. Crippen pleaded in vain to be left alone with the girl for a few minutes. At the conclusion of their interview, Miss Leneve had to be assisted from the jail.

CANADIAN LABOR CONGRESS SUPREME

St. Louis, Nov. 22.—After a strenuous debate at yesterday afternoon's session of the American Federation of Labor Convention, the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada was declared supreme in the chartering of trades and labor councils in Canada. Among those debating in behalf of Canada were: P. M. Draper, Ottawa; J. H. Kennedy and Robert Glockling, Toronto, and S. L. Landers, Hamilton.

The Canadians contended that the labor movement in Canada was ultra-international in character, but, as the trades councils were more than city legislative bodies, they should be chartered by the Trades Congress of Canada, rather than the American Federation. One concession was made, that after the trades councils in Canada had affiliated with the Canadian Congress, and then desired further affiliation with the American Federation for moral purposes, there should be no objection.

There are about fifteen Canadian delegates in attendance and two British fraternal delegates, and there is a profusion of Union Jacks among the decorations. During the debate one delegate asked what constituted the Canadian Federation of Labor, to which a reply was made that the body was composed of a few disgruntled labor unions, who was disqualified at the Berlin Convention in 1902, and started an opposition movement.

The convention endorsed a resolution unionizing the "hoboes" of the country, as members of the "Migratory Laborers' Union." It was also voted to admit "the white rats" along with the Actors' Union of America. The dues of the members of the Federation of Labor were raised by resolution and a committee was named to decide on the amount of the increase.

EMPEROR COUNSELLED TEMPERANCE

Flensburg, Prussia, Nov. 22.—In opening the new naval academy at Muerwick yesterday Emperor William read an order in council laying stress upon the qualifications necessary for naval officers, and later, speaking extemporaneously, made a plea for temperance on the part of the cadets.

The times, the Emperor said, required iron-hearted men. Character was the first essential and character was founded upon strong moral and religious convictions. He cautioned the cadets against excessive drinking, which, he said, undermined the nerves, and the strenuous naval service of to-day required strong nerves.

CZAR DEPLORES THE LOSS OF RUSSIA'S LITERARY GENIUS

Douma, After a Sharp Debate, Adjourns for a Day Out of Respect—Church Will Let Religious Ceremonies go on, Because of Visit to Monasteries.

St. Petersburg, Nov. 22.—The Russian Emperor has written the following note on the margin of the report, which M. Stolypin sent to his Majesty of Tolstoi's death:

"I heartily deplore the death of the great writer who embodied the golden age of his talent in his creations of types of the fatherland, constituting one of the most glorious periods of Russian life. May he find in God a merciful judge."

The Douma adjourned yesterday's session out of respect for Count Leo Tolstoi, though the decision to do so was reached only after a wrangle, the members of the extreme right contending that to honor the memory of the Russian reformer and novelist would be to challenge the Greek Catholic church. It was asserted that the Douma was a state institution to which the count was especially opposed.

It was reported here yesterday that the Holy Synod of the Greek Catholic Church will adopt the view that Tolstoi's visits to the monasteries of Schamardinsky and Optin indicated his wish to return to the church and will raise no objection over religious ceremonies at his funeral.

The Homeward Journey.

Astapova, Nov. 22.—A special train, bearing the body of Count Leo Tolstoi to Yasnaya Peliana, the family estate in the Government of Tula, left here at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The countess and the other members of the family and intimates who were here when the author died Thursday, accompanied the body.

A halt for the night was made at the railway junction at Gorbatchevo, and the train will arrive at Daseika, the station near Yasnaya Peliana, early to-day. The distance from the depot to the Tolstoi home is not great and the casket, according to Russian custom, probably will be borne to the house on the shoulders of the mourners.

Since early morning the countess had sat in the stationmaster's hut, where her husband died, with her head bowed upon the casket, and weeping. She appeared not to notice the peasants admitted to the death chamber, and quitted her position only when M. Gunzberg, the sculptor, came to take a death mask.

Leonido Pasternak, the portrait painter, sketched the scene. This was as simple as Tolstoi could have wished. The body reposed in a plain oak coffin, at the foot of which a few wreaths of fir, emblematic of immortality, had been placed, and the platform of the railway station was covered with fir boughs, spread by the peasants of the neighborhood.

DEATH WATCH

On Crippen---Confession is Denied---Will Hang To-morrow.

Special to the Review.

London, Nov. 22.—The death watch was to-day placed upon Dr. H. H. Crippen, whose life will be taken upon the gallows between 6 and 9 o'clock to-morrow morning in expiation of the murder of his wife, Belle Elmore Crippen. Rumors that Crippen has confessed are emphatically contradicted.

GRAFTERS MUST GO TO PRISON

Philadelphia, Nov. 22.—Two former councilmen of Pittsburg, by a decision announced yesterday in the State Supreme Court, must go to jail for accepting bribes to influence their votes as councilmen. The court sustained the convictions against M. F. Swift, jr., and A. V. Simon in the Allegheny County Court, the former for receiving $81.10 for his vote in favor of vacating a city street, and the latter for accepting a like bribe for his vote on the street ordinance, and $100 for his vote on a measure designating certain banks as depositaries for city funds.

PATRIOTIC SONGS OBJECTED TO BY YANKEES

Calgary, Nov. 22.—At the Technical Education Commission Saturday Inspector of Schools Boyce of Red Deer in reply to Dr. Bryce, said that some trouble had arisen in respect of the singing of British patriotic songs in rural districts such as "Rule Britannia." Americans did not mind so much Canadian national airs, but feeling arose when purely British songs were sung.

"Is the singing of these songs insisted upon?" asked Hon. Mr. Armstrong.

Mr. Boyce replied that where objections were taken the songs objected to were mostly dropped.

A UNIQUE NEWSPAPER

Paris, Nov. 22.—The strangest of all newspapers is being published in Paris now. "Excelsior" with a million dollars capital, is an illustrated morning paper, and though it has "appeared" for 58 days, complete in every department, the public has not seen a single copy of it. Until everything is in smooth working order, the daily output, as composed and edited by a huge staff of men, is tossed into the furnace.

Quadruple Murder.

Maryville, Mo., Nov. 22.—Oda Hubbell, a farmer near Barnard, Mo., and his wife and two children were shot and killed at their home Sunday night by an unknown person, who set fire to their house to conceal the crime.

W. W. Pating's flour mill was burned at Petrolea, with a loss of $10,000. The fire was caused by a hotbox.

PREMIER McBRIDE CANNOT ATTEND

Toronto, Nov. 22.—Sir James Whitney yesterday received a letter from Premier McBride of British Columbia stating that it would not be possible for him to attend the interprovincial conference at Ottawa on Dec. 9, owing to the early opening of the Legislature in that province in January. It is expected that Premier McBride will be fully represented.

It is probable that Hon. J. J. Foy will accompany Premier Whitney as the representatives of Ontario.

CAN'T BE A SOLDIER GOING TO BE A NURSE

New York, Nov. 22.—"I can't be a soldier, so I'm going to be a nurse on the battlefield." Gladys Amy Graham, 12 years old, daughter of James Graham, a retired officer of the Second Royal Munster Fusiliers, and for 27 years a British soldier, made this statement when she arrived yesterday on the Anchor liner California, en route to Toronto, Canada. There she is to enter a convent to complete her education.

The girl traveled alone. She said her uncle, John M. Cruse of Toronto, would take her to that city.

ACCIDENTS WITH GUNS

Smith's Falls, Nov. 22.—Reuben Forde, aged 15 years, of this place, was seriously injured while hunting just outside the town Saturday afternoon. In pulling his rifle over a fence it was accidentally discharged, the bullet entering his body one inch above his heart.

Fred Ross was severely injured Saturday by the explosion of a gun. A quantity of powder and shot struck him in the face.

WAS STRUCK BY TEACHER

Niagara Falls, Ont., Nov. 22.—Rose Bell, daughter of an Italian contractor, is seriously ill. She was struck on the head by a public school teacher, Miss Mulroy, two weeks ago, she says. She is suffering with pleuro-pneumonia. Chairman Phemister of the public school board yesterday said he would investigate the case. Miss Mulroy, when questioned concerning the child's story, said she might have done it.

Nearing the Finish.

Winnipeg, Nov. 22.—The Y.M.C.A. fund reached $303,365 yesterday afternoon, and the managers are confident that the required $350,000 will be reached by noon to-day.

Had Premonition of Death.

Kenora, Nov. 22.—Mrs. Jennie Brazel of London, Ont., died on the west-bound Toronto express near Kenora yesterday morning.

Although in fair health at the time of starting, she remarked when boarding the train at Toronto that she would never reach her destination alive.

Carrie Had Close Call.

Dover, Del., Nov. 22.—Mrs. Carrie Nation had a narrow escape from death here yesterday while attempting to board a moving southbound train. She missed her footing and fell dangerously close to the wheels.

Will Run In Sunderland.

London, Nov. 22.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—Mr. Hamar Greenwood will be the Liberal candidate in Sunderland. There will also be a Labor candidate.

SCIENCE CURES THE KIDNEYS

THROUGH "FRUIT-A-TIVES"

The Famous Medicine Made of Fruit Juices

After careful consideration, it has been determined that "Fruit-a-tives" is a thoroughly scientific remedy. It is based on scientific facts and it cures in a scientific manner.

In fact "Fruit-a-tives" is known to be the most scientific remedy ever discovered for Kidney and Bladder Troubles. Mr. Placey thinks so, and his experience proves it:

Ulverton, P.Q., March 17th.

"I suffered for many years with Kidney Trouble and Pain in the Back. I took every known kidney remedy and kidney pill, but nothing gave me relief. I was advised to try "Fruit-a-tives," and this fruit medicine cured me when every other remedy failed. I used fifteen boxes of "Fruit-a-tives." From the first, "Fruit-a-tives" gave me relief and I am now well—no pain, no suffering—and every symptom of Kidney Disease gone.

Letters To The Editor.

Dear Sir, — "Rev. W. C. Riddiford, pastor of the Park Street Baptist Church, discussed the ethics of the theatre, last night, in a broad and generous spirit. His sermon wasn't in the nature of an attack, but was simply an honest opinion."

This is the way your reporter begins an account of a sermon on the theatre by the reverend gentleman mentioned. He admits that some plays are good, and yet I would infer from the way he is reported, that he believes people should stay away from the theatre. If the play is a good one, why should anyone stay away from it? If the book teaches a good lesson why shouldn't we read it? If the act will help some person worthy of it, why shouldn't we perform it?

"Consistency Thou Art a Jewel" but you rarely sparkle in the pulpit when the theatre is under discussion

Yours Very Truly,
FRIEND OF THE CLEAN DRAMA

To the Editor of the Review:

Dear Sir,—The Examiner had a big double barreled three headline front page attack on the present Mayor's administration of our power. Why did the Examiner attack the Mayor after endorsing him so strongly for Mayor? The attack was a hard crack.

Peterborough will have dear light and dear power, and it has dirty drinking water. That is pretty true, no doubt, but the attack on the Mayor was a sly one, and for what end, after all the fuss it made December last.

Yours truly,
R.S.V.P.

COUNTING THE PEOPLE.

First Census Proposal in England Raised a Fine Row.

It was in 1758 that a proposal to count the people was first made. Thomas Potter, son of the archbishop of Canterbury and member for St. Germans, introduced in that year a bill "for taking and registering an annual account of the total number of the people and of the total number of marriages, births and deaths and also of the total number of poor receiving alms from every parish and extra parochial place in Great Britain." It was inevitable, of course, that directly this proposal was made the precedent of King David should be quoted. And many were the jeremiads as to the alternative evils which would befall the country. Those submitted to David were mild in comparison. Mr. Thornton, member for York city, said:

"I did not believe that there was any set of men or indeed any individual of the human species so presumptuous and so abandoned as to make the proposal we have just heard. I hold this subject to be totally subversive of the last remains of English liberty. The new bill will direct the imposition of new taxes, and indeed the addition of a very few words will make it the most effectual engine of rapacity and oppression that was ever used against an injured people. Moreover, an annual register of our people will acquaint our enemies abroad with our weakness."

Matthew Ridley, another opposing member, added that his constituents looked on the proposal as ominous and feared lest some public misfortune or an epidemical distemper should follow the numbering. However, the bill passed the commons only to be promptly rejected by the lords. Not until 1800 was the proposal again made, and on this occasion it was brought to a successful issue. The first census of England and Wales was taken in March, 1801.—Westminster Gazette.

GENEROUS GEORGE.

Washington's Tips and Compliments to Patty and Polly.

Those who take tipping in the somewhat solemn spirit of the social investigator may find their minds enlivened by the perusal of an excerpt from the writings of our first president, which shows what a graceful turn appreciation and courtesy may give to the custom.

In 1789, on his return from his New England progress, Washington lodged at Taft's inn, at Uxbridge, Mass., where the domestic service—as at many inns in the country—was performed by the landlord's daughters. Somewhat later Washington wrote to Mr. Taft:

Hertford, 8 November, 1789.

Sir—Being informed that you have given my name to one of your sons and called another after Mrs. Washington's family, and being, moreover, very much pleased with the modest and innocent looks of your two daughters, Patty and Polly, I do for these reasons send each of these girls a piece of chintz, and to Patty, who bears the name of Mrs. Washington and who waited upon us more than Polly did, I send 5 guineas, with which she may buy herself any little ornaments she may want, or she may dispose of them in any other manner more agreeable to herself.

As I do not give these things with a view to have it talked of or even to its being known, the less there is said about it the better you will please me, but that I may be sure the chintz and money have got safe to hand let Patty, who I dare say is equal to it, write me a line informing me thereof, directed to "The President of the United States at New York." I wish you and your family well and am your humble servant, GO. WASHINGTON.

The Shark Is a Slow Swimmer.

One ill service nature has done the shark—namely, that of placing a triangular fin on his back which acts as a danger signal and gives warning of his approach. Happily the shark has not been gifted with sufficient sagacity to be aware of this peculiarity, for had he been so he would unquestionably abandon his habit of swimming close to the surface of the water and would in that case be enabled to approach his victim unobserved. The shark is a slow swimmer for his size and strength. Byron observes, "As darts the dolphin from the shark." But Byron was a poet and does not appear to have been a close observer of the habits of inhabitants of the water or he would have known that a shark would have no more chance of catching a dolphin than a sheep would of overhauling a hare.

Sardine Fishing.

In sardine fishing there are many uncertainties. There is a twenty-eight foot rise and fall of tide in the bay of Fundy, and especially constructed wooden picket inclosures are staked out in the water to gather in the fish. Last season a man erected an inclosure in what he supposed to be excellent fishing territory, but got nothing. He deplored his loss and for a time failed to go near it. "Why don't you seine it again?" somebody asked. "What's the use?" he replied. "Let me try it," the other persisted. "Yes, and you may have all the fish you get." The other man pulled out $1,700 worth at one haul.—Frank Leslie's.

A Sailor's Hands.

A sailor is betrayed by his hands, though his gait might betray him. They are permanently half shut. Walking, talking or sleeping the sailor has his hands half shut and could not open them flat if he tried. This is the result of years of climbing and pulling ropes.—London Chronicle.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, Nov. 21.—(Special.)—At the Montreal Stock Yards West End Market the receipts of live stock for the week ending Nov. 19 were 2400 cattle, 2300 sheep and lambs, 2000 hogs and 370 calves. The supply on the market this morning for sale consisted of 1400 cattle, 1500 sheep and lambs, 1000 hogs and 150 calves.

The supply was much smaller than a week ago, and in consequence a steady feeling prevailed. A few picked steers sold at as high as $5.75, but the bulk of the trading was done at the following prices: Choice steers, $5.50 to $5.65; good at $4.75 to $5.25; fairly good at $4.25 to $4.50; fair at $3.50 to $4, and common at $3.00 to $3.25 per 100 lbs.

The anticipated decline in prices for hogs for this week has not materialized, tho prices were 10c per 100 lbs. lower than a week ago. Sales of selected lots were made at $7.25 per 100 lbs., weighed off cars.

A feature of the market for small meats is the increasing scarcity of calves. The demand is good for good to choice grass-fed calves, and sales of the latter were made at 6½c to 7c, and the former at 5½c to 6c per lb., live weight, and some holders were asking as high as 8c to 8½c. The market for lambs was active and firm under a good demand, at 6c to 6¼c for Upper Canada stock, and at 5¾c to 5⅞c for Quebec stock. Sheep were quiet and unchanged at 3¾c to 4c per lb.

East Buffalo Cattle Market.

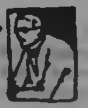
Chapter 10



THE next evening on reaching home Orde found that Newmark had preceded him by some few moments.

After supper Orde led the way up two flights of narrow stairs to his room.

"Well," said he, "I've made up my mind today to go in with you. It may not work out, but it's a good chance. I don't know who you are nor how much of a business man you are, but I'll risk it."

"I'm putting in $20,000," pointed out Newmark.

"And I'm putting in my everlasting reputation," said Orde. "If we tell these fellows that we'll get out their logs for them and then don't do it I'll be dead around here."

Newmark pursued the subject. "I've no objection to telling you about myself. New York born and bred; experience with Cooper & Dunne, brokers, eight years. Money from a legacy. Parents dead. No relatives to speak to."

Orde nodded gravely.

"Now," said Newmark, "have you had time to do any figuring?"

"Well," replied Orde, "I have a rough idea." He produced a bundle of scribbled papers from his coat pocket. "I take Daly as a sample, because I've been with his outfit. It costs him to run and deliver his logs 100 miles about $2 a thousand feet. He's the only big manufacturer up here. I suppose it costs the other nine firms from two to two and a half a thousand."

Newmark jotted down figures.

"Do these men all conduct separate drives?" he inquired.

"All but Proctor and old Heinzman. They pool in together."

"Now," went on Newmark, "if we were to drive the whole river, how could we improve on that?"

"In the first place we wouldn't need so many men. I could run the river on 300 easy enough. That saves wages and grub on 200 right there. And, of course, a few improvements on the river would save time, which in our case would mean money. We would not need so many separate cook outfits and all that. Then, too, if we agreed to sort and deliver we'd have to build sorting booms down at Monrovia."

"Suppose we had all that. What, for example, do you reckon you could bring Daly's logs down for?"

Orde fell into deep thought.

"I suppose somewhere about a dollar," he announced at last. He looked up a trifle startled. "Why," he cried, "that looks like big money! A hundred per cent!"

Newmark smiled.

"Hold on," said he. "I don't know anything about this business, but I can see a few things. In the first place, close figuring will probably add a few cents to that dollar. And then all our improvements will be valueless after we've got through using them. You said yesterday they'd probably stand us in $75,000. Even at a dollar profit we'd have to drive 75,000,000 before we got a cent back. And, of course, we've got to agree to drive for a little less than they could themselves."

"That's so," agreed Orde, crestfallen.

"However," said Newmark briskly as he arose, "there's good money in it as you say. Now, how soon can you leave Daly?"

"By the middle of the week."

"That's good. Then we'll go into this matter of expense thoroughly and establish our schedule of rates to submit to the different firms."

Chapter 11

THE new partners, as soon as Orde had released himself from Daly, gave all their time to working out a schedule of tolls. Orde drew on his intimate knowledge of the river and the locations of the rollways to estimate closely the time it would take to drive them.

At last Newmark expressed himself as satisfied.

"Now, Orde," said he, "here is where you come in. It's now your job to go out and interview these men and get their contracts for driving their next winter's cut."

"We've got to carry this thing through."

"Look here, Joe," Orde objected, "you can talk business to them better than I can."

"Not a bit," negatived Newmark. "They don't know me from Adam, and they do know you. We've got to carry this thing through at first on our face."

"All right," agreed Orde. "I'll start in on Daly."

The following morning Daly listened attentively.

"Well, Jack," said he, "I believe you can do it. I'd be only too glad to get rid of the nuisance of it, let alone get it done cheaper. If you'll draw up your contract and bring it in here, I'll sign it. I suppose you'll break out the rollways?"

"No," said Orde. "We hadn't thought of doing more than the driving and distributing. You'll have to deliver the logs in the river. Maybe another year, after we get better organized, we'll be able to break rollways."

"That was smooth enough sailing," exulted Orde to Newmark.

"Yes," pondered Newmark. "What was that about rollways? What does that mean exactly?"

"Why," explained Orde, with a slight stare of surprise, "when the logs are cut and hauled during the winter they are banked on the river banks and even in the river channel itself. Then, when the thaws come in the spring, these piles are broken down and set afloat in the river."

"I see," said Newmark. "Well, but why shouldn't we undertake that part of it?"

"It would hold back our drive too much to stop and break rollways."

The next morning they took the early train for Monrovia, where were situated the offices of the nine other lumber companies.

Orde separated from Newmark to spend the rest of the morning with Heinzman, a very rotund, cautious person of German extraction and accent. Heinzman occupied the time in asking questions of all sorts about the new enterprise. At 12 he had not in any way committed himself nor expressed an opinion.

"I vill see Proctor," said he.

Orde, rather exhausted, returned to find Newmark. The two had lunch together, after which Orde succeeded in getting two more promises of contracts and two more deferred interviews.

The following morning also he was much encouraged by the reception of his plan.

"That's four contracts already," said he, "and three more practically a sure thing. Proctor and Heinzman are slower than molasses about everything and mean as pusley, and Johnson's up in the air, the way he always is, for fear some one's going to do him."

But Heinzman offered a new problem for Orde's consideration.

"I haf talked with Proctor," said he, "and ve like your scheme. If you can deliffer our logs here for $2.25, why, that is better as ve can do it, but how do ve know you vill do it?"

"I'll guarantee to get them here all right," laughed Orde.

"But what is your guarantee good for?" persisted Heinzman blandly. "Suppose the logs are not delliffered—what then? How responsible are you financially?"

"Seventy-five thousand dollars."

"If you vill give a bond for the performance of your contract," pursued Heinzman, "that vould be satisfactory."

Orde's mind was struck chaotic by the request.

"How much of a bond?" he asked.

"Twenty-fife thousand vould satisfy us," said Heinzman.

Orde hunted up Newmark.

"Heinzman has sense," said Newmark dryly after hearing Orde's story. "I was wondering if ordinary business caution was unknown out here."

"Nobody would go on my bond for that amount."

"Mine either," said Newmark. "We'll just have to let them go and drive ahead without them. I only hope they won't spread the idea. Better get those other contracts signed up as soon as we can."

Orde started out early the next morning, carrying with him duplicate contracts.

About 11 o'clock a clerk of the Welton Lumber company entered Mr. Welton's private office to deliver to Orde a note.

"This just came by special messenger," he explained.

It was from Heinzman and requested an immediate interview. Orde delayed only long enough to get Mr. Welton's signature, then hastened away. Heinzman he found awaiting him.

"I suppose you would not be prepared to gif a bond."

"I hardly think so."

"Vell, suppose ve fix him this way," went on Heinzman, clasping his hands over his rotund stomach and beaming through his spectacles; "Proctor and I haf talked it ofer, and ve are agreet that the probosition is a good one; also ve think it is vell to help the young fellers along." He laughed silently in such a manner as to shake himself all over. "Ve do not vish to be too severe, and yet ve must get our logs on time. So if you gif us a bond secured with stock in the new company that would be satisfactory to us."

Orde's face cleared.

"Do you mean that, Mr. Heinzman?"

"Sure."

"Now, I call that a mighty good way out!" cried Orde.

"Make your contract out according to these terms, then," said Heinzman, handing him a paper, "and bring it in Monday."

Orde glanced over the slip. It recited two and a quarter as the agreed price; specified the date of delivery at Heinzman and Proctor's booms; named $25,000 as the amount of the bond, to be secured by $50,000 worth of stock in the new company. This looked satisfactory.

"By the vay"—the little German beamed up at him, swinging his fat legs as the office chair tipped back—"you vill be selling some of the stock to raise money. Is it not so?"

"Yes," agreed Orde.

"How much vill you capitalize for?"

"A hundred thousand," replied Orde.

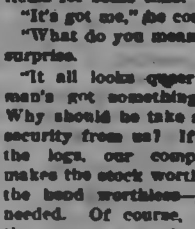
"Vell," said Heinzman, "ven you put it on the market come and see me."

That evening, well after 6, Orde returned to Newmark to take dinner.

"Well, I've got 'em all," said Orde as soon as the waitress had gone with the order. "But the best stroke of business you'd never guess. I roped in Heinzman."

"Good!" approved Newmark briefly.

"It was really pretty decent of the little Dutchman. He agreed to let us put up our stock as security. Of course that security is good only if we win out, and if we win out, why, then he'll get his logs, so he won't have any use for security. So it's just one way of beating the devil around the bush. He evidently wanted to give us the business, but he hated like the devil to pass up his rules—you know how these old shellbacks are."



"Ven you put it on the market come and see me."

"H'm—yes," said Newmark.

Orde went on: "I got into your department a little too."

"How's that?" asked Newmark, spearing a baked potato.

"Heinzman said he'd buy some of our stock. He seems to think we have a pretty good show."

Newmark paused, his potato halfway to his plate.

"Kind of him," said he after a moment. "Did he sign a contract?"

"It wasn't made out," Orde reminded him. "I am to bring it in Monday."

They ate hungrily, then drifted out into the office again, where Orde lit a cigar.

"Now, let's see your memoranda," said Newmark.

He frowned over the three simple items for some time.

"It's got me," he confessed.

"What do you mean?" asked Orde in surprise.

"It all looks queer to me. Heinzman's got something up his sleeve. Why should he take a bond with that security from us? If we can't deliver the logs, our company fails; that makes the stock worthless; that makes the bond worthless—just when it is needed. Of course, it's as plain as the nose on your face that he thinks the proposition a good one and is trying to get control."

HE KNOWS WHAT FIXED HIM UP

Dodd's Kidney Pills Cured S. D. Vickar's Lumbago

He suffered three years, but the Great Canadian Kidney Remedy made short work of his trouble.

Edenbridge, Sask., Nov. 21. (Special.)—"It was one box of Dodd's Kidney Pills that fixed me up." This is the cheerful answer Mr. Sam. D. Vickar is giving his inquiring neighbors in this district. Everybody around here knows that for three years he has been suffering from Lumbago. Now he's strong and well again.

"My Lumbago developed from a cold," Mr. Vickar goes on to say. "My head would ache. I was always tired and nervous. I had a bitter taste in my mouth in the morning, was troubled with dizzy spells and was always thirsty. The doctor told me I had Lumbago, but did not help me very much. Dodd's Kidney Pills cured me."

Dodd's Kidney Pills went straight to the root of the trouble. They cured his kidneys. The cured Kidneys strained the uric acid out of the blood and Mr. Vickar's Lumbago vanished. Dodd's Kidney Pills are no cure-all. They simply cure sick kidneys. They never fail to do that.

CENTERVILLE RESIDENTS CELEBRATED LAST NIGHT

The occasion of the re-opening of Centreville Presbyterian church last night was marked by one of the most largely attended and enthusiastic gatherings probably in the history of that little village. All were intent on making the most of the occasion and the new church, after having undergone renovating operations which completely alter the whole appearance of it, was a scene of gayety and festivity entirely in keeping with the event.

Centreville Presbyterian church was erected in 1863, and was built of solid brick. It was a substantial structure and was laid out on lines of a large and commodious nature, and appeared to be so splendidly put together that the ravages of time would find it invulnerable. However, of late years the residents of that thriving burg have been agitating for its renovation, and when the church was thrown open last evening the results of the re-fixing and overhauling were fully equal to expectations. Both the interior and outer appearance of the church is changed. All the old seating has been taken out, the wooden pillars removed, and iron columns installed in their place. Handsome and comfortable seats have taken the place of the old chairs.

The old pulpit also has been removed, and a large one of better appearance substituted. An elevated platform has been built, reached by stairs on either side, and provision for a choir made. The platform is also carpeted with the richest material and the walls have been handsomely decorated. A new window at the west end of the church of the usual stained and colored kind has also been placed. The aisles are covered with carpet of appropriate design. Probably the most useful and noticeable feature last night in connection with the renovating was the excellent new acetylene gas plant, which was responsible for the bright radiance that illuminated the interior of the church. It is remarkable that the majority were unanimous in the opinion that the light was superior to electricity. A new system of steam heating has been installed and a new vestry built. The members of the congregation are deserving of the highest commendation for their enterprise in having the above improvements made.

On Sunday the members of the congregation worshipped in their new church for the first time. Dr. Talling conducted the services on both occasions.

It is to the Ladies' Aid Society of the church that much of the success of last night's affair was due, as it was under their auspices that the concert and social time was arranged. Those who attended from Peterborough were highly pleased with the affair, and noticeable among the gathering were Crown Attorney R. R. Wood and Mr. Robert Fair, who was present to celebrate with the others the interesting event in this home town.

After the tea and entertainment several suitable addresses were given by speakers of note, among whom were Dr. Marsh, of Springville; Rev. Mr. White, of Fraserville, and Rev. Mr. Thompson, the latter giving a thoroughly Scotch talk. His subject was "We Want a Man," and an audible titter and a broad smile was noticed among the ladies of the congregation.

Dr. Marsh was somewhat handicapped last evening in his remarks, he being unable to rely on his ability to tell funny stories, having been warned not to do so. It can be easily seen what a heavy restraint this was to him.

Dr. Talling gave the last address in a scholarly and classic style and he was intently listened to.

Rev. Mr. MacKenzie made an ideal chairman. The music for the affair was supplied by all Millbrook talent. Miss Richardson gave two or three solos, and Mr. Morrison and Mr. Geo. Duncan also contributed to the program.

The proceeds from the collections on Sunday and from last night's social amounted to the very gratifying sum of four hundred dollars.

Christmas Day Added

The recent amendment to the Liquor License Act, regarding the days on which hotel bars must remain closed, has been made by the insertion of the words "Christmas Day," after the first word of the paragraph, which is "During."

CANADA'S ALL RIGHT AS SHE IS

Belleville Debaters Win Against Local Supporters of Resolution That Its Time This Dominion Became an Independendent Sovereign State-- Entertaining and Instructive Discussion at St. Alphonse's Lyceum

The question was "Should Canada Become an independent Sovereign State?" and to be the right answer was no. That briefly expresses the result of the debate last night between Messrs. J. Doris and J. Fewer, of St. Peter's T.A.S. Debating Club and Messrs. Charles Dolan and William Whibbs, of St. Michael's T. A. S, Debating Club of Belleville. They represented respectively the affirmative negative on a most interesting and eloquently treated debate on "Resolved that the time has come when Canada should enter into friendly negotiations with the mother country with a view to becoming an independent sovereign state.";

The debate was held in St. Alphonse's Lyceum before an audience that listened with close attention to the able arguments advanced by both sides and showed its warm appreciation of the skilful presentation of the opposing views.

Mr. D. O'Connell was judge and Rev. Father McColl and Rev. Father Meehan, chaplain of the Belleville society, were also on the platform.

THE IDEAL STATE.

Mr. James Doris leader of the affirmative lighted the fuse that caused the booming of the first oratorical gun.

He thought the realization of the cause for which the affirmative were to plead would offer almost incomprehensible possibilities for the development of the Dominion and giving it an exalted place in the eyes of the world He said the natural tendencies of all nations and individuals was to become independent and gave his reasons for believing that an independent sovereign state was the proper and natural state for Canada The idea of the affirmative was for Canada to become a self-governing state, framing its own laws, having its own courts as final tribunals, developing its own resources, providing its own defence and being responsible to no one but the sovereign of Britain and not to the British institutions or representatives. Canada had people and resources that warranted the country in looking after its own destiny, Mr. Doris thought.

He criticized the so-called advantages and protection that the mother country had afforded Canada. British statesmen in making treaties with the United States on behalf of Canada had made tremendous blunders and suppose the Dominion were to become independent in the sense the affirmative held it would be to its advantage to be, what would it lose in British military and naval protection? Nothing, for such protection had ever been forthcoming or necessary. The speaker freely gave arguments to show how a country had reached its maturity and highest development when it had become independent.

Mr. Dolan on behalf of the negative, prefaced his case by thanking St. Peter's T.A.S. for the splendid reception accorded Mr. Whibbs and himself.

CHANGE DETRIMENTAL.

An eloquent address had been given, he said, in support of the contention that Canada should become independent, but would the Dominion be justified in severing its connection with the most powerful country in the world? He thought not.

The speaker called attention to the splendid progress of Canada under the present regime; the development of its resources the fine trade relations established and the immense tide of immigration. It wasn't to be assumed that this immigration was of an undesirable character for half a million of the most desirable class from the United States had crossed the border to develop the virgin soil of Canada.

The expense in establishing a standing army and a navy was more tremendous than would be readily appreciated. That money could be spent to much greater advantage on the development of Canada's resources. Besides if Canada were to become independent the protection of Britain would be lost and by way of concrete example he showed that the disastrous effect of this would be felt if Japan for instance, were to attack Canada. The United States would step in and try to swallow up what Japan wanted for her prey and the country would be run by two wolves.

HAS OUTGROWN COLONY STAGE.

Mr. Fewer for the affirmative, said he had listened with rapt attention to what the preceding speaker had said. It was good, but he had "something better to offer."

He traced the history of Canada from a primitive country to a self-governing colony. But the term of a self-governing colony was a contradictory one, no colony could be self-governing.

He thought it was faulty jurisprudence when the Privy Council had the power to overrule the findings of the Supreme Court of Canada. The members of the Privy Council were strangers to Canada and why should they have the final word in matters with which they could have not the slightest local familiarity. Canada should get larger every year and couldn't stand still and it wanted its resources for its own. We were nothing but a colony and looked down upon as such and Englishmen coming out referred to us as "blawsted colonials." Canada in its ideal state should be a British monarch recognizing as its only and supreme head the King of England. Annexation with United States was not sought neither was there a desire to make Canada a republic, all that was wanted was a Government with rights equal to the one at Westminster.

Mr. Whibbs, the second speaker for the negative took exception to the reasoning of the affirmative speakers and proceeded to show what he thought was his justification for doing so.

The British Empire covered 11,000,000 square miles and had a population of over 500,000,000 souls. Canada was a republican commonwealth ruled by its own representatives Canada was as free to work her own destiny as any country in the world If the protecting arm of the mother country were withdrawn what would prevent another country from consummating the conquest of Canada.

The money being spent in Canada on public utilities couldn't be profitably diverted for military purposes. And the diplomatic service to which the affirmative had taken exception was the finest in the world.

Mr. Whibbs had a wealth of statistics to support his claims and he interestingly applied them to his arguments.

Mr. Doris on behalf of the affirmative replied briefly.

THE DECISION.

Mr D O'Connel, the judge, gave a thorough and able review of the points brought out by both sides and congratulated Mr. Whibbs, in particular, for his finished and convincing exposition of his case. He thought some of the arguments of the affirmative were not exactly in line with the strict meaning of the resolution and held the negative scored the most heavily in bringing out important and consistent points. He therefore declared them the winners of the debate.

He heartily congratulated all the speakers on their excellent showing.

Father McColl and Father Meehan made short and bright speeches.

INTERESTING PROGRAMME.

Previous to the debate a splendid programme was given, Rev. Father Casey acting as chairman. The programme was as follows;

Piano duet—Misses Doherty and McCabe.

Solo—Mr. George Daly.

Selection—Mandolin Club.

Recitation—Miss Carrie White.

Song—Mr Jo. Mercier.

CURLERS MAKE READY FOR COMING SEASON

Open and Local Bonspiels to be Held—Trophy for Annual Schedule—Ladies to Play the Game,

The usual preliminary meeting of the members of the Peterborough Curling Club was held last evening in the Dominion Bank Chambers. Over thirty were present and nearly all took an active part in discussing plans for the coming winter's games.

The question causing the greatest amount of discussion was that of holding local and open bonspiels.

Before this, however, the minutes of the last meeting were read by Mr. J. S. Ferguson and approved of. Mr. R. M. Waddell occupied the chair.

Several important resolutions were carried last night, chief of which were that an open bonspiel be held this year, and that the matter be left in the hands of a bonspiel committee. It was moved by Mr. G. H. Giroux, and seconded by W. G. Ferguson.

The bonspiel committee was next appointed.

The local bonspiel question was well discussed.

L. Hall moved that a local bonspiel be held this year. The motion was seconded by Mr. McDermid, and a committee to arrange for one was also appointed.

Mr. J. H. Cameron has donated a splendid "Sailor Boy" trophy for the winners of the annual schedule.

The ladies this year have applied for permission to curl, and after considerable debate it was resolved that the ladies will have the use of the rink from ten o'clock in the morning till one in the afternoon, with the exception of holidays and match days. This motion was moved by W. S. Ferguson and seconded by Mr. McDermid.

R. Neill moved that each skip be allowed to select his rink, and the motion was seconded by W. Talbot.

The date for selecting skips was set before December 5th, the motion being seconded by R. Neill and G. H. Giroux.

WERE OUT ALL NIGHT

Football Fever at Hamilton—The Ticket Sale

Hamilton, Nov. 21.—As early as 6 o'clock this evening the crowd began to gather in front of the Stanley Mills Company's store, where at 9 o'clock to-morrow morning the seats will go on sale to the public for the Varsity-Tigers football game next Saturday and by midnight fully 100 were in line. Some had camp stools, and others boxes, but the great majority will have to stand all night in order to be on hand when the sale opens. As the best of the seats were bought up to-day by the members of the Hamilton Football Club, it looks as though many of those who will remain out all night in order to get seats will be disappointed.

AT THE Y.M.C.A.

In the Collegiate Class Basketball League the Whirlwinds, by a whirlwind finish, defeated the Rubes in a very fast game. Score, 17 to 15.

The wrestling class had a very large attendance last night and some very promising material is being developed.

Business men's "gym" class to-night at 5.15 and 6.15.

Business boys' class at 7 o'clock.

Intermediates' gymnasium class at 8.15, when squad examinations will be held.

The swimming instructor will be pleased to meet any of the senior members who cannot swim, and who desire to learn this useful art, every Monday and Tuesday evening at 5.45.

Business Boys' Bible Class to-night at 6.20.

Swimming class for boys, Wednesday afternoon at 5 o'clock.

SPORTING COMMENT

In the report of the result of the two mile race yesterday, B. Quinn should have been given credit as the first runner under twelve years to finish.

The annual meeting of the Peterborough City Hockey League will, in all probability, be held next Monday night.

Mr. J. H. Cameron, an enthusiastic curler and one of the oldest members of the local club, is to the front with the offer of a "Sailor Boy" trophy, to be competed for in the annual schedule. The trophy will be accepted.

The ladies will be initiated into the mysteries of the in and out turn at the curling club this season. At last night's meeting certain hours were set apart for the gentle opponents of the game in this city. And why not? Haven't the ladies had life long experience at "curling," and they certainly ought to know how to use a broom.

The Board of Directors of the M.A.A.A. have refused to reinstate western professional hockey players.

In the appointment of Walter Miller to the managership of the Grand Forks Professional team, is seen the success of another Peterborough puck chaser.

Peterborough has representatives in the winter game throughout Canada, and each has made good.

When Sol. Mintz, of Hamilton, first took charge of Tom Longboat's affairs he sent out large cards with pictures of the "before and after" kind, showing an old shanty and an up-to-date residence, with the inscription underneath reading "From log cabin to mansion." The presumption is that the "shebang" was the original home of the great Indian runner, and if that is the case this item from the Haldimand Banner is of interest: "It is stated that Tom Longboat intends to reside at his house on the Reserve, and will have some alterations made to the residence and a motor garage erected." Is Tom going to use the "cabin" for his garage, or build a leanto adjacent. If that is the case Thomas will be backing his machine into the wrong "shop" some dark night when he has been out on a pleasure bent.—Toronto News.

Montreal Gazette—The interest aroused by the match between Derlaz and Hackenschmidt here last Wednesday night is shown in the fact that the receipts broke all records for wrestling matches in Montreal, going even higher than the figures realized at any of Tremblay's big matches and higher than the Gotch-Beell match of one Victoria Day a few years ago, the most important heavyweight bout that had been pulled off here. There have been more persons in the park, but not when the higher prices were ruling.

The park showed some minor damages yesterday as a result of the rush for admission but the Canadian Athletic Club considered itself lucky to get off as easily. When the crowd became too big between the outer and inner gates of the park, with twenty policemen guarding the inner, the outer gate was closed. It remained closed only a few minutes, however, the crowd breaking through it and forcing their way into the already crowded area within. It was estimated that about 2,000 were turned away from the general admission section, the gallery. At one time it looked as if the scenes at the Tremblay-Bothner match about eight years ago, when the doors were rushed and thousands gained admission without paying, would be duplicated.

BOWLING

Three teams have already entered for the bowling competition at the Y. M.C.A. This promises to be one of the most interesting competitions of the season. There will be six prizes given. The men on the winning team will receive a silver association watch fob and the men on the second team will be presented with an association pin. The teams now entered are:—The Lancashire Trio, consisting of Messrs. P. Braun, B. Leader, and T. Evans; the Big Three, consisting of Stanley Kerneghan, S. Norris and Nelson Wettlaufer, and the High Rollers, consisting of J. J. Thompson, W. Flowers and A. Fitzgerald. Those who are contemplating the formation of a team will have to get their names entered before Wednesday night for the entries close then.

HAD THE TURKEY IN THE CELLAR

Which is Conclusive Proof That He Must Have Won it—A Correction

Sporting Editor of The Review.

Dear Sir — I will be obliged if you will make a correction in your next issue with regard to an article that appeared in your paper of Nov. 21st, with regards to the shooting contest conducted at Messrs. Yeotes Bros., shooting gallery. You state in your paper that both turkeys were won by Mr. J. Simmons. This statement is not correct as he was tied with me in the off hand shooting, with a score of 56. This was shot off Saturday night at 10 o'clock, with the result that I won with a score of 51 against Mr. Simmon's score of 48. This statement can be easily proved as the turkey won hangs in my cellar.

I might also add that I was not allowed to shoot for both prizes yet the other man was, which is anything but fair sport.

Thanking you in anticipation of the correction.

I am sincerely
Yours truly,
CECIL G. SMITH,

The information regarding the shoot was published as furnished to The Review, by Mr. Yeotes, who doubtless made error unintentionally.

THE RUSSIAN PEASANT.

Stupid and Poor, a Good Fellow Who Merely Exists.

The Russian peasant does not live; he merely exists. "Nitchevo" ("It is nothing"), he merely says when anything happens to him. Nothing matters, nothing could be worse, and "Nitchevo" is his panacea for all evils. And yet the Russian moujik is really a fine fellow. Ordinarily, H. P. Kennard tells us in his book, "The Russian Peasant," he is a splendid, well built man, large limbed, large headed and healthy. He is equally unaffected by 20 degrees of frost or twenty glasses of vodka. He is clothed in uncured sheepskins and carries in winter more clothes than the average Englishman could stand up in.

He is unspeakably stupid, however, and his dream of happiness is to gorge, to sleep as much as possible through the winter and dance and sing in the summer. But the stranger's first objection to the moujik is that he smells—not because he does not wash himself. As a matter of fact, in every village there are public baths—baaza—and the peasants wash themselves there unfailingly every Saturday in order to be allowed to go to church on Sunday, for the Orthodox church enjoins cleanliness.

The Russian peasant is always poor and generally in debt. He plows the land in the same way that his father plowed it and gets as little for his labor. His main worry in life is how to pay the governor's taxes. If he says he cannot pay he is flogged, or perhaps he will sell part of his next year's power of work—i. e., work for nothing for several months—to raise a loan, and of course he is worse off than ever the following year.

On Christmas night at dusk the marriageable village girls go out into the streets and meet their young men, and one says, "What is your name?" The young man answers "Foma," and she replies, "My husband's name is Foma."

Some days later at the girl's home relations are gathered together. There comes a knock at the door. The starosta and the young man enter, carrying loaves of bread. The starosta says something like this:

"We are German people, come from Turkey. We are hunters, good fellows. There was a time once in our country when we saw strange footprints in the snow, and my friend the prince here saw them, and we thought they might be a fox's or marten's footprints or it might be those of a beautiful girl. We hunters, we good fellows, are determined not to rest till we have found the animal. We have been in all cities from Germany to Turkey and have sought for this fox, this marten or this princess, and at last we have seen the same strange footprints in the snow again, here by your court. And we have come in. Come, let us take her, the beautiful princess, for we see her in front of us, or can it be that you would keep her till she grows a little older?"

Thus does the moujik ask for a wife.

Inventor Davy and Love.

Sir Humphry Davy, the inventor of the Davy lamp, found love something of a delusion, if not a snare. Writing to his mother, he said, "I am the happiest of men in the hope of a union with a woman equally distinguished for virtues, talents and accomplishments." And in a letter to his brother he expresses his rapture thus: "Mrs. Apprece has consented to marry me, and when the event takes place I shall not envy kings, princes or potentates." The widow must have been a person possessed of great powers of fascination, for Sir Henry Holland makes mention of her as a lady who made such a sensation in Edinburgh society that even a regius professor did not think it beneath his scholarship to go down on his knees in the street to fasten her shoe. The sequel need not be dwelt upon further than to add that the marriage turned out to be altogether a mistake.

Fergusson and the Rabbits.

Robert Fergusson, the poet, was first matriculated at St. Andrew's university in the session of 1764-5. It was the custom at this time for each bursar to take his turn in invoking "blessing" at the meals. The college table having been surfeited with an unbroken diet of rabbits in various forms of cookery, Fergusson, on being called to say grace, repeated what are now celebrated lines:

For rabbits young and for rabbits old,
For rabbits hot and for rabbits cold,
For rabbits tender and for rabbits tough
Our thanks we render, for we've had enough!

It may be added Fergusson was not sent down, but the rabbits were "rusticated."

The Quipus.

The quipus, upon which the ancient Peruvians kept their records and accounts, consisted of a thick main cord, with smaller cords tied to it at certain distances. Upon these smaller cords the knots were tied by means of which the reckoning was kept. The length of the main rope varied from a foot to several yards. The cords were of various colors, each with its own proper meaning—as red for soldiers, yellow for gold, white for silver, green for corn, and so on. The reckoning seems to have been largely regulated by the distances of the knots from the main cord and the sequence of the branches. —New York American.

Same Effect.

"Cyril," said his mother as they sat down to the breakfast table, "did you wash your face this morning?"

"Well, no, mamma," said he slowly, evidently casting in his mind for an excuse, "but," he added reassuringly, "I cried a little before I came down stairs!"—Delineator.

A hotel for working women may be started in Montreal. Prominent men are promoting the scheme.

OFF THE MAT

It looks as though Buffalo has grabbed off the prize card of the early season in the Zbyszko-Hack handicap for Thanksgiving.

De Raiz is in demand since his bout with Hack in Bufatlo. He is to meet the Russian Lion in a finish match at Rochester, and had a tilt with him last night at Boston.

Dr. Ben Roller, the Seattle wonder, who is regarded by experts as the American successor of Gotch, will Oopen up the season at the Omaha, Neb., club on Nov. 23rd. Alberts Mendino, a recent Turkish importation, has been selected to oppose Roller. The man from the Sultan's domains is said to be a powerful grappler.

Hackenschmidt will in all probability wrestle in Omaha on Dec. 10th. western organization has been making overtures to Dr. Roller to meet the Russian Lion.

Henry Ordeman who is a claimant of the heavyweight championship, and Zbyszko have been matched and are waiting for a club to bid for their services. Ordeman hails from Minneapolis, and is one of the best of the western mat men. He may show in Buffalo this season.

Shad Link, the Baltimore wrestler, has not been seen or heard from in a contest for several months. Perhaps Link is masquerading under one of the Useless Maybout titles.

Eugene Tremblay, the former champion, has outgrown his class, so young Tremblay is now a good-sized welterweight. He is still fast and aggressive. Willoughby will never get a chance at him.

WORTH MOUNTAINS OF GOLD

During Change of Life, says Mrs. Chas. Barclay

Graniteville, Vt.—"I was passing through the Change of Life and suffered from nervousness and other annoying symptoms, and I can truly say that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has proved worth mountains of gold to me, as it restored my health and strength. I never forget to tell my friends what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me during this trying period. Complete restoration to health means so much to me that for the sake of other suffering women I am willing to make my trouble public so you may publish this letter."—MRS. CHAS. BARCLAY, R.F.D., Graniteville, Vt.

No other medicine for woman's ills has received such wide-spread and unqualified endorsement. No other medicine we know of has such a record of cures of female ills as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

For more than 30 years it has been curing female complaints such as inflammation, ulceration, local weaknesses, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, indigestion and nervous prostration, and it is unequalled for carrying women safely through the period of change of life. It costs but little to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and, as Mrs. Barclay says, it is "worth mountains of gold" to suffering women.

TAR AND FEATHERS.

People who read of tarring and feathering know that the punishment is a very unpleasant one, but few imagine how terribly painful and dangerous it is. Hardened tar is very hard to remove from the skin, and when feathers are added it forms a kind of cement that sticks closer than a brother. As soon as the tar sets the victim's suffering begins. It contracts as it cools, and every one of the little veins on the body is pulled, causing the most exquisite agony. The perspiration is entirely stopped, and unless the tar is removed death is certain to ensue.

But the removal is no easy task and requires several days. The tar cannot be softened by the application of heat and must be peeled off bit by bit, sweet oil being used to make the process less painful. The irritation to the skin is very great, as the hairs cannot be disengaged, but must be pulled out or cut off. No man can be cleaned of tar in a single day, as the pain of the operation would be too excruciating for endurance, and until this is done he has to suffer from a pain like that of 10,000 pin pricks. Numbers of men have died under the torture, and none who have gone through it regard tar and feathering as anything but a most fearful infliction.

TOBACCO IN THE ARCTIC.

Resources of Miners When They Can Neither Chew Nor Smoke.

"When the wind is blowing thirty miles an hour and the temperature is 40 below it is some cold," said a man from Alaska. "If a man used tobacco in the ordinary way out of doors during such weather and got his lips wet through smoking a pipe or chewing he would be apt to get into trouble. First thing he knew he'd have his lips cracked, and they would be raw all winter long.

"The regulars stationed at the military posts up in Alaska found that if they tied a tobacco leaf in their armpit previous to undesired duty they would become very sick and could pass the post surgeon for hospital, getting rid of detail work they wanted to avoid.

"The miners up there learned something of this and found that the tobacco craving could be satisfied by binding a quantity of the leaf either in the armpit or against the solar plexus. This avoided broken and bleeding lips during the winter, and they weren't prevented from smoking indoors as well if they wanted to. It was the outdoor smoking or chewing that made all the trouble."—New York Sun.

His Way of Doing.

"Could the cashier of that company explain the muddle in the books?"

"He said he would clear it all up."

"Did he?"

"No, he didn't clear it up. He cleared out."—Baltimore American.

HOW OTHER CITIES ANSWER THE GARBAGE QUESTION

Our council has been doing much thinking and no acting on the garbage question. Here is the result of an exhaustive report from Brockville. We clip it from the Brockville Times of last Friday—

The Mayor called upon Mr. M. M. Brown, chairman of the Board of Health to read the report of a special committee consisting of himself, Mr. Brown and Mr. Wilgress, to consider and report upon the establishment in Brockville of a system for the collection of garbage. His Worship stated that the committee had studied the matter very carefully and embodied their conclusions in the document to be presented after much research and holding several meetings.

The report was then read by Mr. Brown as follows—

To the Mayor and Town Council—

Sirs,—In accordance with the resolution passed by the Brockville Town Council at its meeting of the 12th September, appointing a committee consisting of M. M. Brown, chairman of the Board of Health, Mayor Patterson and A. T. Wilgress, town councillor, to investigate the problems the committee begs to present its report herewith.

There can be no question as to the menace to human life caused by the presence, in business and residential sections, of decaying animal or vegetable matter. Not only is this evident to ordinary human intelligence but the highest medical and sanitary authorities are unanimous on this point. It is hard to estimate accurately within a municipality, especially in summer, but it is acknowledged that there can be no more fruitful location for the breeding of the germs of scarlet fever, diphtheria and typhoid fever than in garbage or in the soil fouled by decaying kitchen refuse. In addition to this there is untidiness and both direct and indirect danger and economic loss in the existence of uncollected general refuse such as paper, straw, litter, tins, bottles, ashes, etc.

Furthermore, apart from the personal distress and expense incidental to illness and death as the result of disease caused by a lack of cleanliness a good sanitary system constitutes a most valuable asset to any municipality in the form of an attractive advertisement. Sanitary reform means progress and life, both human and commercial.

The constant urgent requests by citizens to members of the Board of Health and members of the town council for a system of garbage and refuse removal indicate that there is a general demand for such a sanitary reform.

IN OTHER TOWNS

In order to collect information upon which to base our suggestions for a garbage system suitable to Brockville your committee communicated with a number of towns in Ontario to ascertain what plans they followed.

Peterborough and Belleville as yet have no systematic collection of garbage though the matter is now being considered.

Windsor originally had the work done by contract under the control of the Board of Health for the sum of $1,200 per annum, but this method proved unsatisfactory, and it was subsequently turned over to the Board of Works which was given an appropriation of $2,500 per annum to improve the equipment and defray the cost, presumably collected as a general tax. The latter plan has proved satisfactory and is much appreciated by the citizens.

Chatham has a garbage collector who removes garbage and refuse for 25c per month, twice a week in summer and once per week in winter. He is also paid $240 a year as city scavenger. It is necessary that at least two or three citizens in each section of the street agree to have their garbage removed in order to secure the service in such sections. The system is said to work satisfactorily.

Kingston appoints two or more scavengers, who have the exclusive right to collect garbage and refuse, remove dead animals, empty dry earth closets, cesspools, pits, etc., according to the scale of fees specified, which fees are their per barrel of 24 gallons capacity, or 5c per half barrel for excess. The scavengers are under the control of the Board of Health, per the Sanitary Inspector, and their equipment for collecting is subject to official approval. It is optional to employ the scavengers.

BERLIN'S CORPORATION SYSTEM

Berlin has its garbage and refuse collected by men directly employed by the Corporation and under the control of the Sanitary Inspector. The work is done within a prescribed area and along regular routes. The material collected weekly comprises ashes, offal, cinders, broken crockery, tins, metals, grass, weeds, old boots, broken branches and litter but not manure, night soil, or building material. The refuse and garbage must be placed in suitable barrels, boxes or receptacles in a spot convenient for the collector. Ordinary householders and occupants pay 15c per month for garbage and refuse not exceeding two barrels a week and 5c per barrel in excess. Hotels pay 75c per month for five barrels per week and 5c per barrel in excess. Fruit stores and mercantile establishments pay 50c per month for the removal of their refuse. The tax is added to the tax-collector's rolls with the other taxes.

GUELPH'S CONTRACT SYSTEM

Guelph contracts with a scavenger to collect garbage, offal, ashes and refuse within a prescribed area and along regular routes at regular intervals, not less than once per week, for the sum of 15c per month for each separate premises, with the exception of hotels, dry-goods, grocery, fruit and hardware stores which pay 40c per month. Factories, foundries vacant lots, and printing establishments are exempt. The limit is, of course, placed on the quantity to be daily collected, and removed for this tax, and a slight additional tax is added for any excess. The citizens must provide suitable barrels, boxes, or receptacles for the garbage and refuse, and the same must be conveniently placed for the collector. The contracting scavenger of Guelph is under the direction of the Sanitary Inspector and is paid $5.00 per day of ten working hours and he has the exclusive right to collect garbage and refuse within the prescribed area and must remove them to an approved place. The cost of the service is added to the Collector's Rolls and is collected from those who receive the service the same as their other taxes. The contracting scavenger has to provide a waggon approved by the Sanitary Inspector of a style which will not allow the garbage or refuse to be spilled on the highways, and the garbage, etc., must be collected in a cleanly manner. The scavenger must report failure of occupants to put out their garbage and refuse and a penalty is imposed on those who fail to do so.

DESIRABLE FOR TWO REASONS.

The systematic collection of garbage and refuse is most desirable, chiefly for two reasons. First from the sanitary point of view; and secondly from the economic aspect. The regular collection and removal of kitchen offal, animal and vegetable refuse, and general rubbish, is sure to improve public sanitation and general health, and should be put into force at once. The collection and sale of refuse as waste paper, tins, bottles, etc., may prove a productive source of revenue to Brockville as it does to other cities and municipalities and this should be considered seriously by the Town Council with a view to establishing such a system at a later date. Last year Glasgow derived a revenue of $180,813 from its refuse, as follows;—Clinker, $81,916; tin, light iron, etc., $26249; scrap iron, $38,675; waste paper, $32,694; bottles, $1,273.

RECOMMENDATION MADE.

We would therefore beg to recommend that the body of the town be laid out in an area, or possibly two areas, as east and west, for the sake of a more efficient service and that a contract by tender be made with one or more scavengers who shall have the exclusive right within the prescribed area or areas to collect and remove all garbage and refuse at regular times, along regular routes, not less than once a week in temperate weather, or oftener if the contractor should so desire, but twice a week in hot weather. For this service each occupant of premises within the prescribed area should be taxed as follows; or as the Town Council may deem just and proper;

Ordinary residents, per month, 15c.

Fruit or groceries per month, 40c.

Other mercantile establishments, per month, 25c.

Hotels, per month, 75c.

This schedule implies a slight additional tax for any excess over the reasonable limit in quantity of garbage and refuse to be removed. The garbage and refuse should be kept separate. The system should be under the direction of the Sanitary Inspector, who shall be held responsible for a satisfactory service. The service should be used by all within the areas prescribed and not be merely optional for in our opinion, it is unfair for one man to keep his premises clean and in sanitary condition while the adjoining occupant may neglect all methods of sanitation.

LESSEN DANGER OF FLIES.

Furthermore we are of the opinion that the systematic removal of refuse and litter from the rear of mercantile establishments will materially minimize the danger from flies.

The system in use in Berlin and Guelph, appear to us to be especially good, and to embody all details necessary for the framing of a satisfactory garbage by-law for Brockville.

We would also respectfully suggest that the town authorities arrange to provide the citizens at cost price, or even at less than cost, with a standard steel-iron covered garbage tin for convenience and efficiency. It would also prove of great educational value and practical use if the Town authorities were to issue printed slips enumerating some elementary rules of sanitation, recommending some cheap disinfectant for use in washing out sinks, closets, garbage cans. Also an explanation of the menace of the house fly, and urging strongly the use of fly screens and the destruction of house flies. The advisory slips might be left by the scavenger of the collector of taxes on his rounds.

Herewith appended are the sanitary by-laws of Guelph and Berlin for the assistance of the Town Council in framing a suitable sanitary by-law for Brockville.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

(Signed)

M. M. BROWN
A. M. PATTERSON,
A. T. WILGRESS.

Brockville, Nov. 14th, 1910.

Attached to the report was a copy of the by-law in force in Guelph. Mr. Brown added that whatever system was adopted it should be made compulsory and not optional in the interests of the general health of the community.

Mr. Wilgress suggested the immediate adoption of the report with instructions to the solicitor to draft a by-law for the consideration in the near future so as to get the by-law operative in the early winter and place the responsibility of its enforcement upon the incoming council.

A resolution was passed accordingly on motion of Dr. Gowan and Mr. Wilgress.

Mr. McClean favored pushing the matter through this year. No move ever made by the present council would meet with more general approval than this one, and the committee was deserving of the best thanks of the community for going into the subject so thoroughly and effectively.

Mr. Mackenzie spoke in a similar strain, adding that he hoped something good would come of it. A good garbage system was conducive to the health of any community.

Mr. Grothier added his appreciation of the work of the committee and said the subject would meet with the hearty approval of citizens generally.

The Mayor stated that on his recent visit to the west he noticed a system similar to the one recommended was in use in Burlington, Iowa, with the addition that keepers of horses in the city were compelled to provide for the storage of manure, which was carted away at stated intervals. Manure was a great breeder and flies undoubtedly carry disease.

Not Afraid to Die.

London, Nov. 21.—Dr. Hawley H. Crippen, whose execution is fixed for Nov. 23, in a three-column signed statement in a Sunday paper, says that he is not afraid to die, and bows to the inevitable. He appeals to the world to remember that he was condemned on inconclusive evidence, and asserts that the real truth will be revealed. He knew nothing, he says, of the remains discovered in the Hill Drop Crescent house until Solicitor Newton told him the day after his arrival at Bow street. He was confident that, if he could have commanded unlimited funds, like the crown, and have brought more medical witnesses, the result would have been different.

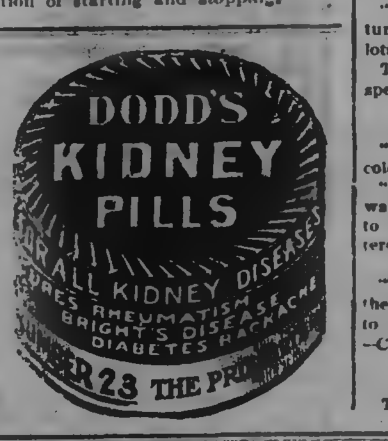
The failure of his appeal, which he was convinced would reverse the judgment of the court, crushed and overwhelmed him, and broke his heart, because he had dreamt of building up a home with the woman, without whom life was worthless.

Fifty Per Cent. Increase.

Vancouver, Nov. 21.—W. L. Coulson, general manager of the Canadian Collieries, Limited, here, yesterday stated that, by the introduction of the new plant, the coal production at the Extension and Comax mines, on Vancouver Island, now controlled by Mackenzie and Mann, will be increased 50 per cent. within the next twelve months. The combined output now reaches 4,000 tons daily, an increase of over 600 tons a day since the change in the ownership from Dunsmuir to the Canadian Northern Railway magnates.

A Royal Aviator.

Darmstadt, Germany, Nov. 21.—Prince Henry of Prussia has qualified as an aerial pilot. The prince is a pupil of August Euler, and in a test exhibition did credit to his instructor. He flew about the Darmstadt field, performing a variety of evolutions, and also showed the knowledge required by the International Aeronautic Federation as to the construction of the machine, the principles of operation of starting and stopping.



Temporary Heat Quickly

Did you ever stop to think of the many ways in which a perfect oil heater is of value? If you want to sleep with your window open in winter, you can get sufficient heat from an oil heater while you undress at night, and then turn it off. Apply a match in the morning, when you get out of bed, and you have heat while you dress.

Those who have to eat an early breakfast before the stove is radiating heat can get immediate warmth from an oil heater, and then turn it off.

The girl who practices on the piano in a cold room in the morning can have warmth from an oil heater while she plays, and then turn it off.

The member of the family who has to walk the floor on a cold winter's night with a restless baby can get temporary heat with an oil heater, and then turn it off. The is invaluable in its capacity of quickly giving heat. Apply a match and it is immediately at work. It will burn for nine hours without refilling. It is safe, smokeless and odorless. It has a damper top and a cool handle. An indicator always shows the amount of oil in the font.

PERFECTION SMOKELESS OIL HEATER

Absolutely smokeless and odorless

It has an automatic-locking flame spreader which prevents the wick from being turned high enough to smoke, and is easy to remove and drop back so that the wick can be cleaned in an instant.

The burner body or gallery cannot become wedged, and can be quickly unscrewed for rewicking. Finished in japan or nickel, strong, durable, well-made, built for service, and yet light and ornamental.

Man's Early Building.

The ruins of successive human habitations unearthed in Asia show how man advanced from primeval savagery to the pomp of Babylon and Nineveh. First he improved the caves in which he dwelt by leveling the floors and cutting windows to give him light. Afterward he constructed entirely artificial habitations for himself, at first roughly made tents of boughs and leaves, then huts of mud and finally dwellings of wood and stone.

Spiteful.

"Yes," said the engaged girl, "Dick is very methodical. He gives me one kiss when he comes and two when he goes away."

"That's always been his way," returned her dearest friend. "I've heard lots of girls comment on it."

Thus it happens that they cease to speak to each other.

Fell In With the Argument.

"Right," replied the major, "and I was just about to ask you to add $5 to that $10 I borrowed from you yesterday."—Uncle Remus' Magazine.

Serious Injury to Prominent Farmer, Residing Near Omemee — Thought Back Was Broken.

A rather serious injury occurred to Mr. William McConnell, a prominent farmer, residing near Omemee, last night. The exact time of the accident could not be ascertained, but one report says that he was thrown from his buggy and had his back severely injured. At first it was thought it was broken, but a more complete examination showed the injury to be not quite so serious. More details of the occurrence will be made known to-morrow.

CONGRATULATIONS FROM BISHOP

A delayed letter was read from the Lord Bishop of Toronto at the morning service at St. John's on Sunday warmly congratulating the congregation on the 75th anniversary of the church's opening and acknowledging the important service rendered by the congregation both to the diocese and the community of which it formed a part.

The first rector of St. John's was Rev. Samuel Armour, who came as messenger to Peterborough in 1857, when the settlement was two years old.

PRICE OF PORK DECREASES HOW BEEF IS SELLING

The recent drop in the price of live hogs has resulted in the prices of pork at the local butcher shops taking a slight move downwards.

The Review asked a local butcher to-day and was informed that cuts of pork are down about one cent. Pork formerly sold at sixteen to eighteen cents, but is now selling at fourteen, fifteen and seventeen cents.

Regarding beef, the informant gave some information of value, regarding the regulation of prices, which perhaps is not generally understood by many householders. Out of about six hundred pounds of beef there is only about seventy or eighty pounds of choice meat. The reason therefore that beef can be sold for so low as six, seven, ten and thirteen cents is because the butcher is compelled to sell the best quality or the choice meat at prices sufficiently high to enable him to make a profit on it, thus counterbalancing the lack of profit which is caused by his selling the poorer quality at such low prices. Often he buys a piece of beef and sells it at the same price thus realizing nothing on the sale.

The same party did not say whether the prices would remain stationary or not.

While the price of lamb at present shows a slight decrease, it is expected that after Christmas it will advance to its old figure.

DAYLIGHT ROBBER CLEANED UP $125

A mysterious robbery was committed at Young's Point on Tuesday afternoon, when $125 in cash was taken from the safe in the store of Mr. Ed. Young.

Mr. Young took no action in reporting the matter to the authorities and for that reason the robbery did not come to light sooner.

Mr. Young was communicated with by the Review this afternoon. He said that both he and his clerk happened to be out of the store for a short time and some person, the identity of whom he has no idea of, entered the store and rifled the safe, which was unlocked, for the amount mentioned.

BOY SCOUTS AT COOKING

Boy Scouts at Cooking—

The "Y" Scouts had their usual good time Saturday. The number taking part shows a slight increase each week. The boys are looking forward to working hard during the winter months, with the intention of becoming first-class Scouts by spring. Saturday's outing was very much enjoyed by all. The boys were taught how to prepare a camp fire; also how to do a little simple cooking, and how to pitch a tent under difficulties. After which they marched back to the "Y" under the command of their patrol leaders. Next Friday will be spent in swearing in the new recruits from St. Paul's and Park St. Baptist churches.

HARDWARE CONVENTION WINDOW COMPETITION

Hardware and Metal.

After consultation with the hardware and stove merchants of Peterborough who are members of the Association, the Ontario Retail Hardware and Stove Dealers' Association have decided to have five window dressing competitions during their sixth annual convention to be held at Peterborough February 21 to 24, 1911. Five cash prizes of $10 each will be offered, and any hardware or stove merchant (or clerk in a store) belonging to the Association can enter the competition. No entry fee will be charged and any goods required for the displays can be taken from the stocks in the store where the window is trimmed.

The first competition for the best general hardware window will close on Tuesday night, February 21, and the Peterborough window trimmers will show what they can do in this contest. If any outside hardwaremen desire to compete, however, windows will be placed at their disposal, each of the local stores having two windows. The prize will be $10 in each.

On Wednesday there will be two competitions and two $10 prizes for the best "stoves and kitchen goods," and "paint and brush windows." There are four hardware stores, two carrying stoves, and five stove stores, and all these windows are available for use in the competition.

On Thursday there will likewise be two competitions, prizes of $10 each being offered for the best tool window, and the best cutlery and sporting goods windows.

The details are not complete, but it is suggested that displays must be put in order between 6 a.m. and 9 a.m. each day in order to allow visiting hardwaremen to watch the methods used in putting the display together.

THE SOCIAL EVENING.

The celebrated band of the 57th Regiment, Peterborough, under the leadership of Rupert Gliddon, has been engaged to play in the exhibition hall on Tuesday and Wednesday evenings, and a special program will be put on both evenings. Mr. Gliddon will also provide an orchestra for the "social evening" on Thursday night, when Harry Bennett, a widely known entertainer will tell what he knows and sing some songs about the hardware trade. Some men in the trade with talent as songsters, etc., will also help to make the evening interesting, while after and during the program a buffet lunch will be served.

ARRANGEMENTS FOR EXHIBITION

During the past fortnight the Queen City Oil Company, Toronto; Pratt & Lambert, Bridgebury; Canada Cycle & Motor Co., Toronto, and the Peterborough Canoe Co., Peterborough, have secured space for exhibits, and Adam Hall, stove manufacturer, Peterborough, will probably round off the Peterborough exhibit with a display of his lumbermen's stores. This will make seven exhibits of Peterborough goods. Only two spaces now remain unallotted

NEW JERSEY TEA.

Red Root, That Did Good Service in Revolutionary Days.

You housekeepers of today whose favorite brands of Orange Pekoe, English Breakfast, India and Ceylon, etc., diffuse their fragrance over your tea table would hardly suppose that tea, or, rather, a fairly good substitute for it, was once made from the leaves of one of our prettiest New Jersey wild flowers. Yet so it was in the old turbulent days of the American Revolution, when they had so much trouble over the imported article and used various beverages as substitutes for that to which they had become accustomed.

New Jersey tea, or red root, as it is also called, is a low growing shrub with many branches, seldom over three feet high, and is found from Canada to Florida, growing usually in dry wooded sections. It is very abundant in New Jersey, for which it is named. It blooms profusely in July and is so showy, with its many panicled white blossoms, as to be quite worth a place in the gardens as an ornamental shrub. It has a dark red root, with leaves downy beneath and very much veined, by which it is easily distinguished from the pure tea. An infusion of the leaves prepared in the same manner as the genuine article has somewhat the taste or ordinary grades of the tea of the orient, but is not supposed to possess any of its stimulating properties.—Exchange.

Bulwer Lytton and His Chorus.

The Princess von Racowitza met Bulwer Lytton in the Riviera toward the end of the fifties. He was then, she says in her autobiography, "past his first youth; his fame was at its zenith. He seemed to me antediluvian, with his long dyed curls and his old fashioned dress. He dressed exactly in the fashion of the twenties, with long coats reaching to the ankles, knee breeches and long colored waistcoats. Also he appeared always with a young lady who adored him and who was followed by a manservant carrying a harp. She sat at his feet and appeared, as he did, in the costume of 1830, with long flowing curls, called Anglaises. He read aloud from his own works, and in especially poetic passages his 'Alice' accompanied him with arpeggios on the harp."

A CURIOUS ANIMAL.

The Sea Cucumber Can Part With and Replace Its Organs.

Among the curious animals which inhabit the sea we may take the holothuria, or sea cucumber, so called from its resemblance to the cucumber.

When this animal is attacked by an enemy it does not stand up and fight, but by a sudden movement it ejects its teeth, stomach, digestive apparatus and nearly all its intestines and then shrivels its body up to almost nothing. When, however, the danger is past the animal commences to replace the organs which it has voluntarily parted with, and in a short time the animal is as perfect as ever it was.

Dr. Johnstone kept one in water for a long time, and one day he forgot to change the water. The creature in consequence ejected its intestines and shriveled up, but when the water was changed all its organs were reproduced. Although the animal is not eaten in Europe, it is a favorite with the Chinese, and the fishing forms an important part of the industry of the east. Thousands of junks are annually used in fishing for trepang, as the animals are called.—London Tit-Bits.

A Tree Climbing Dog.

A government official in Bavaria connected with the forestry department has a wonderful dog, which is as clever at climbing trees as a cat. If his master fastens a handkerchief up in the treetops the animal will clamber up after it in the nimblest way and never fails to bring it down. He was taught by his mother, who was famous as a tree climber. The clever animal has won several medals by his extraordinary talent and takes particular delight in climbing silver birches, not the easiest tree in the world to scale, for the trunk is particularly smooth and slippery.—Wide World Magazine.

Compliments of Lady Spencer.

During his first Viceroyalty, from 1868 to 1874, Lord Spencer and his wife, who was then at the zenith of her beauty, were popular even in quarters where British officials are not as a rule looked upon with favor. The earl was nicknamed the Red Cross Knight and the Lady-Lieutenant came to be known as Spencer's Faerie Queene. Lord Spencer's last public appearance before leaving Ireland in 1874 was at a school where his wife was distributing prizes. The speaker called upon to return a vote of thanks to the distinguished guests concluded his remarks by saying to the Lord-Lieutenant: "We all hope to see you back again—you and the work of art that sits by your side." The remark was meant as a compliment to Lady Spencer, but might certainly have been more happily worded.—Pall Mall Gazette.

Literal.

"What is your last name, my boy?" asked the teacher of the new pupil, a frightened looking youngster of some half dozen years.

"Tommy."

"Tommy what?"

"Tommy Tompkins."

"Then Tompkins is your last name," turning to his record book.

"No, sir," came the reply with the air of one accustomed to render literalness to inquiring elders. "I don't think so, sir. Tompkins was my name already when I was born, and aunty says they didn't give me the other for a whole month afterward."

It Wouldn't Stretch.

The assessor was doing the very best he could, but the farmer was shrewd and wary.

"How many acres of farming land have you?" he inquired wearily.

"'Bout twenty, I guess," said Reuben.

"Twenty! Why, it looks to me like nearer 120. Come, now, can't you increase that a little? There are surely more than twenty acres in that tract. Suppose you stretch that a little."

"Say, feller," said the farmer, "this is no rubber plantation."

SIR JOHN FRENCH'S REPORT CRITICIZES PROPORTION OF TROOPS

Inspector-General Says There is Too Much Infantry and Heavy Artillery in Canada—Militiamen's Duties Should be Enforced More Strictly.

Ottawa, Nov. 23.—The Minister of Militia yesterday made public the report of Sir John French, inspector-general of the Imperial forces, upon the Canadian militia. In his summary he says:

"The full measure of service and obligation which a volunteer, whether officer or private, takes upon himself, must be exacted. In a force raised and maintained on a volunteer system, nothing less than this will do, and anything less will mean inefficiency, failure, and, at last, disaster. According to my judgment, those important requirements are not fulfilled.

"I may summarise the principal shortcomings as lying in an inefficiently developed organization, inadequate knowledge in the higher command, in the test qualification for officers and non-commissioned officers of the active militia, laid down in the regulations, not being strictly enforced, and in the rank and file not being compelled to fulfill their engagements. Only when the regulations which govern the constitution and maintenance of the Canadian militia are strictly enforced, will it be possible to say whether the present system meets the defensive requirements of the country or not.

"Judging from what I have seen of the excellent material, and the fine spirit which is apparent in all the ranks, and taking into consideration the marked progress which has been made in the past few years, and the evident signs of its continuance, I should be inclined to think that, so long as the present condition of affairs on the North American continent remains as it is, the existing system, on a sound basis of peace organization, should suffice to meet the needs of the Dominion.

"We live, however, in times of great change and progress, and it behooves the intelligence department to keep a sharp eye upon the course of events, so that the Government may be kept au courant with any military changes in other countries, which necessitates consideration of a more drastic military system on the part of Canada.

"I may mention that, in the course of my tour of inspection, I have seen several bodies of cadets. The movement seems to be making good progress throughout the Dominion, and I have been struck by the fine physique and training of the boys, and their smart and soldierlike bearing on parade.

Sir John French begins by emphatizing that a sound system of organization is the cornerstone of all military efficiency, and he adds that "no amount of superior physique, armament or individual excellence, in either commanders, staff, or bodies of troops will compensate for a want of it."

He criticizes the Canadian organisation on two lines. The proportion between the various arms of the service is not correctly adjusted. There is too much infantry and heavy artillery, and only half as much field artillery as is advisable, while the engineers and supply services are too weak, the distribution of troops is faulty.

He submits with this a scheme of organization which shows a shortage of

One regiment of cavalry.
One battery of horse artillery.
Twenty batteries of artillery.
Eight field troops of engineers.
Five field companies of engineers.
Four telegraph detachments.
And numerous units of army service corps and medical corps.

Gen. French next advocates the drawing up of a sound scheme of mobilisation, which would include the establishment of a railway war council, presided over by the chief of the general staff, and including amongst its members the managers or representatives of the railway companies of Canada.

In this connection he says: "The work of completing the arrangements for speedy mobilization, of providing or ensuring the provision of transport, equipment, stores and supplies; of preparing the necessary regulations and instructions and of drawing up tables, showing the war equipment of all units, is a labor of very considerable magnitude. In the Imperial army, for the United Kingdom alone, this work has occupied the undivided attention of five or six officers for nearly twenty years, while the duty of keeping the arrangements, now thoroughly decentralized, up to date, entails continuous work upon all officers of the army, both staff and regimental.

"A great portion of the work thus accomplished is available for the guidance of Canadian officers, and the problem to be solved is, on the whole, simpler for the Dominion. But the conclusion is unavoidable that the number of officers available for this duty at militia headquarters, and in the several military districts, is now, and apparently always has been, far too small to cope successfully with the task.

"So far as I can judge, the preparation of a suitable mobilization scheme would require the undivided attention of at least two general staff officers and one administrative staff officer at headquarters, and of one administrative officer in each military district. When the scheme is completed, it is probable that the services of two of the officers at headquarters could be dispensed with, but for the proper maintenance of mobilization arrangements, the remaining additional officers must be permanently maintained The staff at present maintained at headquarters and in the commands appears to me absurdly inadequate in numbers to deal successfully with the number of problems which require its attention."

MINISTERS ASSAULTED

London, Nov. 23.—The political campaign is being waged with a fierceness almost unknown in England, both by politicians on the stump, and suffragettes on the battlefield.

The battle of Downing street, which was fought yesterday afternoon, when several hundred suffragettes attempted to storm the Premier's residence, assaulted Mr. Asquith and Augustine Birrell, Chief Secretary for Ireland, and broke many windows in the Government offices, surpassed all previous spectacles of the sort. About 150 women and several men supporters are in the police station.

Following an announcement by the Prime Minister in the House of Commons, that if he were still in power at the next session of Parliament, the Government would give facilities for the consideration of a suffrage bill, a large body of women, inflamed rather than placated by this promise, which was characterized as "nothing more nor less than an insult to the cause," left Caxton Hall in search of the Premier.

They came upon him on the way to Downing street, and immediately formed a hostile cordon around Mr. Asquith, who recently has resorted to all kinds of subterfuges to keep himself clear of the hands of the militant women. One of them, Henrietta Williams, struck him, and he would have fared badly had not a large detachment of police come running to his rescue. The police had great difficulty in putting down the disorders, and many of the women had to be dragged from the scene, with clothes half torn from their backs.

McCURDY HAS NARROW ESCAPE

Mobile, Ala., Nov 23.—While descending from a 500-foot flight yesterday afternoon, J. A. D. McCurdy, the Canadian aviator dipped too near the earth, one of the wing shields striking the ground when going at a high rate of speed, turning the machine over.

The crowd rushed to the end of the field, but found McCurdy walking about uninjured. The aeroplane was badly damaged.

TRAVELLING AUCTIONEERS

Chatham, Nov. 23.—At the annual meeting of the Retail Merchants' Association, W. T. Poile was elected president. The matter of traveling auctioneers occupying stores on the main streets for short periods was discussed, and a scheme will be inaugurated to keep all of the stores in the main portion of the business section rented in order to keep them out. The question of early closing was also discussed, and an effort will be made to elect a council next year, which will support a general early closing movement.

STRANGER SHOT UP THE BAR

Nelson, B.C., Nov. 23.—Armed with two 44 calibre automatic revolvers, and carrying 150 rounds of ammunition, a stranger, after shooting up the Crescent bar at Rossland Monday, and holding up Chief of Police Long at the point of his gun, was shot in the groin by the policeman and taken to jail.

The stranger entered the bar of the Crescent Hotel, and, after taking a few drinks, commenced to shoot in all directions. The shots all went wild, and the stranger left the bar and walked down toward the C.P.R. tracks. He was followed by Chief of Police Long and a Swede, who came up with him near the water tank on the track. Covering each of his pursuers with his gun, the stranger told them to get out of the way. Chief Long turned around, and, making a quick movement, drew his own 45 calibre revolver, and shot the man in the groin. The bandit fell to the ground and was arrested. On him was found $300 in cash.

CRIPPEN HANGED

American Doctor Pays the Penalty of His Crime.

London, Nov. 23.—Dr. Hawley H. Crippen was hanged this morning within the gloomy walls of Pentonville Prison, which stands in one of the most dismal sections of London.

Public Executioner Ellis of Rochdale, who hanged a wife-murderer at Liverpool yesterday morning, arrived in London on last night's train. The scaffold was erected yesterday. A few tenements overlook the prison yard, and to bar the tenants from a glimpse of the tragedy a big canvas screen had been put up before the gallows.

Only a small group of official witnesses attended and every effort was made to prevent morbid crowds from gathering in the neighborhood.

Father Carey, who has visited Crippen frequently, entered the prison at 6 o'clock last evening and spent the night with the condemned man. He walked with Crippen to the scaffold.

An evening paper caused a sensation by flooding the city with placards that Crippen had made a written confession. Everyone in a position to know denied this. Ethel Leneve said: "I was the last person to see Dr. Crippen. So far as my knowledge extends he has not made such a statement."

It was also reported that Crippen yesterday wrote a statement for a Sunday paper, which bought a previous story of his. The paper, however denies that it has his confession.

TOLSTOI'S FUNERAL

Peasants Pay Tribute to Memory of Their Benefactor.

Tula, Russia, Nov. 23.—The special train bearing the body of Tolstoi from Astapova arrived at the Zaseika station at eight o'clock yesterday morning. The funeral party was met by throngs of mourning peasants. Tolstoi's sons bore the casket on their shoulders over the two miles separating the station from the novelist's home at Yasnaya Poliana. Peasants marched at the head of the procession, carrying white banners, inscribed, "Nikolaivitch, the memory of your goodness will never fade from the minds of us orphaned peasants."

Following the peasants were two student choirs, chanting memorial hymns, and four carriages filled with wreaths. The countess and others of the family followed the bier afoot.

Just before sunset the casket was carried to the grave, about which the family and close friends of the dead man knelt. The choirs sang the hymn, "Everlasting Memory," but there was no other ceremony.

FOUR FATILITIES IN NORTHERN ONTARIO

While making the crossing of Lake Temiskaming, at the south end of the lake, Arthur and George Morin, French-Canadian, brothers, were tipped out of a canoe and both were drowned.

Berlin, Nov. 23.—The Reichstag reconvened yesterday. The Socialists announced two interpellations, one regarding recent speeches by the Emperor, and the other enquiring into the causes of the high prices of meat, and what the Government proposed to do to alleviate the conditions. There are indications that the Government intends to lessen the strength of the Socialist attack by modifying the restrictions upon meat importations.

Important matters of legislation that will come up are the so-called "quinquennate," or a law fixing the term of compulsory military service at five years; bills re-casting and consolidating the state insurance systems; and a revision of the penal code.

Big Fire at Winnipeg.

THINGS AT OTTAWA TAKES ON AN EXCITING TINGE

Mr. Monk Invites Mr. Gauvreau Out to do Personal Combat, But Latter Declines—Mr. Blondin Also Becomes the Centre of a Storm Over Speeches in Le Devoir.

Ottawa, Nov. 23.—The resumed debate on the address in reply to the speech from the throne took on a belligerent complexion yesterday, W. F. Maclean, member for South York, made a speech, in which he repudiated the recent campaign by the Nationalists in Drummond and Arthabaska as unpatriotic. He urged the Government to adopt the principle of Government ownership in regard to the construction of the Hudson Bay Railway, and urged the need for a Department of Public Communications.

F. D. Monk (Jacques Cartier), who followed, defended the Nationalist campaign, and Hon. L. P. Brodeur taunted the Nationalists with extracts from their speeches. The debate was lively, interesting, and at times spectacular.

At the opening Mr. Speaker announced that he had observed in Hansard a remark attributed to Mr. Gauvreau (Temiscouata), accusing F. D. Monk of lying.

Mr. Gauvreau said he would withdraw the expression if it was unparliamentary.

Mr. Monk rose with evident anger and stated that he had not heard the expression. However, he did not like the form of his hon. friend's withdrawal. If his hon. friend would step outside the House and repeat the remark face to face, he would now give an opportunity.

Mr. Monk then walked slowly and deliberately out of the chamber. It was a direct challenge to Mr. Gauvreau to proceed to the lobby and eat humble pie or be chastized. He sat still. The members smiled.

Mr. F. D. Monk touched lightly on the charge that the men of his school had wandered from the teachings of the Conservative party. They were rather the traditional successors of the Liberal-Conservative party, which stood for complete autonomy if they stood for anything. He moved the following amendment to the address:

"That this House regards that the speech from the throne gives no indication whatever of the intention of the Government to commit the people on its naval policy, or on the great question of the contribution of Canada to Imperial armaments."

After the speaker had put the motion, E. W. Tobin read a telegram from Notary Begin of Windsor Mills, who was alleged to have said that the Canadian navy might be used to pound England, denying it.

Hon. L. P. Brodeur followed, but, after speaking for half an hour, moved the adjournment of the debate. He expressed regret that the naval policy enunciated in 1900 by the two parties had not been adhered to. That was the patriotic policy, but the Conservatives had chosen to depart from it because it would be to their advantage.

He read extracts from speeches appearing in La Devoir, which were attributed to Mr. Blondin. An appeal was made to prejudice, on the ground that the men who dismembered the forefathers of the French-Canadians now sought to have the latter fight for them.

Mr. Blondin rose in his place and emphatically denied making the speech.

"It's false," cried Mr. Blondin, "absolutely false." Again he said: "I deny every word of it. I never knew a word of it until yesterday."

The uproar continued, cheer followed by counter cheer, until the Speaker could not be heard. When silence was restored, Mr. Brodeur challenged Mr. Foster with sending to The Montreal Herald a telegram containing the sentence "Anything to beat Laurier."

"Read the telegram," cried the member for North Toronto.

"I haven't a copy, but I can get one in a minute," Mr. Brodeur replied, as he continued his criticism.

"Read the telegram," insisted Mr. Foster, and a messenger was despatched.

Sir Wilfrid couldn't find the telegram on the file, and as the House was getting unruly, Mr. Brodeur referred to the lateness of the hour and moved the adjournment of the debate.

In the Senate yesterday Senator Roche of Halifax moved the address in reply to the speech from the throne. Senator Belcourt, who seconded, welcomed Senator Laverne to the Upper House. Speaking of the navy question, he said the object of those who wanted a plebiscite was to avoid the question. He refused, however, to believe that even the opponents of the navy wished that Canada should not undertake her proper national defence.

THE FINEST ON THE CONTINENT

Montreal, Nov. 23.—The International Railway, built by Thomas Malcolm from Campbellton, N.B., to St. Leonard's, on the St. John River, where it connects with the Grand Trunk Pacific and the C.P.R., and which is destined, so it is said, to form a part of the Intercolonial, is now completed.

Speaking of the Grand Trunk Pacific, which is now completed from Moncton to the Quebec line, save about six miles, Mr. Malcolm says it is the finest road on the continent, and that an engine able to haul twenty cars on the I.C.R., will be able to draw seventy-five cars on the G.T.P. He is of the opinion that the whole line from Moncton to Point Levis will be completed by midsummer.

NOTED LABOR MAN IS DEAD

Toronto, Nov. 23.—John Armstrong, secretary of the Ontario Department of Labor, passed away yesterday afternoon. He had been seriously ill for several weeks with an acute form of jaundice and had gone to Montreal for treatment, but his condition being recognized as hopeless, he was brought back to Toronto a few days ago. The end came at the Western Hospital, where he had lain in a semi-unconscious condition since Sunday evening.

Mr. Armstrong was appointed to the Government position a little over four years ago. While he was primarily a labor representative, he leaned towards the Conservative side in politics and figured as a platform speaker in numerous compaigns.

CLAIMS HE WAS ROBBED

London, Eng., Nov. 23.—Arthur Audsley told the magistrate at Tower Bridge Court that the proprietor of a Toronto hotel had persuaded him to leave $750 with him, giving him a check on the London and Southwestern Bank. On presenting the check he learned that it had not been met. The police were instructed to make enquiries. Audsley was at one time a well-known London oarsman.

Acquitted of Murder.

Port Arthur, Nov. 23.—Leon Dobbs was acquitted at the assizes yesterday of the charge of murder, for killing of an Italian named Frank, at Superior Junction on May 28. The defence that Dobbs was justified in firing the shot when threatened by Italians, who were displeased with the ruling regarding his place at the table in the cook camp, satisfied the jury.

WAS ADHONE WRECKED?

Special to the Review.

London, Eng., Nov. 23.—A steamer which foundered off the north coast of Spain November 7th, is now believed to have been the British Indian Liner, "Adhona." The "Adhona" was 4,066 tons, and was built this year. She sailed from the Clyde November 3rd for Rangoon, British India, arriving at Plymouth November 5th. This was her maiden voyage, and she carried no passengers. The crew numbered ninety, of whom thirteen were whites.

NOT TAGGART THAT SUICIDED

Brantford, Nov. 23.—An attendant from the Hamilton asylum visited the city yesterday, in an endeavor to establish the identity of the unknown man, found hanging in a clump of trees near Whiteman's Creek on Saturday. It was believed that the remains were those of Robert Taggart, who escaped from the asylum last summer, but that attendant declared positively they were not, and added that Taggart was not such a fool.

Thus far the case has baffled the police. An inquest is being held on Friday night. Coroner Ashton declared yesterday that the remains had been in the tree for five, if not ten, months.

THREE YEAR TERM STANDS

Kingston, Nov. 23.—By a vote of 13 to 3 the council defeated the resolution to reduce the aldermanic term from three years to one, as it was prior to 1907. The council will petition the Ontario Legislature to amend the Assessment Act, so that all property held by charitable institutions, and unused for actual work, shall be taxed.

Building Collapsed.

Cleveland, O., Nov. 23.—The wife of Simon Trutkin, tailor, his two small children and Mrs. J. E. THE PUBLIC LIARARY

It would seem that the time is drawing near when the Public Library will be open to the public in the new building, for the Board has adopted its rules and appointed the staff to conduct it, and is asking for tenders for the furniture. The Board no doubt, had a somewhat difficult task in making the appointments, not because there was any difficulty in securing persons qualified to fill the positions, but on account of the number of qualified applicants. There will perhaps be some disappointment now that the selection has been made, but that was inevitable, and it would seem that the Board has made appointments that should meet with approval. Mr. Dela Fosse should be not only a capable librarian in the routine work and management of the library, but his training and his culture will enable him to give valuable assistance to the Board in filling the shelves with literature of the right character, and to give advice and assistance to patrons. The assistant librarian, Miss Cahill, is a lady of education and ability, and the satisfaction with her appointment is increased by the remembrance that she was educated in Peterborough and that her father gave many years of service to the community as a member of the Council.

With the Board constituted as it is, and with the staff it has selected, the library should accomplish for the citizens as that such an institution is capable of accomplishing.

TRADE RELATIONS

In the opening debate in the House of Commons Sir Wilfrid Laurier demanded to know whether the United States commissioners who came to Canada to negotiate reciprocal trade relations should have been avoided as if they were poisonous reptiles, and ordered out of the country. Of course not, Sir Wilfrid. No one would wish you to act in such an unneighborly, ungentlemanly and boisterous manner, so foreign to your nature. Besides, no one is afraid of the United States trade commissioners. They cannot do us any harm; the injury can only be done by our own government—and it is our own government that people are afraid of in this connection. We have heard you, Sir Wilfrid, and many of your political associates, talk about trade relations with the United States before, and the people would very much like to know what your views are and what you promise to do now. They have not been given any outline of the principles upon which you propose to negotiate, and they would like to have it. They remember that you were a strenuous advocate of unrestricted reciprocity; they remember the commercial unionism of Sir Richard Cartwright; they remember the vagaries of your party on the question of free trade and of trade relations with our neighbors, and, as they remember, they fear. Will the negotiations be on the principle of commercial union? of unrestricted reciprocity? or on some other principle or vagary?

Of course, any treaty or arrangement that is made will have to be submitted to Parliament, and under some circumstances, but not the present, that might be counted a safeguard. As the House is now constituted there would be no use of counting on any bargain the Government might make being rationally considered by the House. The most important steps have been taken at the bidding of the Government without consulting the people, and any arrangement which the Government might make with our wooing neighbors, no matter what it was, would be sanctioned by the majority in Parliament, who only do as they are told.

The Government should take the people into their confidence, so far as to outline the principles upon the negotiations will be conducted.

EDITORIAL NOTES

A contemporary publishes a long article on "theology and taxation" and does not once mention passing the plate.

At this distance it is hard to understand what suffragettes expect to gain by mobbing British statesmen. The statement was given out some months ago that they would return to saner methods, but their resolution seems to have been of the New Year variety. Roughness in politics is not desired, and the evidence that these women give that they rely on force to advance their opinions, when others do not adopt them quickly enough to please them, is not calculated to win over those who believe that logic and not missiles should be used in political warfare.

There is another hubbub in Toronto over the street railway management. An order was issued prohibiting smoking on the cars, and it is argued vociferously that the street railway authorities cannot issue such an order without the concurrence of the City Council. Perhaps out of this dispute will arise another question to be carried to the Privy Council. Why do not the men take their smokes while waiting on the street corners for the cars? They couldn't do that here; they wouldn't have time enough, but in Toronto they might do so—until some sensible city council prohibited smoking on the streets.

THE LECURE WAS INTERESTING

"Under Two Flags"—Personal Items of Interest

Special to the Review.

Apsley, Nov. 23.—An interesting lecture was delivered here on the evening of Nov. 9th, in the parish room by Mr. Woodhouse. His lecture was entitled; "Under Two Flags," the British Boer war, he having served in the war as a scout for the British. He appeared during the first part of his lecture dressed in the Kharki suit of the English officer and narrated his experience of his leaving among others for the scene of battle and of the many loving farewells which he witnessed and the events of the fore part of the battle. Then he left the hall saying he would re-appear in a few minutes dressed in a different suit, during which time Mrs. T. Levear favored the audience with a solo in good voice. When Mr. Woodhouse returned he was arrayed in the suit he had fought in during the battle, which were in a rather dilapidated condition. He told of the many narrow escapes he had, one time his helmet having been shot off and at another time a bullet having grazed his face, but when his comrades were falling around him it was God's wish that his life should be spared. He told of many hard struggles they had to endure and also many amusing things that had happened. At the close of the lecture he gave the different bugle calls. He and Mrs. Woodhouse then sang a duet to mandolin accompaniment, after which he played "Sherman's March to the Sea," on the cornet. The meeting closed with the singing of the National Anthem.

"Oh, no!" cried Orde, astounded.

"Orde, you're all right on the river," laughed Newmark, "but you're a babe at this game."

"But Heinzman is honest," cried Orde. "Why, he is a church member and has a class in Sunday school."

The corners of Newmark's mouth were twitching quietly with amusement.

"Besides, he is going to buy some stock," added Orde after a moment.

"He was bluffing," said Newmark, "because he wanted to find out how much stock would be issued. You told him it would be a hundred thousand dollars, didn't you?"

"Why—yes, I did."

Newmark laughed.

"So now he knows that if we forfeit the bond he'll have controlling interest," he pointed out. "But what I can't make out is why he's so sure we'll have to forfeit."

"I think he's just taking a long shot at it," suggested Orde, who seemed finally to have decided against Newmark's opinion.

"Not he. He has some good reason for thinking we won't deliver the logs. Why does he insist on putting in a date for delivery? None of the others does."

"I don't know," replied Orde.

"You say you surely can get the drive through by then?"

Orde laughed.

"Sure! Why, it gives me two weeks' leeway over the worst possible luck I could have. You're too almighty suspicious, Joe."

Newmark shook his head.

"You let me figure this out," said he.

But bedtime found him without a solution. He retired to his room under fire of Orde's good natured raillery. Orde himself shut his door, the smile still on his lips. With a sigh he fell asleep. Some time in the night he was awakened by a persistent tapping on the door. He lit the gas and admitted Newmark in his nightgown.

"Orde," said he briefly, "didn't you tell me the other day that rollways were piled both on the banks and in the river?"

"Yes, sometimes," said Orde. "Why?"

"Then they might obstruct the river?"

"Certainly."

"I thought so!" cried Newmark, with as near an approach to exultation as he ever permitted himself. "Now, just one other thing. Aren't Heinzman's rollways below most of the others?"

"Yes, I believe they are," said Orde.

"And, of course, it was agreed, as usual, that Heinzman was to break out his own rollways?"

"I see," said Orde slowly. "You think he intends to delay things enough so we can't deliver on the date agreed on."

"I know it," stated Newmark positively.

"But if he refuses to deliver the logs no court of law will"—

"Law!" cried Newmark. "Refuse to deliver! You don't know that kind. He won't refuse to deliver. There'll just be a lot of inevitable delays, and his foreman will misunderstand, and all that."

Chapter 12

SUNDAY afternoon Orde, leaving Newmark to devices of his own, walked slowly up the main street, turned to the right down one of the shaded side residence streets that ended finally in a beautiful glistening sand hill. Orde seated himself on the smooth, clean sand and removed his hat. He saw these things and in imagination the far upper stretches of the river, with the mills and yards and booms extending for miles, and still above them the marshes and the flats where the river widened below the Big Bend. That would be the location for the booms of the new company—a cheap property on which the partners had already secured a valuation. To right and left stretched the long Michigan coast, with hills topped with the green of twisted pines, firs and beeches, with always its beach of sand, deep and dry to the very edge.

After he had cooled he arose and made his way back to a pleasant hardwood forest of maple and beech. Orde walked slowly farther and farther into the forest.

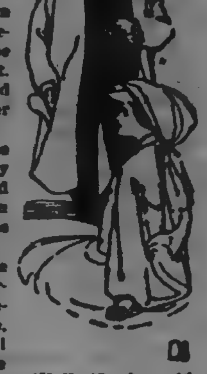
A fresh breeze darkened the blue velvet surface of the water, tumbled the white foam hissing up the beach, blew forward over the dunes a fine hurrying mist of sand and bore to Orde at last the refreshment of the wide spaces. A woman, walking slowly, bent her head against the force of this wind.

Orde watched her idly. He caught himself admiring the grace of her deft and sudden movements and the sway of her willowy figure.

As though directed by some unseen guide, her course veered more and more until it led directly to the spot where Orde stood. When she was within ten feet of him she at last raised her head so the young man could see something besides the top of her hat. Orde looked plump into her eyes.

"Hello!" she said cheerfully and unsurprised and sank down crosslegged at his feet.

Orde stood quite motionless, overcome by astonishment. Her face, its long oval framed in the bands of the gray veil and the down turned brim of the hat, looked up smiling into his.



"Hello!" she said cheerfully.

"Why, Miss Bishop!" cried Orde, finding his voice. "What are you doing here?"

"Oh, I could ask the same of you, and then we'd talk about how surprised we are, world without end," said she. "The important thing is that here is sand to play in, and there is the lake, and here are we, and the day is charming, and it's good to be alive. Sit down and dig a hole! We've all the common days to explain things in."

Orde laughed and seated himself to face her. Without further talk and quite gravely they commenced to scoop out an excavation between them, piling the sand over themselves and on either side as was most convenient. As the hole grew deeper they had to lean over more and more. Their heads sometimes brushed ever so lightly; their hands perforce touched. She looked up happily at Orde, thrusting the loose hair from in front of her eyes.

She arose to her feet, shaking the sand free from her skirts. "Now let's go somewhere else," she said. "I think through these woods. Can we get back to town this way?"

"Yes," replied Orde. "The lumberjacks say that the woods are the poor man's overcoat."

Orde followed her in silence. She seemed to be quite without responsibility in regard to him, and yet an occasional random remark thrown in his direction proved that he was not forgotten. Finally they emerged from the beech woods.

She turned and waved her hat at the beech woods falling somber against the lowering sun.

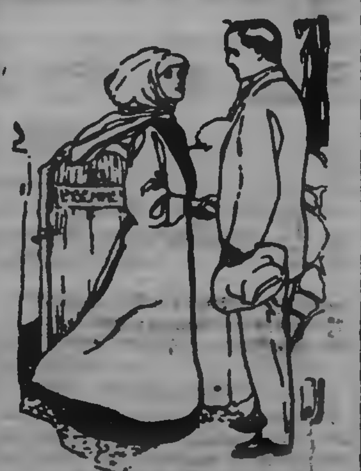
"Goodby," she said gravely, "and pleasant dreams to you. I hope those very saucy little birds won't keep you awake." She looked up at Orde. "He was rather nice to us this afternoon," she explained, "and it's always well to be polite to them anyway." She gazed steadily at Orde for signs of amusement. He resolutely held his face sympathetic.

"Now I think we'll go home," said she.

They made their way to the edge of the sand hill. The low slanting sun cast across the vista a sleepy light of evening.

"How would you like to live in a place like that all your life?" asked Orde.

"I don't know." She weighed her words carefully. "It would depend. The place isn't of so much importance, it seems to me. It's the life one is called to. It's whether one finds her soul's realm or not that a place is livable or not."



"Good night."

Orde looked out over the raw little village with a new interest.

Her whole aspect seemed to have changed with the descent into the conventionality of the village street. The old, gentle, though self contained, reserve had returned.

"I came down with Jane and Mrs. Hubbard to see Mr. Hubbard off on the boat for Milwaukee last night," she told him. "Of course we had to wait over Sunday. Mrs. Hubbard and Jane had to see some relative or other, but I preferred to take a walk."

"Where are you staying?" asked Orde.

"At the Bennetts'."

They said little more until the Bennetts' gate was reached. Orde declined to go in.

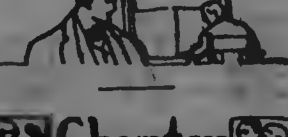
"I want to thank you," she said. "You did not once act as though you thought I was silly or crazy. And you didn't try, as all the rest of them would, to act silly too. You couldn't have done it. Oh, you may have felt it—I know!" She smiled one of her quaint and quizzical smiles. "But men aren't built for foolishness. They have to leave that to us. You've been very nice this afternoon, and it's helped a lot. Good night."

Orde, however, walked back to the hotel in a black rage with himself over what he termed his imbecility. As he remembered it he had made just one consecutive speech that afternoon.

"Joe," said he to Newmark, "what's the plural form of incubus? Isn't it 'busses?'"

"Incubi," answered Newmark.

"Thanks," said Orde gloomily.



Chapter 13

"I HAVE Heinzman's contract all drawn," said Newmark the next morning, "and I think I'll go around with you to the office."

They found the little German awaiting them. Newmark immediately took charge of the interview.

"I have executed here the contract and the bonds secured by Mr. Orde's and my shares of stock in the new company," he explained.

Heinzman reached his hands for the papers, beaming over his glasses at the two young men. As he read, however, his smile vanished.

"Vat is this?" he inquired, crispness in his voice. "You tolt me," he accused Orde, "dot you were not prepared to break out the rollways. You tolt me you would egspect me to do that for myself. Well, why do you put in this?" reading from the paper in his hand:

> "In case said rollways belonging to said parties of the second part are not broken out by the time the drive has reached them, and in case on demand said parties of the second part do refuse or do not exercise due diligence in breaking out said rollways, the said parties of the first part shall themselves break out said rollways, and the said parties of the second part do hereby agree to reimburse said parties of the first part at the rate of a dollar per thousand board feet."

"That is merely to protect ourselves," struck in Newmark.

"But," exploded Heinzman, his face purpling, "a dollar a t'ousand is absurd!"

"Of course," agreed Newmark. "We expect it to be. It is intended as a penalty in case you don't break out your own rollways in time."

"I vill not stand, for such foolishness!" pounded Heinzman.

"Very well," said Newmark crisply, reaching for the contract.

But Heinzman clung to it.

"It is absurd," he repeated in a milder tone. "See, I vill strike it out." He did so with a few dashes of the pen.

"We have no intention," stated Newmark, with decision, "of giving you the chance to hang up our drive."

Heinzman caught his breath.

"So that is vhat you think!" he shouted. He tore the contract in pieces and threw it in the wastebasket. "Get oudt of vere!" he cried.

Orde's hands twitched nervously.

"You to refuse our offer?"

"Refuse! Yes—you and your whole capoodle!" yelled Heinzman.

Once in the open street Orde drew a deep breath of relief.

"Whew!" said he. "That was a terror! We've gone off the wrong foot that time."

Newmark was amused.

"You don't mean to say that fooled you!" he marveled.

"What?" asked Orde.

"It was all rubbish. He saw we had spotted his little scheme, and he had to retreat. It was as plain as the nose on your face. We've got an enemy on our hands in any case and one we'll have to look out for. He'll try to make trouble on the river. Perhaps he'll try to block the stream by not breaking his rollways."

The partners hunted out the little frame building in which Johnson conducted his business.

"I see no use in it," said Johnson. "I can run me own widout help from any man."

"Which seems to settle that!" said Newmark to Orde after they had left.

"Now," said Newmark as they trudged back to their hotel, "this proposition of Heinzman's has given me an idea. I'm not going to try to sell this stock outside, but to the men who own timber along the river. Then they won't be objecting to the tolls, for if the company makes any profits part will go to them. I'll take these contracts to show we can do the business, and I'll see about incorporation and get a proper office and equipments. Of course we'll have to make this our headquarters."

"I suppose so," said Orde a little blankly. After an instant he laughed. "Do you know, I hadn't thought of that!"

"Also," went on Newmark calmly, "I'll buy the supplies to the best advantage I can."

"And I?" inquired Orde.

"Get the booms built and improve the river. Begin to get your crew. You can start right off. We have my money to begin on."

Orde laughed.

"My! She's a nice big job, isn't she?" he cried joyously.

Chapter 14

ON his return home late Monday afternoon Grandma Orde informed the river boss with a shrewd twinkle that she wanted him surely at home the following evening.

"I've asked three or four of the young people for a candy pull," said she.

"Who, mother?" asked Orde.

"Your crowd—the Smiths, Collinses, Jane Hubbard and Her," said Grandma Orde.

The young people straggled in at an early hour after supper. Orde stepped into the hall to help them with their wraps. He was surprised as he approached Carroll Bishop to lift her cloak from her shoulders to find that the top of her daintily poised head, with its soft, fine hair, came well below the level of his eyes. Somehow her poise, her slender grace of movement and of attitude, had lent her the impression of a stature she did not possess.

WARDEN MOHER REVIEWS COUNCIL'S WORK OF YEAR

Much Permanent Improvement Made---Day Work on Nogey's Creek Bridge Abutments Concluded at Smaller Figure Than Lowest Tender.

Yesterday's session of the County Council was opened with an address to the councillors by Warden Moher and which at the conclusion was referred to committee, composed of Messrs. Garbutt, Porter, Knox and Breault.

Warden Moher reviewed the important work of the last year, and thanked the members for the cordial support they had given him.

THE ADDRESS

To the Members of the County Council of 1910—

Gentlemen—Permit at this, the closing session of the year, to again thank you for the honour you have conferred upon me by placing me in the chair, and for the courteous treatment I have received at the hands of each of you.

In referring to the work of the year, I am proud to state that everything has been satisfactorily carried out and I trust the matters that are yet to be dealt with will be disposed of in the same way.

This has been a year that has had its share of permanent work, from the fact that the longed talked of change in the heating system of the Court House and other buildings has been brought about, and I must congratulate the Chairman of the County Property committee on the satisfactory manner in which everything has been done and especially do I refer to the painstaking efforts of him and his committee.

Other work has been carefully looked after, and the same pains has been exercised by the Roads and Bridges Committee and the special Bridges Construction Committee.

Nogey's Creek Bridge is now completed well within the limit of estimation and the chairman has the proud satisfaction of accomplishing the building of the abutments by day work at a much smaller figure than the lowest tender. The bridge is built of steel with concrete floor, the same being a credit to the Dickson Bridge Company, who built it.

I merely refer to these matters briefly as you all will hear everything in detail from the different councillors as their reports come in, as well as a complete report from the chairman of the County Property Committee.

Provision made by the chairman of the Finance Committee will, as far as we can see at present, be ample to carry out all expenditures for the year 1910.

There will no doubt come before you the matter of having the boiler attended to, and the providing for the $3,000 for the government in lieu of the Buckhorn Bridge is yet to be done. other emergencies over which we had no control cropped up, which necessitated the expenditure of our debenture proceeds. I refer to the paying for the construction of Little Bob bridge, this county being liable for one quarter, also the placing of a septic tank at the House of Refuge, the cess pool having failed to do its work, and the rebuilding of the Lily Lake bridge besides improvements to the County buildings.

The greater part of the accounts are in, or at least enough of them, so that before the close of the session the Chairman of the Finance Committee will be able to present you with a statement re the permanent work.

Again thanking you, to whom all credit is due, I trust the same harmony and progress will be characterized in completing the business of the year.

Respectfully Yours,
FRANK MOHER.

A number of communications were dealt with and the council for the remainder of the afternoon took up committee work.

REPORT ON ADDRESS

On the opening of this morning's session the special committee appointed to deal with the warden's address reported as follows—

Your committee beg leave to report as follows—

Referring to the comprehensive address delivered by the warden at this the closing session of the council of 1910, we are pleased to note the evidence of the full knowledge of the affairs of the county, which was displayed in the address from the chair.

2. In referring to the permanent work carried to completion in and around the county buildings, we heartily concur with the warden in congratulating the chairman of the County Property Committee on the success that has attended the work of himself and his committee.

3. We are more than pleased to know that the experiment of building abutments by day work has been successful from a financial standpoint, as well as being durable.

Referring to the warden's address in general we, with him, are pleased to note that all financial provisions will be adequate, and can assure him that for the balance of the year his colleagues will support every effort put forth to complete the business of the year.

(Signed) H. GARBUTT,
Chairman.

FELL OFF CEREAL DAM ON HARD CONCRETE

Serious Accident to Young Man Last Night—Was on His Way Home—Was Rescued by His Father, Who Did Not Recognize His Son Until He Spoke.

A young man named George Ferguson, aged twenty-six, had probably the narrowest escape from death last evening that he will ever experience.

FELL TWENTY-FIVE FEET

While walking to his home across the Cereal dam, at 11.30, he lost his footing or tripped and fell twenty-five feet to the hard concrete below. Here he lay for sometime, his groans eventually attracting the attention of Mr. F. Ferguson, his father, who runs the power house at the dam.

FATHER UNAWARE THAT IT WAS HIS SON

It being rather dark in the vicinity, his father unconscious that it was his son who was lying below him was unable to see him. He telephoned to Mr. Mat Young, and also for the Dan Spence ambulance. In the meantime Mr. Ferguson got out an extension cord and light to enable him to observe who the victim of the accident was. He still was unaware that it was his son.

LADDER WAS LOWERED

On the arrival of Mr. Young, a ladder was procured and lowered down to the young man. Mr. Ferguson descended, and not until he turned the young man face upwards and said "Who is it?" and received the answer "It's Your Boy, Father," was he aware that it was his own son. He was greatly overcome. The young man was unable to walk and was carried up and placed in the ambulance, which conveyed him to Nichol's Hospital.

ANKLE BROKEN AND MINOR INJURIES

On examination being made by Dr. Eastwood he was found that one ankle was fractured and the other swollen and bruised besides several minor injuries.

Fortunately it seems the young man landed on his feet when he fell, thus sustaining the injuries to his ankles. Had he fallen in any other posture, undoubtedly he would have been more seriously if not fatally injured.

SAME SOUSA, SAME BAND AND SAME ENTHUSIASM

John Philip Sousa, conductor, and that band.

The interesting and amiable personality of the celebrated leader, and the magnificent playing of the fine body of musicians under his baton, won an enthusiastic approval at the Grand Opera House last night that showed the crowd enjoyed every moment of the large and widely-varied program. Sousa plays to suit all tastes. A beautiful overture, played with a depth of feeling and expression that one is wrapped in a delightful study and keyed to the highest pitch of appreciation, and then a rousing "rag," from which the sparks fly as only Sousa's band can make them fly. Sousa's band makes a masterpiece out of everything it plays. The man who doesn't know "do ra me" will sit up and applaud Liszt's "Les Preludes" with as much vigor as the man who hasn't had his hair cut or paid his board bill for a year, and this conservativve connoisseur of the classics will even go so far as to admit that, say, "Cubanola Glide," is very bright—as Sousa's band plays it.

Miss Virginia Root, soprano, and Miss Nicoline Zedeler, violinist, found great favor with the audience. Miss Root possesses a voice of remarkably fine quality. Her range is wide and her notes, even to the highest register, were true, well rounded and easily produced. "The Lark Now Leaves Its Watery Nest," her first number, was most cordially encored, and her charmingly sweet singing of "Annie Laurie," an an encore, found hearty response from the audience.

Miss Zedeler, the violiniste, plays brilliantly and with authority. Her bowing in "Rondo Capriccioso," was a masterpiece of technique and realistic art. As an encore she played a solo with harp obligato that was splendidly received.

The opening number by the band was Liszt's "Les Preludes," written first in expectant optimistic mood, and then depressing to the morbid—life is nothing but a prelude to death. The band's execution of this profound number was marvel'ous and was given thunderous applause. That old march gem from the prolific and original pen of Sousa, "Washington Post," was given in recognition of the encore, and was played with an electrifying vim and dash. "Stars and Stripes," and others of the celebrated march king's popular and stirring marches were given as encore numbers. All the programed selections were encored or double encored, and Sousa was cheerful and accommodating in keeping himself and his band busy in satisfying the audience's hungry desire for more.

One of the most effective numbers was "The Dwellers of the Western World," descriptive character studies of the red man, the white man and the black man. The most massive number of the first part was the prelude, "The Bells of Moscow" (Rachmaninoff). The band was heard to great advantage in this splendid number.

After a finished playing of the humoresque from "Creole Suite," the audience was convulsed with the encore to it, a caricature on "Has Anybody Here seen Kelly." It was played as if "Kelly" had been scored as a heavy overture, and some of the comedy effects were ludicrous in the extreme. For the double encore the band ripped off that "Temptation Rag," fast moving and infectuous.

Mr. Herbert Clarke, the sole cornetist, scored heavily with his cornet solo with band obligato, in his own number "Showers of Gold". His technique and tonguing was marvelous, and he reached high places that one would imagine were the picolo's sole property. His response to the insistent demand for another solo was "Every Little Movement Has a Meaning All It's Own," and he very expressively played this tuneful success from "Madame Sherry."

A feature of the program, and one that was accorded particularly heavy applause was the band's playing of Mr. R. Glidden's snappy march, "57th Regiment." Mr. Glidden conducted the band himself for this selection, and was forced to re-conduct it, even after he had bowed his acknowledgement to the prolonged handclapping.

Mr. Sousa and his band were received at the G.T.R. station by the band of the 57th Regiment, who played the composer's celebrated march "El Capitan," as the band stepped off the train. The 57th were in good form and put lots of ginger in their playing.

CEASE WARFARE AND SUPPLY UNWATERED MILK

Magistrate Dumble Advised Two Milk Vendors Who Fell Out and Had a Scrap—Was Called a Welsh Dog.

John Harris, a milkman, didn't like to believe that Albert Reece, also a milk vendor, would say things about him regarding private affairs, and when he met Reece at the Grand Hotel stables last Saturday, there was a row.

Magistrate Dumble heard the particulars this morning, and in dismissing a charge of assault brought by Reece against Harris, advised the two men to cease warfare and give their attention to the supplying of milk with no water.

Mr. G. N. Gordon and Mr. F. D. Kerr were the legal battlers, the former acting for the complainant.

A WELSH DOG.

Reece testified that Harris approached him with a query to the effect of "how things were going," and then struck several blows, also calling him a Welsh dog, etc.

Previous trouble arose between the two over a debt, the amount of $200, contracted by Harris, who had purchased one of the two milk routes operated by Reece, when he (Harris) came to the city last spring.

He was also charged with saying things about Harris to another man, but this he denied.

STRANGE SOUNDS.

The hostler, at the hotel, when called, said that he was attracted to the stable by sounds, and found the two men fighting. He effected a separation but Harris took the initiative and started another set-to.

THE DEFENCE.

The defendant stated that he approached Reece, asking why he had told a man, Wilson by name, that he (Harris) had to leave his native home in England on account of debts, and also telling him about their business dealings.

Witness said the other called him a liar, and commenced the scrap by pushing him over a pail. He then used defensive tactics. The matter of the milk route, he understood, had passed out of the complainant's hands, and he was now paying through a solicitor.

His Worship wasn't certain as to which was the aggressor and decided on a dismissal.

LINDSAY IN DOUBT ABOUT NEW INDUSTRY

The Town Looking for the Promotor Who Has Left the Limits.

During the last few weeks the town of Lindsay has been looking forward to the establishment there of a glove factory and a boot and shoe factory by a company from the other side. It was looked on as a good thing for the town, and the citizens made every effort to close up the deal. The inducements offered to the industry were free sites, exemption from all taxes (except school tax) over $20,000 assessment, water, some light, and other things.

The agreement was drawn out, and as printed in the local papers, filled four columns of small type.

This morning a rumor reached this city that there was a hitch in the matter, and by telephone it was learned that great uneasiness prevailed over the situation.

Tuesday, it is said, the gentleman promoting the scheme, got from one of the local banks $1,000.00 on the strength of a draft for $10,000, which he exhibited. He left by the evening train for Toronto, and enquiry developed the fact that as far as could be ascertained he did not reach the city. He left word with his stenographer that he would return on Wednesday evening, and his arrival is looked forward to with much anxiety.

FARMER HURT NEAR OMEMEE NOT LIKELY TO RECOVER

More particulars of the accident to Mr. William McConnell, a farmer residing near Omemee, have been learned by The Review. It appears that he was driving a spirited team attached to a waggon into Omemee, and they took fright in some way and got beyond his control. Mr. McConnell himself was thrown violently from the wagon and struck the hard road with considerable force.

Dr. Sutton of Omemee was called and attended the injured man. While the first examination looked as if his back was broken, a closer investigation revealed internal injuries. According to a report from Fowlers Corners, it was thought likely that he would recover.

BLACK PLAGUE

Five Times as Prevalent as Consumption—Local Physican Speaks Strongly Against Carelessness of Parents With Their Children.

A feature at the annual meeting of the Brotherhood of St. Paul held last evening in St. Paul's church, was an address by one of the members, Dr. Carmichael on "The Black Plague." It was illustrated by colored charts. The seriousness and prevalence of the black plague which represents all forms of venereal diseases, Dr. Carmichael claimed is not understood as it should be by the public. It is estimated that about 500,000 new cases of the disease are contracted each year in the United States. Although some people attempt to make light of it it is so dreadful in character that those afflicted by it often say that they would rather commit suicide than contract the disease again. Unless treated in its early stages there is no hope for curing it. Few people who contract it apply for treatment in time.

The attitude of the public is to shut its eyes to the disease. Even doctors neglect to warn the public as they should about its fearful ravages and prevalence. It is so terribly contagious that it may be transmitted by drinking cups, the tips of the hands and in many other ways. In addition it is also hereditary being transmitted from parents to children. It is estimated that in New York city alone there are some 200,000 cases and each of these cases is a distributing agency. It has been proposed in New York that those afflicted with the disease shall be retained in the hospital for at least a full year, unless a cure is effected in the meantime and they can secure a doctor's certificate to that effect. One of the worst features of the disease consists in the fact that innocent wives and babies often become victims.

Dr. Carmichael spoke strongly against the practice of parents allowing their children out on the streets at night and mentioned especially the practice of allowing children to stay out at band concerts until they are over, and attending the nickel shows without their parents being with them. Peterborough is not as large a city as New York, but the number of cases of this disease in Peterborough is possibly as large a proportion as in the case of New York. The colored charts that were shown the members of the Brotherhood showed in a telling manner the fearful ravages made by this disease on the human body. A vote of thanks was tendered Dr. Carmichael for his informative address. A desire was expressed that colored lantern slides should be prepared and similar addresses given before the meetings of the Men's Associations in the other churches of Peterborough.

ELECTION OF OFFICERS.

It being the annual meeting of the association reports were received from the retiring officers and the election of officers took place. The secretary-treasurer, Mr. H. Gillespie, reported a balance on hand. The reports of the Membership Committee presented by Mr. D. H. Downie, the Social and Programme Committee by Mr. Jas. Conual, and for the ushers by Mr. Ross Cameron, all showed that good work had been done.

The retiring president, Mr. A. P. MacLean, who has done splendid work for the Brotherhood, was tendered a hearty vote of thanks as were the other retiring members of the executive.

The officers elected for the coming year were as follows:

Hon. President—Rev. Robt. Pogue.
Hon. Vice-Presidents.—John Crane and D. H. Moore.
President—H. B. Cowan.
Vice-President —D. H. Downie.
Sec.-Treas.—E. H. Howson.
Convenors of Committees—
Bible Study—Mr. Hughes.
Ushering—Mr. Rosenburg.
Membership—A. A. Perrin.
Social and Programme—H. F. Hall.

In December the Brotherhood expects to be addressed by Mr. Joseph Fells, of England, a great advocate of the single tax. Mr. Fells was a poor boy who has become a millionaire and is now devoting his wealth to the improvement of social conditions. At a later meeting Dr. Shearer, the head of the Social and Moral Reform League of The Presbyterian Church in Canada, will address the members.

LARGE CHOIR AT REVIVAL SERVICE

The Flood an Illustration of the Damning Influence of Sin

The service last night at the Mark Street Church was one of special interest and blessing. Evangelist Whiteside based his discourse upon God's Word to Noah, found in Gen. 7 1 "And the Lord said Unto Noah, Come Thou and all Thy House into the Ark."

He dealt with the text as it stood related to the whole story of the flood, and the rescue of righteous Noah and his family; and found in it a terrible illustration of the damning influence of sin, and also the merciful attitude of God toward such as seek to know Him.

A choir of 45 occupied the platform some 25 of whom were from St. James' Church, and the joyousness and volume of their song produced a most profound impression.

Special music again this evening.

He has handled the throttle on the passenger service through Peterborough for the past twenty-five years, and his many friends will wish for him a happy retired life.

PAINFUL MISHAP

Edward Corrigan, an employee of McDonald's saw mill, met with a painful mishap yesterday afternoon while at work at a band saw. The little finger of the left hand was severely cut lengthways and Corrigan was removed to St. Joseph's hospital. On medical inspection of the wound being made it was at first thought that the finger would have to be amputated, but this will not now be necessary.

FLETCHER BALL LEAGUE OPENS SEASON IN APRIL

Chicago, Nov. 22.—A Fletcher league team composed of twelve Cub, three or four White Sox stars, and some satellites housed in a plant "bigger and better than Comiskey Park" located at Clark and Addison streets and opening a championship season destined to be one prolonged world's series on April 12, 1911—that is some dream believe us.

It is the vision held alluringly before the eyes of a few ball players who are still in town by an agent of the Fletcher league who visited Chicago yesterday to be on hand for the minor league meetings next week. He probably will be joined by other agents for the purpose of getting in touch with enough second-rate players to fill up the ranks of the "third league" to playing proportions.

The Fletcher clairvoyant did not hunt up the newspaper office to boost his venture nor did he wear gum shoes and green moustache. He merely got in touch with the ball players on the quiet and unfolded the aforementioned vision among other things.

BIG SURPRISE IN STORE.

One of the players was completely carried away with the outlook and predicted there would be a lot of surprised people in the baseball world before spring. He would not allow his name to be used thereby giving the only indication of lack of implicit confidence in the success of the Fletcher league.

The scheme as unfolded by promoter to players is to have the twelve or thirteen Cubs and the three or four White Sox who are pledged to sign contracts with the new league in February (if the coin is in sight then) placed on the north side lot formerly the proposed sight of the American Association's invasion as the Chicago team of the new Fletcher league. It was strongly hinted that a former Chicago manager would be part owner and whole manager of the new team.

At any rate shrewd baseball men of undisclosed identity are to be behind the new league it is promised.

It is not the purpose to start with all eight clubs located in major league cities. Kansas City and Milwaukee of the American Association are other towns expected to present aggregations. Grounds already have been secured in Pittsburg, as well as Chicago, it is related, and the work of obtaining locations in other cities is progressing in secret.

The names of the minor league cities are enough to suggest to the layman possible backers of the venture in those cities. But their names were not mentioned by the Fletcher agent, and they undoubtedly will deny all connection with the proposition.

STEEL STANDS.

Pressed for information as to how the local promoters expected to get a building permit for a wooden plant to seat 30,000 people at the proposed location, the player said there was no idea of building anything except steel and concrete stands. When asked how much of the new plant would be built before freezing weather, he admitted it might possibly be July 1st before the Clark and Addison plant would be ready to play on. Where the composite Cub-White Sox team of stars would play in the interval between April 12 and 11 the player said was up to the promoters

AT THE Y.M.C.A.

The games tournament run for the individual championship of the boys' department, certainly started the fireworks going in that line of sport. Tuesday the championship for doubles was started and twenty-four boys were kept keenly interested for one hour of solid fun. This tournament will last for one month, four rounds being played each Tuesday, at the end of which the winning couple will be presented with a prize that will represent that championship of the department.

On Friday night the business boys' tournament will commence. The new games gotten for the department will allow a large number to play at one time. That means a good crowd. This tournament will be for business boys' only and will start sharp at 8 o'clock.

SPORTING COMMENT

Vancouver Daily Province.—That reported interview given out by Jim Jeffries the other day that he was doped before the big bunk at Reno last July makes Tommy Burns, erstwhile heavyweight champion mixer of the universe, chortle with glee. Tommy is back from Calgary, where he has been on a visit for the past couple of weeks, and in a fanning bee at the Woods hotel yesterday admitted that if Jim Jeffries could be hauled into the squared circle once again he would like nothing better than to take a wallop at the hope that failed. In fact Tommy is so confident that he could make James J. forget all about these dope tales that he declared his willingness to wager $20,000 of his savings account that he will stop Mr. Jeffries inside of fifteen rounds. Tommy was mad when he said it and he meant it too, so if Jeff wants to separate Burns from his wealth in a hurry all he has to do is to accept the challenge. It is now up to the big fellow.

Burns expects to go to Seattle today. Tommy says he invested $74,000 in Calgary and he intends to put some more money into Vancouver property. He figures on building a circuit of theatres in the Northwest, to include Vancouver, Seattle, Spokane and Portland. Tommy's brother-in-law, E. L. Keating, already has a theater in Portland. Tommy is training steadily in anticipation of his forthcoming visit to England, when he will go through the crop of heavyweights, which Hugh McIntosh is harvesting. Bombardier Wells and other British heavies are to receive attention from Tommy, and then Sam Langford will be given his turn. If Burns licks Langford, and Tommy is willing to bet money he can, then the champion of the British empire will wind up his ring career with another crack at Jack Johnson.

A DEED OF DARING.

Twenty-seven Lives Saved by One Man in a Shipwreck.

A historic case of daring and endurance rarely equaled in life saving annals was that of the rescue of twenty-seven souls by one man in 1867. The fishing schooner Sea Clipper was driven by the tempest against a reef near the Spotted islands on that coast and speedily went to pieces. Captain William Jackman, in charge of a fishing crew at these islands, had wandered in a direction he had never been before as if by inspiration and suddenly saw the whole tragedy enacted before his eyes. Hurrying his one companion back to the fishing station to summon help, he plunged into the howling swirl himself and eleven times swam to the ship. Each time he took back a human being to safety, battling splendidly against wind and tide.

Then help arrived, but no means was available of communicating with the vessel, so Jackman fastened a rope around his waist and made fifteen more trips, returning with a castaway on each occasion. It was then discovered that a woman had been overlooked and left on board, and the belief was expressed that she was dead, but he declared that he would not leave her there, living or dead. Accordingly he plunged into the surf again and soon bore the hapless creature to the shore, where, divesting himself of his flannels, he wrapped them round her, as she was almost at death's door. She expired a few hours later, but lived long enough to thank her preserver for his noble efforts in her behalf.—Wide World Magazine.

Not Afraid to Die.

London, Nov. 21.—Dr. Hawley H. Crippen, whose execution is fixed for Nov. 23, in a three-column signed statement in a Sunday paper, says that he is not afraid to die, and bows to the inevitable. He appeals to the world to remember that he was condemned on inconclusive evidence, and asserts that the real truth will be revealed. He knew nothing, he says, of the remains discovered in the Hill Drop Crescent house until Solicitor Newton told him the day after his arrival at Bow street. He was confident that, if he could have commanded unlimited funds, like the crown, and have brought more medical witnesses, the result would have been different.

The failure of his appeal, which he was convinced would reverse the judgment of the court, crushed and overwhelmed him, and broke his heart, because he had dreamt of building up a home with the woman, without whom life was worthless.

Fifty Per Cent. Increase.

Vancouver, Nov. 21.—W. L. Coulson, general manager of the Canadian Collieries, Limited, here, yesterday stated that, by the introduction of the new plant, the coal production at the Extension and Comox mines, on Vancouver Island, now controlled by Mackenzie and Mann, will be increased 50 per cent. within the next twelve months. The combined output now reaches 4,000 tons daily, an increase of over 600 tons a day since the change in the ownership from Dunsmuir to the Canadian Northern Railway magnates.

A Royal Aviator.

Darmstadt, Germany, Nov. 21.—Prince Henry of Prussia has qualified as an aerial pilot. The prince is a pupil of August Euler, and in a test exhibition did credit to his instructor. He flew about the Darmstadt field, performing a variety of evolutions, and also showed the knowledge required by the International Aeronautic Federation as to the construction of the machine, the principles of operation of starting and stopping.

FIRST NEWS OF MUTINY.

British Were Warned by W. Brendish, a Telegraph Operator.

There has just been retired from the service of the Postmaster-General a servant who may be said to have practically saved India to this country. This is W. Brendish, telegraph master, the sole survivor of those who were present in Delhi in May, 1857, and who, in the courageous discharge of his duty on the memorable 11th of that month, rendered invaluable service to the state.

It was Mr. Brendish who, without orders and acting on his own responsibility, despatched the telegram which warned the authorities of the Punjab of the outbreak of the terrible mutiny. "The sepoys have come in from Meerut and are burning everything," he wired. "Mr. Todd is dead, and, we hear, several Europeans. We must shut up."

The fateful news was sent to Lahore by Mr. Brendish, who was then but a youth, while the mutineers were pursuing their work of slaughter in every part of the cantonment. It has been acknowledged that this presence of mind on the part of young Brendish saved India. The story is told by Mr. Brendish in a modest narrative of his services on that eventful day. The telegraph staff at Delhi, he says, consisted of Mr. Todd, assistant in local charge, and two young signallers, Brendish and Pilkington.

On Sunday, the 10th of that month, in the forenoon, the signallers at the Meerut office wired that eighty men of the 3rd Cavalry had been confined, and were to be blown away from guns for refusing to bite the Enfield cartridges only recently issued to the troops. No further news was received, and at 4 p.m. the line with Meerut was found to be interrupted. On the following morning Mr. Todd took a dak and started for Meerut, to ascertain at what point along the road the break had occurred. He got no further than the bridge of boats over Jumna, for he there met the mutinous 3rd Cavalry, who killed him.

The signallers remained at their post in the telegraph office, which was fortunately outside the city walls, about one mile distant from the Kashmir Gate and from the Flagstaff Tower. They saw a regiment of native infantry with two guns pass along the road from cantonments towards the city, and learned afterwards that they had joined the 3rd Cavalry. Later on, heavy firing was heard in the city, and Brendish, who was at the signalling instruments, kept on wiring to Lahore all news that was brought to him.

At noon he went out on the road to see what was going on, and presently there passed a wounded British officer, driving from the city, who called out: "For God's sake get inside and close the doors."

"We did so," says Mr. Brendish, "but even then Pilkington and I did not feel we were secure, as we were but two lads encumbered with the wife and child of Mr. Todd, whose sad end was not yet known to us, and surrounded by servants who perhaps were prepared to take our lives, but who were doubtful as to the termination of events."

For two hours more the boys held on, listening to the firing within the walls. At 2 p.m. Brendish went to the Umballa instrument for the last time and signalled to the hands at the other end of the wire the historic message, ending "and now I am off," the meaning being that they were leaving the office.

He and his comrade had persuaded Mrs. Todd to accompany them to the Flagstaff Tower, where a number of Europeans had already congregated, as it was the only possible place of safety. They remained there until sunset, and witnessed the blowing up of the magazine. That night the refugees fled, and the two signallers eventually got safe to Umballa.

A Latham Incident.

An Italian paper has a good story of Latham, whose accomplishments include prowess with the gun. The aviator made a long stay in Abyssinia, and indulged in big-game shooting. One day he brought down two elephants, male and female. The law of Abyssinia required Latham to pay for his authorization two of the tusks. He sent those of the female, the smaller ones. The authorities demanded the larger, but the aviator flatly refused. Then began Fort Chabrol anew. Latham barricaded himself in his house, which the soldiery surrounded. He was well armed and well provisioned. The siege lasted a month, and it was brought to an end by Menelik learning of the incident. The Negus ordered the forces to retire, and returned the trophies to the heir-at-law of Nimrod and Icarus.

Base Canard.

Spring chickens were scarce, and they had killed the ancient gamecock for Sunday dinner.

"Ah," said the old farmer reverently, "this certainly was a game chicken. In fact, he was the bravest in two states."

"If I only had an axe," he mumbled.

"And what would you do with an axe?" demanded the farmer curiously.

"I'd assassinate the man that started that expression, 'The bravest are the tenderest'."

He Was Engaged.

An Irishman being prosecuted for a breach of the peace, a witness for the accused was told by the magistrate that he might have stopped the fight.

"Indade, no, your honor," said Paddy. "I was too busy fighting a friend of my own."

A Double Purpose.

"They say that melody will make cows yield more milk."

"Then the installation of a sextette of operatic milkmaids might increase the dairy output and also keep the boys on the farm."

Serious outbreaks of diphtheria are reported from various parts of Manitoba.

TAR AND FEATHERS.

People who read of tarring and feathering know that the punishment is a very unpleasant one, but few imagine how terribly painful and dangerous it is. Hardened tar is very hard to remove from the skin, and when feathers are added it forms a kind of cement that sticks closer than a brother. As soon as the tar sets the victim's suffering begins. It contracts as it cools, and every one of the little veins on the body is pulled, causing the most exquisite agony. The perspiration is entirely stopped, and unless the tar is removed death is certain to ensue.

But the removal is no easy task and requires several days. The tar cannot be softened by the application of heat and must be peeled off bit by bit, sweet oil being used to make the process less painful. The irritation to the skin is very great, as the hairs cannot be disengaged, but must be pulled out or cut off. No man can be cleaned of tar in a single day, as the pain of the operation would be too excruciating for endurance, and until this is done he has to suffer from a pain like that of 10,000 pin pricks. Numbers of men have died under the torture, and none who have gone through it regard tar and feathering as anything but a most fearful infliction.

Specialist Could Not Remove Stone In The Bladder

GIN PILLS PASSED IT

JOLIETTE, P.Q.

"During August last, I went to Montreal to consult a specialist as I had been suffering terribly with Stone in the Bladder.

He decided to operate but said the stone was too large to remove and too hard to crush. I returned home and was recommended by a friend to try GIN PILLS.

They relieved the pain. I took two boxes and went back to the specialist. He said the stone was smaller but he could not remove it although he tried for two hours and a half. I returned home and continued to take GIN PILLS, and to my great surprise and joy, I passed the stone.

GIN PILLS are the best medicine in the world and because they did me so much good, I will recommend them all the rest of my life". 46

Do You Suffer from Piles?

If so, we would ask you to enquire amongst your friends the value of Zam-Buk for this ailment! You cannot but meet with some one who has proved how excellent it is.

Mr. H. E. Hill of Shevlin, Man., writes:—"I suffered a long time with piles and tried numerous remedies, but without effect. Having tried a sample of Zam-Buk and being encouraged by the result, I persevered, using two boxes. It worked like magic, and effected a complete cure in a very short time."

Mr. James Ruddy of Killaloe, Ont., says:—"I suffered greatly from piles. The pain from these—as anyone who suffers from them will know—was almost unbearable. I tried first one remedy and then another, but all without effect. Then I heard about Zam-Buk and determined to give this wonderful balm a trial. I obtained a supply and commenced with the treatment, and to my great joy, after perseverance with Zam-Buk, I obtained permanent relief from the agonizing pain of the piles. Having been cured by Zam-Buk I heartily recommend the balm to all sufferers."

SACRED HEART T.A.S. AT HOME

The T.A.S. of the Sacred Heart Church, in their first social at St. Alphonsus' Lyceum last night, proved themselves entertainers of the highest order. The evening was a particularly pleasant one for the large attendance, and another social will be looked forward to with great pleasure. The important item on the program was a euchre contest, in which it was found necessary to use sixty tables. Mrs. R. Gordon won the ladies' prize, and Mr. Henry Laplante the one offered for the gentlemen. Refreshments, dainty and appetising, were afterwards served.

DISTRIBUTION OF SEED GRAIN AND POTATOES

By instruction of the Hon. Minister of Agriculture a distribution is being made this season of samples of superior sorts of grain and potatoes to Canadian farmers for the improvement of seed. The stock for distribution has been secured mainly from the experimental farms at Indian Head, Sask.; Brandon, Man.; and Ottawa, Ont. The samples consist of oats, spring wheat, barley, field peas, Indian corn (for ensilage only) and potatoes. The quantity of oats sent is four pounds, and of barley five pounds, sufficient in each case to sow one-twentieth of an acre. The samples of Indian corn, peas and potatoes weigh three pounds each. A quantity of each of the following has been secured for this distribution—

Oats—Banner, Abundance, Danish Island, Wide-Awake, Thousand Dollar, Improved Ligowo—all white varieties.

Wheat—Red varieties—Marquis and Early Red Fife (early beardless sorts of high baking strength), Red Fife, (beardless), Preston and Huron, (early bearded). White varieties—White Fife (beardless), Bobs (early, beardless).

Barley—Six rowed, Mensury and Manchurian (a selection from Mensury.) Two rowed, Standwell and Invincible.

Field peas—Arthur and Golden Vine.

Indian corn (for ensilage)—Early sorts, Angel of Midnight, Crompton's Early and Longfellow. Later varieties, Selected Leaming, Mastodon and White Cap Yellow Dent.

Potatoes—Early varieties, Rochester Rose and Irish Cobbler. Medium to late varieties, Gold Coin, Carman No. 1 and Money Maker. The later varieties are, as a rule, more productive than the earlier kinds.

Only one sample can be sent to each applicant, hence if an individual receives a sample of oats he cannot also receive one of wheat, barley, peas, Indian corn or potatoes. Applications on printed cards or sheets, or lists of names from one individual, or applications for more than one sample for one household cannot be entertained. The samples will be sent free of charge through the mail.

Applications should be addressed to the Dominion Cerealist, Experimental Farm, Ottawa, and may be sent in any time from the 1st of December to the 15th of February, after which the lists will be closed, so that the samples asked for may be sent out in good time. Applicants should mention the variety they prefer with a second sort as an alternative. Applications will be filled in the order in which they are received, as long as the supply of seed lasts. Farmers are advised to apply early to avoid possible disappointment. Those applying for Indian corn or potatoes should bear in mind that the corn is not usually distributed until April, and that potatoes cannot be mailed until danger from frost in transit is over. No postage is required on mail matter addressed to the Experimental Farm, Ottawa.

Wm. Saunders, Director of Experimental Farms.

The members of the Mission Band of the Methodist Church intend holding their annual Bazaar in the basement of the Church on Friday afternoon and evening. Light refreshments will be served from 5 to 7.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Pickens, who left here for Cuba, about five years ago, are at present visiting at the home of Mrs. Pickens' parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. Moffat, Colborne street. Mr. Pickens is at present engaged as a construction foreman on the Panama Canal, and is in the pay of Uncle Sam. Mr. and Mrs. Pickens like the southern climate fairly well and are enjoying the best of health.

Already there is some discussion around the village as to who will form the Council of the Municipality for the year 1911. We have heard the name of Mr. B. W. Squire mentioned as a probable candidate for the Reeve's chair. Mr. Breault, our present reeve, will be in the field again asking the suffrage of the ratepayers. Mr. Breault has been a very painstaking and capable officer and should enter a contest with considerable confidence of success. Mr. Squire has occupied a seat in the village Council Board for several years previous to this year, and has always shown himself to be a man of broad and comprehensive views and will if in the field, command a liberal support from the ratepayers of the village. Between these two gentlemen the contest would no doubt be very hotly contested. As to the Council, we have heard several names mentioned of men who should make good legislators, but as yet the field appears to be open to anybody aspiring to municipal honors. One or two of the present Council have signified their intentions of retiring at the end of the year.

The Personell of the Board of Education will be somewhat changed as two of the members who have done very valuable work on the Board decided that this year will be their last year spent in that capacity. Mr. J. S. Squire who has represented the village for nearly 20 years on the Board, has decided to give place to another, so also Mr. C. W. Waters, who occupies the seat by appointment of the village Council.

These two gentlemen will be greatly missed as they are both men of good sound judgment, and whose opinions are highly prized by the other members of the Board.

Mrs. J. Anderson of Regina, Sask., held a reception at the home of her mother-in-law, Mrs. A. Anderson, on Saturday afternoon, from three to six. Miss Helen Anderson waited on the door, while her sister, Miss Mary Anderson, helped to entertain. Mrs. Anderson looked charming in her wedding gown of white duchess satin with gold trimmings, while Miss Mary Anderson looked pretty in a pale green silk voile gown with satin trimmings. Rev. Mrs. Cree poured the tea and looked pretty in pale blue. Mr. and Mrs. Anderson left on Monday to visit other places, and will return to Norwood for a short visit before leaving for their home in Regina.

BLOT OUT SUNDAY AT PARK STREET CHURCH

Blot What Out?—the current indebtedness.

That will be the object of next Sunday's services at Park Street Baptist Church. The Church and congregation have decided to blot out all incumbrances, to try and pay their honest debts and turn over a new leaf, before the pastor, Rev. W. C. Riddiford preaches on the "Ethics of Business Life," Sunday, Dec. 4th.

To this end Dr. Sam. Luttrell will be here for that day. Those who had the pleasure of hearing the Doctor a few weeks ago, will be glad to hear and see him again.

All who are not, will please stay away, for an appreciative and generous crowd is wanted for that day.

In the afternoon at 4.15, a mass Men's Meeting will be held in the Auditorium of the Park Street Baptist Church, when Dr. Luttrell, who has gone through the mill of trouble and temptation, so far as men are concerned, will deliver a special address to men. The Park Street Orchestra, a new organization, under the able leadership of Mr. R. J. Edwards, a young man with a musical reputation, will render choice selections.

All men will be made welcome.

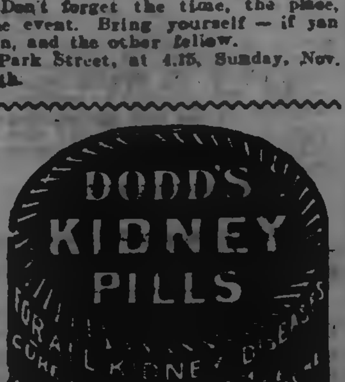
Don't forget the time, the place, the event. Bring yourself — if you can, and the other fellow.

Park Street, at 4.15, Sunday, Nov. 27th.

Wanted—a Purse

A lady lost a purse containing $2.75 on George street this week, and the finder will confer a favor by leaving it at the police station. A gentleman found the purse, it appears, and asked the lady if she had lost one. Just a moment before she had placed her purse in the baby carriage, and, without making a search, answered no. The man walked on and when the lady did discover her loss he could not be recalled.

Charles Hunt was caught in the machinery of the Canada Cotton mill at Cornwall, had his arms broken, and was severely burned.



LOCAL LABOR NEWS

(By J. Arthur Sharpe, Peterborough Correspondent to Labor Gazette.)

GENERAL CONDITION OF THE LABOR MARKET.

The labor market has been very active throughout August and showed considerable advance over the corresponding month of last year. Outside work especially in the building trade was very brisk. The supply was not equal to the demand for rough carpenters and bricklayers. The Radial Railway Company will build a new power house at the Auburn dam and extend their railway this fall, giving employment to 200 men. Tenders are called for the erection of a new church for the Murray St. Baptist congregation; it will be a stone structure. The Peterborough Canoe Company is to extend its factory, doubling their output. The factory will cost $10,000. The Wm. Hamilton Company has secured two large contracts for machinery for the development of water power. Mr. Geo. Ball has received the contract for making the new uniforms and overcoats for the employees of the Radial Railway Company. The Collier Electric Company is very busy, having received one order from Vancouver for 400 electric irons. This city has been used as a demonstration point for the Machine Telephone no charge being made; they will now put in some 1,500 new telephones and will charge for the service. The barbers have raised the price of a hair cut to 25 cents.

CONDITION OF LOCAL INDUSTRIES

Agriculture.—The rains of the latter part of the month as well as two hail storms created havoc in this locality, some of the farmers have nothing left as a result. Apple buyers are now making tours throughout the country. They report the crop very light.

Lumbering conditions are active and lumbermen find it hard to get men to go to the camps. The mills are also busy; the Peterborough Lumber Company has been cutting 1,628 ties daily the last two months.

Manufacturing.—The metal and wood trades have been very busy but the woollen trade have been very quiet.

CONDITIONS OF PARTICULAR TRADES.

The building trades were all active; metal workers, electric workers, linemen were very active. The woodworking trades were all well employed. The printing trades report business fair and job shops very busy. Journeymen tailors were busy. Bakers were very busy and butchers and meat cutters were active. Leather workers were active. There was a good demand for unskilled labor.

LODGE PRACTICE CONDEMNED

The complaint is made by a physician of New York, through the medium of one of the standard weekly medical publications, that the "lodge practice evil" is hampering medical progress and efficiency in that section of the city and depriving a large number of worthy and capable practitioners of the fruits of diligence and a protracted course of study which they feel they have a right to expect.

The complaining physician is Dr. Morris Joseph Clurman, Rivington street. In the course of an article in The Medical Record, entitled "The Lodge Practice Evil on the Lower East Side," he says:

"Among the local medical community, especially of the lower East Side, there has sprung up of late years an evil so virile, so powerful, and so destructive to ward medical ideals, that in time only a mythical Perseus will have to spring forth to destroy this Gorgon Medusa if concerted action on the part of the East Side medical profession is not taken to check it now.

"This alarming evil is nothing more nor less than the existing state of east side lodge practice with its concomitant train of manifold degradations to the local medical fraternity. At the present time there are in existence down town somewhere between 1,500 and 2,000 lodges, societies, and benevolent associations founded mainly by the poorer class of workingmen for a double purpose; namely, social intercourse and mutual aid or benevolence.

"'An iron-bound practice or custom has arisen for each society to elect some physician to take care of the health of the society members—for a consideration. What this consideration amounts to we shall see later.

TWENTY YEARS AGO.

"Twenty years ago, when lodge practice was in its infancy, societies would send humble delegates to some physician and ask him to accept the office of lodge doctor for a fair and reasonable consideration. In most cases the physician would think twice before entering into such an agreement, since, very naturally, routine family practice, with its direct returns for every call, seemed more remunerative than cheap contract practice However, young and ambitious medical tyros naturally sought some means of getting patients to come to them, and this seemed an easy way to help make both ends meet, and also to obtain what seemed to be a legitimate and ethical way of advertising one's self.

"The lodge doctor found that he came in contact at the sickbed with a large class of patients who would not have patronized him in any other way. In time, however, the lodge physician, after establishing a reputation as a busy practitioner—and, perhaps, as a good one—became more or less independent.

"Hand in hand with the increasing number of physicians on the east side a keen competition now arose among them to be elected as lodge physician in as many societies as possible. Many sought these positions, and it now seemed that another Eldorado had been discovered.

"But now the guilt had been reversed. It was the doctors who sought after the societies, and not vice versa, as formerly. The societies found that, inasmuch as physicians were so anxious to be their lodge doctors, they could well afford to discriminate and choose from the numerous candidates.

"What a degrading spectacle it is to see three or four medical men at one of these society elections. Each candidate comes fully prepared with printed ballots bearing his name, which he distributes among lodge members. While the vote is going on and the ballots are being counted, these physicians sit like culprits and await the result of the election. It is difficult to say who should feel more chagrined after the count is over— the lucky (?) winner or the defeated candidates.

PUBLIC LIBRARY BOARD APPOINTED LIBRARIAN AND HIS ASSISTANT

The Public Library Board met last night and appointed Mr. F. M. Dela Fosse librarian, and Miss Hattie M. Cahill assistant librarian.

Mr. Frank Adams was appointed secretary-reasurer.

The by-laws were presented to the meeting and some modifications will be made, after which they will be published in the papers.

TALENT SOCIAL LAST NIGHT WAS A COMPLETE SUCCESS

What was termed a talent social was held last night in the schoolroom of George St. Methodist church. To the ladies of the congregation the success of the evening is due. The first number on the program was a chorus by the Ladies' Aid of the church, sung to the tune of Auld Lang Syne. After this each lady of the society came forward and laid a dollar bill on a plate, at the same time telling how she earned it. Some of the means employed were very amusing indeed, and drew forth a great laughter from the audience. audience. One lady stated that she earned it by pressing her husband's trousers.

Mrs. Davidson, who contributed several numbers to the program showed herself to be the possessor of a splendid voice of great range and quality, and her numbers were well received.

Mr. J. Johns, also, was at his best in recitations and was encored.

In his opening remarks last night the pastor, Rev. Mr. Couch, made a few remarks of a congratulatory nature, in which he stated that he was glad to see so many present.

Mr. F. H. Dobbin gave an exceedingly interesting account of the early history of Peterborough, as he knew it. As remarked by Mr. B. Shortly, Mr. Dobbin must have been living at the time when Peterborough was being surveyed His humorous style of address and numerous amusing reminiscences kept the gathering in good humor, and drew forth hearty laughs at times. He received a vote of thanks, together with the other contributors to the program and the Ladies' Aid. The vote was moved by Mr. B. Shortly and seconded by Mr. D. Kennedy.

The following is the program given last night—

Hymn and Prayer.

MUNICIPAL GOVT. BY COMMISSION

Mr. W. H. Moore K. C. Deals With Question at Board of Trade Meeting — Committee Appointed to Make Further Enquiries, Draft a Policy and Report

That a committee composed of the president, Ald. Gillespie, W. H. Moore, K.C.; Publicity Commissioner Duggan, D. W. Dumble, K.C., and Dr. M. A. Morrison, make further enquiries and draft a policy along the lines of the discussion of the evening, submitting a report at a future meeting of the Board of Trade.

This motion, unanimously carried, concluded the meeting of the Board of Trade, held at the City Council Chamber last evening, and at which Mr. W. H. Moore dealt with the question of Municipal Government by Commission, bringing before his hearers the position of the city of Des Moines, Iowa, as being under that form of administration.

The motion given above was the last of several, and, reading between the lines is the old maxim, look before you leap."

Members of the County Council were present. There were many vacant seats and this was deplored by speakers during the discussion. It is to be hoped that a larger attendance will answer the next call of the president.

Mr. R. Ruddy thought that the various professions, trades, business and manufacturing concerns, should appoint representatives to the Peterborough Board of Trade.

UNITE WITH PROVINCIAL BOARD

Previous to Mr. Moore's remarks, Mr. D. W. Dumble, as one of a committee to whom was referred, at the last meeting, the matter of the local Board uniting with the Provincial Board of Trade, reported as follows:

The committee beg to report:

First. That they have considered the constitution of the Provincial Board, and find that cities having a membership of 300 have only eight votes, and for every additional 100 members, an additional vote, so that it would be impossible for the larger cities to outvote the smaller Boards of Trade.

Second.—Your committee believe that by uniting with the Provincial Board, the local Board can more effectively give effect, to their views on matters of Provincial or Dominion interest.

Third. On matters of local interest there will be perfect freedom. Your committee therefore advise that our Board unite with the Provincial Board.—Carried.

On motion of Dr. Morrison and Mr. Dumble, the selection of a committee to represent the local Board at the meeting of the Provincial Board was left in the hands of the council of the Peterborough Board of Trade. Dr. Morrison suggested a committee of five.

MR. W. H. MOORE, K.C.

The speaker in his introductory remarks referred to the general misinterpretation of the meaning of Municipal Government by Commission. Commissions have been appointed by the Dominion and Ontario Governments, but who are not responsible to the people. They have given good satisfaction, but the speaker did not think that the time had arrived for us to have Municipal Government by Commission in any such sense.

The people of to-day are intelligent people and will not be represented or taxed by any other than appointed by themselves.

DES MOINES.

This city took up Municipal Government by Commission three years ago, applying to the Legislature of Iowa for the special Act which is necessary. This Act allows a proportionate number of members, according to the population, and Des Moines, having 90,000 inhabitants, was allowed five members.

Based on the same proposition Peterborough would have three members.

In the first year the city saved $186,000. This amount under the old system was deemed a necessary expenditure for the good of the city.

MODE OF ELECTING.

They have what they call a primary election to receive candidates. They nominate, following the usual procedure, and finally all but two names are eliminated. Another election is called and the one getting the highest number of votes is Mayor, and the first four, in another list of candidates, are councillors.

SALARY FIXED.

The legislature fixes the salary, practically the same as it fixes the number of members, and Des Moines, falling under the head of 60,000 or more, pays its Mayor $3,500 yearly and each of the Councillors $3,000, making an annual salary expenditure of $15,500.

Peterborough, under the Act, would pay its Mayor $1,500 annually, and each councillor $1,200, or a total of $3,900. "If this is a fact, that in the first year the Commission of that city saved $186,000, are they paid too much?" asked the speaker, They were well selected men, who gave all their time to their duties.

FEATURES OF ACT.

The three systems, the "Initiative," the first gives the people the power of petitioning the council, in regard to adopting a certain line, which the council has previously refused. If 25 per cent of the people petition (that would be 500 in Peterborough) the council is bound to submit or put the matter before the people, and if they say it goes, it must.

By the "referendum" the council cannot give a franchise without the approval of the people. When they pass measures the documents must be open to inspection for a period of ten days so that the citizens can see them. If they object, the final disposition rests with them. By the "recall" any member for breach of trust or unworthy to fill the position can be dismissed on petition of the people and another appointed to fill the vacancy.

This is the position of the city of Des Moines, which, previous to the present system was not going ahead. The Act allows for the reverting to the old system in a stated time, if desired.

Mr. Moore did not have anything to say against the present City Council but he believed the system could be improved—that there should be a smaller membership. They should be given authority to appoint commissionary bodies to look after public matters, with a free hand, and made responsible to the council and people. At the present time Peterborough had only one commission, "The City Trust."

At the conclusion of Mr. Moore's address Dr. Morrison, County Warden Moher, C. H. Banks, Commissioner Duggan, R Ruddy, W. S. Dodds, Ald. Hicks and D. W. Dumble spoke as to what steps should be undertaken in regard to the new system of government, and it was finally decided to act as stated on the motion given above.

BLONDIN DECLAIMS SPEECHES IN FAVOR OF NATIONALIST PROGRAM

Hon. Mr. Brodeur, Continuing Debate on Reply to Speech From Throne Brings Wholesale Accusations Against Nationalist Campaigners.

Ottawa, Nov. 24.—When the debate on the address was resumed yesterday afternoon, Hon. L. P. Brodeur, Minister of Marine and Fisheries, continued his criticism of the campaign in Drummond and Arthabaska. In fact the entire session was devoted to a discussion of the methods employed by both parties in the recent bye-election, and charge followed upon counter-charge by Conservatives and Liberals, until the amendment of F. D. Monk (Jacques Cartier), upon which the discussion mainly rose, was lost to view.

Mr. Brodeur read more reports of speeches by Nationalists in the campaign, and said he sought to show the influence of these speeches upon the election. They had carried on an incendiary campaign against British connection and Sir Wilfrid Laurier. He quoted from a statement of Tancred Marcil, who said he had lived in a parish where the English had desecrated a church and fed their horses from its sacred vessels. He quoted from a further speech in which Marcil described Earl Grey as a creature of the late Cecil Rhodes. The Minister of Marine defended the Governor-General. It was a shame that this sort of campaign was being carried on and, he asserted, it did not represent the feeling of the Province of Quebec.

Contrariwise, a different campaign was being conducted in Ontario where Sir Wilfrid Laurier was declared to be anti-British.

Continuing, amid Liberal and Conservative cheers, Mr. Brodeur read the advice tendered to the electors of Drummond and Arthabaska. R. L. Borden advised them to vote according to their conscience, which satisfied the Minister, as it showed that Mr. Borden did not appreciate the anti-British appeals that had been made. Not so, he maintained, in the case of Hon. George E. Foster, Hon. Robert Rogers and others, who had advised Conservatives to vote against Laurier and the navy. This implied direct support to the Nationalist candidate, to accomplish the embarrassment of the Government.

Dealing with the amendment of Mr. Monk, the Minister declared that the creation of a navy did not change our relations with the Mother Country, any more than when Canada provided the land forces for Halifax and Esquimalt, when Great Britain withdrew her troops from North America. Mr. Monk's proposal was not in accordance with historical record, as was instanced when Canada took over the fisheries protective service, and even the important question of confederation was not submitted to the people. The naval policy was an affirmation of Canadian autonomy.

P. E. Blondin (Champlain), one of the Quebec Conservatives, who had been pilloried by Government speakers for alleged appeals to racial prejudice during the campaign, said: "I wish to declare from my seat in this House and before the country that, during the whole of the Drummond and Arthabaska campaign, the Conservative members who took part in it were true and faithful to our King and our country, in conformity with the principles of the Liberal-Conservative party.

"He took neither credit nor discredit for his presence in the constituency, because, before the campaign opened, the people were against the navy bill. He had heard Government workers remark that things were going bad 'because of the damned navy bill.' He denied that he said Quebec owed nothing to the other provinces, although something in that sense might have been uttered. Liberal speakers had sought to make the people believe that other provinces would retaliate, if they dared express their free will, that the people of other provinces were narrow and fanatical.

Dr. H. S. Beland (Liberal, Beauce), said he had not intended to take part in the debate, but was obliged to do so in view of the remarks of the previous speaker. If Mr. Blondin did not make the statement attributed to him, Dr. Eugene Paquet (L'Islet) must have made them, for they were the only two speakers on that occasion at Victoriaville. He was sure that the House and country realized that disloyal language had been used by the supporters of Mr. Gilbert.

Then Dr. Beland proceeded to give to the House a story of the Drummond-Arthabaska campaign, as he saw it. Mr. Gilbert, he said, presented himself to the electors as a Liberal, who would support Sir Wilfrid Laurier on all questions but that of the navy.

Armand Lavergne had said at several meetings that the only way to please Sir Wilfrid Laurier was to vote for Gilbert, because, when the Nationist candidate was elected, he would be able to go to Earl Grey and Mr. Borden and say: "See, the people have declared themselves against the naval policy. We must repeal the bill." Then the Nationalists had appealed to the instincts of the electors and had tried to frighten fathers and mothers by the bogey of conscription.

Nantel (Conservative, Terrebonne) spoke in French. He said they had told the electors that Sir Wilfrid Laurier was not a god, nor yet a demi-god but just a plain man, with a love for titles and automobiles, given him by English lords, and that they were perfectly entitled to rebuke him when he made a mistake. The people of Drummond-Arthabaska had heeded this advice, he said, and the victory was the result.

J. P. Turcotte (Quebec County), also speaking in French, explained that the incident of the election had no real significance.

Dr. Paquette moved the adjournment of the debate.

The debate on the address in the Senate was resumed by Senator Lougheed, leader of the Opposition. He congratulated Senator Lavergne upon having reached the Senate at the psychological moment, having anticipated the gathering storm, and, with more foresight than the Government, he had found a shelter. Had the Government foreseen what was to happen, it is doubtful if Senator Lavergne would have reached the Upper House as easily.

TO BE BUILT IN ENGLAND

Ottawa, Nov. 24.—British publications devoted to naval and military subjects continue to assert that a cruiser is being built in Great Britain for the Canadian navy. The latest to do so is The United Service Magazine, which, in its November issue, contains the following paragraph: "The armored cruisers New Zealand and Australia, building for service in the Pacific, will displace 18,800 tons, and will be sisters to the Indefatigable. Orders have recently been placed for protected cruisers for the Australian, Canadian and New Zealand services."

This repeated assertion—that a protected cruiser that is a ship of the Bristol class, is actually about to be constructed in Great Britain for the Canadian navy, hardly consorts with the declarations that all the ships will be built in Canada.

BOURASSA TO VISIT POPE

Quebec, Nov. 24.—It is said that one of the objects of Henri Bourassa's trip to Europe is to go and plead before the Pope himself the alleged rights of the French-speaking population of Canada, which are considered violated by the appointment of Mgr. Gauthier to the archiepiscopal seat at Ottawa, and to induce the holy see to put a stop to Bishop Fallon's hostility to the learning of the French language in the public schools of Ontario.

PROSPEROUS FISHERMEN

Halifax, Nov. 23.—With fish five dollars per quintail, one dollar higher than at this time last year, and a record catch at Lunenburg, this is a year of the greatest prosperity. In 1909 there were 93 fishing vessels sailing out of Lunenburg, with a total catch of 173,582 quintals of codfish, averaging 1,866 quintals per vessel. Montreal, Nov. 24.—At a special meeting of shareholders of the Porto Rico Railway Co., held here yesterday it was decided to increase the capital stock by $500,000 by issuing 5,000 shares of 7 per cent. preferred stock. MEXICAN TROOPS FAIL TO CATCH THE LEADER

Raid is Made on His Ranch, But Insurgent Chieftain is Gone—Nearly Ten Thousand Men Are Reported Under Arms and Trouble is Feared.

Laredo, Texas, Nov. 24.—Mexican soldiers late yesterday raided the San Enrique ranch of Francisco I. Madero, leader of the uprising in Mexico, on the chance of surrounding Madero and capturing several thousand horses, believed to be on the estate. They seized 250 horses, but Madero was not found.

Reports have had it that Madero was headed for the San Enrique property in the State of Coahuila. Furthermore, it was believed by the Mexican authorities that Madero had placed 2,000 horses there, with which he intended to mount a force of cavalry.

In addition it was reported that an armed band of revolutionists was encamped Tuesday night at Minerva, Texas, headed toward the ranch. All these rumors led to the movement yesterday, which the Mexican authorities say has effectually checked the plan of Madero to mobilise a force of mounted men to operate in the interior.

Fighting at Chihuahua.

El Paso, Nov. 24.—Latest reports are that Chihuahua is in great danger, it being estimated that between 8,000 and 10,000 revolutionists are gathered between the city and the plant of the American Smelting & Refining Co. All responsible citizens are armed and expecting to be attacked at any moment. Crowds of defenders occupy the tops of all the banks, churches and large buildings throughout the city.

The first authentic accounts of the fighting at Gomez Palacio in Chihuahua were received here yesterday when El Eco, a Spanish daily, published at Torre on Tuesday, was brought to El Paso by a passenger from Mexico. A translation of the report follows:

Gomez, Palacio, Mexico, Nov. 23.—Last night several rumors were circulated to which no one gave credence, but all were greatly surprised at 2 o'clock in the morning by cries and yells of groups of armed and mounted men, who came forth from the ruins of the ancient church of Santa Rosa, situated at the extreme end of the city, where they had been hiding.

Even Consular Messages Censored.

Mexico, Nov. 24.—The press is still denied telegraph facilities, and the censorship appears to have extended to consular messages. The United States embassy is without reports for three days. The war department announces that all places where there have been disorders are now tranquil, and that the Government is in control everywhere, except in Guerrero City, where the rebels are active. Troops are now proceeding to this point.

Proclaimed Himself President.

Ciudad Porfirio Diaz, Mexico, Nov. 24.—Francisco I. Madero has proclaimed himself "President of the Provisional Government of Mexico," and admonishes his followers not to commit overt acts against the Americans, nor do damage to property of foreigners.

Revolutionary Agent at Washington.

Washington, Nov. 24.—Justava A. Madero, brother of leader of the revolution in Mexico, arrived in Washington yesterday. He comes as the confidential agent of the revolutionary party, but so far has not called upon the State Department.

The War Department yesterday instructed Gen. Hoyt, commander of the department of Texas, to respond to requests from U. S. marshals for the assistance of troops in preventing violations of neutrality.

NEW POINT IS RAISED

Winnipeg, Nov. 24.—The argument on the Federenko writ of habeas corpus case, which resumed yesterday before Judge Robson, resulted in a surprise being sprung, when counsel for the defence pointed out that in the evidence of requisition of the Russian Government it was stated that the crime was a political one. It was also explained that under the Russian law obtaining at the time, all trouble between civilians and police came under the head of political crime. Special treatement is devised by the Government, and there are special provisions made for arrests and trials in such cases.

Judge Robson considered the point of importance. He asked that the words on the seal attached to the documents be translated, and, pending this adjourned court until to-day.

PACKED THE DOGS IN BOX

Galt, Nov. 24.—Fine totaling $54.40 were imposed on John N. Sipes at the Police Court yesterday afternoon before Magistrate Blake. Sipes was charged with transporting dogs into northern game district, in contravention of the special act of prohibition, and also cruelty to animals. The prosecutors were John Jennings, for the Department of Agriculture, and P. C. Laverton Harris, for the Humane Society. C. R. Hanning, K.C., Preston, appeared for the defence and pleaded guilty on both charges. Mr. Jennings said he did not want the full penalty inflicted, but only a lesson read to sportsmen and others.

Sipes boxed up two hounds in a close packing case and consigned them to Parry Sound, to be used for deer hunting. At Shawanga the box was discovered by a provincial constable, who confiscated and released the dogs. The animals had been four days without food or water and nearly perished.

N.Y. MESSENGERS ARE ON STRIKE

New York, Nov. 24.—The threatened strike of telegraph messenger boys in this city materialized on schedule time yesterday. The movement started in the financial district, where upwards of 150 boys walked out and paraded to Broadway, gaining adherents to the strike movement en route.

The boys want two cents instead of a cent and a-half a call, and two and a half cents instead of two cents for a delivery.

About 500 messengers in all, it is said, joined in striking, out of some 800 employed in Manhattan offices of the Western Union. The postal telegraph forces, it was announced, was not affected.

HE NEARLY COLLAPSED; CRIPPEN PITIABLE FIGURE AT TIME OF EXECUTION

Those Who Witnessed Hanging of the American Murderer in Pentonville Prison Say He Almost Broke Down—No Confession Has Been Given Out.

London, Nov. 24.—The papers to-day are full of the hanging of Dr. Hawley H. Crippen in Pentonville Prison yesterday, where the prisoner had been confined since his return to this country, following his arrest in Canada.

The condemned man presented a pitiable appearance as he was literally led through the short corridor from his cell to the scaffold. His mental anguish had been too great to be concealed by outward bravado, and it was a broken man whom the warders were obliged to assist up the steps to the drop, which, once reached, the shrinking figure all but collapsed.

The first report that Crippen had met his fate calmly was contradicted by persons who were present in the prison during the man's last hours. The doomed man passed a restless night and appeared haggard and worn, when awakened from his fitful slumber. A breakfast was brought into him, but he left it untouched.

Yesterday morning, following the execution, the prison authorities issued an official statement, declaring that no confession had been made. Miss Leneve denies that Crippen confessed. His attorney says that, so far as he knows, his client maintained his innocence to the end. What was said to the priest, preceding absolution, cannot, of course, be known.

So far as can be learned Ethel Clara Leneve did not sail on the steamer Majestic for New York yesterday, although she had booked a second-class passage, under the name of Miss Allyn. It is thought that she had changed her plans after they had been discovered, though it is possible that she will join the vessel at Cherbourg or Queenstown. Friends of Miss Leneve say that she proposes to begin life anew under a new name, to escape further notoriety.

Did Crippen Attempt Suicide?

London, Nov. 24.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—The story has been published that Dr. Crippen attempted suicide Tuesday; that the warders' suspicions being aroused by his restlessness, they discovered his spectacles missing; these they found in his bed with the glasses removed and broken. It was believed that he intended to open a vein in his body.

HIS UNCLE WAS A MURDERER

Halifax, Nov. 24.—John Tebo, jr., the 19-year-old lad, who has been arrested at Digby on the charge of murdering an old man named Edward McGregor, was arraigned yesterday and remanded without bail.

The alleged murderer is a nephew of Joseph Nicholas Tebo, who was hanged at Annapolis about thirty years ago for the murder of Charlotte Gordon. "Joe Nick," as he was familiarly known, was a resident of Plympton, Digby County, where John Tebo, jr., was born 19 years ago. Joe Nick killed the Gordon woman, and attempted to conceal his crime by throwing the body in a bush fire, but the body was only partly burned when discovered by two men, who were attracted from the main road by observing smoke rising skyward, thinking that one of the meadows surrounded by thick woods, was on fire.

WATCH SAVED FARMER'S LIFE

Chatham, Nov. 24.—Napoleon Caron, a farmer of Dover Township, was saved from probable death by a heavy gold watch, which he wore in a pocket above his heart. He was working in his stable, when a horse kicked him. The animal's foot struck him about the heart, and the force of the blow landed on the watch. He is at present in a critical condition, but the doctors state that his life was undoubtedly saved by the heavy cased watch.

ASKING FOR CONSERVATIVE SYMPATHY

The Liberals are making desperate attempts to persuade people that it is the duty of Conservatives to weep because Laurier is losing his grip on Quebec. It is difficult to see why Conservatives should be afflicted over the troubles of their opponents nor is there any reason to conclude that the Liberals conducted in Drummond and Arthabaska a remarkably loyal or Imperialistic campaign. Laurier stumpers told the electors of the constituency that their navy would be used, not to help Great Britain but to enable Canada to break with her. One Liberal sympathiser, it is said, even suggested that the Canadian navy might be used to fight the Mother Country.

GETTING THE WORST OF IT

Our neighbor, Lindsay, seems to have fallen on a series of municipal mishaps, which indicate some laxity in municipal organization, or a too easy disposition on the part of its leading citizens.

Within the last two years Lindsay has had several set-backs. There was the celebrated ozone water purification scheme, in which the town was gold-bricked. Then the town treasurer, who performed the office of receiver of taxes, made away with $16,500 of the town's money, and returned only a part. The latest blow is that of the missing promoter for the proposed glove and shoe factory scheme and what he got away with.

People coming out of Lindsay on Wednesday said that the town was all torn up over the disclosure, and citizens were blaming each other. Our neighbor will have to be careful or people will presently speak of the town in pity, and that is the last and least commendable way in which comment may be couched.

MAKE USE OF THE EVENINGS

Now that the winter evenings are at hand, and the many societies connected with our churches and public institutions are on the alert to provide entertainment. It is suggested that instead of the mixed programme, supplied by local effort, that use should be made of addresses and talks by clever and talented people, who are qualified to deal with the practical affairs of life. The annual report of the Farmers' Institutes prints lists of speakers, all of whom are available, and names the subjects on which they speak. Not all subjects are those identified with life on the farm and many are pertinent to life in the town and city.

Among the list of names is that of Mrs. L. M. Parsons, of Forest, Ont, Her wide experience in society work places her in a position to give valuable advice and suggestions, such as are outlined in "How we can help our girls and how they can help us," and "Banking and Business Methods for Women."

Miss L. Duncan, of 5 Rideout street, Toronto, delivers an exceedingly interesting address on "Simple Home Decorations," and "Is a Woman's Time Worth Anything."

Those attending such lectures and addresses cannot but be benefitted, as what it told is that gained by years of experience and observation.

THE TWO PHILOSOPHERS

Those two old world-famous philosophers who have recently passed away, Goldwin Smith and Count Tolstoi, in the strength and fineness of their writings, in the beauty of their personal lives, in the pessimism of their sincere desire for the welfare of the human race, bear a strong and striking resemblance to one another.

But here the resemblance ends, for in the question of methods the two found themselves at opposite poles. Tolstoi exalted the common man above everything. All systems, all laws would have to be evolved and fitted to his needs, and in this only did he see an ideal future. Goldwin Smith, on the other hand, would have the world build up great and perfect systems, and to these he would have the men of the world live up. One regarded humanity too much, too closely, the other not enough.

It is a question whether either of these men left any great impress on their time or generation. A leader must not be too far in advance, or at any rate removed from his flock. And both these aged philosophers, both voices lifted up in the wilderness preached doctrines which their nations could not accept, which are too far removed from the practical considerations of to-day. The future world may take a turn as Tolstoi and Goldwin Smith hoped, so that warless state of nature, to that latter day golden age, but there is as yet, at least, little indication of the approach of such vital change.—Ottawa Journal.

MUNICIPAL GOVERNMENT

Mr. W. H. Moore has several times addressed meetings called by the Board of Trade on the question of municipal government by commission, and each time has given valuable information that has taken up more time in the gathering than in the imparting, and Mr. Moore is not a novice in municipal government. He served a number of years in the Council, and was chairman of important committees, and is now chairman of the City Trust and a Water Commissioner. When he studies the question he does so in the light of experience and Peterborough is indebted to him for the time and trouble he has taken to disseminate knowledge on this important subject.

It is clear that there is not satisfaction with the present system of municipal government. In the counties after years of representation by townships a change was made to grouping the townships for the purpose of representation in the county bodies, and again after a time a return was made to the old system. In this city ten or eleven years ago representation by wards was abolished and the aldermen were elected at large by a general vote of the electors of the city, and now we are returning to the former plan of ward representation.

In several Canadian cities Boards of Control have been adopted—a system of electing several members by general vote, while retaining the ward representation and these several members, known as Controllers, forming a sort of Cabinet with special powers and duties. But the Boards of Control do not control—the Council still has the right, under certain restrictions, to overrule the Board and at all times to curb its action. Again some cities have commissions to administer certain public departments, as Peterborough has its City Trust Commission, the members appointed by the Council and its Water Commission, of which the members are elected. In the United States a number of cities have adopted the system described by Mr. Moore, a sort of small city council with the members elected by a general vote and for a term of years.

These things show an unrest, a dissatisfaction, with the system of government and an endeavor to find an improvement, and the action of the Board of Trade in appointing a committee to make further enquiries, and to give the matter further study, was a good one. It is hoped that the committee will take their appointment seriously and that their report when presented will be beneficial in adding to the knowledge of the subject, that has been obtained.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Providence is blamed for a good many things, but the statement of Mr. A. D. Mallon, one of Lindsay's citizens that "providence had sent Mr. Thomas, the shoe factory promoter, to Lindsay," is the last and latest. The local papers there don't believe it, and say they don't care who knows it. Mr. Mallon must reverse his personal beliefs.

Stratford is rejoicing at a low schedule of prices for electric light at the hands of the commissioners handling Niagara power. It is expected that almost every home in the town will be so lighted, and the commission has offered to provide free light for the principal street as soon as the Council decides to accept the offer.

The city of St. Thomas has a curious case on its hands by the prosecution under the Lord's Day Act. Two men and the caretaker of the Presbyterian church are said to have worked all Saturday night and up to 6 o'clock on Sunday morning to get the organ ready for the dedication ceremony on Sunday morning. There is much curiosity as to the course the law will take.

MONTREAL, Nov. 23.—(Special.)—At the Canadian Pacific live stock market this morning offerings were 1000 cattle, 1500 sheep and lambs, 1200 hogs and 400 calves, prices being steady on account of the smaller receipts, but the demand was somewhat limited, and trade slow. Choice beeves sold at 5¾c; good at 5c to 5½c; fairly good at 4¾c to 4⅞c; fair at 4c to 4½c, and common at 3½c to 3¾c per lb. Good cows brought from 3½c to 4¼c, and canners 2c; good bulls, 3½c to 4c, and canners, 2½c to 2¾c per lb. The demand for hogs was good, and sales of selected lots were made at $7.25 per 100 lbs., weighed off cars. Calves were scarce and dear, prices ranging from $4 to $18 each.

At the Montreal Stock Yards west end market the supply consisted of 800 cattle, 250 sheep and lambs, 1500 hogs and 75 calves. Saved by Inrush of Water.

New York, Nov. 24.—When the White Star liner Oceanic, in from Southampton, was coming up the bay yesterday under reduced speed she ran into a barge laden with coal, and sent it to the bottom. The skipper of the barge, Capt. Herman Countant, and his wife, were in the cabin when the crash came, and their lives were saved because of the quick inrush of water through the gaping wound in the barge's side, which forced the couple up through the companion way, and into the bay, where they were picked up.

Must Be Pardoned.

Kingston, Nov. 24.—That he must be pardoned before the immigration authorities of his country can consider an application for his re-entering the United States, is the message the United States consul has received in the case of Jacob Gublitsky, fur smuggler, sentenced at Chatham. The Canadian Justice Department offered to release him, on condition that he be allowed to return to his home in Brooklyn. He is 73 years old, in very feeble health and it is believed will not live long.

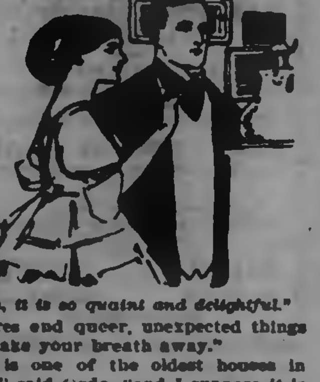
"Oh, it is so quaint and delightful." Carroll exhaled slowly, "this dear old house with its low ceilings and its old pictures and queer, unexpected things that take your breath away."



"Oh, it is so quaint and delightful."

"It is one of the oldest houses in town," said Orde, "and I suppose it is picturesque. But, you see, I was brought up here, so I'm used to it."

"Wait until you leave it," said she. "Then all these things will come back to you to make your heart ache for them."

After the company had gone Orde stood long by the front gate looking up into the infinite spaces. Somehow, and vaguely, he felt the night to be akin to her elusive spirit. Farther and farther his soul penetrated into its depths, and yet other depths lay beyond, other mysteries, other unguessed realms. And yet its beauty was the simplicity of space and dark and the stars.

The next time he saw her was at the house of the friend she visited. Orde was lucky enough to find the girls home and alone. Jane made an excuse and went out. They talked with a considerable approach toward intimacy. Not until nearly time to go did Orde stumble upon the vital point of the evening. He had said something about a plan for the week following.

"But you forget that by that time I shall be gone," said she.

"Gone!" he echoed blankly. "Where?"

"Home," said she. "Don't you remember I am to go Sunday morning?"

"I thought you were going to stay a month."

"I was, but I—certain things came up that made it necessary for me to leave sooner."

"Will you write me occasionally?" he begged.

"As to that"—she began—"I'm a very poor correspondent. I do not make it a custom to write to young men."

"Oh!" he cried, believing himself enlightened. "Will you answer if I write you?"

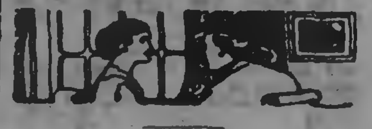
She began gently to laugh, quite to herself, as though enjoying a joke entirely within her own personal privilege.

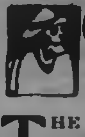
"What is your address in New York?" demanded Orde.

She sank into a chair near by with a pretty uplifted gesture of despair.

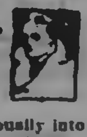
"I surrender!" she cried, and then she laughed until the tears started from her eyes. "Oh, you are delicious!" she said at last. "Well, listen. I live at 12 West Ninth street. Can you remember that?" Orde nodded.

Two days later Orde saw the train carry her away.





Chapter 15



THE new firm plunged busily into pressing activities. Orde constantly interviewed men of all kinds—rivermen, mill men, contractors, boat builders, hardware dealers, pile driver captains, builders, wholesale grocery men, cooks, axmen, chore boys—all a little world in itself.

Downstream eight miles, below the mills, and just beyond where the drawbridge crossed over to Monrovia, Duncan McLeod's shipyards steamed and bent and bolted away at two tugboats.

The spring burst into leaf and settled into summer. Orde was constantly on the move. As soon as low water came with midsummer he departed to Redding. Here he joined a crew which Tom North had collected and went to the head of the river. Far back on the headwaters he built a dam. The gate operated simply and could be raised to let loose an entire flood. And, indeed, this was the whole purpose of the dam. It created a reservoir from which could be freed new supplies of water to eke out the dropping spring freshets.

The crew next moved down ten miles to where the river dropped over a rapids full of bowlders. Here were built a row of stone filled log cribs in a double row downstream to define the channel and to hold the drive in it and away from the shallows. At the falls twenty-five miles below Orde purposed his most elaborate bit of rough engineering. The falls, only about fifteen feet high, fell straight to a bed of sheer rock. This had been eaten by the eddies into potholes and crannies until a jagged irregular scoop hollow had formed immediately underneath the fall.

In flood time the water roared through this obstruction in a torrent. The logs plunged end on into the scoop hollow, hit with a crash and were spewed out below more or less battered. Sometimes, when the drive brought down a hundred logs together, they failed to shoot over the barrier of the ledge. Then followed a jam, a bad jam, difficult and dangerous to break.

This condition of affairs Orde had determined, if possible, to obviate.

"If," said he to North, "we could carry an apron on a slant from just under the crest and over the potholes it would shoot both the water and the logs off a better angle."

"Sure," agreed North, "but you'll have fun placing your apron with all that water running through. Why, it would drown us!"

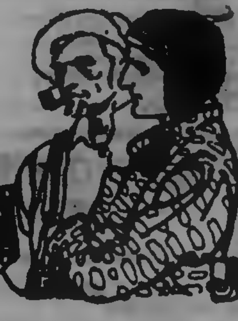
"I've got a notion on that," said Orde.

Into the forest went the axmen. The straightest trees they felled, trimmed and dragged down travoy trails they constructed, on sleds they built for the purpose, to the banks of the river. Here they bored the two holes through either end to receive the bolts when later they should be locked together side by side in their places. As fast as they were prepared men with canthooks rolled them down the slope to a flat below the falls.

After the trees had been cut in sufficient number Orde led the way back upstream a half mile to a shallows, where he commanded the construction of a number of exaggerated sawhorses with very widespread slanting legs. When the sawhorses were completed Orde directed the picks and shovels to be brought up.

Orde set his men to digging a channel through the bank. It was no slight job, as the slope down into a swamp began only at a point forty or fifty feet inland; but, on the other hand, the earth was soft and free from rocks. When completed the channel gave passage to a rather feeble streamlet from the outer fringe of the river.

Next Orde assigned two men to each of the queer shaped sawhorses and instructed them to place the horses in a row across the shallowest part of the river and broadside to the stream. This was done. The men, halfway to their knees in the swift water, bore down heavily to keep their charges in place. Other men laid heavy planks side by side perpendicular to and on the upstream side of the horses. The weight of the water clamped them in place. Big rocks and gravel shoveled on in quantity prevented the lower ends from rising. The wide slant of the legs directed the pressure so far downward that the horses were prevented from floating away, and slowly the bulk of the water, thus raised a good three feet above its former level, turned aside into the new channel and poured out to inundate the black ash swamp beyond.



"Why, it would drown us!"

A good volume still poured down to the fall, but it was so far reduced that work became possible.

"Now, boys!" cried Orde. "Lively while we've got the chance!"

The twenty-six foot logs were placed side by side, slanting from a point two feet below the rim of the fall to the ledge below. They were bolted together top and bottom through the four holes bored for that purpose. The task finished, they pried the flash boards from the improvised dam, piled them neatly beyond reach of high water, rescued the sawhorses and piled them also for a possible future use and blocked the temporary channel. The river, restored to its immemorial channel by these men who had so nonchalantly turned it aside, roared on. Orde and his crew tramped back to the falls and gazed on their handiwork with satisfaction. Instead of plunging over an edge into a turmoil of foam and eddies, now the water flowed smoothly, almost without a break, over an incline of thirty degrees.

"Logs 'll slip over that slick as a gun barrel," said Tom North.

Quite cheerfully they took up their long, painstaking journey back down the river.

The trail led the crew through many minor labors, all of which consumed time. At Reed's mill Orde entered into diplomatic negotiations with old man Reed, whom he found singularly amenable. The skirmish in the spring seemed to have taken all the fight out of him, or perhaps, more simply, Orde's attitude toward him at that time had won him over to the young man's side. Orde's crew built a new sluiceway and gate far enough down to assure a good head in the pond above.

In September the crew had worked down as far as Redding, leaving behind them a river harnessed for their uses. Remained still the forty miles between Redding and the lake. Orde here paid off his men. A few days' work with a pile driver would fence the principal shoals from the channel.

He stayed overnight with his parents and took the train for Monrovia to meet Newmark.

"Hello, Joe!" greeted Orde, his teeth flashing in contrast to the tan of his face. "I'm done. Anything new since you wrote last?"

Newmark had acquired his articles of incorporation and sold his stock. Perhaps his task had in it as much of difficulty as Orde's taming of the river. Certainly he carried it to as successful a conclusion. The bulk of the stock he sold to log owners. Some blocks even went to Chicago. His own little fortune of twenty thousand he paid in for the shares that represented his half of the majority retained by himself and Orde. The latter gave a note at 10 per cent for his proportion of the stock. Newmark then borrowed fifteen thousand more, giving as security a mortgage on the company's newly acquired property—the tugs, booms, buildings and real estate. Thus was the financing determined. It left the company with obligations of $1,500 a year in interest, expenses which would run heavily into the thousands and an obligation to make good outside stock worth at par exactly $49,000. In addition Orde had charged against his account a burden of $2,000 a year interest on his personal debt. To offset these liabilities, outside the river improvements and equipments, which would hold little or no value in case of failure, the firm held contracts to deliver about 100,000,000 feet of logs. After some discussion the partners decided to allow themselves $2,500 apiece by way of salary.

"The only point that is at all risky to me," said Newmark, "is that we have only one season contracts. If for any reason we hang up the drive or fail to deliver promptly we're going to get left the year following, and then it's b-u-s-t—bust."

AFTER DOCTORS FAILED

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Cured Her.

Toronto, Canada.—"I shall endeavor to describe to you how I felt before I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I scarcely knew what it was to be well. I had awful bearing-down pains and usually before my monthly periods I suffered terribly and had to go to bed. I was not able to walk across the floor the pain was so bad. I doctored for a long time, but the doctor's treatment did not do me any good. I gave up all hopes of ever being well again until one day my husband saw the Compound advertised in the paper. He decided to get me a bottle, and I am thankful he did. I had not taken one bottle before I began to feel better, and I kept on taking it until now I am a different woman. It also helped me during maternity and childbirth. I can thoroughly recommend your Vegetable Compound to any woman who is afflicted with female troubles."—Mrs. J. M. TWEEDALE, 138 Nassau St., Toronto, Canada.

The success of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, is unparalleled. It may be used with perfect confidence by women who suffer from displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness, or nervous prostration.

OPERATED IN THE WEST ALSO

Man Who Worked Fraudulent Scheme in Lindsay Was Busy in Portage la Prairie, too.

Exclusive to the Review,

Lindsay, November 24—

The latest developments in the Lindsay-Thomas gold-brick scheme comes in letters received in Lindsay to-day from Portage la Prairie, identifying Thomas as a D. B. Thomson, who carried on operations there some seven weeks ago.

He appeared in that place and got in touch with the local Board of Trade and secured a site for a factory. A by-law was submitted and about to be ruled out. He evidently had a confederate in Winnipeg, for on his giving a Winnipeg reference and on communication being had the answers proved satisfactory. He gave out that he and a brother had a shoe factory in Duluth, and were locating in the North-west to be near the trade they expected to handle.

Just as matters were being closed up at Portage they began to be suspicious and made enquiries abroad. He took alarm and skipped out, first selling the lots that had been secured for a factory site, and carrying off an instalment of the cash.

He evidently came straight to Lindsay and started in on the same game, and with such success as has developed.

It was rumored around Lindsay that Thomas had been arrested, but this is not the case up to the hour of going to press. It is assumed that during the last few days in Lindsay he borrowed or raised sums sums of money from several citizens, but as no one wishes to acknowledge being bitten, all are keeping quiet. It is said he was at Trenton before going to Lindsay, ubt that Trenton did not bite.

MISSION FOR PROTESTANTS

Toronto, Nov. 24.—For the first time in Toronto, a Roman Catholic "mission" for non-Catholics is to be conducted next month at St. Paul's church, corner of Queen and Power streets.

Rev. B. L. Conway and Rev. James M. Gillis, Paulist Fathers from New York city, will conduct a series of lectures on Catholic doctrine and Catholic practice during the week of December 4th, inviting especially the one Catholic people of the city. This will follow two weeks of service being conducted at the church by three of the Paulist Fathers, especially for the people of St. Paul's, one week for women and one for men.

The founder of the Paulists was Isaac Hecker, who, it is said, became dissatisfied with Protestantism and became a Catholic. After being ordained priest, he started, with four other converts, the institute that has become known as the Paulist Fathers. The primary purpose was to explain the Catholic faith to non-Catholics. They have held missions in many cities in the United States and in some places in Canada.

WILL NOT GO INTO HOTEL BUSINESS AT HAMILTON

Hamilton, Nov. 23—Owing to a private investigation into the local hotel investigation, James O'Shea, of Peterborough, has called off the negotiations he was conducting for the purchase of J. J. Holland's hotel, the Station Hotel.

O'Shea had an option on the business for about $5,500, and the application for the transfer was on the order sheet fo rthe license commission, which met yesterday afternoon. Shortly before the meeting Inspector Sturdy received a letter, written by O'Shea, in which the prospective purchaser announced that as a result of his investigation he would not go into the hotel business in this city, and did not want to have the license transferred to his name, as he had decided to allow the option to expire without taking it up.

The license commissioners dropped the application from their order sheet. There was a little routine business for them to transact, but the meeting lasted only a short time.

WATER COMMISSION BUYS MORE LAND

The Water Commission met yesterday afternoon at the city clerk's office.

Mr. Moore reported the completion of the purchase of a strip of land on the west side of the river below the waterworks property from J. Stothart. Two hundred dollars was the price paid. This gives the commission control of both sides of the river for a considerable distance.

An agreement with the Canadian Chicle Co. for the supply of water at the usual rates was read and confirmed.

The superintendent was instructed to lay a main on Bethune street from King to Sherbrooke, and one on Sutherland street, it the revenue was sufficient.

WATER IS O. K.

The general public will be interested to know that the water of the city it in excellent condition.

The M.H.O. made a verbal report to this effect to the Water Commissioners at their meeting yesterday afternoon and this morning the Review saw samples of the water taken last week, in their testing state at the city laboratory.

Each sample taken last week did not go over the normal mark of 6 per cent. chlorine. At that mark or under, water is not affected.

Dr. McPherson explained the mode of testing.

The samples, in glass tubes, are placed in an incubator, by which the water is kept under the same conditions of temperature as in its running state. It is treated so that the organisms grow.

All the samples on test show conclusively that the water is as stated above, in splendid condition. To produce the gas organisms, a similar method was employed and again the results are highly satisfactory.

The water will be tested regularly and under all weather conditions and a monthly report made.

THE DUMBLE HOMESTEAD

Forty years ago Mr. Dumble erected his handsome house at the corner of London and Reid streets. After planting it and laying it out, his two acres became one of the finest places in the city, but what happened to others has happened to him. His family is scattered from Denver to Montreal, and he has just removed into his pretty little home at the corner of Downie and London streets. The old place, "The Pines," is being cut up into lots for sale. 'Tis a pity such handsome grounds could not be kept intact, but 'tis common fate in all our cities to see such places divided and covered with new homes. City growth has some advantages, but it necessitates many changes which are not always improvements.

THE TYPE IS TOO SMALL

A good deal of dissatisfaction is being expressed by telephone users over the fact that the new issue of the subscribers' book is printed in type several sizes smaller than in the books formerly used. No doubt the company wishes to compress into the covers as much information and as many lists of stations as possible. But this sacrifices legibility. All telephones are not placed and made use of where a good light is available. In fact in residences the 'phone is tucked away, in an effort to secure some privacy to those using it.

The type in the books recently issued is one known in the printing trade as "6 point." In the old days it was known as "Nonpariel," so far as concerns the size of the body of the type. The face for printing part of the letter, has been darkened and made thicker in an effort to make it more legible. This brings the lines very close together, and the result is very confusing. If it were opened out—leaded is the technical term—it would be more easily read, but would occupy as much space as that used in the old books.

As no doubt a very considerable expense has been incurred in providing the new face of type it will likely stay, but none the less subscribers are—many of those with eyesight not of the best—seriously annoyed.

THE PRODUCTION OF MILK ON AN ECONOMIC BASIS

The Best Kind of Food to Get Both Quality and Quantity at a Reasonable Cost—Food Value of Milk—Eastern Ontario Dairymens' Association Meets.

The Eastern Ontario Dairymans' Association met in the City Council chambers Wednesday afternoon, and addresses of an instructive nature on matters of deep importance to dairymen and farmers in general were discussed by various speakers of prominence. Although the attendance was not extremely large, yet great interest was displayed by those present, and, judging by the amount of discussion, the question of dairying and advanced farming is assuming proportions and arousing interest far in excess of past years.

ALD GILLESPIE AGAIN DIRECTOR

Ald. G. A Gillespie was again the unanimous choice of those present for the office of director in the Eastern Ontario Dairymans' Association, an office which he has filled so satisfactorily for the past three or four years

SEASON'S REPORT READ.

Yesterday afternoon's proceedings were commenced by the reading of the report of the season's work in this district by Mr. R. W. Ward, dairy instructor for this district. The report was lengthy and of interest, and showed a prosperous condition of affairs.

MR. D. J. CAMERON'S ADDRESS.

Mr D. J. Cameron, dairy instructor for the Lindsay section, who was the next speaker, endorsed the report of Mr. R. W. WARD in a short, pithy address.

Probably the weakest state of affairs is shown by the report was the question of milk supply. If this question could be settled satisfactorily the manufacture of cheese would be cheaper, and cheese factory owners and the people would reap the profits.

HOW TO PRESERVE THE WHEY

Speaking of the loss of whey in milk, the speaker said the average loss in his own factory amounted to about twelve per cent. The highest test was .03. He was of the conviction that if the farmers would get busy and take the most careful precautions in delivering the milk to the cheese factories in good condition the question would be effectually solved, and in some factories the loss in whey would be easily cut in two

HOW TO KEEP THE MILK GOOD

To get milk to the factory in good condition to stay sweet for three hours, at least, should be the aim of every dairyman. In warm weather the milk should be kept at a temperature of sixty degrees as soon as possible after milking, and it should be retained at that temperature. Then there would be no trouble, and increased profits would result.

Mr. Cameron's address was well received and was intently listened to.

CHAIRMAN'S ADDRESS.

The chairman, Mr. G. A. Gillespie, next made a few remarks. He was of the opinion that if the salesmen of the various cheese factories could be present, and if one of their number were elected director it would be much more successful. He reported a very successful year, with no complaints. Very few cuts in Peterborough cheese were reported, and he hoped that they would enter into the coming year with the same enthusiasm displayed in past years.

MR. GLENDENNING'S ADDRESS.

Mr. H. Glendenning, of Manilla, president of the Eastern Ontario Dairymans' Association, in prefacing his remarks, wished to know why the farmers and dairymen did not bring their wives out to the meetings, assuring them if they did an increased interest would be shown. His topic was "The Milk Question." He would view it from a farmer's standpoint. It does not matter how much milk you get unless you have proper facilities for looking after it correctly, or how much milk you get unless you can produce it cheaper. But generally where you find a large production of milk there is found to be a correspondingly large cost to produce it. The average yield of a cow at present is about three thousand pounds per season. Many a cow, had the proper care, would produce twice that amount

FEED THE COWS WELL

One thing every farmer should do is to see that his cows are well fed with the best feed. For instance, in June there is always a good yield of milk because there is abundance of feed. After this a noticeable falling off is apparent. Why is it? Because the pasture fields become bare. Then a cow loses when she consumes useless energy in whisking off flies. Make the cow as comfortable as possible. A cow, as is a well known fact, also always uses a certain amount of milk for its own bodily use.

WHAT KING OF FEED TO GIVE

Regarding feed, natural grass and clover cannot be excelled, but when this fails, then the cow's fodder must be supplemented. A summer silo is good, but it is not common, although the day is coming when they will be. Alfalfa hay is about the best supplement known, and has been found by experiment to produce results. These two things, however, as it it inevitable, cost money, and so the question resolves itself into a matter of dollars and cents.

Mr. Glendenning was pleased to hear that considerable alfalfa was grown in this section, and was informed that the land was especially favorable to its development. In growing corn, also, to expect favorable results, it must be given room. Plant it so that it will be at least forty-two inches apart, between the rows. The man who aims to get the best results should combine alfalfa, corn and ensilage.

The speaker also put in a good word for the Peterborough creamery, advising farmers to patronize it. "The man," said he "who supplys cream the year round will find that his cows feed better and do better. It is extremely important that a cow should be well nourished a year before milking, and while we hear so much against the cow, this would be abolished if the cow was fed well.

SPRAYING A GOOD THING.

Spraying the cows also is a good feature, and undoubtedly gives them additional vigor, as it frees them from the tormenting pests of flies.

This concluded Mr. Glendenning's instructive address, after which questions of vital importance to the farmers were discussed at considerable length.

MR F. SINGLETON'S ADDRESS

The concluding speaker was Mr. F. Singleton, instructor of milk testing at the Kingston Dairy School, who demonstrated by chemicals the value o fthe factors or ingredients of milk and their relative food values to the human body. There is about eighty-seven per cent. of water in milk, and the water is simply the vehicle which conveys the milk from the cow to the milk pail.

A CHEMICAL ANALYSIS.

The fat of milk in ordinary cows will go as low as one per cent., and as high as 10 per cent. When milk is allowed to stand the fat of it comes to the top in the shape of cream, and when milk is used as food the fat of it is what supplies the nourishment to the body. The protien ash caseine and albumen are the other ingredients, and each have their relative values as food

In the composition of the milk there is something to supply every organ of the body.

SHOULD REMEDY DEFECTS.

Mr. Singleton also stated that the object of the meetings of the Dairymans' Association was to have the men of the section get together to devise remedies for some dairying defects, and the greatest need, in his opinion, was that of a better milk production. Many farmers and dairymen know what they should do, but do not carry it out. The farmer's profit depends on what it costs him to produce the milk, and so it should be a matter of supreme importance. One matter that should be considered is the weeding out of the unprofitable cows. As an exception to the remark made by a previous speaker that cows averaged an output of three thousand pounds a season, Mr. Singleton stated that he knew of herds of cows which each averaged six to eight thousand pounds.

This can be done, however, only by careful feeding and breeding.

Considerable discussion also followed the conclusion of Mr. Singleton's address, and various things rather vague in the minds of those present were cleared up.

The gathering dismissed about 4.30.

Among those present were noticed W. C. Switzer, president Peterborough Cheese Board; Jno. Riddell, salesman for Bensfort; John Elliott, Smith; A Fitzgerald Smith; G. A. Brethen, Norwood; R. McCracken, Westwood; T. Borland Selwyn; Jno. Flood, Ennismore; S Abbott, Fowler's Corners; H. B. Cowan, editor of 'Farm and Dairy'; Mr. Johnson, Villers; R Watson, Lang; Mr. Griffin, Peterborough; H. Stubbs, Bridgenorth; G Horton, Lakefield; Mr. Dafoe, Clysdale.

ANOTHER TREAT BY ASTRONOMICAL CENTRE

The Royal Astronomical Society meets to-morrow evening, Friday, the 25th. While the usual meeting night is Tuesday, a change has been made for the occasion in order to secure the special speaker for the evening, Prof. C. A. Chant, of the University of Toronto.

Professor Chant has lectured in Peterborough on several occasinos and has made many friends here. He is a good speaker and knows how to make his subject most interesting.

The address will be in theform of a resume of the convention of the "Solar Union," held in California. This Union is composed of astronomers from all over the world, from both observatories and universities, and its meetings mean the discussion of the latest in astronomical matters.

The address will be profusely illustrated by lantern views and should therefore prove of added interest. And as Prof. Chance has travelled considerably among the universities of the world, his observations are worthy of note.

Mr. J. R. Collins of Toronto, the General Secretary of the Astronomical Society in writing to one of the Peterborough members, states that Prof. Chant delivered this address recently before the Toronto Centre, and that the illustrations were many in number and very unique. "Something less than a thousand slides" he writes, "and they are exceptionally good."

The meeting will be in the Collegiate Auditorium. No charge as usual and the public are cordially invited.

OVEREND—PRICE.

A pretty wedding of an extremely quiet nature was solemnized at 3.30 this afternoon at Dr. O'Brien's rectory, when Miss "Nettie" Helen Overend, of 175 Lock street, was joined in marriage to Mr. W. S. Price, also of this city. Dr. O'Brien officiated.

The bride was assisted by her sister, Miss Marien Overend, and Mr. H. Wadely, manager of the Trinton Carpet Company, acted as groomsman.

Immediately after the ceremony a dainty luncheon, very tastefully arranged, was served at the home of the bride, after which the young couple left on the 4.38 on a wedding trip. Only a few intimate friends of the contracting parties witnessed the ceremony, who joined in wishing them a prosperous future.

CONDUCTOR DISCHARGED

Rumours to the effect that a number of conductors on northern G.T.R. passenger trains have been dismissed by the company as a result of the work of detectives, who found evidence of dishonesty on the part of the suspected conductors, cannot be altogether confirmed, but the Review is informed authentically that recently a conductor, Denis Gall, on the Haliburton line, was discharged.

The name of a Lindsay young woman, who has gained considerable notoriety, is mentioned, in connection with this particular case in which the rules and regulations of the company were violated by the dismissed employee.

Rev. R. Bamforth, B.A., of Madoc, has accepted a call to Port Perry Methodist church.

SPORTING NEWS

PETE CAMPBELL WILL BE READY TO GO ON

Toronto World.—Dr. Bruce stated yesterday that the absence of Billy Foulds from practice only meant that the quarter-back was giving his knee a chance to completely mend. Foulds met with the only accident of his career in the try-out against T.A.A.C. and the boys are sure of him playing through against the Tigers. However, in the remote chance of Foulds not lasting, Pete Campbell will jump at the job.

Locally, the big final game at Hamilton on Saturday is arousing much interest and the fact of Pete Campbell being carried with the Varsity team, will be well received.

It will be a hard game and Foulds will have to be able to go the limit. A further mishap would mean a big handicap under other circumstances, but with Peterborough's representative in the best of shape and ready to take the position, all would be well with the champions that are again to be.

THE Y.M.C.A. BOWLERS WILL GET BUSY MONDAY EVENING

Next Monday will see the start of the Big Bowling Tournament at the Y. M. C. A. In the meantime the alleys will be put in first class condition and everything will be put in shape for the fastest kind of bowling. The interest is keen. There are now five teams entered and there is talk of some of the senior members from the Collegiate entering a team.

The following is a list of the teams entered to date:—

The Big Three — Stanley Kernaghan, Stanley Norris, Nelson Whetlaufer

The High Rollers — J. J Thompson, Walter Flowers, Alex. Fitzgerald.

Lancashire Trio — P. Braun, B. Leader, T. Evans.

The Three Mivvies — A. H. Sparrow, J. Elliott, C. Barrett.

The Midgets — R. C. A. Lawson, G. Lawson, F. Tait.

SPORTING COMMENT

Tom Clancy, coach of the Ottawa Rugby Club, dopes out the Tigers to win next Saturday from Varsity. He says:—

People who are backing Varsity at 2 to 1 odds have, in my opinion, more money than football experience," continued Clancy, "I have studied both teams, and I can't see where Varsity has the call to justify any odds. Personally, I think Tigers will whip the Toronto team by a big margin. From all reports Varsity is counting on their back division to win the game, confident that their line can hold Tigers. I think that right here is the mistake. The Tiger line will, if in anything like proper form, go through Varsity, and stop the blue and white backs. On top of this, the Varsity back division has nothing on tigers. The latter, if decently protected, will outplay Varsity. Finally, the game is in Hamilton. This means that Tigers go into the battle with 25 per cent. more confidence than they would on any other field in Canada.

Jack at Play column of the Toronto Globe discusses junior hockey in the following manner:

Last winter we had, perhaps, the finest lot of junior teams that ever battled for the O.H.A. honors in that series. If the best of them included only one player over nineteen years of age, the argument that the quality of hockey would deteriorate under the nineteen year restriction is answered. Hockey is a boys' game, and the first-class player is practically as good at twenty as at twenty-five years. The present limit does not give proper encouragement or opportunity for real juniors in the O.H.A. The young and inexperienced have to compete in that division against teams good enough to win the intermediate or senior series—St. Michael's College, for instance. To meet this admitted situation the supporters of Mr. Sutherland's resolution suggested the establishment of a juvenile series, but with our brief and uncertain period of ice it is hardly practicable to increase the number of O.H.A. fixtures by the addition of an extra series. The right way is to make the junior series really junior, and if the signs of the last few days can be read aright that is what will happen next year.

Are This Year's Varsity Football Players—Some Statistics for Rugby Rooters

Football was never more popular in Canada than this year, and this week interest is at the high mark, every body speculating on the outcome of the Varsity-Tiger game at Hamilton.

As a result of the decisive victory last Saturday of Toronto University over the Toronto Amateur Athletic Club in the semi-final of the Canadian Rugby Union championship, the Varsity team is looked upon as a favorite in the finals.

JAMES BELL

"Jimmy" Bell, the great little 150 lb. scrimmager, is in his fourth year Arts. He is 23 years of age and stands 5 feet 7 inches. He has played on the first two years. He learned the rudiments of the game at Upper Canada College, and comes from near Orillia. He is the greatest line plunger in the business for his weight.

The University team is one of the lightest and youngest teams that have won the honors in many years.

Last year's Canadian champions were considered very young, but this year's team is both lighter and younger. The only advantage this team has is in length—they are an inch and a half taller than their predecessors. The following statistics should prove illuminating:—

Average weight of backs, 165½ lbs., as against 166 lbs. last year.

Average weight of wing line 175, last year 180.

MORE CUPS FOR O.H.A.

John Ross Robertson's Latest Gift to Association—Intermediate and Junior Series Cups

The J. Ross Robertson Challenge Trophy, emblematic of the senior championship of the Ontario Hockey Association, has at last fitting companions for the honors in the intermediate and junior series.

Mr. Robertson has just received from London, England, two massive solid silver cups of beautiful design and workmanship, which at the O.H.A. annual meeting he presented to the association for the second and third series.

This gives the O.H.A. the finest collection of trophies in Canada.

The original J. Ross Robertson cup was, and is, decidedly the most artistic piece of silverware ever offered in this country for annual competition. For some years the cups for the intermediate and junior series have been outgrown. Now these two series will have the added incentive of trophies worth striving after, apart altogether from the honors of the championships. They will, of course, be, as the senior cup, held for the year only by the winners.

These two latest and timely donations by Mr. Robertson were made by the same firm in London as turned out the senior trophy, and they were the silversmiths to Her Majesty. The designs are Canadian through and through, with beautiful hockey scenes drawn expressly for them by our own Canadian artist, Owen Staples.

SKATING POPULAR

In Winnipeg—The Influence of Skating Clubs

The fascinating sport of skating promises to more popular than ever in Winnipeg this winter, says the sporting editor of the Winnipeg Free Press. Judging by the big preparations that the local rink managers are making they expect a record season. The forming of skating clubs in recent years is boosting the sport better than it has ever been before, as the largest crowds of the week are at these club nights at the different rinks. The church organizations have found this amusement to be one of the most popular of the many pastimes introduced for the benefit of its members. Winnipeg is noted for its expert and graceful skaters, and there is probably no place in Canada where there are so many lady exponents of the winter sport than there is found in the western metropolis. This winter the rinks are expected to be crowded nightly, and the roar of the steel blades will be sweet music to the managers.

ABOUT THE NAPS

Some Post-Season "Dope" About the Cleveland Ball Team

While the Cleveland Club may be unable to secure Harry Davis to manage the Naps, it is a fact that the club is anxious to secure some one to take Jim McCarthy's place. McGuire has a two-year contract, but the Cleveland owners are willing to pay him for the term of his engagement if it can get a man in whom it has confidence to manage the Naps. Davis would make an ideal leader for the Cleveland team, and as he has given his best years in Connie Mack's service, and is no longer a star, the Athletics' leader will not hesitate to give Davis a chance to better his condition. The Athletics would not be materially weakened thereby, for in Hauser Mack has a grand young first baseman, and Eddie Collins would prove just as valuable a field captain as Davis ever was. There was an effort made a year or so ago to have the Cleveland Club engage Davis to manage the Nationals. Connie Mack said at that time that he would not stand in the way of Davis getting a managerial berth, and there is no reason for believing that he has changed his opinion in the matter in the meantime.—Cleveland Exchange.

WOMAN POOL PLAYERS

Billiard and pool playing is becoming quite popular among the women of the United States. There are several members of the fair sex who are experts in the use of the cue. One of these is Miss Martha Clearwater, of Pittsburg, who has lately come into prominence as a contender for the title of woman pool champion of the world. Miss Clearwater is a charming young woman, and can execute the most difficult shots with an ease and grace that are truly marvelous. She inherits her pool-playing ability from her father, William H. Clearwater, for several years one of the best-known pool experts of America, and who held the championship at different times. Under the instruction of her parent Miss Clearwater has mastered the in- [illegible] of the game.

TOBACCO IN THE ARCTIC.

Resource of Miners When They Can Neither Chew Nor Smoke.

"When the wind is blowing thirty miles an hour and the temperature is 40 below it is some cold," said a man from Alaska. "If a man used tobacco in the ordinary way out of doors during such weather and got his lips wet through smoking a pipe or chewing he would be apt to get into trouble. First thing he knew he'd have his lips cracked, and they would be raw all winter long.

"The regulars stationed at the military posts up in Alaska found that if they tied a tobacco leaf in their armpit previous to undesired duty they would become very sick and could pass the post surgeon for hospital, getting rid of detail work they wanted to avoid.

"The miners up there learned something of this and found that the tobacco craving could be satisfied by binding a quantity of the leaf either in the armpit or against the solar plexus. This avoided broken and bleeding lips during the winter, and they weren't prevented from smoking indoors as well if they wanted to. It was the outdoor smoking or chewing that made all the trouble."—New York Sun.

RULES FOR WIVES.

To Which Is Added Some Feminine Advice to Husbands.

Some presumptuous Frenchmen published a list of commandments for wives, one of which ran: "Now and then acknowledged gracefully that thy husband knows more about some things than thou. After all, thou art not infallible." A second and still more daring rule for wives was, "Never be aggressive in thy arguments with thy husband, but always consider him as superior to thee." This was too much for French feminists, and no wonder. One lady answers the presumptuous man indignantly:

The weaker sex has not merely duties; it has also rights. Feminism is advancing, and nothing will stop it. The weaker sex is the equal of the sterner. Equality forever! Here are the commandments which women oppose to those of men.

The lady then gives her rules for husbands with more spirit than logic:

Woman has a right to have whims; it is a privilege of her sex. Never put her out. She might have hysterics, which would impair her health and cost the money in doctor's bills.

Another commandment runs:

Remember, good man, that thy wife is thy superior by her grace, her beauty and refinement. Therefore always worship at her feet.

Where, then good lady, does "equality forever" come in, if woman not only has privilege because she is a woman, but is decidedly superior to man? Surely, the strong minded suffragist would spurn privileges of sex. In another rule the lady seems to show some sly knowledge of her sisters.

If, good man, thou desirest mountain air ask thy wife to come to the seaside; she will immediately propose a holiday in Switzerland.

But this is a very mild gibe at her own sex compared with her final thrust at the other in her last rule for husbands:

Man was created before woman as a preliminary sketch for the masterpiece. Remember, then, O husband, that thou art but a rough draft.

This ought to shut any husband up finally.—Paris Cor. London Telegraph.

Way to Treat Venison.

"If you don't like venison," he said, "it is because it has not been prepared properly. I think I know the kind you have tried to eat, and I agree with you it is not fit. After the deer has been shot the carcass probably has been allowed to lie around until the blood has discolored the meat and really has almost tainted it. Few hunters dress their game carefully enough. As soon as a deer is killed the carcass should be thoroughly bled, skinned, the entrails removed and the meat hung up in the dry air for some hours. Thorough and prompt bleeding is of the utmost importance. Venison prepared in this way is comparatively light in color—that is, it is a clear, bright red, and the fat is white and clean. There is no strong, rank taste." New York Press.

Revenge.

"Stop!" The brakes of the motor were suddenly applied, a pandemonium of whirling wheels ensued, and the motorist came face to face with Constable Coppem, who had been hiding in the hedge.

"Excuse me, sir," said the portly policeman, taking out his notebook and pencil, "but you exceeded the speed limit by two miles over a measured piece of road."

"I have done nothing of the kind," retorted the motorist, "and, besides"—

"Well, if you don't believe me I'll call the sergeant, bein' as it was 'im as took the time. He's in the pigsty yonder."

"Don't trouble, Robert," the other hastened to reply. "I would sooner pay fifty fines than disturb the sergeant at his meals!"—London Answers.

Faithful Woman.

I tell you that women, as a rule, are more faithful than men—ten times more faithful. I never saw a man pursue his wife into the very ditch and dust of degradation and take her in his arms. I never saw a man stand at the shore where she was wrecked, waiting for the waves to bring back her corpse to his arms, but I have seen a woman with her white arms lift a man from the mire of degradation and hold him to her bosom as if he were an angel.—Ingersoll.

MR. J. H. BURNHAM WRITES TO MONTREAL WITNESS; SIR WILFRED AND NAVY

Under the heading of Sir Wilfrid and the Navy, the following letter from Mr. J. H. Burnham, of this city, appeared in yesterday's issue of the Montreal Witness:

To the Editor of the Witness.

There is something wretchedly mean about some of the Conservative opportunists on this naval question. The same men, who a year ago, were watching eagerly for signs of lack of "loyalty" on the part of the Premier, and who, indeed, did subject every one of his utterances to false insinuations on this head, are now prepared to join in and help an anti-naval cry in the other provinces.

Sir,—The above extract from a widely-quoted editorial of the "Witness" demands an answer, and I have no doubt you will provide space for one if not too long. What you say carries weight, and what you have said above should not be allowed to pass, at any rate in its present general form, without remark. To me Sir Wilfrid Laurier has throughout played to the French-Canadian gallery. At the Imperial Conference he declined even to listen to a resolution that meant solidarity of empire in matters of defence. Any implication of empire he would not allow to pass. He made no suggestions. He simply came away. What followed? He begins a navy that he time and time again positively affirms is not under any declared obligation or implied understanding to take part in the British Empire's difficulties, and gives examples such as Egypt. This is not my idea of loyalty to the Empire, nor is it the Conservative idea. Mr. Bourassa is ten times more virulent, but not less subtle, and certainly not less dangerous than Sir Wilfrid. To talk of "Empire" and then refuse to incur any prearranged or settled obligation of Empire is too silly for words. The Conservatives of this district will fight the French-Canadian idea of holding aloof to a finish, whether it be that of Sir Wilfrid Laurier or that of Mr. Bourassa. If the country wants to start on a journey to independence, then at least give it a chance to say so, but in the name of all that is fair and manly, do not attempt to ram down our throats or to foist upon Canada a policy which she has had no say in endorsing or denouncing. The "Witness" is a paper that carries weight. Why? Because the people believe it is "candid," but I cannot consider any journal candid that would settle a debatable question like this one without an appeal to the country. Surely the "Witness" will not defend the present course. That the Conservatives are jeering Sir Wilfrid's troubles we will not deny. Who wouldn't? As the "Mail and Empire" says: "Bourassa charges Laurier with having adopted an imperialistic naval policy, and Laurier denies it," and that is a correct statement. Surely this state of affairs would make anybody laugh that had any sense of humor at all.

J. H. BURNHAM.

Peterborough.

The Witness says editorially:—

Mr. Burnham's attack on Sir Wilfrid Laurier's opportunism, whatever its merits as such, does not justify as it is intended to do the wobbling of certain Conservative organs, which after denouncing Sir Wilfrid for not being imperial in his policy, are, for the sake of getting their broken party together again, joining the Nationalists in their anti-imperial cry. There is no doubt that Sir Wilfrid's task in carrying any naval policy at all has necessarily been a double one, seeing that the country he was ruling was pulling violently in opposite directions. He has had, as Mr. Burnham puts it, to play to the French-Canadian gallery with protestations of Canadian autonomy, while going as far as apparently any leader could in the way of providing for imperial defence. In the navy bill he asserted autonomy to the very verge of independence in providing that the navy would not be used for imperial defence except with the approval of Parliament, while on the other hand he set forth the obvious proposition that when the Empire should be at war Canada would be at war. His Nationalist denouncers have not failed to show that if there was any call for our navy it would certainly respond to it with the support of the Canadian people. Mr. Borden, who at first fell in with this compromise between direct support and complete renunciation of allegiance, found that he could not rally his party upon it so he changed front and denounced it as anti-imperial, which in point of form and profession was no doubt a fair charge against it. Now we find not Mr. Borden, who is silent, but some of his adherents, oscillating to the opposite extreme and supporting the Bourassa anti-British attitude.

When the County Council met this morning, Messrs. Lang, Robertson, and Head, on behalf of the Peterborough Poultry Association, asked the Council for an increase on the grant made last year for the Winter Poultry Show.

EDISON STORAGE BATTERY AND WHAT IT MEANS

The Edison Storage Battery, requisitioned by the city to light up Charles street, has proved not only its efficiency, but has opened up also a new chapter in the Book of Public Power for the People.

Public power through the agency of the Edison Storage Battery can be taken to the home, to the hamlet, far from the madding crowd, days' journey from transmission lines and all their fancied dangers. A York township farmer can team his load of hay into the city and return home with a charged battery, that will run his threshing outfit and light his house.

With the same battery his boy can saw the cordwood, his wife milk the cows and the hired man run the cider mill.

This may seem levity, but it is the levity of the man who laughs last. Public power has been sneered at till its enemies have distorted their faces forever. The laughing time has come, but they have forgotten how to laugh. It is for the people, the common people, to laugh.

All that has been said for public power has come true. Believers in public power have been called dreamers. Behold their dreams have come true! And greater dreams than these will come true.

Hail public power! Hail Edison Storage Battery! Hail the men who have dreamt and who dream dreams—Toronto World.

NEWSY NOTES FROM O'ER THE SEA

(From Old Country Papers)

Battersea promises to be an interesting campaign ground at the next general election, Sir John Huntington having thrown down the gauntlet as the Conservative candidate to Mr. John Burns, President of the Local Government Board.

In the House of Commons on Tuesday night last Mr. Asquith announced that in the next Parliament the Government would propose legislation by which trade unions might include in their objects provisions for a fund for parliamentary and municipal action and representation, and kindred objects, the right to combine for such purposes, providing that no compulsion of any kind is put on members contributing to that fund.

The United Irish League has issued a long manifasto to the people of Ireland declaring that the general election will turn on the question of the Lords. It is signed by Messrs. Redmond and O'Connor and the Secretary, Mr. Cully.

An intimate friend of the present Spanish Premier in the course of conversation predicted that Spain would follow Portugal's lead in regard with dispensing with the Monarchy should the Cortes not accept the reform proposals laid down by Senor Canalejas.

Owing to the persistent and oft repeated rumors that he had contracted a morganatic marriage, the King, through his secretary, Sir Arthur Brigge, has issued emphatic denial.

Mr. R. Donald Brien has retired from the position which he has held for the past fourteen years of Chief Inspector of Mines for the Durham District. He has been connected with the Mines Department of the Home Office for thirty years.

A sensation has been created in North Shields and district by a peculiar epidemic described as an acute intestinal complaint. In one place alone, Percy Main, 100 cases were reported in one day. The symptoms are acute diarrhoea and sickness. As a rule the attack only lasts one day.

During a recent dispute between the Scotch fisher girls and their employer at Lovestoft it was stated in evidence that the girls often worked from 10 10 a.m. to 4 o'clock the next morning.

The Plymouth Board of Guardians have dismissed the foster mother at one of their homes for gross and persistent cruelty. It was stated that the foster mother, amongst other cruel acts, had compelled children to eat when they were sick, had stripped them and then thrashed them with a cane, and had put them into dark cupboards, and even into the cold cellar. The affair has caused a great sensation in the district.

In these days of feminist agitation one is accustomed to meet women engaged in work once thought to be exclusively mens, but a woman packers representative is something new. She exists, though, in the person of Soyue, hi is atw present engaged in addressing the English Packers and Seamen on behalf of the French packers on the need for international unity.

A relief fund has been started in connection with the failure of the Charring Cross Bank under the auspices of the London Depositors' Protection Committee. Already it amounts t oover £3,000. It is hoped that the bank may eventually pay 20 shillings on the pound.

G. OF G. F. SUNDAY

On Sunday next the Guild of Good Fellowship will have the opportunity of listening to J. H. Burnham, Esq., who will take for his subject "A Lay View of Religion." The large number of men who attend these meetings in the Princess Theatre week by week can be assured of an interesting and instructive afternoon, and a helpful discussion should be evoked.

A HORSE WAS KILLED AND A MAN SERIOUSLY HURT IN HAVELOCK COLLISION

(Special To The Review.)

Havelock, Nov. 21.—An exciting mix up took place at the east end of the town on Saturday evening, with the result that a couple of persons received injuries, and a horse belonging to Mr. Sanford Hubble, of Belmont, was instantly killed.

It appears the occupants of a couple of rigs were endeavoring to see who should get into town first, at any rate they were coming up Ottawa Street at a lively pace, the two horses in a line, while Mr. Hubble with a team, was proceeding eastward.

When the rigs arrived at the spot where Mr. Hubble was, they endeavored to turn out, but the turn was not sharp enough with the result that one of the horses crashed into Mr. Hubble's team, the shaft entering the breast of one horse and causing instant death. The occupant of the buggy was severely injured, having his tongue split and his nose fractured in the crash. His buggy was also well broken up. Mr. and Mrs. Hubble escaped with slight injuries. Mr. Hubble valued his horse at $175 and will endeavor to collect that amount from the other persons involved in the fracas.

BIBLE TEACHING SHOULD FORM PART OF PUBLIC SCHOOL EDUCATION

(Say Teachers at Meeting at St. John's)

At a special meeting of St. John's Sunday School teachers, held in the Guild Room last night, the whole situation of the system of Bible and Church teaching in Sunday Schools was discussed in view of the fact that next Sunday, Advent Sunday, is the first Sunday in the Anglican Church year.

The absence of the Bible as a basis of Public School education in our schools was deplored, one of the speakers declaring that the schools (apart from separate schools) were purely secular schools, and it was a hard task to try to do in the half or three quarters of an hour available in Sunday Schools, to impart a thorough knowledge of the Bible.

The introduction of the Bible at least as a text book, in our public schools, should be the aim of parents, who have the true interest of their children and country at heart.

Have you seen one of our Visiting List Records? They are a very necessary book and you will find it very valuable in keeping track of your calls and reception days. On sale at all bookstores or at the Review Office for 50 cents.

LINDSAY'S NEW INDUSTRY GONE UP THE SPOUT

D. B. Thomas the Enterprising Promoter Absconds With $900.00 Home Bank Funds

Following our announcement of yesterday, that the Lindsay new industries scheme had burst, and that the promoter was a defaulter, the Lindsay papers give full particulars. The town admits frankly that it was gold bricked by a clever adventurer. A warrant has been taken out for his arrest and detectives are on his trail. The Warder says:

The story of the coming of Mr. D. B. Thomas to Lindsay and the advent of the Thomas Shoe Company reads like a fairy tale. Just two weeks ago to-day a stallwart, well-appearing person giving the name of Mr. D. B. Thomas, came to Lindsay, and a few days later he had signed in black and white an agreement with the town to erect a large 175 x 55 ft. brick factory in Lindsay for the manufacture of boots and shoes and to also operate a glove factory. He would employ about three hundred hands all told. The gentleman in question came to Lindsay apparently flush with money, and only asked the town for a free site and a fixed assessment of $20,000 for ten years. The proposition looked real good, had all the earmarks of auguring well for the town in every way. The man himself impressed people as being a live American business man. It looked like a Christmas box, a bonanza. But, the awakening from the dream occurred yesterday afternoon, when Mr. Thomas left on the C. P. R. train, ostensibly for Toronto.

To Mr. F. F. Loosemore, manager of the Standard Bank, is due the credit of bringing the whole matter to a head before the would-be shoe manufacturer secured any considerable amount of funds. It appears that last Saturday, Mr. Loosemore, (Mr. Thomas' banker) became suspicious that Mr. Thomas was not the man of means that he laid claim to be, and he confided his suspicions to the officers of the Board of Trade, with the result that the wires were kept busy during the next few days. As will be seen by the telegrams, in another column of this issue, replies came from Cleveland to the effect that there was no Thomas Shoe Company in that city, nor any person by the name of D. B. Thomas or L. M. Thomas (his brother.) A rat was smelt and telegrams were sent to Port Credit, to find out the truth in the statement made by Mr. Thomas that he had a large farm there and was about to have a sale of farm stock and implements. Telegrams were sent to Winnipeg, where he stated he had a large warehouse. It took some time to get the replies, but when they did arrive, they were all of the same nature — to the effect that there was no Thomas Shoe Co., and no D. B. Thomas.

Yesterday Mr. Loosemore had a conversation with Mr. Thomas privately, and carefully laid the entire matter before him. Mr. Thomas was told that there were certain rumors abroad and that it would be better if he would produce at once the necessary credentials so as to put a stop to such rumors. It is stated that Mr. Thomas became ruffled, and the outcome was that Mr. Loosemore demanded the money, which had been advanced to Mr. Thomas. (some $500) and the latter paid the same with Home Bank Bills, asking that his name be taken off the books of the Standard Bank.

When Mr. Loosemore informed Mr. Thomas that he had communicated with the Mayor of Cleveland and others in regard to his factory at Cleveland, Mr. Thomas then stated that he had made a mistake, and that the factory in Cleveland was known as the Cleveland Shoe Company and not the Thomas Shoe Company.

Mr. Loosemore confided in the officers of the Board of Trade, and they immediately got in touch with Mr. A. B. McGill, manager of the Home Bank. Then it was learned that Mr Thomas had purchased a return ticket for Toronto, and was leaving on the afternoon C. P. R. train. Mr McGill without further ceremony, left for the station, and demanded his money, but was met with the answer that everything was all right and that he (Mr. Thomas) would return in the morning and settle the matter. It appears that Mr. Thomas secured the money from the Home Bank on a demand note. In the meantime Messrs. Foxall and Gillies of the Board of Trade also went to the station and had a talk with Mr. McGill and Mr. Thomas, but it was a short one owing to the fact that the train was already standing at the station. The result was Mr. McGill was advised to also board the train and to keep Mr. Thomas in sight all the time and if possible have him placed in custody at Toronto, failing a refund of the money, under a charge of false pretences. Mr McGill boarded the train but got off at the first station, Ops, and returned to town to swear out a warrant.

In the meantime Messrs. Foxall and Gillies got in touch with Mr. Thos. Stewart, and the head office of the Home Bank of Toronto was communicated with and it is understood that detectives were sent to the Union depot and also to Leaside to take care of Mr. Thomas when he got off the train. When the train reached Leaside Junction the man was not on board.

This morning Chief Vincent sent out notices broadcast to the police authorities, giving a description of Mr. Thomas' peculiarities, etc., and asking that he be placed under arrest immediately, the charge being that of securing money under false pretences.

The above is a brief synopsis of the case, but the manner in which Mr. Thomas operated while in town will prove interesting reading to Lindsay citizens. In another column of this paper will be found a list of people with whom Mr. Thomas transacted business. He is apparently one of the cleverest operators and proceeded in bold manner. To quote scripture, in John VII., and 24, the following will be found, "Judge not according to appearances," and this man, David Burton Thomas was deceiving as far as appearances are concerned. He was taken in and warmly welcomed because of the fact that he appeared to be genuine. From all outward appearances he was a man of means, and he impressed one as being a live American business man. He started in in real earnest and in three days had the agreement with the town signed in black and white and commenced to hire labourers right and left. A deal was put through with Mr. Geo H. Lindsay for the property and the latter gentleman was hired as foreman. Mr. Thomas was driven out to the brick yards and bought 100,000 brick; he also bought the brick in the old township hall at the cemetery. Labourers were advertised for, and responded in abundance. They were given employment. Excavation work was started on a new brick barn and a brick addition was built to the present planing mill, which was to be used as a glove factory. The uptown office over the Post printing office was furnished up with desks, telephone, carpet, chairs and other office fixtures. A telephone was also put in at the glove factory, cement and lime were purchased, and printer's ink was used extensively. A paymaster was advertised for, and two or three were hired for the position by Mr. Thomas, with good wages and promises of trips to Winnipeg. They were instructed not to say anything about being hired for a couple of weeks. A bookkeeper and stenographer was also engaged. A horse and rig were purchased. Mr. Thomas secured the option on several residential sites in the vicinity of his proposed factory, which, he stated, would be purchased by his employes. He secured a post-office box for his mail and sent out letters to fictitious addresses. In fact he "got in" on about everything that came his way. There is an old saying that the labourer is worthy of his hire, but in this case he will probably never receive his wages, for it is feared that Mr. David Burton Thomas will "not come back," to use the vernacular. Lindsay evidently entertained strangers unawares, but not angels, and although Mr. Thomas is out of sight for the time being, he is not out of mind, and will no doubt be brought back by the police to answer to the charge laid against him.

Just how much ahead of the game Mr. D. B. Thomas is cannot be ascertained, but it is understood that on Friday last he drew out $600 at the Home Bank, and on Saturday $300, giving as security various documents and cheques.

Of citizens and merchants who supplied goods a partial list is given below:

Mr. Frank Armstrong, liveryman, let Mr. Thomas have his horse for a few days, and was paid for the hire. Last week Mr. Thomas purchased the horse outright, and agreed to pay for it to-day. The horse was kept in Mr. Armstrong's barn, but neither the horse nor its keep were paid for.

Mr. Dougal Sinclair sold him a tan colored runabout buggy, which was retaken possession of this morning.

From Mr. J. Williamson a robe was purchased and paid for.

Flavelles, Limited, delivered some lime and cement for the new building, and, as far as is known, it has not been paid for.

Mr. R. Corley, for sand delivered at place of building, has a bill of about nine dollars, not paid.

Some lumber was delivered for the building, but as it was not used, it was taken back this morning to the Baker Lumber Co.

Some local teamsters were busily engaged hauling stone and brick, and will be out their wages, as well as a number of laborers, busily engaged in the foundation work.

The Warder and Post did considerable advertising and printing for the company in the way of newspaper ads, bills, etc.

No information is obtainable about the office affairs, but it is understood that the furniture was partly paid for, and a month's rent was paid in advance. Both office keys were left with the bookkeeper before leaving for Toronto. He communicated with a friend in Toronto yesterday with regard to the selling of the farm in Peel county. It was understood that he was going to Toronto and would return to-day.

MR. BORDEN SAYS PEOPLE SHOULD BE CONSULTED ON THE NAVY QUESTION

In His Amendment to the Reply to the Speech From the Throne Opposition Leader Says Mere Fact Liberals and Nationalists Have Taken Planks From Conservative Platform Does Not Alter Opposition's Stand.

Ottawa, Nov. 25.—Shortly before recess yesterday afternoon R. L. Borden made a spirited attack upon the Government, following the lines so far laid down in the debate on the address in reply to the speech from the throne. What Mr. Borden's speech on Monday lacked in vigor and definition was more than made up yesterday. To the accompaniment of applause he affirmed:

"We will retract no part of our policy because Nationalist or Liberal agrees with it," and declared that, before a permanent naval establishment was created, the people should have an opportunity to pass upon it.

Dr. Thomas Chisholm, later in the debate, made a significant reference to United States influence on the Railway Commission.

Taking advantage of the opportunity afforded by the introduction of the amendment of F. D. Monk (Conservative, Jacques Cartier), regretting that the Government gives no indication whatever to consult the people upon its naval policy," Mr. Borden spoke for the second time during the debate. Digressing for a moment from the issue presented in the Monk amendment, Mr. Borden proceeded to answer a few of the criticisms raised by Hugh Guthrie (South Wellington) on Wednesday, who had declared that Canadian imports from Great Britain last year amounted to $217,000,000, whereas the Government returns showed that this trade aggregated but $96,000,000.

Dealing with the controversy raised by Mr. Guthrie over the alleged ownership of public lands in the western provinces, the leader of the opposition said that the crown owns all lands included in the public domain, and the real issue was one of administration, not ownership. Mr. Guthrie had spoken of the value of these lands, and declared that they were only a matter of expense to the Federal Government. "That does not seem to be very much in harmony with the proposal of the Government of Canada to build the Hudson Bay Railway out of the proceeds of these lands," he argued.

Proceeding, Mr. Borden indicated that Mr. Beland had mistakenly quoted the resolution of the last session of Parliament, introduced by Conservatives, in its original form, in which Mr. Beland said that last year the policy of the Conservative party was in favor of a stated emergency contribution, and now it was in disregard to the resolution of 1908, to which that party had assented. The resolution amended in that very particular finally said that that policy of regularly or periodical contributions to the Imperial Treasury for naval and military purposes would not, as far as Canada is concerned, be the most satisfactory solution of the question of defence.

Answering some remarks by the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, Mr. Borden disclaimed any statement by him that Canada should send warships to Great Britain, but should not provide for the maintenance and equipment of the naval stations at Halifax and Esquimalt. Last session he had called the attention of Mr. Brodeur and Sir Frederick Borden to the unsatisfactory condition of the stations.

Comparing the statements made by the Government in the recent campaign with those which appeared in the Nationalist press, in which the Government argued that the establishing of a Canadian navy was a step towards independence, Mr. Borden did not characterize as being of a very high order.

Explaining sympathy with the subject Mr. Monk had in sight, Mr. Borden submitted the following amendment to that of Mr. Monk, the terms of which he thought would express the views desired with more satisfactory import:

"We beg to assure Your Excellency of the unalterable attachment and devotion of the people of Canada to the British crown, and of their desire and intention to fulfill all just responsibilties devolving upon this country as one of the nations of the Empire. We desire, however, to express our regret that Your Excellency's gracious speech gives no indication whatever of any intention on the part of Your Excellency's advisers to consult the people upon the naval policy of Canada."

Dr. Eugene Paquet (Conservative, L'Islet), who continued the debate, took exception to the statement made by the Government, that the cost of the navy would not exceed $15,000,000. He claimed it would in a very few years exceed double that amount.

Z. A. Rivet (Hochelaga), Dr. Thos. Chisholm, H. H. Miller and F. L. Fowke also spoke on the address.

F. D. Monk introduced his bill respecting co-operative credit societies. He explained that last session he and Lloyd Harris of Brantford had two bills before the House regarding co-operation. The banking and commerce committee threw out the bill regarding co-operation generally, but reported favorably the credit societies bill. Therefore he had brought it up again.

FIGHTING FOR McNULTY'S LIFE

Toronto, Nov. 25.—An effort to save from the scaffold Thomas McNulty, convicted at Barrie of murder in counselling Mary Dolan, his paramour, to murder their babe, was made at Osgoode Hall yesterday, when A. E. Creswicke appeared before the Court of Appeal. McNulty and the girl are under sentence of death on Dec. 14. J. T. Mulcahey appeared with Mr. Creswicke for the prisoner, Deputy Attorney-General Cartwright, with E. Bayly, K.C., appeared for the crown.

Mr. Creswicke objected to the admission and rejection of certain evidence, and to Justice Britton's charge to the jury. Especial objection was taken to evidence to show that the prisoner had been intimate with Mary Dolan for a period of four years prior to the murder.

ORGANIZING BANK CLERKS

Toronto, Nov. 25.—A movement is under way to organize the "Bank Clerks' Association of Canada," for mutual benefit, protection, improvement and advancement. It is claimed by the promoters that the association is not organized with any hostile intentions towards the banks, but would be of assistance to them in dealing with their employes. One of the conditions of membership is, that the membership shall be kept secret so long as desired. The membership fee is to be $10, of which $5, it is estimated, will be required for organizing expenses. Charles E. Waddell is acting as secretary.

Lost Overboard.

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Nov. 25.—V. Rogers, a young English deck hand on the steamer J. H. Plummer, was lost at 6 o'clock Wednesday morning, ten miles this side of Port Huron. Rogers was fixing a fender, and, against orders, went outside the rail, losing his grip. Captain Zealand says Rogers is the first man he ever lost during an experience of 22 years on the lakes.

WAS SHOT BY HIS FATHER

Ottawa, Nov. 25.—Gilbert Huneau was brought to a local hospital last night suffering from loss of blood, due to a gunshot wound he got while duck hunting near Vars. His father was with him at the time, and accidentally discharged his gun while pulling it over a log. The young man was shot in the arm, and the party set off for help, but got lost. They did not tie up the wound, which bled for two hours before help came. The man may recover.

Chatham, Nov. 25.—Infantile paralysis claimed another life in this city yesterday, when the little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Robinson succumbed.

MRS. SAGE WILL BUILD MODEL CITY

New York, Nov. 25.—The preliminary plans for the Russell Sage foundation, established by Mrs. Sage, as a memorial to her husband, for the establishment of a model suburban city, providing healthy and beautiful homes for persons of moderate means, were announced yesterday. Briefly the project is to utilize a tract of 142 acres of land at Forest Hills Gardens, Long Island, nine miles from this city, in laying out a town for 1,500 families. The initial financial expenditures for the purpose, it is announced.

Through yesterday's announcement it is made plain that the enterprise is not a charity, but is to be made self-supporting and yield a fair return on the investment. Its purpose, rather, is to enable persons in moderate circumstances to own their own homes at a minimum cost, while obtaining buildings of better construction than the average individual could erect, and amid surroundings and under restrictions that will make the little city an ideal residence place. The minimum cost of paying for a home there, it is estimated, will be $25 a month, including principal and interest.

LANSDOWNE RESOLUTION

It Carries in House of Lords Without a Division.

London, Nov. 25.—In the House of Lords Lord Lansdowne's reform resolutions carried without a division. The previous day's debate went in favor of the Oppositon, but yesterday Lord Chancellor Loreburn and Arthur John Morley contributed excellent speeches.

Lord Loreburn said that all the Lansdowne paraphernalia for joint sittings, a referendum, etc., would only be brought into existence when the Liberals were in power.

The Upper Chamber then adjourned until Monday, when dissolution of Parliament will take place. Thus the Government's veto bill has been ignored by the House of Lords.

A noticeable feature of the debate has been the number of Liberal peers who supported Lord Lansdowne's scheme and opposed the Government's veto bill.

In the lower chamber Right Hon. John Morley scornfully described the reform proposals as a schoolboy's sketch and expressed his amazement at the levity wherewith the Conservatives had committed themselves to vast, unknown changes.

There will be a flood of oratory to-day, Premier Asquith speaks at Hull and Lord Lansdowne at Glasgow. Most of the front bench men will also be on the platform.

Right Hon. John Burns, speaking at Battersea, declared that neither Lansdowne's mending nor Rosebery's blending would prevent the people bending the Lords to their will.

POWER FOR KINGSTON

Kingston, Nov. 25.—Ald. Elliott had a conference with Hon. Adam Beck, in which the latter said that the only chance for Kingston to get power from the Hydro-Electric Commission, would be to secure the co-operation of the nearby towns and villages. Mr. Beck suggested that the municipalities east and west of Kingston submit a referendum to the people, to see if they were in favor of giving the council authority to make a contract with the Hydro-Electric Commission.

The City Council will act on Ald Elliott's report.

ANOTHER TEST TO BE MADE

Montreal, Nov. 25.—It is now stated that the pro-navy demonstration in St. Johns on Saturday indicates that another test is to be made in this province as to public opinion on the popularity of the Ministerial measure, which brought such signal disaster to the administration in Drummond and Arthabaska.

The story goes in political circles that Recorder Dupuis will be retired on account of ill-health, and that Joe Demers, M.P., for St. Johns, Iberville, will be appointed in his place, and that one more county will be asked in the very near future to pronounce itself upon the wisdom of the Ministerial policy, the gathering in St. Johns on Saturday being but the prelude of the campaign.

The Government supporters claim that Mr. Bourassa will be absent, and that, without his oratory, the verdict of Drummond and Arthabaska cannot be repeated.

It is also said that other judicial appointments may be made in the near future, although the temper of the electorate just now will prevent members of Parliament in any great number from donning the ermine before the general election, but it is said that C. A. Wilson, M.P. for Laval, may be appointed to the position held by the late Judge Piche, and that the Government candidate in Laval will be Mr. David, who delievred such a very fine speech the night of the Laurier demonstration in the Monument Nationale.

CAR JUMPED THE TRACK ONE KILLED

Elmira, N.Y., Nov. 25.—Robert J. Round, principal of school No. 5 and one of Elmira's prominent educators, was almost instantly killed and two others were slightly injured, when a street car bearing a load of spectators to a football game jumped the track on a curve just outside of the football field yesterday afternoon. The car turned turtle and struck a telephone pole, throwing Prof. Round to one end of the car, where his head was crushed by a broken timber. There were 22 people in the car at the time, but all of the others escaped with slight bruises and cuts.

TWO YEARS FOR HIGHWAY ROBBERY

Toronto, Nov. 25.—William Pickens and Thomas Keenan were charged with assaulting and robbing George Blendo in "the ward" a few days ago. They had wrestled with him in the street and Pickens had taken $20 from him. Joseph Mandel followed Pickens and made him give up $15. Pickens has a record, and was sent to the Central for two years, while Keenan, who has a previously clean slate, goes on suspended sentence.

PLANS PAROLE BOARD

Hon. W. J. Hanna's Newest Scheme for Central Prison--Aylesworth Approves of the Idea.

Toronto, Nov. 25.—A parole board is to be constituted in connection with the new Central Prison at Guelph, and while the personnel of the board has been decided upon by the Provincial Secretary, he prefers not to make the names public until they have been consulted and have consented to act.

"The work will involve some time and attention, and does not carry with it remuneration beyond repayment of out-of-pocket expenses. The board, however, is most important to our whole prison scheme," said Hon. Mr. Hanna.

"I was glad to find, as I expected I would, that the Hon. Mr. Aylesworth, Minister of Justice, heartily approves of the board. Its duties will be to investigates the cases, on the ground, themselves, and to make such recommendations as they may see fit to the Department of Justice at Ottawa. Its duties do not involve in any sense a transfer of the function of the Department of Justice to the parole board, but simply leaves the Department to act on recommendations that the board may make. Should these recommendations be made only after the care and consideration that I expect will be given them, they will generally, no doubt, be adopted at Ottawa."

Tea Trade With Japan.

Ottawa, Nov. 25.—Iwao Neshi, commissioner of the Japanese Tea Traders' Association of Tokio, Japan, is in Canada and the States with the object of developing the tea trade with Japan, which has been seriously reduced with America.

"Ten years ago," he said, "we were exporting 10,000,000 pounds of tea to this continent; to-day the export business is only 5,000,000 pounds."

WANT TO SURRENDER

Brazilian Sailors Are Negotiating for an Amnesty.

Rio Janeiro, Nov. 25—The mutineers in the navy have sent a message to the Government offering to surrender.

The Senate has unanimously approved a proposition for amnesty to the rebels.

The Chamber of Deputies closed its meeting and adjourned until to-day with the question of amnesty for the mutineers still under discussion. It is thought that amnesty will be granted by a small majority.

The Sao Paulo and Balia have gone outside the bar, but the Minas Ceraes has taken up a position in the bay, opposite the Government palace.

These are the two battleships whose crews mutineered Wednesday. They turned their guns upon the loyal ships and also threw a few shells into the city. During the outbreak several officers were killed. The fighting ceased at night, but the revolters remained in possession of the two vessels.

It is officially stated that the trouble is not of a political character, and should be described as a mutiny among the sailors to enforce certain concessions from their officers, rather than a revolt against the administration of President Fonseca.

For some time the men of the navy had been agitating the matter of more pay. They also objected to the practice in the navy of inflicting corporal punishment upon insubordinate or otherwise offending sailors.

The matter came to a head Wednesday when the crews of two of the bigger warships turned upon their superiors. It is reported that the captain of the battleship Minas Ceraes was killed.

Following the fighting the mutineers made a formal demand for increased pay and the abolition of corporal punishment, and then withdrew to the outer harbor.

The battleship Sao Paulo and Minas Ceraes, both modern Dreadnoughts, were built in England for Brazil. They were in London at the time of the Portuguese uprising, the newly-elected Brazilian President, Marshal Hermes Fonseca, being on board one of them. It was these foreign warships which first offered a refuge to Manuel and his mother.

66 Year Old Lumberman Charged With Murder of Comrade of the Bush---Second Husband Injured Fatally Where First Was Killed

Special to the Review.

Toronto, Nov. 25.—A despatch from Blind River says William Carrol, employed at Waldiebros, Camp No. 4, 42 miles north of Blind River, was brought there last night and locked up in the provincial jail on the charge of murder. Carroll, who is 66 years old, and a giant physically, is alleged to have killed a fellow workman, Jos. Taillon, of Three Rivers, Que., by striking him over the head with an axe, on Tuesday night last. Taillon, whose skull was cut open by the blow, died Wednesday morning.

Carroll, after striking Taillon, struck at another man, but was seized and securely fastened with a rope before doing any further harm. He claims he killed the wrong man. He had suspected Harry Jones of stealing his clothing and mistook Taillon for him.

Belleville, Nov. 25. — William G. Brown, G.T.R. fireman, who was injured in the yard here yesterday afternoon, died during the night. Brown was 27 years of age and married. MEXICO IS MORE QUIET; OFFICIAL ADVICES SAY ONE TROUBLE CENTRE IS ACTIVE Revolutionists in Chihuahua Are Still Attacking Villages of Province, Declares Consul Diebold of Laredo, Texas—Francisco I. Madero is Wounded at Guerrero—Was Seen to Fall From His Horse.

Laredo, Texas, Nov. 25.—Mexican Consul Miguel E. Diebold, with headquarters in this city, received official advices yesterday which say that quiet has been restored at all points save one throughout the country. The exception cited is what is known as the Guerrero district, in the State of Chihuahua. In that section 200 revolutionists are still making attacks on small villages.

The consul asserts that they are not "revolutionists," but bandits, who are using the uprising as a pretext to rob and pillage.

Gen. Loureo Villar, stationed in Nuevo Lareda, Mexico, received official advices yesterday from all points embraced in his jurisdiction, extending from Matamoras to Colombia, 30 miles above Laredo, on the Mexican side of the river, and says everything is quiet along the border, and in the immediate interior.

The Mexican Government still maintains a cordon of troops along the border. On the American side of the river troops are on guard from Brownsville to Del Rio, and, according to information, this stretch of territory has been quiet all day.

Madero Wounded.

Eagle Pass, Texas, Nov. 25.—The Mexican commander in Ciudad Porfirio Diaz, last evening informed Customs Collector R. W. Dowe that Francisco I. Madero, claimant of the Presidency of Mexico, was badly wounded in a fight yesterday at Guerrero between his forces and 200 rurales and cavalry, commanded by Col. Fuentes and Lieut. Nicanor Valdez.

The Mexican commander said his advices came directly from a trustworthy citien of Guerrero, who arrived during the day. According to the report, Madero was leading his forces when federal troops engaged them. The engagement was fierce though brief.

Madero was seen to fall from his horse, and was carried to the rear as his force fell back. The federal troops are reported to have followed up their advantage, scattering the rebels, who took to their heels. The nature of Madero's wounds are unknown.

Madero's Appeal.

New York, Nov. 25.—A manifesto credited to and signed by Francisco I. Madero, who said that it was right to rise against the Government of President Diaz was made public here last night by friends and partisans of Madero, who said that it was received in this city yesterday. The manifesto is in Spanish, and it dated at San Luis Potosi, Mexico, Oct. 5, 1910. A footnote to its says it is for private circulation up to Nov. 15, and thereafter it is to be circulated broadcast.

"In their uninterrupted struggle for the triumph of the ideals of liberty and justice, people are compelled, at certain historical moments, to make the greatest sacrifices," is the way it begins.

"Our beloved fatherland has reached such a stage," it continues. "A despotism, such as we Mexicans have not been accustomed to bear since we secured our independence, oppresses us to such a degree that it has become intolerable."

It recites that a feeling of unrest has pervaded the republic because of this system of Government, and because of the efforts of Diaz to saddle upon the nation a successor of his own choice. This, it is declared, decided many Mexicans to undertake the struggle for a recovery of popular sovereignty and this anti-re-election national party was organized for the purpose. It named Madero and Dr. Francisco Pasque Gomez for the offices of President and Vice-President, and, the manifesto goes on, President Diaz, realizing the conditions, had Madero imprisoned before the elections. The elections took place, it is stated, the people being excluded from the meetings by violence, prisons were filled with independent citizens and shameful frauds occurred.

CHEAPER CABLES ARE IN SIGHT

London, Nov. 25.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—The Postmaster-General, speaking at a banquet in honor of Henniker Heaton, said the chief cable companies are ready to adopt a system of accepting deferred telegrams and non-urgent telegrams at half rate. It is now charged that no effort will be left unmade to carry into effect the reforms which he means to make for drawing closer the bonds of imperial unity.

Gave Himself Up.

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Nov. 25.—Peter Napolitaine, Italian, who stabbed his wife Sunday night in a fit of jealousy, upon returning home and finding her entertaining male friends, and who afterwards escaped to the woods, has given himself up and is confined at the jail. BERNIER IN THE ARTIC

Ottawa, Nov. 25.—A report was received yesterday at the Marine Department from Capt. J. E. Bernier in command of the Artic, the Government steamer which has gone to the Artic regions to assert Canadian authority.

It is dated Albert Harbor, Aug. 12, when the first cache will be built. The captain will establish a second cache at Beechy Island and a small depot at Winter Harbor.

The significance of Capt. Bernier's report is that he is evidently trying to navigate the northwest passage, and, if Herschell's Island, which is at the mouth of the Mackenzie River, is reached, he will have attained the object in view.

Highway Robber Sentenced.

North Bay, Nov. 25.—Judge Valin in the district court sentenced Alfred Bozanzon of Cobalt to three years in the Kingston Penitentiary for highway robbery in holding up and robbing Thomas Tunney, shift boss of King Edward mine. ACTIVITY IN THE WEST

The following reference to western politics by the Toronto News will be of as much interest here on account of the personal remarks as because of the political information: — "During the last few weeks Mr. Haultain has addressed a series of meetings in Northern Saskatchewan. He seems to have been received with genuine enthusiasm. It has been manifest for some time that the Federal Government is losing ground in the Western country, and that Mr. Haultain is making distinct headway in Saskatchewan. The leader of the Saskatchewan Opposition is as good a type of public man as ever served the Canadian people, and thousands of Canadians in the older Provinces will rejoice to see see him restored to power in his own Province, as they would be glad to have his more active co-operation in Federal affairs."

MORE EVIDENCE

All the evidence against the house fly has not been heard. New witnesses crop up repeatedly and the force of the accumulated evidence should awaken the authorities—if they are only sleeping. Mrs. Huestis gave an address before the Toronto Local Council of Women on a trip across the continent and in its report of her address the Mail and Empire says:

"Mrs. Huestis, in the course of her address, remarked upon the appalling prevalence of typhoid throughout all the western provinces, and referred to the high infantile morality rate. She said she believed the house fly was largely the cause of the widespread epidemic, because they were harassed by swarms of them throughout the whole country. The problem of dealing effectively with the eradication of the house fly she believed would have to be made a national one."

Whether the problem becomes a national one or not, at present it is a municipal one. The municipal authorities can deal with it by abolishing the breeding grounds. Soon another year will be here, soon another spring will come, and again the breeding grounds will flourish in the back yards unless the authorities take action.

Is there yet any hope of that?

Is there?

CHICKENS COMING HOME

Assuredly the Nationalist tempest which is buffeting the Premier is of his own raising. Listen to the testimony of Mr. T. Chase, Casgrain, ex-M.P.—

"During the campaign of June, 1896, while I was a candidate for the House of Commons in the county of Montmorency, I was held up to public execration as the supporter of Tupper, Angers and Taillon, who had spent a million dollars in purchasing rifles to re-arm the militia, and in almost the same words as those which were being used in the articles in 'Le Soir,' Mr. Brodeur's organ in Montreal, I was asked 'Why do you want us to fight for England?' Let the electors remember that the high and mighty Conservative leaders who purchased those guns will not go to the wars, but that your children will be sent to Africa and Asia, from whence they shall never return. Vote for Laurier and his candidates if you want the country to enjoy its present tranquility, and do not wish to expose yourselves to be sent some fine morning to distant lands, leaving behind you your wives and your children, and everything that is dear to you.' —'Le Soir' 18th June, 1896.

"In the House of Commons at the preceding session, Mr. Brodeur, the present Minister of Marine and Fisheries, had sounded the note in his speech which is reported in Hansard, and in which considering the purchase of these rifles, he said in substance—

"'I always believes that if war was waged against Canada we would be able to count on the protection of England, that the only re... for the maintenance of the colonial tie was that if we had any international difficulties we could count upon the help of England. I regret to learn that in the present instance the government has purchased these rifles, not from a private concern, but from the British Government itself, and that the latter is demanding the price thereof. Is this the protection that we were promised by England? Is this the position which is made to us as a colony?

LOST THROUGH WEAKNESS

Sir Wilfrid Laurier referred in the House to the Conservatives in the usual term of "His Majesty's loyal Opposition," but his ire has been aroused to such an extent against the Nationalists that he called them a disloyal Opposition. And yet the Nationalists are an outgrowth of the Liberal teaching and tergiversation. If the Premier had taken a straightforward and courageous course on the question of Maritime defence he would have had the support of those who believe that Canada should do its part as a portion of the Empire, and he would have had the respect of all. But he was afraid to do so; he tried a compromise course that only resulted in a large expenditure without providing protection and that naturally did not please any party except those who would follow the Government in any course. What adds to the chagrin of the Liberals is that their former speeches and pamphlets, in which they attacked the Conservatives for Imperialism are now quoted against them. They stirred up racial feelings and prejudices in Quebec, and it galls them to find that these prejudices are now turned against themselves and by their own former friends.

Once when the Conservatives were in office the Liberals aroused racial prejudices to white heat in Quebec. Riel had been tried and sentenced, and the Liberal papers and orators shrieked against the carrying out of the sentence. Apparently the province was seething with excitement and a weak government, such as that now in office, would have been frightened into an attempt to compromise. But the Conservatives were not of that class. They followed a straight course, and the leaders of that party from Quebec faced the storm the Liberals had raised among their fellow-countrymen with courage, depending upon the result that a fair presentation of the facts would have. They were not disappointed and found that the manly course won. If Sir Wilfrid had been able to follow this precedent, and had courageously dealt with the Maritime defence problem, he would have saved himself from the position in which he and his party now find themselves. But he was hampered by two things—by the fact that not only in 1885, but also in 1896, his party had appealed to the racial prejudices of Quebec, and by the fact that he feared those prejudices which had been aroused by themselves. They had denounced militarism, charged that the Conservatives were leading the country into Imperialism, which was something very bad, and that there was grave danger from these English leaders. Afraid to adopt a courageous policy, and feeling compelled to do something, the Government followed a weak course hoping to please all. But they were not able to hold their own followers. Mr Bourassa and Mr. Lavergne, both Liberals, opposed them—and the strongest weapons the Nationalists had were the former Liberal campaign appeals.

It is too late now for the Government to remedy its mistake, and the anger which the Premier has shown, and the foolish charges being made against the Conservatives of encouraging an anti-British agitation, are only evidences of their deep chagrin because Sir Wilfrid has lost his hold upon Quebec, and has lost it entirely through his own fault.

LIBERAL PARTY IS SICK

Listen to the confession of a Liberal M. L. A., Mr. Godfrey Langlois in his paper, Le Pays.

'Our party has met with a crushing defeat, and we must have the courage to avow it. All will admit that our party is not was it was formerly, for the Liberals have certainly weakened during the past few years. A great number of partizans have raided the depository of the Government, spoilers have wrung from the ministry everything in their power for their own personal account instead of remaining at their post as good soldiers of duty and progress. As a matter of fact our party is gravely sick. In the minds of a great number of people Liberalism has given place to ministerialism. Instead of the grand principles of a former day, we find keen appetites and personal aspirations impregnating the present entourage of Sir Wilfrid Laurier. There are too many people, in fact, who are trying to get rich at the expense of the country. There are too many advocates in Parliament who wish to don the ermine. Our Liberal newspaper instead of being allies of the Government, have been playing the role of servile domestics, and power has been used for the material satisfaction and advantages which it brings.

We are both disabled and disorganized. In Montreal, for instance, we have no leaders, no centre for rallying purposes, no centre for political action, and no cohesion in the ranks. As a matter of fact there is nothing at all except general dissatisfaction. We frequently hear of an election committee, but all this is a myth, for since fifteen years it is centered in the pocket of Senator Dandurand.

In short, whoever is Premier of Canada after the next general election Sir Wilfrid Laurier will not.

HOW ABOUT PETERBOROUGH

The placing of the supervision of the hypochlorite water treatment under Dr. Law, Medical Health Inspector, is entirely proper; but it is not fair to Dr. Law and his associates to have them undertake this and the other work of their department, without the assistance of a Board of Health. All other civic departments have more or less close connection with some council committee. Seeing the Board of Health has only met once in the past six months, in spite of many urgent calls, it seems up to the city council to either amend it or end it—in its present form at least. —Ottawa Journal.

NEW DEVICE TO STOP SNORING

New York, Nov. 20.—Countless thousands who have been compelled to lie awake nights and listen to olfactory organ recitals by sleeping relatives and neighbors will rejoice, to learn of an invention which promises to make snoring a lost art.

"The Anti-Snorer" is the name of the little device which guarantees to make the most noisy face soundproof. It is designed to fit any set of features.

The new invention, made by a Brooklyn man, is a great advance over the custom of slipping a clothespin on the nose of the offending sleeper. It consists of a strong piece of netting which incases the chin—after the face has been folded up—and which is held in place by straps buttoning across the top and behind the head.

This neat little arrangement prevents the lower section of the face from coming loose during slumber and shuts off the leak through which most of the noise escapes. The device can be tightened or loosened to suit the comfort of the wearer, but it cannot be adjusted without help. This will make married women a bit cautious about buying it because of a fear that their husbands would refuse to come to their assistance when they wanted to remove the halter.

"We've sold quite a few of them," said the inventor, "and they have given splendid satisfaction. They will keep any lower jaw in place. Most snorers perform with their chins resting on their chests, but this does away with that. It is practically a halter or chin strap.

"I have just got a testimonial from a woman in Yonkers. She said her husband used to look like a subway entrance when he was asleep and that he threw off a line of disturbances that sounded like a live stock train in a smash-up, but that one of these contrivances had completely sterilized his snooze. The first night he wore it he was so quiet she had to wake him up to make sure he wasn't dead."

BLOOD-POISONING FROM CUT FINGER

Serious Condition Relieved by Zam-Buk.

Mr. Jas. Davey, of 786 Ellice Avenue, Winnipeg, says: "A few months since I was cured of a poisoned finger through the timely use of Zam-Buk. I cut a deep gash across the knuckle on the first finger of the right hand, in opening a lobster can one evening. I suffered at the time with the soreness and pain, but had no idea it would become a serious would. However, in about two days I was greatly alarmed, as my whole hand and arm to the elbow became inflamed, and the finger was much discolored, showing signs of blood-poisoning. The pain was dreadful and I was forced to leave off my work and go home.

"The wound on the knuckle had been poisoned through the dust and dirt about the furnaces and boilers. I then decided to start the Zam-Buk treatment, and having first bathed the cut, I applied the healing balm. It soothed the pain almost instantly, and by the next day there was a great improvement. In a week's time, through perseverence with Zam-Buk, a complete cure was brought about."

Scores of similar cases could be quoted, and the wisest precaution is to keep a box of Zam-Buk handy and apply it immediately a cut, or burn, or bruise is sustained.

Zam-Buk will also be found a sure cure for cold sores, chapped hands, frost bite, ulcers, eczema, blood-poison, varicose sores, piles, scalp sores, ringworm, inflamed patches, babies' eruptions and chapped places, cuts, burns, bruises and skin injuries generally. All druggists and stores sell at 50c. box, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, upon receipt of price. Refuse imitations and substitutes.

Trinidd's Asphalt Lake.

One of the natural wonders of the world is the great pitch lake of Trinidad, the most southerly island of the British West Indies. Paying better than any gold or diamond mine, the lake is locally known as "The Black Diamond." An American syndicate handles most of this natural asphalt under a concession from the Government, and from one corner of the lake obtains 800 tons every day. The material is shipped in enormous quantities to America, England and all parts of the world, where it is in demand for street making.

Close to the village of La Brea, the lake is inspected every year by numerous visitors to the island, for it is a curiosity not to be seen elsewhere. The lake lies 138 feet above the sea and is three miles in circumference. How deep it is nobody knows, for though many attempts have been made to fathom it, all have failed. To all appearances this is indeed the "bottomless pit."

Scientists describe the pitch substance as "bituminous matter floating on the surface of fresh water." For three feet down the pitch is solid enough to bear the weight of men and allow of their digging it up in great slabs with pickaxe and spade. Under that hard substance is liquid pitch cast up by subterranean fires, and under that again is the fresh water of the lake.

Though the syndicate secures several freight train loads every day, next morning when the army of negroes return to their work the surface is level and hard as before. An inexhaustible supply is therefore at hand without any preliminary expense. Alongside the lake is a light railway with iron cars that are run down to the sea—only a short distance—and there the asphalt is transferred to ships. From this remarkable industry the Government of the island receives a substantial part of its revenue every year. Columbus discovered Trinidad in 1498.

Fell In With the Argument.

"The leading question," said the colonel, "is the financial one."

"Right," replied the major, "and I was just about to ask you to add $5 to that $10 I borrowed from you yesterday."—Uncle Remus' Magazine.

"The easiest thing I know of," says the philosopher of folly, "is to begin to save up some money next month." —Cleveland Leader.

Easily Explained.

"They have to admit in the old world," said a New York theatrical man, "that we've got them beaten on every count. Talk to them about the matter and they can only quibble.

"'Oh, yes,' said an English banker to me the other day, 'you've got a great country, the greatest country in the world, there's no denying that.'

"Then he gave a nasty laugh.

"'But look at your fires,' he said. 'Your terrible fires are a disgrace to mankind.'

"'Oh, our fires,' said I, 'are due to the friction caused by our rapid growth.'"

Chapter 16

Orde's bank account, in spite of his laughing assertion to Newmark, contained some $1,100. After a brief but comprehensive tour of inspection over all the works then forward he drew a hundred of this and announced to Newmark that business would take him away for about two weeks.

At Redding, whither he went to pack his little sole leather trunk, he told Grandma Orde the same thing. She came and stood by the man leaning over the trunk.

"Speak to her, Jack," said she quietly. "She cares for you."

Orde looked up in astonishment, but he did not pretend to deny the implied accusation as to his destination.

"Why, mother," he cried, "she's only seen me three or four times! It's absurd—yet."

"I know," nodded Grandma Orde wisely; "I know. But you mark my words—she cares for you."

She placed her hand for an instant on his shoulder and went away. The Ordes were not a demonstrative people.

The journey to New York was at that time very long and disagreeable, but Orde bore it with his accustomed stoicism. He had visited the metropolis before, so it was not unfamiliar to him. He made his way to a small hotel just off Broadway.

Orde ate, dressed and set out afoot in search of Miss Bishop's address. He arrived in front of the house a little past 8 o'clock and after a moment's hesitation mounted the steps and rang the bell.

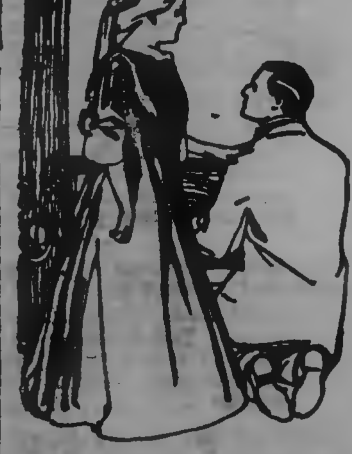
The door swung silently back to frame an impressive manservant dressed in livery. To Orde's inquiry he stated that Miss Bishop had gone out to the theater. The young man left his name and a message of regret. At this the footman, with an irony so subtle as to be quite lost on Orde, demanded a card. Orde scribbled a line in his notebook, tore it out, folded it and left it.

He retired early and arose early, as had become his habit. At the office the clerk handed him a note:

My Dear Mr. Orde—I was so sorry to miss you that evening because of a stupid play. Come around as early as you can tomorrow morning. I shall expect you. Sincerely yours,

CARROLL BISHOP.

Orde glanced at the clock, which pointed to 7. He breakfasted and started leisurely in the direction of West Ninth street. He walked slowly. At University place he was seized with a panic and hurried rapidly to his destination. The door was answered by the same man who had opened it the night before. To Orde's inquiry he stated, with great brevity, that Miss Bishop was not yet visible and prepared to close the door.



"Speak to her, Jack. She cares for you."

"You are mistaken," said Orde. "I have an engagement with Miss Bishop. Tell her Mr. Orde is here."

The man departed, leaving Orde standing in the gloomy hall. That young man, however, parted the curtains leading into a parlor and sat down in a spindle legged chair.

For quite three quarters of an hour he waited without hearing any other indications of life than muffled sounds. Occasionally he shifted his position, but cautiously, as though he feared to awaken some one. Three oil portraits stared at him with all the reserved aloofness of their painted eyes. He began to doubt whether the man had announced him at all.

Then, breaking the stillness with almost startling abruptness, he heard a clear, high voice saying something at the top of the stairs outside. A rhythmical swish of skirts, punctuated by the light pat-pat of a girl tripping downstairs, brought him to his feet. A moment later the curtains parted, and she entered, holding out her hand.

He stood holding her hand, suddenly unable to say a word, looking at her hungrily. A flood of emotion, of which he had had no prevision, swelled up within him to fill his throat.

"It was good of you to come so promptly," said she. "I'm so anxious to hear all about the dear people at Redding."

The sounds in the next room increased in volume, as though several people must have entered that apartment. In a moment or so the curtains to the hall parted to frame the servant.

"Mrs. Bishop wishes to know, miss," said that functionary, "if you're not coming to breakfast."

Orde sprang to his feet.

"Haven't you had your breakfast yet?" he cried, conscience stricken.

"Didn't you gather the fact that I'm just up?" she mocked him. "I assure you it doesn't matter. The family has just come down."

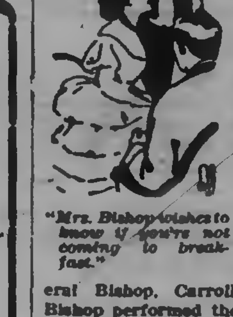
"But," cried Orde, "I wasn't here until 9 o'clock. I thought, of course, you'd be around. I'm mighty sorry"—

"Oh, la, la!" she cried, cutting him short.

Orde was for taking his leave, but this she would not have.

"You must meet my family," she negatived, "for if you're here for so short a time we want to see something of you. Come right out now."

Orde thereupon followed her down a narrow, dark hall to a door that opened slantwise into the dining room. With her back to the bow window sat a woman well beyond middle age, but with evidently some pretensions to youth. She was tall, quick in movement. Dark rings below her eyes attested either a nervous disease, a hysterical temperament or both. Immediately at her left sat a boy of about fourteen years of age, his face a curious contradiction between a naturally frank and open expression and a growing sullenness. Next him stood a vacant chair, evidently for Miss Bishop. Opposite lolled a young man, holding a newspaper in one hand and a coffee cup in the other. He was very handsome, with a drooping black mustache, dark eyes, underlashes almost too luxuriant and a long, oval face, dark in complexion and a trifle sardonic in expression. The vis-a-vis to Mrs. Bishop was the gray haired General Bishop, Carroll's father. Miss Bishop performed the necessary introductions. General Bishop arose and grasped his hand.



"Mrs. Bishop wishes to know if you're not coming to breakfast."

Gerald Bishop cast an ironically amused glance across at Orde, and the mother would barely notice the sunburned, ungainly looking riverman.

Carroll Bishop appeared quite unconscious of an atmosphere which seemed to Orde strained, but sank into her place at the table and unfolded her napkin. The silent butler drew forward a chair for Orde and stood looking impassively in Mrs. Bishop's direction.

"You will have some breakfast with us?" she inquired. "No? A cup of coffee at least?"

She began to manipulate the coffeepot without paying the slightest attention to Orde's disclaimer. The general puffed out his cheeks and coughed a bit in embarrassment.

"A good cup of coffee is never amiss to an old campaigner," he said to Orde. "It's as good as a full meal in a pinch. I remember when I was a major in the Eleventh, down near the City of Mexico, in '48, the time Hardy's command was so nearly wiped out by that viaduct"— He half turned toward Orde, his face lighting up, his fingers reaching for the fork with which, after the custom of old soldiers, to trace the chart of his reminiscences.

Mrs. Bishop rattled her cup and saucer with an uncontrollably nervous jerk of her slender body. "Spare us, father," she said brusquely. "Will you have another cup of coffee?"

The old gentleman looked a trifle bewildered, but subsided meekly.

Orde, overwhelmed by embarrassment, discovered that none of the others had paid the incident the slightest attention. Only on the lips of Gerald Bishop he surprised a fine, detached smile. The butler brought a letter for Mrs. Bishop. The contents seemed to vex her.

She began to abuse the writer, a seamstress, for a delay in the finishing of an altar cloth and then transferred the blame to her children. It was a painful test for Orde. He finally rose. "I must be going," said he.

"Well," Carroll conceded, "I suppose I'd better see if I can't help mother out. But you'll come in again. Come and dine with us this evening. Mother will be delighted."

Mrs. Bishop departed from the room. Orde bowed to the other occupants of the table.

Orde was immediately joined on the street by young Mr. Bishop, most correctly appointed.

"Going anywhere in particular?" he inquired. "Let's go up the avenue, then. Everybody will be out."

They walked for some distance.

"Your father was in the Mexican war?" said Orde.

"He was a most distinguished officer."

"What command had he in the civil war? I fooled around that a little myself."

"My father resigned from the army in '54," replied Gerald.

"That was too bad; just before the chance for more service," said Orde.

"Army life was incompatible with my mother's temperament," stated Gerald. "You are from Redding, of course. My sister is very enthusiastic about the place. You are in business there?"

Orde gave the latter a succinct idea of the sort of operations in which he was interested.

"And you," he said at last—"I suppose you're either a broker or lawyer."

"I am neither," stated Gerald. "I have sufficient income to make business unnecessary. There is plenty to occupy one's time. I have my clubs, my gymnasium, my horse and my friends. That is my gymnasium," pointing to a building on a side street. "Won't you come in with me? I am due now for my practice."

Chapter 17

It became difficult for Orde to understand the home life of the Bishops. Everybody seemed a victim to the caprice of the mother, who became hysterical at the slightest provocation and was fond of contracting imaginary ills in order to gain added attention.

The day after his walk with Gerald Bishop, Orde and Carroll had arranged for a walk. But Mrs. Bishop met them at the door and demanded that her daughter stay at home to attend to several trivial matters. But the evening turned out very well fortunately. Orde could not have stood much more. They had the parlor quite to themselves. Carroll took the cover from the tall harp, and, leaning her cheek against it, she played dreamily for a half hour. Her arms were bare. Her soft bosom pressed against the broad sounding board. There is about the tones of a harp well played something luminous, like the rich, warm sunlight. When the girl muted the strings at last it seemed to Orde as though all at once the room had perceptibly darkened. He took his leave finally, his spirit soothed and restored.

Tranquillity was not for long, however. Orde's visits were naturally as frequent as possible. To them almost instantly Mrs. Bishop opposed the strong and intuitive jealousy of egotism. She had as yet no fears as to the young man's intentions, but instinctively she felt an influence that opposed her own supreme dominance.

The week passed. Orde saw as much as he could of Miss Bishop. Gerald himself seemed to be much occupied. Precisely at 11 every morning, however, he appeared at the gymnasium for his practice, and in this Orde dropped into the habit of joining him. When the young men first stripped in each other's presence they eyed each other with a secret surprise. Gerald's slender body was gracefully muscled. His bones were small, but his flesh was hard. Orde had earned from the river the torso of an ancient athlete. The round, full arch of his chest was topped by a mass of clean cut muscles. Across his back, beneath the smooth skin, the muscles rippled and ridged and dimpled with every movement. The abdomen showed the peculiar corrugation of the very strong man. His arms were magnificent.

"Murphy," called Gerald, "come here."

A very hairy, thickset, bullet headed man, the type of semiprofessional "handlers," appeared.

"Do you think you could down this fellow?" asked Gerald.

Murphy looked Orde over critically.

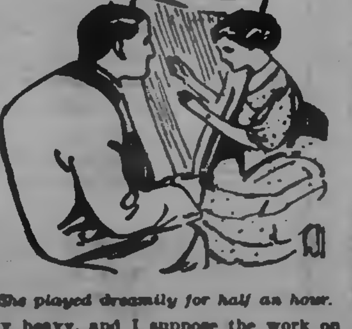
"Who ye ringin' in on me?" he inquired.

"This is a friend of mine," said Gerald severely. "Ever box much?" Gerald asked Orde.

"Box?" Orde laughed. "Never had time for that sort of thing. Had the gloves on a few times."

"Where did you get your training, sir?" asked the handler.

"My training," repeated Orde, puzzled. "Oh, I see! I was always pretty heavy, and I suppose the work on the river keeps a man in pretty good shape."



She played dreamily for half an hour.

Gerald's langor vanished. "Put on the gloves with Murphy," he suggested, "will you? I'd like to see you two at it."

"Surely," agreed Orde good naturedly. "I'm not much good at it, but I'd just as soon try."

Gerald rang a bell, and to the boy who answered he said:

"Run over to the club and find Mr. Winslow, Mr. Clark and whoever else is in the smoking room and tell them from me to come over to the gymnasium. Tell them there's some fun on."

Gerald managed a word apart with the trainer.

"Can you do him, Murphy," he whispered.

"Sure!" said the handler. "Them kind's always as slow as dray horses. They gets muscle bound."

"Give it to him," said Gerald, "but don't kill him. He's a friend of mine."

Then he stepped back, the same joy in his soul that inspires a riverman when he encounters a high banker or a cowboy as he watches the tenderfoot about to climb the broncho.

The first round was sharp.

Orde had stood like a rock, his feet planted to the floor, while Murphy had circled around him, hitting at will. Orde hit back, but without landing. Nevertheless Murphy when questioned apart did not seem satisfied.

"The man's pig iron," said he. "I punched him plenty hard enough, and it didn't seem to jar him."

The gallery at one end of the running track had by now half filled with interested spectators.

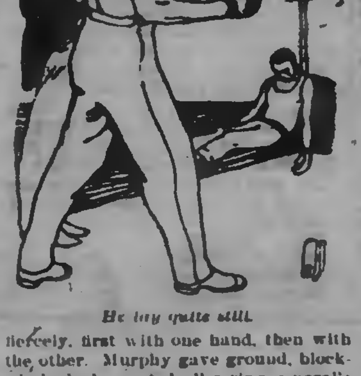
"Time!" called Gerald for round 2.

Murphy went in more viciously, aiming and measuring his blows accurately. Orde stood as before, hitting back at the elusive Murphy, but without much effect, his feet never stirring. The handler landed almost at will, but without apparent damage. He grew ugly—finally lost his head.

"Well, if ye will have it!" he muttered and aimed what was intended as a knockout blow.

Gerald uttered a half cry of warning. Orde's head snapped back; but, to the surprise of every one, the punch had no other effect, and a quick exchange of infighting sent Murphy staggering back from the encounter. The smile disappeared from Orde's face, and his eye had calmed.

Orde turned back to his antagonist. The latter advanced once more, his bullet head sunk between his shoulders, his little eyes twinkling. Like a tiger Orde sprang forward, hitting out fiercely, first with one hand, then with the other. Murphy gave ground, blocked, ducked, exerted all a ring general's skill either to stop or avoid the rush



He lay quite still.

AN EXCHANGE OF GREETINGS

In connection with Miss Estelle Stead's entry on a stage career, it is reputed that her father, Wm. Thomas Stead once said that he would rather see a daughter of his dead than see her on the stage. This remark, which he has now modified, recalls the apocryphal story in regard to the evangelist Moody and his daughter, during Moody and Sankey's campaign in Glasgow. Miss Moody, it was said, attended the theatre one evening instead of going to her father's meeting. When she came to the breakfast table, Mr. Moody said, "Good morning, daughter of Satan!" and the young lady responded "Good morning, father!"—Toronto Star.

Y.M.C.A. NOTES

The male quartette of the Y.M.C.A. will sing two selections at the meeting in the Crystal Theatre next Sunday night. They will sing "The Wayside Cross" and "The King's Business." Those who heard this quartette last Sunday night will want to hear it again. The two selections chosen by the quartette are two of the best that can be found. The latter was made famous by the Torrey-Alexander Mission, and the former has been a favorite for many years.

There is no address at this meeting. Most of the time is spent in the singing of familiar hymns, just as is done in many of the homes of the city. A selection from the Bible is read and the message comes through the hymns or the reading.

The usual Sunday Morning Bible Study Club will be held in the association parlor on Sunday morning at 9.30. All young men are invited to attend this class. The lesson will be from the sixth chapter of John.

A Teacher Training Class will be organized in the near future. Teachers, watch for the notice of the organization meeting. The class will study "Normal Lessons for Sunday School Teachers" in the first half hour and the lesson for the following Sunday in the second half. The general secretary of the Y.M.C.A. will be pleased to hear from all who are interested in the organisation of such a training class.

REV. ROBT. POGUE ON WANNAMAKER

The "Fowl Supper" in the town hall on Monday night, under the auspices of the Presbyterian church, was a grand success.

Rev. Robt. Pogue, of Peterborough, was the chief attraction on the programme, delivering an address on the life of John Wannamaker, the great merchant prince of Philadelphia, also recognized as one of the world's best authorities on Sunday school work. Mr. Pogue formerly taught the famous Bible class originally started by Wannamaker, and full of a boundless love and admiration for the founder, spoke most eloquently on that gentleman's life's attainments and business principles. To the merchants present he pointed out the necessity of advertising, and the most liberal use of printer's ink—one of Wannamaker's greatest aids to financial success, and probably the pioneer in the advertising field in America.—Havelock Standard.

BUBBLETTES FROM THE BUBBLE; AFTERMATH OF LINDSAY'S FALL

Lindsay Warder Says Local Efforts to Land Industry Were Very Strenuous—How Thomas Worked His Game in the West—Town Only Out Lawyer's Fees.

Following the Review's exclusive information from Lindsay yesterday in regard to the disappearance of D. B. Thomas, further particulars are published to-day:—

Below will be found the stand Peterborough took in regard to the "one man industry" as reported in Lindsay:—

LEGS PULLED HERE.

Lindsay Warder.—The town of Lindsay will no doubt get the 'Haw-haw, I told you so,' 'Poor Lindsay,' etc., from residents of Peterborough, who are so prone to hurl jibes at this town, but if all said about Peterborough's frantic efforts to land the Thomas Shoe Company were printed the publishing of the same would fill a book of many pages.

With envious eyes Peterborough read the accounts that Lindsay had secured the new industry, and the green eyed monster began to get in its work. The members of the Peterborough Board of Trade, the Industrial Commissioner and the town councillors were rounded up and many impromptu meetings were held. The outcome was that Industrial Commissioner Duggan, Ald. Bradburn and others were sent hot foot to Lindsay to interview Mr. Thomas, and, if necessary, purloin the business to the Electric City. It is even stated that they offered to pay all the expenses already incurred by Mr. Thomas in locating in Lindsay, give him a bonus, a free site, fixed assessment, and in fact, anything he asked, if he would pull up stakes, and, like the Arab, fold up his tent and steal away in the night to their city.

A Warder man happened to be in Peterborough yesterday on business, and was told that the citizens of that city and certain members of the Board of Trade and the City Council were censoring the Industrial Commissioner for not landing the entire business. In fact it apparently looked as if Mr. Duggan, the Industrial Commissioner, would surely lose his job. Peterborough was overly-anxious to secure the concern.

Then came the aftermath, the bursting of the inflated proposition, and once more Peterboroughites are happy.

HIS GAME ELSEWHERE.

That Mr. David Barton Thomas, recently of Lindsay, and Mr. D. B. Thompson, recently of Portage La Prairie, are one is practically proven by information which the Daily Warder prints below, and that the same individual is one of the cleverest of the "Get rich quick" financiers is also established. He had big ideas and operated on a large scale, not only in Lindsay, but in other towns, but fortunately the activity displayed by the officers of the Lindsay Board of Trade and the local manager of the Standard Bank in ferreting Mr. Thomas' past records has saved the town of Lindsay and citizens considerable capital.

In a letter published below, which was received this morning by Mr. James Boxall, president of the Lindsay Board of Trade, it will be seen that Mr. D. B. Thomas operated in Portage La Prairie, and with more success than he did in Lindsay. The secretary of the Portage La Prairie Board of Trade, first noticed the news item in the Toronto dailies about the company locating in Lindsay, and at once surmised that it was the same concern as the Thomson Shoe Company, which had located in Portage La Prairie. He at once decided to communicate with Lindsay and put the Board of Trade here wise, the letter being dated Nov. 21. The pity is that a telegram was not forwarded for in such a case Mr. Thomas would not have evaded the minions of the law in Lindsay.

The object of the Lindsay Board of Trade in having the news item inserted in the provincial dailies was for the purpose of acquainting other towns and cities of the location of the factory in Lindsay, and giving notice for them to keep their hands off. The local officers of the Board of Trade also kept the wires hot from the start with telegrams to various places, and fortunately secured enough to head Mr. Thomas off in his underhand operations.

CHANGED HIS NAME.

It will be noticed that the fake promoter simply changed his name slightly, and had the factory in Duluth instead of Cleveland. The description of Mr. Thomson printed below tallies exactly with that of Mr. Thomas, the promoter who sojourned in Lindsay. The letter is as follows:

The President, the Board of Trade,
Lindsay, Ont.:

Dear Sir,—As I have noticed in various papers that your city is negotiating with a firm who propose to locate a shoe factory in Lindsay, I feel it my duty to write you regarding a proposition which came before the City Council and Board of Trade in Portage La Prairie.

About five weeks ago a man who represented himself to be D. B. Thomson, a member of the firm of Thomson Bros., shoe manufacturers, of Duluth, Minn., came to Portage La Prairie and stated to some chance acquaintance that he was looking for a location for a shoe factory which would employ from 250 to 300 persons.

It goes without saying that it was not long until (the so-called) Mr. Thomson was in the hands of men who were looking after the city's interests. After looking at numerous sites and going carefully into the advantages offered by this city, Mr. Thomas decided that this was the most favorable location for the industry, and got into touch with his brother (?) who was supposed to be in Brandon at the time. Being instructed by his brother to go ahead Mr. Thomas, through a firm of Winnipeg solicitors, made a proposition which was taken up at a special meeting of the city council and it was decided to submit to the ratepayers a by-law granting a fixed assessment to the firm of Thomson Brothers for a term of twenty years. This by-law was to have been voted on Nov. 15th, and if nothing had happened would have carried almost unanimously.

CAUGHT ON IN TIME.

As is usual in such cases we were quietly looking up Mr. Thomson's record and financial standing, and some days before the by-law was to be voted on, learned that there never had been a firm known as Thomson Brothers, doing business in Duluth, in fact could find no trace of such a firm in the United States. Under these conditions and as a local land owner, had gone to considerable expense to secure options on lots which were part of the property chosen as building site; it was decided to withdraw the by-law until such time as Mr. Thomson fulfilled some of his many obligations.

Just previous to the time the by-law was withdrawn, Mr. Thomson left the city for two or three days and has never been heard of since. I have learned that before leaving he bought a horse and buggy, which he sold for considerably less than they cost him. The buggy is not paid for yet and is considered a loss to the man who sold it.

D. B. Thomson was a man about five feet eleven inches in height, heavy chested and would weigh in the neighborhood of 200 pounds. He was dark-skinned and of a rather Jewish cast, clean shaven, with dark eyes.

A SPORT.

He claimed to be a teetotaler, and did not smoke, was of a sporty disposition, and claimed to be quite a horseman, in fact he was driving most of his time during the three weeks he was in the city.

I do not wish for a moment to throw cold water on any prospects your city may have and sincerely hope that D. B. Thomas, of Cleveland, and D. B. Thomson, of Duluth, are entirely different men, but the names and propositions offered Portage La Prairie and Lindsay were so similar, that I thought it advisable to write you, in all confidence.

Yours truly,
(Sgd.) H. G. COLEMAN,
Sec. B. of T.

P. S.—Mr. Thomson made quite a number of purchases in the way of real estate, house, etc., on condition that our by-law passed; but I understand that they were only verbal and that in no case did he make a cash deposit.—H. G. C.

Portage La Prairie, Nov. 21st, 1910.

TRENTON WAS CAREFUL.

Did Mr. D. B. Thomas, the absconding boot and shoe factory promoter, endeavored to work the same game in the town of Trenton?

Has he worked other towns in a like manner?

Yesterday a travelling representative of the Busy Man's Magazine, was in Lindsay, and in conversation with a teller in one of the local banks, the traveller stated that he had been in Trenton not so very long ago and that a man answering to the same description as D. B. Thomas visited the town and laid before the board of trade and town council a proposition similar to the one that he put before the people of Lindsay. Busy Man's representative further stated that to the inhabitants of Trenton the proposition looked like a good one, and was entertained. However, the councillors got busy and commenced enquiring into the past records of the man the same as the Lindsay Board of Trade officers did, and the Trenton people received like telegrams as did the Lindsay people, namely, to the effect that no such a person could be located high or low, nor no such factory. They threw up the matter, and the factory promoter (supposed to be Mr. Thomas) cleared out.

The question naturally arises is the factory promoter who endeavored to get established at Trenton, and Mr. D. B. Thomas, recently of Lindsay, the same person? The traveller referred to above gave the information as actual facts.

A BOX OF CIGARS.

A few days or so before the bursting of the shoe factory bubble, Mr. Thomas walked into the Warder office and stated that when he visited his office the other morning he was surprised to find on his desk a nice box of cigars—ten centers. Accompanying them, he stated, was a note which read like this:

"Wishing you good luck in your boot and shoe factory in Lindsay."

A Warder man was invited to sample one in the box the next time he happened to be at the office of the Thomas Shoe Co.

Where did the cigars come from?

OUT LAWYER'S FEES.

The town of Lindsay will be out merely the solicitor's fees for drawing up the agreement and preparing the by-law. Mr. Geo. H. Lindsay, it is stated, is not liable for the wages of the men employed by Mr. Thomas, as Mr. Lindsay was simply the foreman over the work. However, work had been commenced in the planing mill cutting out the window frames, door sashes, etc., for the boot and shoe factory.

A TYPEWRITER DEAL.

Another interesting incident in connection with the sojourn of Mr. D. B. Thomas in Lindsay came to light this morning, when Mr. F. C. Smythe, representing the Oliver Typewriter Co., of Chicago, arrived and took possession of the typewriter in the office of the Thomas Shoe Co., over the Post building. It clicked tunefully for a few days, but the ticker has now been removed.

Mr. Smythe was in town one day last week, and hearing that the shoe factory was to locate in Lindsay, he waited on Mr. Thomas and had no difficulty in securing an order for eight typewriters, and as the same were wanted at once, a wire was sent to the office in Chicago to send the same at once. In the meantime Mr. Smythe left a sample machine with Mr. Thomas to use until the new ones arrived. The representative was heartily thanked and a friendly conversation followed in which the would-be boot and shoe magnate stated that in their office at Cleveland they used twenty-seven typewriters.

The order looked good to the Oliver man, but as can be readily surmised, the order has since been cancelled and the fine sample machine has been removed.

WEST END A. C. AT HOME

The West End Athletic Club was at home at the Conservatory of Music Hall last evening, and the occasion was a highly successful one.

The attendance was over two hundred, and all entered heartily in the program of the evening. The decorations were of club pennants and bunting. Music for dancing was supplied by the orchestra of the 57th band, each member being in uniform. Coleman Bros. catered the supper, which was of a high order of merit, and the committee who were in charge of the arrangements are deserving of much credit for the able manner in which they performed their duties.

SPORTING COMMENT

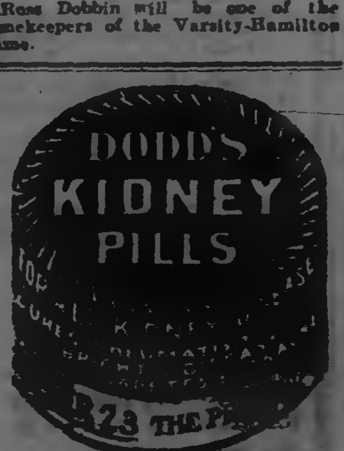
Let us hope that the last of this proposition has been heard, for Peterborough will not have a professional team.

Notwithstanding this statement from the 'Review' Peterborough did wire and asked to be included in the schedule! However, none of the towns are begging for Peterborough, and the league will go along quite well without them.

This from the Port Hope Guide. Now, what's the use of getting mad and making unkind remarks.

To-day's Mail and Empire shows a cut of Pete Campbell, quarterback of Varsity II., and who will be carried by the senior team to-morrow for the game at Hamilton.

Ross Dobbin will be one of the timekeepers of the Varsity-Hamilton game.



RUGBY
VARSITY'S GRIDIRON HEROES

JACK LAJOIE

Jack Lajoie is one of the sturdiest players on the line-up. He was on the right wing for Varsity on Saturday. He is 27 years old, weighs 150 and measures 5 ft. 11 in. He is in his 4th year medicine. He was a member of last year's champions and was on the seconds in 1908, and with Ottawa College previous to that. His home is in Cobourg.

"REDDY" DIXON

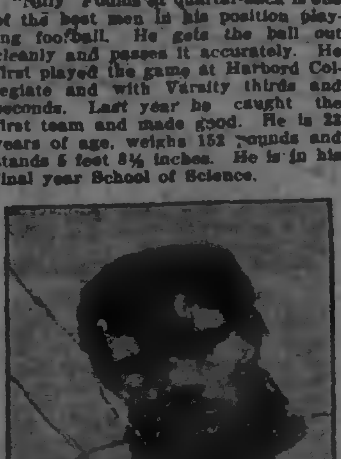
Dixon, full-back of the Varsity team, is 20 years old, stands 5 feet 7 inches and weighs 168 pounds. He played on the U. of T. seniors when he was 17, and learned the game with the Hamilton Alerts, and under Ben Simpson at Hamilton Collegiate. He is one of the surest men on loose balls in the business.

GEORGE KINGSTON

George Kingston, who played right wing on Saturday, is a Toronto boy. He started rugby at Upper Canada College, and has played three years on the senior University team. He is 24 years old, is 5 feet 9 inches tall, and weighs 166 lbs. He is in his fourth year at the School of Practical Science.

W. FOULDS

"Billy" Foulds at quarter-back is one of the best men in his position playing football. He gets the ball out cleanly and passes it accurately. He first played the game at Harbord Collegiate and with Varsity thirds and seconds. Last year he caught the first team and made good. He is 22 years of age, weighs 152 pounds and stands 5 feet 8½ inches. He is in his final year School of Science.



FRANK PARK

Frank Park weighs 156 lbs., is 5 ft. 6 in. tall and 22 years old. He is an all-round athlete. He was captain of the Varsity and Young Toronto lacrosse team. He commenced rugby at the Jarvis Collegiate and has played on Varsity first three years. He is one of the best flying tackles in the business.

HARNESS HORSE GOSSIP

The winter colony at Memphis will be about the biggest ever.

Minor Heir paced the slow half-mile track at El Paso, Tex., in 2:06½.

General Watts, 3, 2:06¾, will probably be returned to the races next year.

The giant pacing gelding Waverly, 2:04¼, by Oratorio, 2:13, has passed to the ownership of a road driver of Sunbury, Pa.

Advertiser, 2:15¼, is the only horse that has sired a yearling 2:30 trotter —Abdell, 2:23—and the dam of another—Dandy G., 2:29¼.

From the reports that continue to come in, the prospect is that Mr. Geers' winter stable at Memphis will be one of the largest that he has ever had.

Albia, the sister of Vice Commodore, 2:11, now carries a record of 2:10¾. At one time during the season the mare could easily have been marked below 2:10.

Two trotters of names so similar that at times they have become so confused have been racing this year. One is Sheeney, the roan gelding by Wiggins, 2:19¼, who has taken a record of 2:15½; the other Cheeney, the three-year-old filly by Medium Line, 2:10, who has acquired a mark of 2:16¼.

BASKETBALL

In the Intermediate Basketball League the Pirates defeated the Burglars in a fast game by a score of 18 to 4, the feature of the game being the shooting of Taylor for the Pirates. The second game went to the Maple Leafs by default. The Shamrocks did not put in an appearance. The Leafs defeated a picked team 8 to 6.

SHRUBB WON RACE

Boston, Nov. 24.—Before a crowd numbering 4,000, Alfred Shrubb, the crack runner of England, defeated Tom Longboat, the great Indian Marathon runner of Canada, by three-quarters of a lap in their fifteen-mile race at Mechanics' Building to-night.

It was like a procession from the time that George V. Brown fired them off the mark to begin the long journey over a track with no raised corners, 13 1-2 laps to the mile, and resined. The flat corners bothered the Indian considerably. Several times he nearly slipped down.

When he came to the corners he always slowed down, no matter at what pace he was going. Shrubb was not bothered a bit by the corners, for he was well used to running on such tracks, and he made the corners without having to slacken his speed.

Both runners looked to be in good condition for such a task, and both finished in fairly good shape, except that Shrubb's feet were blistered some and they gave him some trouble after the fourth mile. It was not till the last mile that there appeared to be anything the matter with the Englishman. His time was 1 hour 28 minutes, 8 3-5 seconds.

Getting That French Shrug

Mr. Ross Dobbin, of this city, has been elected president of the Science Athletic Association Basketball League at Varsity.

Mr. Dobbin has been honored by being chosen one of the three representatives for Varsity on the Varsity-Laval University debate at Quebec in January.

Apropos of this "Varsity," the college paper, says:

"Already Dobbin is trying to cultivate a French shrug, in order that he will feel more at home as the representative to the Laval dinner. Anyone with a good French story will oblige by sending same to Dobb, along with a correct and sufficient key."

WRESTLING

"HACK" FOOLED BY ZYBSCO

Buffalo, N.Y., Nov. 24.—George Hackenschmidt, the Russian Lion, tonight met Zybsco, the Pole, in a handicap match, the conditions of which required the Russian to throw his opponent twice in an hour. He failed. It was a repetition of the match of a year ago between Frank Gotch and Zybsco. Hackenschmidt was always back of his man, but could never get his shoulders to the mat.

Alpha Beisnger, a Montreal painter, who fell from a scaffold and lay unconscious for four days, died in the hospital.

George Perry, a St. Thomas carpenter, lost a foot when he stumbled and stepped under the wheels of a switching engine.

HACK BACK IN AMERICA

Russian Wrestler Starts on Tour—Hopes to Regain Laurels Lost to Frank Gotch

George Hackenschmidt, the famous Russian wrestler, is once more in America and will meet the best of the mat artists before he returns.

Last week in Montreal he won from De Riaz in a handicap match.

This is Hackenschmidt's first appearance in America since his memorable match with Frank Gotch a few years ago, in which he failed to throw Gotch and went back across the Atlantic to England, thoroughly disgusted with American wrestling methods, and forfeiting the world's championship title to the American.

No other description better fits Hackenschmidt than the statement that he is an enlarged edition of Fred Beell, the Wisconsin wrestler. Where Beell weighs about 168 pounds, the weight of Hackenschmidt is around 220 pounds. Every move the big foreigner makes is a counterpart of the little American grappler, whom Hackenschmidt designates as the fastest man in the world. Hack's development is almost identical with Beell's, and there is even a facial resemblance.

Other points of similarity will also become known. For example, Hackenschmidt, like Beell, evolves holds. This is always what distinguishes the superior grappler. These locks would perhaps be of little value to other men, but they are suited to the build, the development and the manner of thought of those who invent them.

Considering Hack's size his speed is something to marvel at. He is aggressive and has the same brand of tenacity that made Evan Lewis famous in his day. The long, supple muscles of the foreign star, the course of his movements, all tell of his wonderful condition. George Hackenschmidt is very modest, and is not given to boasting of his many years of splendid mat success. He doesn't attempt to bedim the victory of Frank Gotch over him, but he does explain that in the past two years he has learned much more of America and this continent's ways. There is a whole lot in this, considering that a large part of his professional career has been spent in the music halls of London. He has been dealing with English manners and American requirements.

GEORGE HACKENSCHMIDT

If Frank Gotch really has retired, as he says he has, it is difficult to see where an opponent is to be found for Hackenschmidt, who can give him a hard contest. Relative to both Frank Gotch and George Hackenschmidt there seems to be no disposition on the part of either one to criticize the other. There is no reason to speculate on what the outcome of another match would be. It is well known that Frank Gotch has wanted to retire for more than two years. Frank has grown weary of the padded circle, and he has wisely settled down to enjoy the fruits of his long and wonderfully successful career on the mat.

On the other hand, Hackenschmidt is nomadic. He likes the business of appearing in public, and he enjoys travel. Hackenschmidt has started on his tour through the east, and for nearly five months he will fill engagements throughout the United States.

RING GOSSIP

Digger Stanley, the bantam-weight champion of England, is coming to America to try his luck. He will go after Johnny Coulon. Digger fights best at 116 pounds.

Kid Goodman, the Boston fighter, who announced his retirement from the ring after being knocked out by Knockout Brown a few weeks ago, has changed his mind about quitting the game.

Fighters over in England threaten to band together and refuse to box at the clubs unless the managers increase the amount of money for their services. They claim they should get more money than they have been getting, as the sums they receive hardly pay them for the beatings they get in their battles.

Billy Papke, who is now in Australia, will soon invade England under the patronage of Hugh McIntosh, and it is probable that the Illinois Cyclone will get a chance at Tom Thomas, the British star. McIntosh will try to force Thomas to sign, and if he refuses the British press is likely to make things uncomfortable for the alleged champion.

[illegible], the Empire City Farm's famous Transylvania winner of 1895, who died last year, left but few living foals behind her. One of them was a three-year-old filly by McKinney, 1:11¼, which at Lexington was given a record of 2:29¼. It is believed that she will mature into a very fast mare.

"Love, Laughter and Life"

"AND THE WORLD LAUGHS WITH YOU"

"It's hard to be cheerful when everything's going wrong," my chum said to me one day. She overlooked the fact that when she thought everything was going wrong, she only helped things along that way by losing her temper. The fact is she could have set matters right many a time by a timely smile.

And you, with a good disposition, I believe a woman should use good tact. It would never do to laugh at all times. A woman must know intuitively when to smile and when not to.

But the cultivation of an even temper is the surest road to happiness.

And an even temper is one that will not be ruffled by trifles.

Bring your will power to bear when little things annoy and you'll find that being of a sunny nature becomes a habit.

Then when real sorrows do cross your path, you'll find it so much easier to be cheerful.

On the other hand, if you have a tendency to look on the dark side of things, that, too, will grow into a habit.

And you'll find that the world's sympathy is not for the wailer. Men, women, and children, too, shun the complainers of this world.

Why.

Because it is part of the nature of us to seek cheerfulness.

We Canadians are always ready to risk the infection of a laugh.

So be sunny!

The more cheerful you are the more people will like you. And the more people like you,—well, the more cheerful you'll be—if you're a natural woman.

So I say: Be sunny!

And if it's hard sometimes to be sunny, be as sunny as you can!

CLEANING HINTS

Paste This Up Some Place for Future Reference

To Clean Holland Blinds.—Holland blinds which are only slightly soiled can be easily dry-cleaned at home. Remove the blind and roller from the brackets, and brush the blinds on both sides with a soft brush. Spread the blind on the kitchen table and rub it hard with the white part of a thick slice of stale bread.

Soiled Paint.—The mistake is often made of cleaning white painted lintels, doors, and wainscoting with hot soap and water. The heat of the water has the effect of destroying the outer coating of varnish, the result being that the paint soon wears away. For this reason a lather should be made with hot water, and the suds then allowed to cool till just lukewarm, when it may be safely used.

Cleaning Delicate Fabrics. — The most delicate fabric can be successfully washed at home by using soap jelly with a little ammonia and rainwater. A clear day must be chosen for this operation, and colored articles must be dried in the shade to prevent fading.

Oak Furniture.—Dust the furniture thoroughly, wash it well with vinegar and water, and, when dry, rub them with a little paraffin oil on a cloth, and finally polish with a clean duster. It will then look like new.

A Good Cleaner. — Looking-glasses may be cleaned by first washing the glass all over with clean lukewarm aquasuds and a sponge. When dry, rub it bright with a buckskin and a little prepared chalk finely powdered.

Soot on Carpets.—If soot is spilled on the carpet it should never be wiped up with a cloth, for it is sure to smear over the carpet and make an ugly mark difficult to remove. Scatter salt thickly over the place and sweep it and the soot together. By so doing the soot will come up quite cleanly without leaving any mark at all.

Wicker Furniture.—This should be cleaned with a strong solution of salt and water. Scrub it well, and rinse with fresh water. Soap should not be used to wicker as it encourages a yellow tint. When very shabby-looking, wicker may be "refreshed" by being painted. The paint used should be well mixed and thinned to the proper consistency. If too thick it is apt to remain on the wicker in lumps.

Dirty Ceilings.—When a whitewashed ceiling has become blackened, apply a layer of starch and water to it with a piece of soft flannel. Allow it to dry, then brush off lightly with a brush. The blackness will have disappeared, leaving no marks whatever.

Damp Floors and Carpets.—Moth-eaten carpets are often the result of covering the floors while they are still damp after scrubbing. The floor should be absolutely dry before the carpet is relaid, and it is a good plan to sprinkle a little insect powder between the carpet and the boards by way of protection.

Very often a good dress is thought to be completely spoilt by rain spots, but they can be easily removed by ironing with a fairly hot iron on the wrong side.

HOW TO SAVE GAS

Some Timely Hints for the Users of Gas Stoves

So many people use gas stoves in these days for cooking—and who shall limit their convenience?—that a few little hints about them, some of which may tend to reduce the gas bill, will perhaps be welcome. Gas may be saved by remembering that matches are cheap. It costs less to light up again than to have even the smallest lights going. If you turn the gas off, too a little before the cooking is done you will find the heat already generated will usually be enough to do what you need. When anything you have been cooking has reached boiling point, turn the gas just low enough to keep up that heat. This will be less than that required to bring it to this point; the rest will be wasted if you keep it at the first heat. If you buy an iron sheeting large enough to cover, say, two burners of your gas stove you will find by lighting only one of these there will be enough heat presently to make the part of the sheet over the other burner hot enough to warm plates, or to keep anything you have cooked warm for serving.

After using a gas stove leave the oven open a little while to allow the gas to escape. This prevents "sweating" and rusting.

PORK AND BEANS

How to Prepare this Dish, a Favorite With Many

Pork is a favorite meat with a large majority, though there are, of course, many persons, other than Jews, who will not eat pork. Everyone knows that care should be taken to buy meat from a reliable butcher, and it is equally well known that half-cooked pork is little better than poison. Americans, as a rule, dislike mutton, and eat very freely of pork—pork and beans being a national dish, just as pumpkin pie is. The New England pork and beans is standard fare, I am told. It is cooked in this way: Parboil a piece of the middling of salt pork, first scoring the skin. Allow a pound of pork to a quart of dried beans, which must be soaked overnight in lukewarm water. In the morning put them to boil in cold water, and when they are soft, drain off the water, and put the beans in a deep dish, or into an earthen jar; half bury the pork in the middle of the beans, adding a very little warm water, and bake a nice brown color. Some cooks put a dessert-spoonful of moist sugar with the beans before placing them in the

BAKED HERRING

This is a very nice dish for tea in summer, and costs very little. Cut off the heads and clean as many herrings as you require. For every six fish allow two bay leaves, six cloves, a little allspice, and one small blade of mace. Put the herrings in a pie-dish, and between each layer sprinkle over the above ingredients; add a little cayenne pepper, salt, and sufficient vinegar to fill the dish. Bake in a moderate oven for half an hour, then set away to get cold.

SAID FAREWELL

Members of the Belmont Club to the number of thirty gathered at Coleman's last evening, to say farewell to two of their members, Messrs. Gordon Miller and T. J. Hanna, both of whom have been valuable members of the club.

Mr. Miller, who has filled the office of 2nd vice-president, left this morning for Victoria, B.C., and Mr. Hanna, an executive officer, leaves in the course of a week for Buffalo.

A choice and dainty spread first occupied the attention of the gathering, and at the conclusion the Hon. President of the club, Mr. J. T. C. Lang, acted as chairman, during the progress of a short toast list.

Speeches were made by the chairman and Messrs. W. Martin, W. Davidson, N. Greenhalgh and W. T. Belleghem, in which the two departing members were referred to in the warmest terms.

Each replied, thanking the club for the honor done them and giving their assurance that the pleasant associations with the Belmont Club would not soon be forgotten.

Mr. and Mrs. Holly Shepard were guests of the club. Mr. Shepard made a happy response to a toast in their honor.

Scotch Couple Would Come

Mr. G. H. Howson received a communication to-day stating that a Scotch couple wished to come out. Both are experienced in hotel work. Each can pay their passage out, and will have the necessary landing money. They are of good appearance and have good references.

THE MILITARY SYSTEM THAT CANADA SHOULD HAVE

It is a pity that General Sir John French was not called upon to express an expert opinion on universal military service as applied to Canada. The volunteer system at present in force is no doubt susceptible of improvement and if the General's recommendations are followed it will be improved. Nevertheless, it can never be as good as the system they have had in Switzerland for many years, or the system they have recently adopted in Australia and New Zealand, where every man and boy will taught to defend his country, should need arrive. Of our military system, it might be said, as it was said of a revolver in the Western States in the old days: "You may not need it for years; but when you do need it you will need it badly." Our volunteers have been needed more than once in Canada's history, and they have risen to the occasion; but to say that the present system is as good as the Australian system is to say that 10,000 trained men and a patriotic mob of 990,000 is as good as an army of a million trained men.

THE OLD CANADIAN SYSTEM.

Lieut.-Col. Hamilton Merritt delivered an address on Monday night, in which he called attention to the fact that for a century and more there was practically universal military service in Canada, designed by the French to protect themselves from the Indians, and later applied with admirable effect to the defence of Quebec against the Americans. He believed that the dropping of the old Canadian militia laws and the substitution of the volunteer system was a deplorable blunder. Not only was the effective fighting force of the country weakened, but the discipline and self-respect of the men was impaired. The work of defending this country ceased to be every man's job and was left to the paid regulars, or the few enthusiasts who enrolled themselves as volunteers. While as late as 1867 the militia was forced to turn out once a year on muster day, the old manly, martial spirit had departed, and only the fear of a fine caused the men to appear. When their names were called, such responses as "Sitting on the fence" or "Chewing a quid of tobacco" were often returned. The militia had become a mob.

WHAT WE MIGHT HAVE HAD.

Col. Merritt finds an analogy between the old Canadian system and the new Australian system, and then he figures out what it would mean if Canada to-day had the Australian system in force. "We should have here in Canada 322 areas, 552 (staff corps) permanent instructional officers (graduates of the military college), and some 600 warrant and N.C.O.'s (instead of the 4,834 officers and men in the permanent corps as at present.) There would be a peace establishment of some 120,000 trained fighting men (from our 2,000,000 males of a fighting age in Canada), 536 guns, and a cost in the seventh year (including cost of military college) of less than fourteen million dollars." The war establishment, of course, would be the total male population of Canada of fighting age, estimated at 2,000,000. The fact that Canada could at a crisis put 2,000,000 men in the field, armed with modern weapons, accustomed to their use, and to military manoeuvring, would be the best guarantee on earth that there would never arise need of their services.

TRIVIAL THINGS LEAD TO ARREST OF CRIMINALS

Criminals are very forgetful persons. The famous series of frauds on the Bank of England by the Benson brothers a generation ago was terminated by the fact that the forgers of the drafts forgot to date the last one presented. This almost incredible blunder led to the breakup of the most dangerous brand of criminals England has ever known, says a writer in Pearson's Weekly.

An uneasy conscience gave away Dougal, the Moat Farm murderer. He had presented a forged cheque on his victim's banking account, and the clerk, not recognizing the signature, asked Dougal to wait a few moments. Convinced that it was a trick to detain him until the police were summoned, the wretched man bolted; and that set in motion a train of suspicions that eventually resulted in the discovery of one of the most cold blooded crimes in the history of murder.

Any detective of experience will tell you that most criminals are fools, which is a good thing in the long roll for those who business it is to detect crime.

There was a case in the Midlands nearly twenty years ago which concerned a man who spent many days planning a woman's murder and disguising his own personality so that nobody could ever suspect him of the crime. Then, when his plans were completed, he lured the unfortunate woman to a lonely place and murdered her.

He was more than astonished to find himself under arrest within an hour of the discovery of the dead body, but it was no wonderful feat of detection after all. In his haste and confusion the murderer had actually left his visiting card on his victim's body.

A child's penny toy lantern directly led to the hanging of Fowler and Milsom for the Muswell Hill murder. It was a lucky clue, that finding of the child whose toy had been left behind in the house with the body of Mr. Smith, the murdered man. It was the property of Fowler's little brother, and the child's innocent pleasure at the recovery of his lantern was the culminating stroke in one of the greatest tragedies of the last fifty years.

Clothes played a prominent part in the Yarmouth Beach murder case of nine years ago, but it was a boot lace that finally fastened the crime on Bennett. That trivial boot lace had been used to strangle the poor woman who died where so many had found holiday happiness; and those who attended the trial will never forget the profound impression created by the production of the string.

Upon a certain occasion a prominent merchant and railway magnate was talking in the street to a friend of his, who was eminent in the service of the State. A young man passed by, and to the astonishment of the former, his companion nodded, pleasantly to him. "Who was that?" asked the railway magnate thinking he might have been mistaken.

"Oh, that is Mr. Blank, the well known philanthropist."

Now the gentleman of the railways knew Mr. Blank by another name and in a different capacity, in fact he was one of the clerks in the employ of the the railway of which he was a director. Examination of the books confirmed the worst suspicions, for the pseudo philanthropist had been robbing his employers for years in order to gratify his ambition to get into society. Had it not been for that casual recognition in public the company would have lost thousands more than it did.

That was a trivial chance of course, but it was more than this which caused Mrs. Dyer, the Reading baby farmer, to wrap one of the babies of her victims in a piece of brown paper bearing her own name and address. It broke away and floated to the top of the river.

Half an addressed envelope convicted a murderer twenty years ago, although the name and address had nothing to do with him except that the other half was found in his bedroom. A piece of a file convicted a murderer named Orrock, now forgotten, but whose crime excited great interest some years ago. Armed with half of a common file the police tracked him down after one of the finest feats of detective work in the annals of detection.

Theatrical magazines and papers are not read alone by the profession, as they used to be, but to a large extent by the general public as well. The people are interested in news of plays and players to a greater degree than ever before.

For a crisp, readable, theatrical paper "The Clipper" is in a division by itself, and besides, the matter is always reliable and easy to find.

[illegible]HE IDEAL OF NEW YORK CITY IS SHEER PAGANISM

[illegible] York, Nov. 25.—"Excessive [illegible] extravagant expenditure on [illegible] drink and dress has always [illegible] sign of paganism," de[illegible] Rev. Frederick Lynch, in [illegible] on "Luxury and Christian[illegible] Pilgrim Congregational [illegible]

"Many of us are worrying over the [illegible] of shameful extravagance in New York. Some dinners [illegible] during the last 15 years [illegible] given in ancient Rome. [illegible] no uncommon thing to [illegible] dinners costing $20,000 or [illegible] A lesser horde of imitators of these so-called society people [illegible] hundreds of thousands of [illegible] gorging themselves and [illegible]

[illegible] New Year's Eve thousands of [illegible] in our hotels and cafes [illegible] huge sums on eating and [illegible] these suppers being often [illegible] and bachanals.

[illegible] is not only unutterably vulgar, coarse and disgusting, not only [illegible] the finer susceptibilities of many of our people, not only [illegible] us in our quest from ideals, literature and art to minister to the jaded senses, but it is absolutely unChristian.

"Christianity does not despise comfort, joy nor rational things. It is not ascetic and does not despise rational enjoyment of nice food and drink. Its founder often shared the hospitality of homes, was happy with others at weddings and probably at the delicious fruit and meat of this world with the pleasure nature intended for us all.

"But Christianity and luxury, extravagance, gluttony, are absolutely antagonistic. Christianity is the following of Christ in the simple serviceable life. Its followers are to make chief thought not for the stomach, but for the soul.

"A real Christian could no more spend such sums on eating as many of our degenerate men and women are doing, while all around him men and babies are starving, than he could deny his Lord.

"Those who practice it are bringing on a revival of paganism. They give $10,000 to Christian work and spend $100,000 on foods, dress, drinks, yachts and often low entertainments.

"The money spent in New York last year on gluttony, overdressing, lavish entertainments, wines and vulgar luxuries would put a missionary in every city of the East and give Christianity an impulse in America that would turn its wavering attempts against evil into a triumphant victory."

OWEN SOUND APPROVES OF OILING THE STREETS

The Odor Was Obnoxious There, Too, for a Little While But the Results Were Gratifying—How it is Done in the Lake City.

The streets of Peterborough were sprinkled with oil this summer. It wasn't olive oil either, as its odor testified, but nevertheless it had the effect of laying the dust, and that's what it was intended for. When the odor had died, which it did very shortly, the streets were cool and dustless, and the citizens concluded that oiling the streets was really a very good thing after all.

DUST LAYING AT OWEN SOUND

The following letter from the Good Roads Publicities Association will be of considerable local interest—

The sandy lake shore soil, upon which Owen Sound is located, results in very dusty streets. No matter how much rain falls, or how much water is sprinkled on the streets, in an hour thereafter the dust becomes a nuisance and a menace to health. To overcome this, the municipal authorities, early in the spring, experimented with oil, which proved such a success that now all the principal streets in the centre of the town are oiled. These thoroughfares are macadamized, and, as a preparation for oiling, are first swept clean, and oil put on immediately after with the sprinkler.

The objection at first was that the odor from the crude oil was offensive, but in a day or two this disappeared, and the change for the better to dustless streets was recognized by all. The first application of oil lasted six weeks, and the second application was put on the other day, and what were some of the dustiest streets are now perfectly dustless.

The town officials state that it will be an annual saving of $2,000 over the old water system, and at the same time give much better results. It did another good thing in banishing mosquitoes, heretofore a great annoyance, none now being in evidence where the streets are oiled.

DEFENCE SAY ONLY LEGAL SALE

Magistrate Edmison reserved judgment in the charge against Larry Kiloran, the defence evidence of which was heard yesterday afternoon. the case having been adjourned at Norwood last week, to be continued here.

The charge was the outcome of a visit to Norwood by two detectives, on fair day, Oct. 12th.

The other, the first charge preferred in the latter part of September, was enlarged by his Worship for one week.

Five witnesses were called yesterday for the defence. Two were regular bartenders.

The statements of the detectives, made at the hearing in Norwood, to the effect that they were served with port wine, were contradicted. Evidence was given, stating that at that time, there was no port wine in the bar.

All the drinks served, the defence claimed, were legal and allowed under the Local Option Law.

PASSED AWAY AS HE WAS RETURNING FROM DENVER

The sad news of the death at Chicago of Mr. John Hayes, a well-known resident of Otonabee, has been received. The deceased left two months ago for Denver to recuperate his health and was on his return home when taken ill. His death occurred yesterday.

The late Mr. Hayes had been a lifelong resident of Otonabee and resided at "Skiver-en" homestead, lot 25, on the 11th concession. He was 53 years of age. The remains will arrive on the C.P.R. local this evening at 7.55. Surviving him are three brothers, Daniel and James, of Otonabee and Cornelius of Sudbury, and three sisters, Misses Ellen and Hannah at home and Mrs. Daniel Kelly, Asphodel.

The funeral will take place from the homestead on Sunday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock, proceeding to the Sacred Heart Church, and thence to St. Peter's cemetery.

HIGHLY ENJOYABLE CONCERT AT CHARLOTTE ST. CHURCH

The lecture room of Charlotte street Methodist church was filled to its utmost capacity last evening, when a grand concert by the famous Canada Male Quartette, assisted by Miss Spencer, reader, of Toronto, and Miss E. Pringle, of this city, soloist, delighted all present.

The program was long and varied, and every number was heartily encored. The selections by the quartette were very popular, the voices blending excellently, and the finished and sympathetic rendering of "The Chapel," a beautiful melody, drew forth highly appreciative applause. Their other numbers were given in the same equally high order.

The work of Miss Spencer also deserves much praise. Her personality alone sufficed to render her immediately popular with the audience, and she is a master of the elocutionary art, combining a voice of great range and expression and a pleasing method of delivery. This was Miss Spencer's first appearance before a Peterborough audience, and she made a decidedly good impression.

Miss Edna Pringle, soprano soloist, is well known to local audiences, and her efforts last evening were of the usual high class.

Mr. Edward Barton, basso, possesses a voice, which, while not more than ordinarily strong, yet is rich and full and his lower tones were well rounded and resonant. Solman's "When the Bell in the Lighthouse Rings," a splendid bass solo, was given with much realism, especially his vocal imitations of the monotonous tolling of the bell.

Probably the most effective and appealing number on the program was the always popular "Tenting on the Old Camp Ground," sung by the quartette. Mr. G. W. Collins, tenor, possesses a voice extraordinarily sweet, taking his high tones with remarkable ease.

Altogether the evening was a complete success from every point, and the committee in charge are to be congratulated on securing such excellent talent. Owing to the number of encores the entertainment did not end until eleven o'clock.

The following program will explain the reason of the successful affair:

SPEAKER IS REGRETFUL AT GALLERY EPISODE

Mr. Marcil Explains Discrimination Against Ministers and Says it Will Not Happen Again—Col. Hughes Continues Debate on Speech From Throne.

Ottawa, Nov. 26.—Before the House resumed the debate on the address yesterday, Col. Sam Hughes (Victoria and Haliburton), arose to call the Speaker's attention to the treatment accorded Rev. George Jackson and Rev. Dr. Henderson, who were expelled from the Speaker's gallery on Thursday.

After Col. Hughes had concluded, Speaker Marcil said that, while not required to answer the question, he would do so in courtesy to the House. He explained that the first row in the gallery was reserved for Her Excellency and party, the wives of the Cabinet Ministers, and of the Speaker and wife of the leader of the Opposition. As to clergymen of other denominations occupying the same seats without molestation, the Speaker said that he had, on the request of a member, granted permission to Bishop Gruard of St. Mary's, Northwest Territories, to occupy the front seat in order to follow the proceedings more closely, but at that time the front row was unoccupied. He would see that the incident did not occur again.

Col. Sam Hughes, reminding the House that French blood ran in his veins, deprecated the race cries. The independence sentiment expressed by Mr. Fowke he condemned, and looked forward to a united British Empire.

Dr. Michael Clark (Liberal, Red Deer) paid a compliment to Mr. Borden's reference to our relations with the United States as being the best monument of international peace. The acceptance of the Government's naval policy in England was presumptive evidence of approval, and quoted Sir George Doughty in support of that contention. Mr. Borden's amendment he characterized as a benevolent ineptitude." He thought it was a victory for Mr. Monk, and was surprised by the amount of energy shown by that hon. member, who was apparently so "lamb-like." Mr. Monk seemed to have smashed the compartments of the Conservative party and got possession of the whole omnibus. He had not put Mr. Borden out of the driver's seat, but had pushed George E. Foster aside, and evinced a desire to put Mr. Bourassa in his place. If the Opposition thought that was extreme language, what had become of the talk of an "emergency contribution"?

Mr. Fowke and Mortin Burrill also spoke.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier yesterday morning presided over the committee to revise the list of members of the various standing committees. There were few changes. Albert Allard, M.P. for Ottawa, who was not given any committee last session, was made a member of the committees on railways, private bills, standing orders, and agriculture.

L. A. Rivet was substituted for Hon. L. P. Brodeur on the private bills committee; P. E. Blondin of Champlain took the place of Gerald White on the standing orders committee.

Hon. Charles Murphy was added to the printing committee, thereby providing that the man who is the head of the printing department shall be a member of the committee which supervises the printing of Parliament. Mr. Murphy was also added to the public accounts committee, as was also Mr. Fraser of Prince Edward Island, and Mr. Turriff was made a member of the banking and commerce committee.

Mr. Russell of East Toronto is put on the agriculture committee in place of W. R. Smith of Algoma, and Gerald White is added to the mines committee in the stead of P. E. Blondin.

SIDE-TRACKS CONFERENCE

Ottawa, Nov. 26.—Premier Roblin of Manitoba returned to Ottawa yesterday from New York, and left again in the evening for Prescott to meet his wife. He leaves for Winnipeg to-day. During a portion of the afternoon he occupied a seat on the floor of the House of Commons.

Mr. Roblin's visit to Ottawa was to continue the adjourned interview he had with Sir Wilfrid Laurier last week regarding the question of the extension of the boundaries of Manitoba. Yesterday's interview was fruitless. Sir Wilfrid Laurier declared that he was too busy at present to give any consideration to the matter.

It will be remembered that last summer the Federal Premier said in Winnipeg that if he and Mr. Roblin were to get together alone they could settle this matter in an hour. Therefore, soon after Sir Wilfrid Laurier returned to Ottawa, Premier Roblin wrote to him and suggested that he should go to Ottawa and hold a conference regarding the boundary question. Sir Wilfrid replied that he would be very glad to have such a conference.

Mr. Roblin accordingly came down to Ottawa last week and saw the Premier, but Sir Wilfrid assured him that he was very busy with the matters to come before Parliament and that he would have to ask that the conference be postponed until this week. Mr. Roblin went to New York and returned yesterday. Sir Wilfrid stated that he was still too busy and asked that the conference be delayed until after the new year.

Mr. Roblin says that he will return to Ottawa after the new year.

FOUND THE TUG SINKING

Cleveland, O., Nov. 26.—A wireless message from the Bessemer and Marquette Car Ferry No. 2, plying between Conneaut, Ohio, and Fort Stanley, Ont., stating that the car ferry had picked up the tug Despatch of Goderich, Ont., in mid lake in a sinking condition, was received yesterday afternoon. The message said that the ferry is towing the tug into Port Bruce.

There Was No Fighting.

El Paso, Texas, Nov. 26.—C. M. Newman of El Paso was another passenger who returned home yesterday. He declared that American residents of Chihuahua had signed a public statement requiring the press associations to deny reports that there had been fighting at Chihuahua.

Chief Must Wear Uniform.

Chatham, Nov. 26.—The police commissioners yesterday insisted that Chief Holmes wear his uniform while on duty, and that the other officers on the staff salute him when they pass him on the street. Formerly Chief Holmes only wore his uniform when he went to church.

TO CELEBRATE HUNDRED YEARS OF PEACEFULNESS

Unlimited Arbitration Treaty, Disarmament on Great Lakes, and Abolition of Customs Houses, Are Among the Things Suggested.

Boston, Nov. 26.—The American Peace Society gave to the press yesterday a collection of suggestions received by it from publicists and educators in Great Britain and Canada and the United States in regard to the methods of celebrating the anniversary of the hundred years of peace since the war of 1812.

John W. Forbes, formerly United States Secretary of State, and Prof. John Bassett Moore of Columbia University, propose that the celebration be marked by a treaty of unlimited arbitration between the United States and Great Britain.

Sir Edward Fry, chairman of the British delegation to the second Hague conference, recommends that the precedent of disarmament on the great lakes should be extended as well as commemorated.

Lord Courtney of Penwith, president of the International Peace Congress at London, 1908, advises that the historic agreement for disarmament on the lakes be followed by the removal of customs houses along the American-Canadian border to reduce the cost of living, and do away with the last pretext of guardships and causes for international conflict.

George N. Morang, publisher, of Toronto, advises Canadians and Americans to study each other's history and institutions, as a means of promoting a better understanding among themselves.

Prof. J. C. Carter Troop of the University of Chicago suggests the publication of a centennial edition of Canadian authors and the selection by the heads of leading Canadian universities of orators for the celebration.

R. L. Borden, leader of the Conservative party in Canada, favors setting apart a day of thanksgiving, with the ringing of bells and the observance of the anniversary in the churches of the Dominion and the Republic. Mr. Borden also believes in erecting a permanent memorial in each country.

Approval of the celebration, but without suggestions as to its program, is given by Major J. A. Chisholm of Halifax, Dr. John Forrest, president of Dalhousie University, Halifax; Chief Justice Charles T. Townsend, Judge J. W. Longley of Nova Scotia, and United States Senator Elihu Root. Judge Longley observes that all traces of ill-will and prejudice are disappearing between Canada and the United States and rejoice in their growing friendship.

D. Russell Jack, secretary of the New Brunswick Loyalists Society, St. John, N.B., welcomes the celebration as a means of unifying the English-speaking race.

BRAZILIAN GOVERNMENT GIVES IN TO THE SAILORS

More Pay is Granted and Corporal Punishment is Abolished in Navy by Terms of Promise Made to Mutinous Sailors by the Parliament.

Rio de Janeiro, Nov. 26.—The Government of Brazil yesterday yielded to its mutinous navy.

Congress, meeting in extraordinary session, voted to concede every demand of the ultimatum presented on Thursday, including general amnesty for the sailors who, after murdering as many of their superior officers as was necessary to place them in complete control, trained the guns of the warships upon the capital.

What effect the outcome will have eventually on the discipline in the navy, is a matter of some concern. The immediate effect is to give the sailors increased pay, shorter hours of service and less work through the recruiting of additions to the crews, and to abolish corporal punishment in the fleet.

Following the action of Congress, the mutineers went through the formality of surrendering and before noon yesterday the city had resumed its normal activities and the public excitement had subsided.

During the progress of the revolt, Hon. James Bryce, British ambassador to the United States, was the guest of Baron Rio Branco, the Brazilian foreign minister.

The mutinous battleship Sao Paulo had on board several British subjects, who accompanied the vessel on its first trip home after its construction in England. At the outbreak of trouble, Sir Wm. H. D. Haggard, British Minister to Brazil, notified the Brazilian Foreign Office that any attempt of the loyal torpedo boats to destroy the revolting warships would be attended with danger to British subjects on board.

About ten o'clock on the night of Nov. 22, as Capt. Neves, commanding the battleship Minas Geraes, came back from dinner on board the French training ship Duguay Trouin, he heard a violent uproar and a volley of shots. It was the crew of his vessel who had revolted. Capt. Neves and two other officers offered resistance to some of the sailors and were killed and one officer was mortally wounded. Several sailors were also killed. The mutinous crew meanwhile shouted "Long live Liberty!"

The insurrectionary movement then broke out on board the other new Brazilian Dreadnought, the battleship Sao Paulo, and the scout ship Bahai. All the officers having been landed, a plain sailor of the first-class named Jean Candido took command of the squadron.

Ammunition was provided, provisions were requisitioned and a coal depot on the Isle of Vienna was taken. Vessels were prevented from transporting coal destined for the French steamer Atlantique and the English ship Orenso. The movement was declared to be without political significance.

The mutineers sent a message by radiograph to President Fonseca setting forth their claims for an immediate abolition of a corporal punishment on board-ship, an increase in their pay according to the program submitted to Congress some time ago and diminution of the work with which they are burdened by reason of the maintenance of incomplete crews. The statement added that a bombardment of the city and of other ships in the harbor would follow the refusal of the demands.

The Government refrained from replying to the ultimatum of the mutineers, and a moderately severe fire was soon opened by them upon the city. This continued at intervals all night. The inhabitants of Rio Janeiro were thrown into confusion by the suddenness of the event.

On the morning of Nov. 23 there was further firing on the city by the mutineers, the shots coming at infrequent intervals. Little damage to the city resulted from the bombardment, however.

"THE GUY GOT FRESH"

Chicago, Nov. 26.—Jauntily declaring "the guy got fresh, so we plugged him," two 19-year-old boys lounged into a police cell here yesterday and between puffs of their cigarettes detailed to the police who captured them a story of murder and robbery unequaled in Chicago since the days of the notorious "car barn bandits."

The two prisoners, Earl McDonald, or Bird, of Cleveland, Ohio, and Ray Cannon, who claims to hail from Carroll, Iowa, are said by the police to have given full details of how they shot and killed Jon Ostoszewsky and wounded E. J. Scert during two hold-ups. Three boys took part in the robberies, but one has not yet been rounded up by the police. The three are credited with being responsible for an epidemic of hold-ups which for weeks have kept the northwest side of the city in terror.

USED TAR AND FEATHERS

May's Landing, N.J., Nov. 26.—Three months in jail and a fine of $300 each was the sentence passed upon Charles Quinn and Joseph Vaughn yesterday in the County Court for tarring and feathering Frank Sichort at McKee City, near here, several months ago. Jas. Seats, who was convicted as an accomplice, was fined $300, and in default, was committed to jail.

The men said they tarred and feathered Sichort, who is married, because of his alleged attentions to a McKee City widow.

ELEVEN COAL MINERS DIE

Providence, Ky., Nov. 26.—Eleven coal miners, two white men and nine negroes, were entombed in mine No. 3 of the Providence Mining Co. yesterday afternoon following a gas explosion, and it is believed that all are dead. The mine is a new one, the shaft being but 100 feet in depth, with only a few entries.

The explosion was so violent that little hope is entertained of the miners having escaped death. The explosion blew great masses of slate and stone from the shaft. A mule blown out of the shaft alighted 150 feet away, still lives.

REVOLUTION A PURE FAKE

New York, Nov. 26.—Arthur E. Stillwell, president of the Kansas City, Mexico and Orient Railway, and the dominating influence in many important Mexican interests, yesterday declared that the "Mexican revolution" was a pure fake, concocted largely by persons who had interests to serve.

"Inside of ten days you will forget you ever heard of it," he said. "I have telegrams from my agents at Zacatecas, where 500 were supposed to have been killed, saying that nothing of the kind happened. My agent at Torreon says the fall of that place did not occur. From Chihuahua I have a message saying that all is peaceful."

BRANTFORD FATALITIES

Brantford, Nov. 26.—Mrs. North Illett, who resides with her husband in the Governor's road, a few miles from this city, was found unconscious early yesterday, having taken carbolic acid. She died yesterday afternoon, leaving two small children, besides her husband.

James Adams, an Englishman, found unconscious with a fractured skull in the basement of the Imperial Hotel Thursday, expired yesterday. Indications are he received his injuries by a fall on the concrete floor.

Lewis Martin, night yard master of the Grand Trunk, who recently had both legs severed in an accident, was waited upon yesterday and presented with a purse of $268, made up by fellow employes and manufacturers.

CLEVER TRICK OF SMUGGLERS

Montreal, Nov. 26.—The United States customs are much exercised over the smuggling of a large number of Chinese in automobiles, in fact it is widely known in Canada that for many years it has almost openly been carried on all along the border. A Chinaman wants to go to the States or to China. If the latter, he buys a ticket to a station, say, six miles from Rouse's Point, disembarks, and pays $25 to be driven across the line. There, his coming being expected, he is arrested, taken to Plattsburg, N.Y., is tried, and sentenced to be deported, not to Canada, but to China—exactly where he started for—at the expense of Uncle Sam. He pays no traveling expenses which a benevolent administration is prepared to put up.

If he wishes to remain in the United States the procedure is somewhat of a different nature. He is not arrested, but dropped in a quiet spot where an American stage picks him up and takes him a good bit south. Then he is free to go as he pleases.

ANIMALS MUST BE WELL BRED

Washington, D.C., Nov. 26.—Animals imported for breeding purposes by citizens of the United States on and after Jan. 1, 1911, must be accompanied by certificates of the bureau of animal industry that the animals are pure bred of a recognized breed and duly registered in the foreign book of record for that established breed. The Secretary of Agriculture has revised regulations on the subject in order to enforce more thoroughly the provisions of the tariff law instructing him to "determine and certify to the Secretary of the Treasury what are recognized breeds and pure bred animals," as a basis on which customs officers may determine what animals may be passed through the customs free of duty for breeding purposes.

Engineer Dead at His Post.

Racine, Wis., Nov. 26.—The lives of 300 passengers on train No. 6 on the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul road, bound for Chicago, hung in the balance Thursday, when Michael Crowley, engineer, was stricken with apoplexy at his post and died while the train was running forty miles an hour.

WOULD KILL COMPETITION

London, Ont., Nov. 26.—A stir was caused yesterday when it became known that a statement of Mayor Beattie that the city should undersell at all hazards the London Electric Co., so as to kill off competition, was made the basis of an appeal to the Ontario Government and the Hydro-Electric Commission at Toronto.

As a result of the appeal, it is stated, the Hydro-Electric Commission will not allow the City of London to increase the discount to Niagara power users from 10 to 25 per cent, as the mayor proposed.

Hon. Adam Beck will say nothing as to the situation. The London Water Commissioners are likely, in order to avoid a long and tedious war with the London Electric Co., to consider the matter of the purchase of the plant.

ARBITRATORS CAN'T AGREE

Winnipeg, Nov. 26.—Different views are held by each of three arbitrators sitting in street railway dispute, and after strenuous efforts to come to a unanimous decision, the board adjourned yesterday afternoon. The members agreed to each prepare a report and submit these reports at a final meeting to-day, when it is hoped a compromise may be reached.

Cuts His Throat.

Hamilton, Nov. 26.—In a fit of desperation, James Wright, an invalid 60 years old, slashed his throat with a razor at his home on Wright avenue about three o'clock yesterday morning. Wright entered his wife's bedroom and mumbling that he was going to end all his troubles, he drew the razor across his throat. He was taken to the City Hospital.

SUFFRAGETTES SENT TO JAIL

London, Nov. 26.—Twenty suffragettes who were arrested during the night for smashing windows in the Government offices, were sentenced in the Bow street Police Court yesterday, each to two months' imprisonment. In pronouncing sentence Sir Albert De Rutzen, chief magistrate of the Metropolitan Police Court said: "You disorderly women have been treated with too much leniency in the past."

LATE TICKS FROM WIRES

Sir Wilfrid Laurier has issued a call for a Dominion forestry convention to be held in Quebec during the last week in January.

Both Liberals and Unionists are concentrating on London during the approaching British elections, and both are confident of victory.

Two passengers were slightly injured and an engine and three cars wrecked in a rear-end collision between the C.P.R. Owen Sound express on the outskirts of Toronto.

The Simcoe, Grey and Bruce Railway Co. is seeking incorporation. The proposed line is from Southampton to Owen Sound, thence easterly to Meaford, Thornbury, Collingwood and Orillia.

Preliminary estimates yesterday, based on the announcement of the 1910 population of the sixteen states and two territories, give the United States, including Alaska, a population of about 91,851,349.

Premier Sifton's plan to withdraw the proceeds of the Alberta and Great Waterways Railway bond sales from the banks and apply them to the payment of the provincial debt was approved by the Provincial Liberal caucus.

The Alva Sails.

London, Nov. 26.—The Alva, built by order of the Canadian Government for quarantine service, sailed from Fairmouth Thursday. It is expected that she will arrive in Halifax in three weeks.

New Sheriff of Bruce.

Toronto, Nov. 26.—D. M. J[illegible] who contested North Bruce twice in the Conservative interest was yesterday appointed sheriff of Bruce in succession to the late Sheriff Parkes.

[illegible] A REVIEW WANT AD

MURDERED FOR REVENGE

New Orleans, Nov. 26.—James H. Reid of Houston, Miss., a civil engineer, was, according to a despatch received yesterday from Mexico City, killed there by a policeman who sought by taking the life of an American, to avenge the burning of Antonio Rodrigues by a mob in Texas.

In company with L. B. Loller of Memphis and some other friends, Reid, last Sunday, had just stepped out of a restaurant, when Sebastian Verderel, a policeman, fired two bullets into his body. When Reid fell Verderel exclaimed: "I have killed the gringo because the gringoes burned a Mexican."

SOLD LIQUOR TO A MINOR

Kingston, Ont., Nov. 26.—For selling, through his bartender, liquor to a minor, J. S. Randolph was fined $15 and costs. Con. Haag and Edwin Beaupre, liquor dealers, are to be up on a similar charge.

Fred. Aylesworth of Olden is under arrest. While on a train of the Kingston and Pembroke Railway, he attacked a passenger while drunk.

Plans For Cruisers.

Ottawa, Nov. 26.—The naval service department has received from England the plans for the four 5,000-ton cruisers and the six destroyers it contemplates to build for the Canadian navy. It will now advertise for these vessels, stipulating that they must be built in Canada.

Sentiment at McGill.

Montreal, Nov. 26.—Imperialism v. Nationalism in the Bourassa sense was the subject of an animated debate last evening at McGill University, and of the number present, sixty voted for imperialism, and fifteen against it, which is about the percentage of the university.

PALE-FACED FANATICS

Montreal, Nov. 26.—There was a wild scene at the license commissioner's court yesterday afternoon when Secretary Roberts of the Dominion Alliance took the place of Mr. St. Julien, a K.C., and being asked to leave, refused, a scuffle ensuing.

Mr. Roberts says he will take action against the lawyer for assault.

During the day Mr. Perion, M.P.P. for Gaspe, made a violent attack upon what he called "pale-faced fanatics who want to curtail the liberty of the people." The majority, he added, would rule in this city.

To Start Construction.

Montreal, Nov. 26.—Hon. A. K. McLean, Attorney-General of Nova Scotia, and E. Finn, M.P.P. for Halifax, are here negotiating with J. D. Bartram, president of the Halifax and Eastern Railway Co., and Duncan Cameron, also of Toronto, who is manager of the trust company, which is financing the project. It is understood that the work of construction will be started almost immediately.

Toronto Man Escapes.

Buffalo, Nov. 26.—Ernest Slater, 45 years old, of Toronto, was one of the three insane patients who escaped from the Buffalo State Hospital on Thursday. Slater, who was committed to the institution by a relative ten years ago, is still at liberty.

CABLED FOR BLACKSTOCK

Toronto, Nov. 26.—George T. Blackstock, K.C., left last evening for the old country, after having, on Thursday night, received a cablegram from the chief Unionist whip, Right Hon. Sir A. F. Acland Hood, asking that he hurry over to "take the stump" in behalf of tariff reform. At last year's election, Mr. Blackstock addressed meeting in over a dozen English constituencies.

His departure will render it necessary to appoint a new counsel for Oxford County in the roads "graft" enquiry, which opens at Woodstock next Wednesday.

Cholera In Italy.

Rome, Nov. 26.—Another case of cholera was discovered in Rome yesterday. The sick person is a Mason who had just arrived from the country. Two hundred persons are being held in quarantine. Throughout the rest of Italy only six new cases and no deaths were reported during the past twenty-four years.

Confesses to Murder.

Trenton, N.J., Nov. 26.—After a thrilling fifteen-hour examination, J. Sears, a half-breed Indian and negro, suspected of the murder of the Rev. A. L. Armstrong and his wife, collapsed early yesterday, and confessed. It is said he expected to benefit under Mr. Armstrong's will.

WORLD'S DISTANCE AIR RECORD IS DISPUTED

The official distance made by Alan Hawley and Augustus Post in the balloon America II. lacked twenty-two miles of being a world's record according to the official measurement received from William Welch, chief draughtsman of the War Department at Washington. The flight of Hawley and Post from St. Louis to Peribonka River, Canada, in the international cup race last month, covered a distance of 1171.13 miles, instead of 1355 miles as reported at the time of the race. The world's record is 1193 miles, made by Count Henry De La Vaulx, in his flight from Vincennes, France, to Korostychow, Russia, in thirty-five and three-quarter hours.

But Hawley and Post established a new American record for balloon flights. No doubt is expressed by members of the Aero Club that the board of governors will accept these measurements as final when the next meeting takes place.

Messrs. Hawley and Post do not propose, however to abandon their claim to the world's record, despite the fact that the official measurement shows the distance travelled to have been a trifle less than that heretofore accredited to Count De La Vaulx. Mr. Hawley says:

"I am not surprised that the war department measurements reduce the distance credited to me. But I will not yield the title to the record that Count De La Vaulx, until the distance has been definitely established by similar measurements of his flight. I do not believe the distance he travelled was ever officially established as was done in the case of the international cup races."

DISTANCE OF OTHER CONTESTANTS

The distances made by the other contestants in the race are reported by the war department expert as follows:

The Dusseldorf II. (German), Lieut Hans Gericke, pilot; S. F. Perkins, aide, Kiskisink, Que., 1131 miles.

The Germania (German), Captain Hugo Von Abercrom, pilot, Herr August Blankerg, aide, Chicoutimi, Que., 1079 miles.

The Helvetia (Switzerland,) Col. Theodore Schaeck, pilot; Paul Armbruster, aide, Ville Marie, Que., 826 miles.

The Hamburg III. (German,) Lieut Vogel, pilot; W. F. Assman, aide, Lake Nipissing, Ont., 766 miles.

The Azuria, (Switzerland,) Capt. Emil Messner, pilot; Leon Givaudan, aide Biscotasing, Ont., 756 miles.

The Isle De France (French,) M. Alfred LeBlanc, pilot; Walter De Muth, aide, Pogamasing, Ont., 722 miles.

The St. Louis No. 4 (American,) H. F. Honeywell, pilot; J. W. Tolland, aide, Hillman, Mich., 652 miles.

The Condor (French,) M. Jacques Faure, pilot; E. G. Schmolck, aide, Two Rivers, Wis., 413 miles.

UNBUSINESSLIKE

No one in Peterborough had any desire to gloat over the misfortunes of a neighboring town. We regret them. While we are anxious to secure all the manufacturing industries that we can, we do not begrudge, but rather are pleased with a success scored by another municipality. Yet one cannot escape being impressed with the unbusiness methods often pursued in municipal matters, and unfortunately Lindsay has suffered from them in two instances lately.

In the case of the defalcations of the treasurer, the auditor has come in for censure, but it is questionable whether he is more to blame than the system of doing business that was carried on. Indeed, it may be that the system was altogether at fault and the auditor not at all. The treasurer was not only treasurer, but also clerk and collected taxes, and the statements we have seen indicate that he was collecting taxes on the tax rolls for more than one year at the same time. If that is the case the fault is undoubtedly with the Council. Other municipalities have pursued a similar course, and a collector of taxes has at times had the rolls for several years in his hands at the same time, and other municipalities have suffered through allowing such unbusinesslike procedure.

Suppose a collector who is collecting the taxes for different years at the same time desires to be dishonest, when he is called upon to return and account for one roll, and is short on that one, he can take funds he has received on the taxes collected under another to make good the shortage and hand in the roll. Then the auditor checks it up—and finds it all straight enough, but knows nothing of the shortage on the one still in his hands. And so the process can go on for years, until a climax is reached and the exposure comes. This has happened again and again in municipalities in Ontario, and probably has not occurred for the last time.

Members of councils, as a rule, do not make a study of municipal business. They are usually only a few years in the council, and do not give time enough to acquaint themselves thoroughly with the business, and laxity is a result. The divided responsibility of a large council, and the frequent changes in the heads of the committees, are other reasons why it so often happens that there is a want of proper business oversight.

In the other case in which Lindsay has recently found itself duped, that of the pseudo Thomas Shoe and Glove Company, an enquiry from one of the commercial agencies would at once have revealed that there was no such company in Cleveland, and the bottom would have fallen out of the whole scheme. For just such purposes commercial agencies exist, and this was one case where the facilities they afford should have been used.

The purpose that these severe lessons that Lindsay has learned serves for other municipalities is to put them more on their guard.

NOT ONE WORD

Surely the Liberal papers and speakers do not expect to fool the people into believing that the Conservative party is committed to a disloyal campaign. They are angry, of course, at the result of the election in Drummond, because they see that Sir Wilfrid Laurier no longer is the idol of Quebec, but they should not allow their anger to drive them into such silly pretensions. If they want to know who it is that protests that he is not too British—who the politician is who had addressed the Nationalists in language calculated to win them to his side—let them read Sir Wilfrid Laurier's Montreal speech, in which he said:

"I have simply to draw your attention to two things provided for in this naval law. It simply decrees this, that the Government of Canada should organize another naval service and that this should remain entirely under the control of the Government of Canada. Outside of this there is not a single word which would give to Great Britain that which she demanded in 1902—the organization of a war service to be put at the disposal of the War Office—not one single word."

Canada has received the protection of Britain always, and is receiving it now. And if Canada has or should have vessels capable of rendering her aid, why should such aid be refused? If Canada should be attacked, even now, when we have the Rainbow and the Niobe, would we not look to Britain—yes, and to Australia, India and South Africa, too, if need be—to come to our aid and assist in our defence, and why, then, should Sir Wilfrid maintain with such explicit iteration that the Canadian "navy" would not be bound to be put at the service of Britain?

EDITORIAL NOTES

If anyone in Lindsay mentions Shoe Company he is greeted with—shoo.

A revolt in Mexico and a mutiny on the warships of Brazil shows that Republics have their troubles as well as Monarchies.

In Ottawa City Council a proposal has been made to have a plebiscite taken to see whether the people wish the Board of Control maintained. We are not surprised at that. The Board of Control appears to be a very cumbersome system of civic government.

It is said that politics make strange bed-fellows. But look at this from the Toronto Globe:—"The Globe feels constrained to stand up and be counted in company with Colonel Sam Hughes." We could not believe it if anyone else had told us so.

A citizen of Orange, N.J., is so disgusted with the recent success of the Democrats that he is offering his property for sale and declares his intention to leave the country. If every member of a defeated party took the defeat so much to heart, what an exodus there would be!

The law of compensation has its advantages. While the merchants are complaining of the mild weather, so unfavorable for fall business, this kind of weather would be exceedingly suitable for building operations at Lindsay in erecting glove and shoe factories and tanneries.

HE FOUND THEM NO FAITH CURE

But Dodd's Kidney Pills Cleaned out W. F. Black's Sciatica

He was in agony when a friend gave him a box. Now he recommends them to everybody.

Newcastle, N.B., Nov. 25.—(Special)—In these cold fall days, when the chill winds crystallize the uric acid in the blood and cause the pangs of Rheumatism and Sciatica to bring sleepless nights to many a home, a man's best friend is he who can tell his neighbor of a sure cure for his tortures. Such a friend is Wm. F. Black of this place. He suffered from Sciatica and lame back. He was so bad that he could not lace his boots or turn in bed. Dodd's Kidney Pills cured him and he wants all his neighbors to know of the cure.

"Yes," Mr. Black says in an interview, "I was so bad with Sciatica and Lame Back that I couldn't lace my shoes or turn in bed, when a friend gave me about a third of a box of Dodd's Kidney Pills. I started taking them without much faith in their curative powers, and found them all they were recommended.

"Now I am recommending Dodd's Kidney Pills to all sufferers from Kidney Disease."

Dodd's Kidney Pills are no faith cure. They're a simple but sure cure for diseased kidneys.

THAT LITTLE BOB BRIDGE

The report made to County Council on the Little Bob bridge showed that it cost $8,139.82. The report also stated that the cost of filling in the ends and centre, covering 140 feet, was $1,263. Had this been covered by two additional piers and two steel spans of 70 feet, the piers would have cost $651, and the steel $1,800, or a difference of $1,238 saved by the filling.—Bobcaygeon Independent.

VICE LEGALIZED IN WINNIPEG

A CHECK ON THE POLICE

Forbidden to Lay Information Until Lawyers Had Passed in Evidence

Winnipeg, Nov. 25.—Contrary to expectations the first witness called before Justice Robson, who is enquiring into the Sucarer charges, was Chief of Police J. C. McRae. The chief, who entered the force in 1881, and became chief in 1887, testified that in the spring of 1909 the police commission received a letter from Police Magistrate Hon. T. M. Daly, in which the magistrate called attention to the enormous growth of "the social evil since the abolishing of the former segregated district, and the difficulties attendant on the number of successful appeals against convictions after they had been secured by the police.

Hon. Mr. Daly advised that the matter be left to the discretion of the chief of police. After consideration, the police commission passed a resolution in April, 1909, leaving the matter in his hands. The chief then had a conversation with a woman named M. Woods, telling her of the result of the commission's resolution and subsequently phoned a real estate man of his acquaintance, named John Beaman, and the colony was subsequently established. The chief at this stage said that the rumor that Beaman was his brother-in-law was entirely unfounded.

The chief then stated the difficulties in securing convictions and spoke of cases where convicted keepers of resorts have been released by higher courts.

SUBMIT EVIDENCE FIRST

At a subsequent date the commission decided by resolution that officers should present their evidence to Crown counsel before laying informations. Constables in the restricted area were instructed to arrest disorderly persons, but had no orders to interfere with keepers or inmates of houses. The change in policy was not made at his suggestion, but done by the commission, after investigation, and he concurred in it. The chief thought the law could be better enforced in a restricted area than scattered all over the city.

The chief's evidence was not concluded. All the members of the police commission will be subpoenaed. It is reported that several persons whose evidence is considered essential have crossed the boundary, beyond the reach of process servers.

DISEASE WAS PREVALENT

The communication from Police Magistrate Daly which led to segregation stated that the records of his court showed immorality to be increasing in the city at an alarming rate since the closing of the Thomas street colony in 1904, especially among young girls of fourteen to seventeen and among women not previously immoral. He had also ascertained that veneral diseases were increasing terribly and he felt that something must be done. The chief declared that the women were not allowed to have music in the houses, and nothing distinctive to show the character of the house. Women were allowed freedom to come up town, but must behave themselves and dress quietly. The whole district was under the constant supervision of the morality officers who had complete charge. He had never visited the district personally, and never had been in the one of the houses.

Orde followed him, insistent. Murphy ducked in and planted a number of short arm jabs at close range. The round ended almost immediately to a storm of applause from the galleries.

Orde sprang at his adversary in the third, repeating the headlong rush with which the previous round had ended. The young man hammered away tirelessly, insistently, delivering a hurricane of his two handed blows, pressing relentlessly in as Murphy shifted and gave ground, his head up, his eyes steady. The gallery was in an uproar. Perspiration stood out all over Murphy's body. His blows failed of their effect, and some of Orde's were landing. At length, bewildered, he closed in to straight slugging, stand up, give and take.

Orde dropped slightly his right shoulder behind his next blow. The glove crashed straight as a pile driver through Murphy's upraised hands to his face. The trainer was buried through the air to land doubled up against the parallel bars. There he lay quite still.

When, however, Orde perceived that Murphy was unconscious he ran forward to the professional's side.

"Do you suppose he's killed?" he gasped.

"He's just knocked out," reassured one of the men.

The clubmen crowded about.

"You're a wonder, my friend," said one.

"By Jove, he's hardly breathing fast after all that rushing," said a second.

Later, when the young men were resting after a rubdown, the true significance of the affair for Orde came out. Since the fight Gerald's customary lassitude was gone. His eye was bright, and a color mounted beneath the pale olive of his skin. He looked across at Orde several times, hesitated and at last decided to speak.

"Look here, Orde," said he, "I want to confess something. When you first came I had lots of fun about you. You know your clothes aren't quite the thing, and I thought your manner was queer. I want to apologise. You're a man, and I like you better than any fellow I've met for a long time. And if there's any trouble—in the future—I'm on your side. You know what I mean."

"Bishop," was Orde's reply, "you're not near so much of a dandy as you think you are."

Chapter 18

IN the course of the happy moments he had alone with Carroll, Orde arrived at a more intimate plane of conversation with her. He came to an understanding of her unquestioning acceptance of Mrs. Bishop's attitude. Carroll truly believed that none but herself could perform for her mother the various petty offices that lady demanded from her next of kin and that her practical slavery was due by every consideration of filial affection. In his hotel room he brooded over the state of affairs until his thoughts took a very gloomy tinge indeed. To begin with, in spite of his mother's assurance he had no faith in his own cause. His acquaintance with Carroll was but an affair of months, and their actual meetings comprised incredibly few days. Orde was naturally humble minded. It did not seem conceivable to him that he could win her without a long courtship. And superadded was the almost intolerable weight of Carroll's ideas as to her domestic duties.

Nevertheless, at the very moment when he had made up his mind that it would be utterly useless even to indulge in hope for some years to come, he spoke. It came about suddenly and entirely without premeditation.

The two had escaped for a breath of air late in the evening. Following the conventions, they merely strolled to the end of the block and back, always within sight of the house. Carroll was in a tired and pensive mood. She held her head back, breathing deeply.

"It's only a little strip, but it's the stars," said she, looking up to the sky between the houses. "They're so quiet and calm and big."

She seemed to Orde for the first time like a little girl. A wave of tenderness lifted Orde from his feet. He leaned over, his breath coming quickly.

"Carroll!" he said.

She shrank back.

"No, no! You mustn't!" she cried. She did not pretend to misunderstand.

"It's life or death with me," he said.

"I must not!" she cried, fluttering like a bird. "I promised myself long ago that I must always, always take care of mother."

"Please, please, dear," pleaded Orde. He had nothing more to say than this, just the simple incoherent symbols of pleading, but in such crises it is rather the soul than the tongue that speaks. His hand met hers and closed about it.

"Don't you care for me, dear?" asked Orde very gently.

"I have no right to tell you that," answered she. "I have tried, oh, so hard, to keep you from saying this, for I knew I had no right to hear you."

"You do care for me!" he cried.

They had mounted the steps and stood just within the vestibule.

"Carroll," cried Orde, "tell me that you love me! Tell me that you'll marry me!"

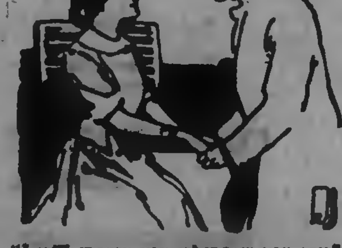
"It would kill mother if I should leave her," she said sadly.

"But you must marry me," pleaded Orde. "We are made for each other. God meant us for each other."

"It would have to be after a great many years," she said doubtfully. "Good night. Come to me tomorrow." She slipped inside the half open door.

Orde turned away and walked up the street, his eyes so blinded by the greater glory that he all but ran down an inoffensive passerby. Then as the first effervescence died a more gloomy view of the situation came uppermost. To his heated imagination the deadlock seemed complete. Carroll's devotion to what she considered her duty appeared unbreakable. And then his fighting blood surged back to his heart.

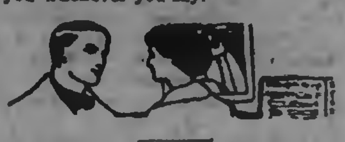
The fever of the argument coursed through his veins all that long night until daylight found him weary and fevered. By a tremendous effort he restrained himself from going over to Ninth street until the middle of the morning.



"I will marry you whenever you say."

He entered the drawing room to find her seated at the piano. His heart bounded. She did not look up until he stood almost at her shoulder. Then she turned and held out both her hands.

"It is no use, Jack," she said. "I care for you too much. I will marry you whenever you say."



Chapter 19

ORDE found a note at the hotel the next day asking him to be in Washington square at half past 2. Carroll met him with a bright smile.

"Things aren't quite right at home," she said. "It is a great shock to poor mother at first, and she feels very strongly. Oh, it isn't you, dear; it's the notion that I can care for anybody but her. You see, she's been used to the other idea so long that I suppose it seemed a part of the universe to her. She'll get used to it after a little, but it takes time."

Orde examined her face anxiously. Two bright red spots burned on her cheeks; her eyes flashed with a nervous animation.

She smiled up at him.

"We have to pay for the good things in life, don't we, dear? And they are worth it. We must not be too impatient. Now, let's enjoy the day."

At 5 o'clock Orde took her back to her doorstep.

This went on several days.

Orde saw that the strain was beginning to tell. Carroll's wearied expression grew from day to day.

From Gerald at his club Orde sought more intimate news of what was going on.

Little by little Orde's eager questions drew out the truth of the situation. Mrs. Bishop had shut herself up in a blind and incredible obstinacy, whence she sallied with floods of complaints, tears, accusations, despairs, reproaches, vows, hysterics—all the battery of the woman misunderstood. If Carroll undertook to say anything the third word would start her mother off into one of her long and hysterical tirades. Her child had disobeyed her. And as a climax she had assumed the impregnable position of a complete prostration, wherein she demanded the minute care of an invalid in the crisis of a disorder. The mere mention of the subject nearest Carroll's heart brought the feeble complaint:

"Do you want to kill me?"

The only scrap of victory to be snatched from this stricken field was the fact that Carroll insisted on going to meet her lover every afternoon. Though he fretted under the tyranny, Orde could see nothing which could relieve the situation save his own withdrawal. He had already long overstayed his visit. Important affairs connected with his work demanded his attention. He had the comfort of Carroll's love assured.

The morning after he had reached this conclusion he again met Gerald at the gymnasium.

"Orde," said Gerald suddenly, "I'm worried about Carroll. Mother has commenced bothering her again. It wasn't so bad as long as she stuck to daytime, but now she's taken to prowling in a dozen times a night. I hear their voices for an hour or so at a time. I'm afraid it's beginning to wear on Carroll more than you realise."

"Thank you," said Orde briefly and departed.

At his hotel Orde found a telegram. He did not open it until he had reached his own room. It was from home, urging his immediate return for the acceptance of some contracted work.

"To h— with the contracted work!" he muttered savagely and, calling a bellboy, sent an answer very much to that effect.

He was interrupted by a knock on the door.

"Come in!" he called without turning his head.

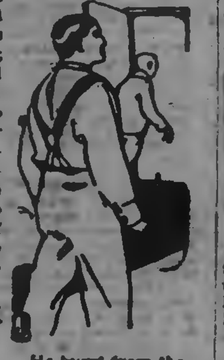
He heard the door open and shut. After a moment he looked around. Kendrick Bishop stood watching him.

Orde looked at him curiously and saw that he was suffering from an intense excitement. His frame trembled convulsively; his lips were white; his face went red and pale by turns.

"You've got to let my mother alone," he managed to say finally. "You've brought her to the point of death. You're hounding her to her grave."

Orde thought to catch the echo of quotation in these words.

"What do you want me to do?" asked Orde after a moment of thought.



He burst from the room.

NERVE AGONIES

All Nervous Diseases Cured by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills

Nerves that are over-worked or weak quickly indicate their distress by pain. That pain may be neuralgia or inflamed nerves, usually affecting the head, but often the spine and limbs. It may be nervous dyspepsia, easily started by worry, excitement or weakness. It may be St. Vitus' dance, a common affliction among children, or neurasthenia, a condition of general nervous exhaustion accompanied by acute melancholy. Worst of all the pain may signal the early stages of paralysis or nervous decay. All these disorders signify that the hungry nerves are clamoring for nourishment in the form of good, rich blood. The numerous cures of the above named nervous diseases and weakness in both sexes by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, are accounted for by the fact that these Pills actually make new, rich blood and so supply the starved nerves with the vital elements needed to strengthen them. Mr. Wm. G. Jones, Westmead, Man., says: "A few years ago it was my misfortune to suffer from nervous debility, brought about through a severe attack of la grippe or influenza. When the first effects were felt I used to wake up in the middle of sleep trembling like a leaf, and in a bath of cold perspiration. Later the trouble grew so bad that I scarcely got a wink of sleep, and would toss about in bed, growing so weak that I feared for my life. A doctor was called in, and then another, but without avail. I became more and more low spirited, and without any apparent reason, would have fits of crying. While in this condition, a nervous wreck, a pamphlet was given me telling me what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills had done for others, and I determined to give them a trial. By the time I had finished a few boxes I began to get some sleep, and this greatly encouraged me. Then my strength began to return, my nerves grew steadier and in a few weeks more I was feeling as well as ever I did in my life and you may be sure I will always gratefully recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to every one sick or ailing as they restored me to health and strength after all other medicines had failed."

You can get these Pills from any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50, from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Brockville, Ont.

BIG FINE WAS IMPOSED

Ed. Haskell, proprietor of the Denniston House, Coldwater, was fined $150 and $24, on Tuesday for selling liquor without a license. The sale was actually made by the bartender of the hotel, Percy Skinner, who decamped after he had been served with a summons. Haskell denied knowledge of it, but was held responsible by the magistrates, Reeve Millard and Mr. H. L. Lovering. Haskell was fined $40 and costs about three months ago on a charge of keeping liquor for sale. License Inspector Fisher laid the charge.

LOCAL MAN FINED $8.95

A peculiar incident was reported at Port Perry Thursday afternoon, when when Game Warden Watson, of Scugog Lake, appeared before the magistrate of that town charged with keeping out duck decoys for a longer period of time than the law allowed.

The charge was proven against the inspector, and he was fined $25.95 for his sport.

J. Cook, of Caesarea, and A. C. Harran, of Peterborough, also appeared on the same charge, the latter being fined $8.95 and the former $13.00.

The charges were laid against the three men by Game Warden Parkin, of Valentia.

August Exner was severely scalded and had a leg broken in an accident at the Berlin waterworks.

SURE SIGNS
Of Kidney Troube

If your back is constantly aching and if you experience dull shooting pains, your kidneys are out of order. If your urine is thick and cloudy or your passages frequent, scanty and painful, your kidneys and bladder are out of order. Neglect quickly brings on rheumatism, diabetis, lumbago, sciatica, and etc.

Mrs. John Wagner, of 410 Hollis street, Halifax, N.S., says: "Dull shooting pains would catch me across the small part of my back and extend into my shoulders and neck, often causing me to suffer with severe headaches and spells of dizziness. Spots would dazzle before my eyes and everything would turn black. I would fall to the floor and be unable to get up again without assistance. A friend told me of Booth's Kidney Pills and I began their use. The first box gave me relief and I am now well and strong."

Booth's Kidney Pills

All druggists sell Booth's Kidney Pills 50c. a box with a guarantee to relieve or your money back. They are the world's greatest specific for Kidney and bladder trouble. Postpaid from the proprietors, The R. T. Booth Co., Ltd., Fort Erie. Sold and guaranteed by Wm. Madill, druggist, Peterborough.

you do not have to work close to the stove, which is usually far from the window. You can work where you wish, and be warm. You can work on dull winter days in the full light near the window, without being chilled to the bone.

The Perfection Oil Heater quickly gives heat, and with one filling of the font burns steadily for nine hours, without smoke or smell. An indicator always shows the amount of oil in the font. The filler-cap, put in like a cork in a bottle, is attached by a chain. This heater has a cool handle and a damper top.

The Perfection Oil Heater has an automatic-locking flame spreader, which prevents the wick from being turned high enough to smoke, and is easy to remove and drop back, so the wick can be quickly cleaned. The burner body or gallery cannot become wedged and can be unscrewed in an instant for rewicking. The Perfection Oil Heater is finished in japan or nickel, is strong, durable, well-made, built for service, and yet light and ornamental.

FAMOUS ENGLISH CHOIR WILL VISIT PETERBORO'

Dr. Coward's celebrated Empire Choir will honor Peterborough with a visit.

The local engagement was secured through the enterprise of Messrs. Walter Stocker and John Crane and the choir will sing at the Grand Opera House on the evening of April 3rd. The choir, which is composed of two hundred of the finest voices in England will arrive in Peterborough late on Saturday night on a special from Kingston and will remain here over Sunday. As they will not sing any matinee engagement on Monday they will be thoroughly rested and refreshed for the concert.

On their Canadian tour they will go from Halifax to Vancouver and after filling their bookings in the Dominion will visit Australia, New Zealand, South Africa, and other colonies of the British Empire.

Dr. Coward will give the choir a hundred rehearsals before they commence their long engagement.

WEALTHY ENGLISHMAN TO SPEAK IN THE CITY

The Great Single Tax Advocate

One of the most unique figures before the world to-day is Mr. Joseph Fels, the Naptha Soap millionaire, who is to address two meetings in Peterborough in December. On Tuesday evening, December 13, Mr. Fels will address the Board of Trade, and on Wednesday evening, December 14, a public meeting being arranged by the members of the Brotherhood of St. Paul's church. Mr. Fels is said to be giving in the neighborhood of $100,000 a year to movements for tax reform throughout the world.

"Fels has made money," writes Lincoln Steffens, in the October American, "soap too, but mainly money, very much money.

"It was some twenty years ago that Joseph Fels began making money fast. For years before that he had been in the soap business, but in 1893 he struck the naptha compound that is now known in households wherever the English language is spoken

"Then Fels has made money out of land, too, buying land and holding it for a rise.

"'It's so easy,' he laughs, 'Just as easy as stealing.'

"Unlike many other rich men, who have repented, Fels gives nothing to charity. 'Charity,' he says, 'merely creates a demand for more charity.' Fels deals with causes.

"'The trouble with those men,' he says, 'is that they don't know how they get their money. They think they earn it. I know how I get it. I want to make men like me impossible.'

"For Fels realizes that the same causes that make millionaires makes paupers, and he is endeavoring to remove these causes.

"Chief among those causes he sees is our tax system. Fels is a single taxer, a follower of Henry George. He believes that the value given to land by the presence of the community, whether the land is good or not, should be made the basis of taxation.

"And this is what makes Fels unique among the wealthy class of to-day, for he gives both his time and his money to removing the causes of poverty.

"While in Canada Mr. Fels will address public meetings in Toronto, Berlin, Peterborough and Montreal, and also the Canadian Club at London.

"And to accomplish this great purpose Mr. Fels challenges the people everywhere to match him dollar for dollar, as he puts it, to the extent of his way."

ANNIVERSARY SPRINGVILLE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

celebrate its fourth anniversary tomorrow when Rev. J. D. Morrow (the athletic pastor) of Dale Presbyterian church, Toronto, will be the preacher.

The church has prospered greatly under the energetic and useful pastorate of Rev. Dr. March and to-morrow will no doubt see very large congregations at both services.

The young men of the church will have charge of the evening service and special offerings are asked for both morning and evening.

VERY LITTLE CHANGE IN THE PRICES IN THE MARKET

A fairly large market attendance, and about the same prices as last week reigned on the square to-day. Nothing requires special mention. The high price of apples and eggs was in evidence, these two articles being away up.

Only two loads of hay were there. Plenty of fowl, including turkeys and geese, were for sale, the turkeys ranging in price from $1.35 to $1.70 and $2.00.

When asked the condition of things in the country the reply was "Very little doing these days. Everything quiet."

The following were to-day's quotations—

Potatoes 75c per bag.
Apples (Spys), 75c per bag.
Apples, $5.00 per barrel.
Pork, by the quarter, 12c and 13c.
Geese, 75c each, or $1.35 to $1.40 a pair.
Turkeys, $1.35 to $2.00 each.
Chickens, 45c to 70c each.
Hay $13
Pressed Hay, 85c per cwt.

CONVENTION OF SOLAR UNION

Able Illustrated Address by Prof. Chant of Toronto University—A Society of Nations for Solar Research.

Prof. Chant, of the University of Toronto addressed the Royal Astronomical Society, last evening, in the Collegiate Institute. The lecture took the form of a "travel talk" largely, the speaker describing a recent trip made to California by the Canadian route, and the object of the trip, the great convention of the Solar Union, at Mount Wilson.

A large number of photographs of the scenes along the route and of the noted men participating in the concerted work and research on the making the talk very interesting.

The Solar Union as it is called is an international society, or rather union of societies, for the purpose of concerted work and research on the Sun. All the great nations are represented, some 22 societies being now on the roll. Canada is represented by the Royal Astronomical Society and at the convention on this year Prof. Chant of Toronto and J. S. Plaskett of Ottawa were the delegates.

Considerable progress has been made in the last few years in solar work, chiefly through the beneficence of Andrew Carnegie. This multi-millionaire set aside some 12 million dollars to endow the Carnegie Institution of Washington. The interest on this means $600,000 per year available for scientific purposes. By means of this great fund a unique observatory has been constructed on Mt. Wilson in California for the sole purpose of studying the Sun. From its great height of 5,600 feet, and on account of its favorable climatic conditions, many discoveries have already been made. This observatory uses chiefly the reflecting telescope, with mirrors of a foot in thickness to carry the object in any direction desired. One of these unique telescopes is 150 feet in height, the tower being of double construction so that wind and heat will not warp or twist the inner tower, on which are placed the delicate instruments. Great mirrors on this tower throw the light not only to ground but into a special well, some 80 feet deep. And with the most modern instruments they then analyse the sunlight as a chemist would a substance.

One of the great problems before the Solar Union to-day is, whether or not the Sun gives off a regular amount of heat, or if it varies. So far observations indicate that there is a variation.

Judging by the increased attendance at the meetings of the Royal Astronomical Society this season it is quite evident that a lively interest is being taken in this study by the citizens generally. Among the new members welcomed by the president last evening, appeared the name of Dr. Langfeldt.

Prof. Chant received a very hearty welcome from a number of his former students. He expressed himself as being pleased to see such evidences of growth and prosperity in the Peterborough Centre of the Astronomical Society.

MR. P. G. MIGHT IS PRINCIPAL

The Toronto Star says;—St. Clair Avenue school is to have a new principal, probably P. G. Might, of Lansdowne school, one of the rising young men of Toronto' teaching staff.

Henry Grey, who has been principal of Lansdowne school for the past two years, has resigned.

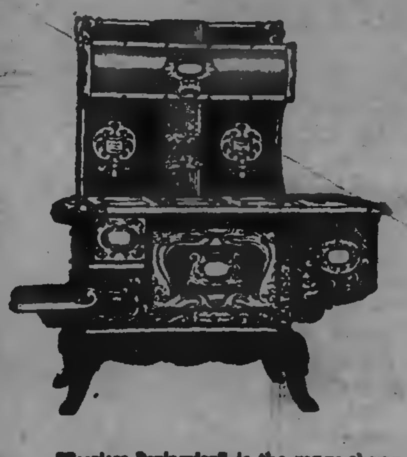
The trustees accepted Inspector Hughes' recommendation to send Mr. Might to the vacancy.

G. OF G. F. SUNDAY

On Sunday next the Guild of Good Fellowship will have the opportunity of listening to J. H. Burnham, Esq., who will take for his subject "A Lay View of Religion." The large number of men who attend these meetings in the Princess Theatre week by week can be assured of an interesting and instructive afternoon, and a helpful discussion should be evoked.

$60 for Chimes

About sixty dollars, principally in cash, has been received for the chimes fund during the past week.



Peerless Peninsular

has a Sliding Damper that regulates the temperature of the oven to any degree

You know the old-fashioned flop-over damper. It has only two positions—shut tight, which throws all the heat around the oven—and wide open, which throws all the heat up the chimney.

With such a damper, the usual course to secure a moderate oven is to open the oven door. Many a pan of bread and cake has been spoiled because the oven was cooled off this way.

The "Peninsular" Sliding Damper gives you absolute control of the heat. You can set it for direct draft, or for quick or slow baking—wide open, a little shut, one-fourth shut, half open, or the tiniest draft possible.

Simply slide the damper along the groove, and the "Peerless Peninsular" oven responds, giving you the desired temperature for any kind of baking you wish.

A Thermometer is furnished in the oven door to give you scientific accuracy if you wish.

There are many other features of the "Peerless Peninsular" that appeal to every woman who takes pride in her home and wants a range that will do justice to her culinary skill.

"Adanac Peninsular" is plain in design with swing door for those who prefer it.
"Harmony Peninsular" is similar in essentials but more elaborately decorated.
"Constant Peninsular" is different from the others mainly in plainer design and finish.

The preacher who comes to occupy the pulpit of Murray street church on Sunday ought to be greeted by a large congregation of men. His style is distinctly one which appeals to the masculine mind. While he is decidedly sympathetic, his thinking is of such a robust character that his hearer is not only interested, but convinced.

The Review had the pleasure of hearing the doctor on the occasion of his last visit here and would certainly advise the men of the city to avail themselves of this opportunity.

SUNDAY AT MARK SERVICE

In the evening an evangelistic service will be conducted, to which all cordially invited.

The day's work will commence with a prayer meeting at 10 o'clock.

The W. C.T.U. held their regular meeting yesterday at the Y.W.C.A. Although the weather was unfavorable there was a good attendance and a new member was secured.

OYSTER SUPPER AT PARK STREET

A most successful affair took place last night at the Park Street Baptist Church, under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society, when the annual oyster supper and concert was held in the parlours of the church. A goodly number sat down to the supper after which the following programme was very ably rendered in the Auditorium of the church. Mr. Harry Goodwin, president of the Helping Hand Bible Class, occupied the chair very acceptably. Addresses were also given by Dr. Sam. Luttrell, who preaches at Park Street tomorrow, and the pastor.

The programme was:

Doxology.
Prayer.
Opening remarks.
1 Mr. Hughes — Solo.
2 Miss Hill — Recitation.

HANDSOME NEW EDIFICE FOR KNOX CHURCH CONGREGATION

Dedication and Opening Services Sunday, December 11th -- Prominent Clergymen Coming -- Description of the Interior -- Will Seat 900

Sunday, Dec. 11, will usher in a joyous occasion for the pastor and congregation of Knox Presbyterian church.

Days and nights of planning will have passed. The results of untiring energy will stand before the people of Knox church, and the sincere wishes of the Lieut.-Governor of Ontario, who laid the corner stone, will have materialized to a very gratifying degree.

The new $25,000 edifice will be opened and dedicated for the glory of Him who has so wondrously blessed the work carried on since the first seeds were sown many years ago.

The pastor, Rev. H. J. Keith and his congregation will have every cause to feel proud of their new church. It is a big proposition to erect such a one as stands out so promising of fruitfulness at the corner of Rubidge and Wolfe streets.

This "City of Churches," too, will have added another to its list, and one that will occupy a prominent position in advancing the spiritual and social life of the community.

OPENING SERVICES.

At ten o'clock, on the above date, the dedication services will be conducted by the Moderator of the Presbytery, Rev. Dr. Marsh, of Springville.

Rev. Robert Johnston, of the American Presbyterian Church, Montreal, will preach, both morning and evening. Special and appropriate music is being arranged for.

On the following Monday evening Rev. Dr. Johnston is to give an address, a fowl supper being held between six and eight o'clock.

On Sunday, 18th, the Men's Brotherhood will meet at 9.30 in the morning. Rev. J. D. Morrow, of Toronto, a well known clergyman, will deliver an address, and in the afternoon a special Sabbath school rally will be held at three o'clock. At this meeting the Sunday school will make its offering of the chairs for the pulpit.

For the morning and evening service Rev. Prof. Law, who recently came out from Scotland as professor of Knox College, and to whom a short time ago old St. Andrew's Church, of Toronto, unsuccessfully extended a unanimous call, to succeed Dr. Milligan, has been secured.

On Christmas day Communion will be observed, and the evening service will be conducted by Rev. Robt. Pogue, pastor of St. Paul's church.

A HANDSOME EDIFICE.

There are four entrances to the new structure and two from the present church, which is joined at the north-west corner. The two front entrances are from Rubidge street, another is from Wolfe street, and the fourth is on the north side, it being the most convenient to and from the sheds, provided for horses and rigs.

By way of each entrance the main floor and gallery may be reached, and stairs to the basement commence immediately inside both the Wolfe street and north front entrances. Between the two passageways at the front leading directly to the body of the church, walled off in pressed brick, and with swinging doors at either end, is a vestibule, which may be used for a cloak or waiting room.

A short flight of steps lead from the Wolfe street entrance to a hall which runs to the north side door. Off this hall, and to the west, are the pastor's vestry, a room for the choir, one for the church managers, and the largest for the use of the ladies as a parlor. Smaller spaces are fitted up as toilet rooms. From this hall, also, two doors lead to the church proper, and two others are set apart, one for the pastor to enter the pulpit and the other for the choir members. Above these rooms and reached by a flight of stairs, at the north end of the hall is found a place of meeting for the Men's Brotherhood. Another door here leads to the gallery. From the hall beneath, stairs lead to the Boys' Club rooms, which, with a pantry, toilet room, and another space for the operating of a system which will ventilate the church are partitioned off from the basement, and leaving a large space to be utilized for other purposes as required. Here is installed the large furnace and boiler for the steam heating system.

HELPLESS CRIPPLE FROM RHEUMATISM

Five Boxes Of "Fruit-a-tives" Cured Her

4 HOME PLACE, TORONTO, DEC. 15th, 1909.

"I was a terrible sufferer from Rheumatism for nearly a year, and my right arm was swollen and the pain was fearful. All down the right side, the pain was dreadful, and I could hardly move for the agony. I was treated by two physicians but their medicine did me no good, and I tried numerous other remedies but received no benefit. I was simply a helpless cripple and suffered from Rheumatism all during last winter.

I saw "Fruit-a-tives" advertised in "The Telegram" and decided to try this remedy. After I had taken one box, I was much better and the pain less, and I continued the treatment with good hopes. When I had taken three boxes, I was so well that I could use my arm again and the pain was practically gone. After I had taken five boxes, I was entirely well again—no pain—no suffering—and now I am as WELL as I ever was.

The cure of my case by "Fruit-a-tives" was indeed splendid because all the doctors failed to even relieve me of my sufferings.

For the sake of others who may suffer from this terrible disease, Rheumatism, I give you permission to publish this statement."

MRS. LIZZIE BAXTER.

"Fruit-a-tives" is the only remedy that actually cures Rheumatism, and Sciatica because "Fruit-a-tives" is the only medicine that actually prevents Uric Acid being formed in any quantity in the body. If there is no excess of uric acid in the blood, there can be no Rheumatism.

"Fruit-a-tives" keeps the stomach clean—the liver active—the bowels regular—the kidney strong and the skin healthy. These are the organs that rid the body of all waste. When "Fruit-a-tives" so regulates the system that all waste is eliminated, then there can be no waste or "urea" to be changed into uric acid. Thus, there can be no uric acid in the blood, to inflame nerves and cause the pain which we know by the names of Rheumatism, Sciatica, Lumbago, Neuralgia. "Fruit-a-tives" will cure every trace of Rheumatism, Pain In The Back, Swollen Hands and Feet, and other troubles due to the blood being poisoned by uric acid.

If you are subject to Rheumatism, cure yourself now with "Fruit-a-tives" and be free of pain this winter.

50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size 25c. At all dealers, or sent postpaid on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa, Ont.

LOCAL PICKING IN THE BIG GAME TO-DAY

To-day's game at Hamilton will go down in football history as the greatest of the great, and it is worthy of note that the two teams stand in the ranks of Canada's amateurs.

The local feeling as to the winner has been fanned considerably during the past few days, and the majority of those who say "Tigers" are more solid than those calling Varsity.

Here are a few of the local selections. J. H. Knapman went up to Tigerland this morning. Last evening he was very enthusiastic an called the Simpsonites. Joe Picar takes the same card. Chris. Grahar fancied the Jungle Kings, as did als Eddie Wright. "Billie" McIlroy gav the Mountain City fourteen the edge, and Rev. Riddiford could see nothin but a defeat for the Toronto team. With Charlie Banks it was easy pick ing for the team at home.

Dr. McPherson picked Varsity, an Walter Hughes was all for the Bul dog. Tommy McDonough smiled fo the college boys, and W. J. O'Brie said it like this VARSITY.

MEN-YOU NEED NERVE

Wonderful Nervous System

EARLY INDISCRETIONS AND EXCESSES HAVE UNDERMINED YOUR SYSTEM

The nerves control all actions of the body so that anything that debilitates them will weaken all organs of the system. Early Indiscretions and Excesses have ruined thousands of promising young men. Unnatural Drains sap their vigor and vitality and they never develop to a proper condition of manhood. They remain weaklings, mentally, physically and sexually. How you feel? Are you nervous and weak, despondent and gloomy, specks before the eyes with dark circles under them, weak back, kidneys irritable, palpitation of the heart, bashful, debilitating dreams, sediment in urine, pimples on the face, eyes sunken, hollow cheeks, careworn expression, poor memory, lifeless, distrustful, lack energy and strength, tired mornings, restless nights, changeable moods, premature decay, bone pains, hair loose, etc.

ONE MAN TO SHOW FOR $300,000

Since 1902 the St. Louis Browns and the Cardinals have spent for recruits an average of probably $15,000 each annually. In that time the teams have averaged 20 new men per season. Each year, besides those given extended trials, a number of youngsters are experimented with, just to see what's in them. In ten years the two teams have tried out close to 400 men, and yet Ed. THE NEW TROPHIES

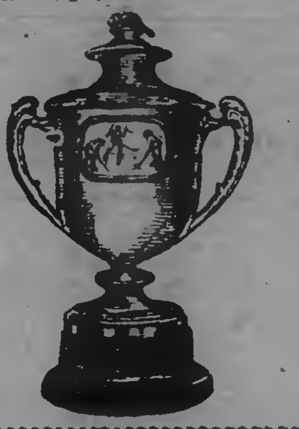
Presented to the Ontario Hockey Association by J. Ross Robertson

To the J. Ross Robertson Silver Challenge Trophy presented to the O.H.A. in 1898, Mr. Robertson has now added two more beautiful cups.

The above illustration shows the new junior cup presented at the O. H. A. annual meeting last Saturday. It is exceedingly graceful, with slender handles delicately engraved, and a design of maple leaves on the bowl of the cup, realistic in treatment and artistic and decorative, and of excellent workmanship, and the lid is surrounded with entwined maple leaves. The diameter of the cup is 8 inches. The cup is of sterling silver, height 18½ inches without pedestal, 23¼ inches with pedestal of polished ebonized wood, and weighs 74 ounces.

The Intermediate O. H. A. Cup is a beautifully proportioned, massive cup, with handles ornamented and elaborated with maple leaf design and the lid crowned with a beaver. A panel well modelled in relief, illustrating a feature of the game, is graven on the front. The cup is of sterling silver. The height of the cup is 22½ inches without pedestal, or 27½ inches with pedestal. The diameter is 11 inches. The pedestal is of polished ebonized wood. Weight, 153 ounces.



PRO. HOCKEY FOR THE EAST PROPOSED

Five Teams Likely in Interprovincial League—Moncton Player is One of the Promoters

With indications pointing favorably at this date, it is practically assured that the Maritime Provinces will for the season of 1910-1911 witness the banner year in hockey circles. A movement has been on foot for the past month or so having to do with the formation of an interprovincial professional hockey league. Robbie Norman of Moncton has been one of the principal movers. It is proposed that the league be a five-team one, with Halifax, Moncton, Amherst, New Glasgow and North Sydney contributing teams. Plans have been matured to a stage where it is assured that four of the named towns and cities are hand in glove with the movement. Amherst seems to be the only town that demurs. It appears that as the Ramblers own the rink and are more or less favorable to the amateur game they have been somewhat backward in accepting the proposal.

MANITOBA TO HAVE BIG HOCKEY WAR

Senior Amateur Organizations in Battle Royal—Teams Turned Down Form New League

It looks as if Winnipeg is to see a hockey war this winter between two senior amateur organizations. About five years ago there was a battle royal between professionalism and amateurism. The amateurs won out. Last year the dove of peace hovered over the local hockey camp, but now it is war again. When the Winnipeg Senior Hockey League met for organization recently there were, in addition to last year's teams, no less than four applications for admittance. One of the old teams, the Winnipegs, dropped out, leaving Varsity and Victorias. The new teams wanting admittance to senior company were the Monarchs and Falcons, the two leaders of the Intermediate League of last year, the Winnipeg Amateur Athletic Association and Brandon. The league decided that three senior teams was all Winnipeg could support and finally admitted the Monarchs, making a three-team City Senior League. Brandon was turned down, as it is said it would be hard to go out of town except on Saturdays. The teams which were turned down are now getting together to form a new senior league. Kenora has been invited to join, which would make a four-team league, with the W.A.A.A., Kenora, Brandon and Falcons. It promises to result in the keenest hockey rivalry Manitoba has had for years.

THREE STARS OF T.A.A.C. RUGBY TEAM

Scrimmager Bob Cory, captain and centre-half, Reg. De Gruchy, and "Dode" Burkart, outside wing. Cory did not play in Saturday's game against Varsity at Toronto.

From the reports that continue to come in, the prospect is that Mr. Geers' winter stable at Memphis will be one of the largest that he has ever had.

Albia, the sister of Vice Commodore, 2:11, now carries a record of 2:10¾. At one time during the season the mare could easily have been marked below 2:10.

Two trotters of names so similar that at times they have become so confused have been racing this year. One is Sheeney, the roan gelding by Wiggins, 2:19¼, who has taken a record of 2:15¼; the other Cheeney, the three-year-old filly by Medium Line, 2:10, who has acquired a mark of 2:16¼.

10 GOOD REASONS WHY THE "FORD" AUTOMOBILE IS A GOOD BUY

BECAUSE it is built of venadium steel, the best material that money can buy.

BECAUSE it will travel from 25 to 35 miles on 1 gallon of gasoline.

BECAUSE it has more power per pound of load than any car built.

BECAUSE it will climb any hill on high gear that any other car will, and many that many of them cannot climb.

BECAUSE it has larger tires and more cubic inches of air spacein them per pound of load than any other car.

BECAUSE it will travel more miles on one set of tires than any other car.

BECAUSE it has an automatic cooling and an automatic oiling system, doing away with all gears and pump for this purpose, thus insuring simplicity and eliminating many troubles.

BECAUSE the whole car is the simplest that brains can invent.

BECAUSE it is built by a man who has never designed a failure, therefore you have no chance to take.

BECAUSE Henry Ford has capital enough to buy and pay spot cash (and does it) for enough material to build 25,000 cars at one time (one year's output) and thus save one-third the cost.

For these reasons he can give you a 5 passenger touring car complete for $975.00.

THE BEST REMEDY

For Women—Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Belleville, Ont.—"I was so weak and worn out from a female weakness that I concluded to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I took several bottles of it, and I gained strength so rapidly that it seemed to make a new woman of me. I can do as good a day's work as I ever did. I sincerely bless the day that I made up my mind to take your medicine for female weakness, and I am exceedingly grateful to you for your kind letters, as I certainly profited by them. I give you permission to publish this any time you wish."—MRS. ALBERT WICKETT, Belleville, Ontario, Canada.

THE CHIVALROUS JUDGES GAVE "DRAW" AS VERDICT

Havelock, Nov. 26.—Representatives of the Girls and boys of the High School, debated in a very interesting and creditable manner at the Literary Society Meeting on Friday evening when the problem, "Resolve that Tobacco does More Harm to the World than Fashion," was discussed Of course, every person knows the side that the girls took and the way they went after the tobacco users, should have reformed the most hopeless case. Right from the chewers who indulge during the church service in the country church, to the man who wafts the offensive cigar smoke on the street, the question was brought. But the boys were not to be outdone and the way they talked hobble skirt and other fool fashions, that the ordinary man known by sight but not by name, should keep the women of Havelock from asking their husbands to mortgage their home in order to provide everything that fashion calls for. The arguments of both sides brought an even number of points, and the judges had to make it a draw. The representatives of the girls were:—Misses M. Vandervoort, M. Wannamaker, Leta Herrinton, and C. Falkner; and of the boys, L. Bennet, C. Barlow and W. Holdcroft.

Miss Pearl Brown also contributed a reading.

The Society decided to purchase class pins for the members.

WEAK, SICKLY BABIES MAKE HOME WRETCHED

No home is happy where there is a sick baby. The sufferings of the little one makes the whole household wretched, for what mother or father would not rather suffer themselves than to see their little one suffer. But there is no reason for wretched homes because baby is ail. Baby's Own Tablets will cure all the minor ills of babyhood and childhood; not only that, but an occasional dose of the Tablets will keep baby well. Thousands of mothers have found happiness through the Tablets making their little ones well and happy. Among them is Mrs. C. C. Roe, of Georgetown, Ont., who writes; "I can heartily recommend Baby's Own Tablets as a help to the baby during the hot summer season. We have used them and are much pleased with their results." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Revenge.

"Stop!" The brakes of the motor were suddenly applied, a pandemonium of whirring wheels ensued, and the motorist came face to face with Constable Coppem, who had been hiding in the hedge.

"Excuse me, sir," said the portly policeman, taking out his notebook and pencil, "but you exceeded the speed limit by two miles over a measured piece of road."

"I have done nothing of the kind," retorted the motorist, "and, besides"—

"Well, if you don't believe me I'll call the sergeant, bein' as it was 'im as took the time. He's in the pigsty yonder."

"Don't trouble, Robert," the other hastened to reply. "I would sooner pay fifty fines than disturb the sergeant at his meals!"—London Answers.

Faithful Woman.

I tell you that women, as a rule, are more faithful than men—ten times more faithful. I never saw a man pursue his wife into the very ditch and dust of degradation and take her in his arms. I never saw a man stand at the shore where she was wrecked, waiting for the waves to bring back her corpse to his arms, but I have seen a woman with her white arms lift a man from the mire of degradation and hold him to her bosom as if he were an angel.—Ingersoll.

PILES CURED IN 6 TO 14 DAYS

PAZO OINTMENT is guaranteed to cure any Case of Itching, Blind, Bleeding or Protruding Piles in 6 to 14 Days or money refunded. 50c

The sportsman was explaining to a few of his uninitiated friends:

"If you don't like venison," he said, "it is because it has not been prepared properly. I think I know the kind you have tried to eat, and I agree with you it is not fit. After the deer has been shot the carcass probably has been allowed to lie around until the blood has discolored the meat and really has almost tainted it. Few hunters dress their game carefully enough. As soon as a deer is killed the carcass should be thoroughly bled, skinned, the entrails removed and the meat hung up in the dry air for some hours. Thorough and prompt bleeding is of the utmost importance. Venison prepared in this way is comparatively light in color—that is, it is a clear, bright red, and the fat is white and clean. There is no strong, rank taste."—New York Press.

BOARD OF TRADE DISCUSS LAKEFIELD TRAIN SERVICE

Present Service Inadquate and Not to the Wishes of People.

Lakefield News:—A well attended meeting of the Transportation section of the Board of Trade was held in the town hall to discuss the Lakefield train service, and to consider the following letter from the District Passenger Agent of the G.T.R.:

Mr. W. M. Graham
Chairman Transportation Committee, Board of Trade, Lakefield:

Dear Sir,—Re your favor of 17th inst., the matter has again been placed before our people, but there does not seem much chance of meeting your wishes which would necessitate opening of engine shed at Lakefield and business through from Lakefield to Toronto and return in one day is very limited.

If we had a train from Peterborough 7 a.m. arriving Lakefield at 7.30 leaving 7.45 a.m., arriving Peterborough 8.15 a.m., instead of train Nos. 36 and 37, it would enable your people to connect with Toronto and Belleville, but would not get them back the same day. Would this be an improvement and satisfy them more than at present?

Yours truly,
J. D. McDONALD, D.P.A.

The matter was freely discussed by those present as to the service given us, which was entirely inadequate to the wants or the wishes of the people, and the number of people from Lakefield and vicinity who drove over to Peterborough to make connections for Toronto owing to the fact that the G.T.R. will not give them morning connections, invariably go C.P.R. As one gentleman expressed it, "the arrangement of the passenger service from Lakefield at present is such that if arranged on purpose it could not be better for the C.P.R." After the matter had been thoroughly discussed with Mr. Jenny, Travelling Passenger Agent of the G.T.R., who was present, the following resolution was moved by Mr. F. J. Lillicrap, and carried unanimously:—"That while the alternative service suggested by Mr. McDonald in his letter of the 17th inst. might be a slight improvement, in so far as the local passenger traffic between Lakefield and Peterborough is concerned by giving an hour or two longer for business in Peterborough, it would be no benefit to Lakefield and surrounding country in so far as the Toronto and outside passenger service is concerned, because people here desiring to go by G.T.R. from Lakefield, unless there was an evening train to bring them back the same day, would still drive to Peterborough as at present and take the C.P.R. Therefore nothing short of an early morning service to Toronto and return to Lakefield the same day would satisfy the people or secure the passenger traffic for the G.T.R."

Mr. Jenny will lay the matter before the proper authorities, and we hope he will be successful in securing for us the new train service asked for at an early date.

BRIDE WON'T JOIN GROOM

Says Richard Croker in Speaking of Possible Re-union Between Daughter and Breen—May go to Europe and May Not Says Latter.

New York, Nov. 25.—Richard Croker, who has just returned from Europe, said yesterday at the Democratic Club:

"My daughter Ethel is now with her mother in Paris, and will remain there. There is no truth in the report that she has thought of re-union. She will not return to Mr. Breen. I have nothing further to say."

It had been rumored that Breen would sail in a few days for Europe claim his wife, having recently made considerable money. When asked concerning it, Breen said; "I have nothing to say. I have not seen Mr. Croker, nor have I any intention of seeing him. Perhaps I will sail for Europe—perhaps I will not."

Breen, it will be remembered, was the New York groom who a few weeks ago was reported to have been engaged by Hon. J. R. Stratton for his Peterborough stables. An account of the elopement of last spring with the daughter of Tammany's boss was then printed.

Mr. William Bathgate, formerly with the McDonald Drug Company, is now in the real estate business in Calgary and is doing a fine business. He thinks there is no place like the West.

FRED WHITCROFT

The majority of Peterboro people know that Fred. Whitcroft went to Edmonton and are familiar with his hockey abilities and his efforts to land the Stanley Cup. It will no doubt be of interest however to many to know that he is now engaged in the ranching business in the West near Edmonton and doing well at it.

JACK McFADDEN

Mr. Jack McFadden was connected with the clothing firm of Merrell & Meredith for some years, and left left here to accept a similar position in the West. Mr. Emmet Doherty accompanied him at the time as far as Fort William. Jack is now in charge of one of the departments of Garden's Furnishing Store in Calgary

HOW THE DUPED GOT WISE TO THE DUPER

Lindsay Post.

In connection with the bursting of the Thomas Shoe Co. bubble, a great many statements are being made as to how suspicions first became aroused regarding the standing of David Burton Thomas, as well as the industry he was supposed to represent.

The Post has been making enquiries on this matter, and has learned that as far back as Nov. 11th inquiries had been made by a local institution regarding his record, and also as to whether there was such a shoe company as he claimed to represent.

As was mentioned in Thursday's Post, Thomas interviewed Mr. H. A. Holmes, of the Bank of Commerce, with the object of opening up an account. He informed the manager that he had $50,000 he wished to deposit, and upon being asked where the money was, he pretended to be offended and left the bank. Mr. Holmes immediately got busy.

As will be seen from the following despatches, the manager of the Canadian Bank of Commerce has made careful inquiries concerning Thomas, and the replies received will make interesting reading. It will be noticed that the letters of inquiry are dated Nov. 10th and 14th.

Dear Sir.—A Mr. D. B. Thomas, who claims to be of the firm of Thomas Bros., called on us to-day with a view of conducting business through the bank here. From what we can gather it is his intention to build a shoe factory, and we would be glad if you can give us all the information you can as to his or their financial standing, character and capacity.

We understand they do their business with you in Cleveland.

Thanking you in anticipation for a prompt reply.

Yours truly.

If you are sure they are Cleveland people, and will give us their address, we will be pleased to investigate them further.

DEALINGS WITH HOME BANK.

When Mr. D. B. Thomas asked for an advance from the Home Bank he presented a $10,000 note as collateral security. Mr. McGill immediately communicated with Cincinnati in order to glean necessary information. He received word to the effect that an effort was being made to secure it.

Now, in regard to the Peel County farm, Mr. McGill communicated with Port Credit, and received the following reply:—

Port Credit, Nov. 22.
Home Bank, Lindsay:

Campbell Farm and Thomas unknown. Not on assessment roll. Sale bills arrived, but not disturbed.
STIRLING BANK.

This despatch was received just half an hour before Thomas took his departure from town per C.P.R. and Mr. McGill immediatelyy took action.

WAS NOT THOMAS

Word reached Lindsay Thursday evening that D. B. Thomas, the absconding boot and shoe and glove factory promoter, had been arrested at Strathroy, and the news spread around town quicker (to use an old saying) than one could say "Jack Robinson"

To ascertain the truth of the rumor a Warder man immediately called up Chief Vincent and was informed that a man had been arrested in Strathroy, suspected of being the said D. B. Thomas, but on looking into the Strathroy man's past movements, it was found that he had been in town during the past ten days, so that he was made a free man again.

TOLSTOI

Received Cheers Where Czar was Greeted With Silence — A Disciple of Simple Life

Writing to the London (Eng.) News on Tolstoi's last birthday, Rothay Reynolds said:—

It may be that a future age will venerate the man of letters, the great novelist, the writer of 'Peace and War' and of 'Anna Karenina,' and forget Tolstoi the teacher; but to us he is above all the idealist, the apostle of peace, love, and simplicity, who has made his voice heard above the din of the modern world.

HIS POPULARITY.

The extraordinary popularity enjoyed by him in Russia was demonstrated a few months ago, when he passed through Moscow. At the railway station and in the streets enormous crowds gathered and cheered him. I have seen the Czar drive through his capital. A few men uncovered as he passed, but nobody cheered, and there was no sign of enthusiasm; that which was denied the autocrat of all the Russias was given to the old man in a peasant's blouse.

THE EXPLANATION.

I have sometimes asked myself what is the reason for the veneration in which Russians hold Tolstoi. The question is a pertinent one, because there are few who attempt to mould their lives on his teaching. The answer to the question is, I think, partly to be found in the fact that autocracy and orthodoxy, the two pillars of the Russian State, have found worst enemy in Tolstoi. The Tolstoi who preaches the simpler life may be regarded as a dreamer—"let us crown ourselves with roses before they be withered" is a more popular doctrine in contemporary Russia—but when the old man rose up, as he lately did, and in wrath denounced the wholesale sacrifice of life, by which Stolypin has established the new triumph of autocracy he was listened to, as were the prophets who rebuked the tyrant and the avenger. His appeal for mercy, and the stanching of the stream of blood with which the premier was drenching Russia made him the spokesman of his fellow-countrymen. They saw in him a defender and a champion, whom the Government could not touch.

Y.M.C.A. NOTES

Friday night the "Y" Scouts had their usual drill at the armories, which was most successful. A number of new recruits were sworn in, and then the boys made their way back to the association, where a very pleasant hour was spent. This being their first social night. While they were at drill the social committee of the Boys' Department got busy, and as a result a most tempting spread was awaiting their return. Some boys were heard to remark, "Gee, drilling makes a fellow hungry," and then proceeded to prove same. While the boys were enjoying themselves in this way their Scout master added to the evening's entertainment by telling a story that was most suitable for the occasion. This story was followed by one from the secretary. Then a few words of advice were given the boys by Mr. Strickland, of Toronto, who is interested in the Boy Scouts, after which God Save Our King was sung, and a most enjoyable evening brought to a close.

Sunday Morning Boys' Bible Class meets as usual at 10 o'clock.

CRYSTAL THEATRE SUNDAY NIGHT.

The song service to be held on Sunday night in the Crystal Theatre promises to be one of the best this season. The quartette is in good shape and will sing two good selections. A new hymn entitled "To the Harvest Field" will be sung. This is one of the best of the Alexander collection. Come and learn it. If you know it, come and help others learn it. The orchestra will accompany the singing as usual, which means good music.

LLOYD-GEORGE SAYS HE IS NOT TRYING TO UPSET INSTITUTIONS

Centre of the Attack on the Lords Declares That the Upper House Cannot Legislate Sympathetically as it Does Not Know Anything About the Misery Outside of its Well Kept Circle.

London, Nov. 28.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—Right Hon. David Lloyd-George, the itinerant storm centre of the struggle, addressed several meetings at Edinburgh on Saturday. He declared that the referendum would be a prohibitive tariff against Liberalism, and again attacked the House of Lords with a vigor which will earn for him additional titles to those he already possesses, such as Limehorser, Mile-end Mobmonger, Specialist in Offal.

He denied that the Liberal policy was revolutionary. Even the members for Wales, the most radical portion of the kingdom, had no interest in overturning institutions or assailing property. He declared that the brilliance of the sunshine of the peers' lives blinded them to the squalor around them. They could not legislate because, while sympathy without knowledge was impossible.

F. E. Smith, in the course of a speech at Burnley, made reference to Redmond's "American dollars," and said he wanted no foreign country to help redress the constitution. "Let them keep their breath to cool their own porridge."

Lord Hugh Cecil emphasized the danger of unchecked tyranny of chance majorities in the Commons.

T. P. O'Connor, speaking at London, stated that if the Tories could get a subscription from Laurier for tariff reform, there would be nothing heard about dollars.

The Tories are making urgent appeals to the moderate man among the Liberals, and profess to be afraid of apathy on this occasion, but nothing else. The Opposition expect to win half a dozen seats on the balance in London, but are looking with hope, rather than confidence, to Lancashire. The Stock Exchange wagering shows that the opinion of the brokers is that the Radical chances are declining.

Winston Spencer Churchill, Home Secretary, returning to London Saturday night, after a speech at Bradford, was attacked in the train by a male suffragette with a dog whip, who cried out "Take that, you cur!"

Two detectives who accompanied Mr. Churchill, parried the blow and overpowered the Secretary's assailant, who is believed to be a man who interrupted Mr. Churchill during his address and was expelled from the meeting after a violent struggle.

When the train arrived at London three women tried to assault the Home Secretary, but the detectives drove them off.

A little more than a year ago—Nov. 13, 1909—Mr. Churchill had an adventure with a suffragette and a dog whip, not unlike the one on Saturday except that the suffragette was a woman. As the Minister was descending with his wife from a train at Bristol a well-dressed woman broke through the crowd and lashed at him with a dog whip. "Take that, you brute," she cried.

The election address of Arthur J. Balfour, leader of the Opposition in the House of Commons, is a brief document. It declares that the Unionist program of legislation is practically the same as the last general election, and asserts that behind the single chamber conspiracy lurks socialism and home rule.

"It is because both Nationalists and Socialists are aware that their darling projects are not in harmony with the considered will of the people," says Mr. Balfour, "that they press for the abolishment of the only constitutional safeguard, which at critical moments will enable that will to prevail."

The Opposition leader also refers with the greatest brevity to the alternative scheme for the reform of the House of Lords, which Lord Lansdowne proposed.

New Post Is After Asquith.

London, Nov. 28.—William Watson who obtained great notoriety by his attack on Mrs. Asquith in "The Woman With the Serpent's Tongue," came out this past week with some verses directed against that lady's husband. The Morning Post accorded the hospitality of its columns to the poem, which is entitled "The Chief."

TWENTY-FOUR GIRLS BURNED ALIVE IN FIRE AT NEWARK, N.J.

Factory Catches Fire and Working Girls Rush to the Windows—Some Strike Life Net, Some Fall on the Firemen, and Fifteen Crash on the Stone Pavement Sixty Feet Below.

Newark, N.J., Nov. 28.—In ten minutes 24 girls were burned alive Saturday morning, or crushed to death on the pavement by leaping from the windows and fire escapes of the four-storey brick factory at Orange and High streets here.

Fifty were taken to hospitals, of which two may die. Among the injured is Jose Sloan, deputy fire chief, who was overtaken by the falling wall and buried in bricks and rubbish. The rush of the flames was so incredibly swift and threw such unreasoning terror into the huddled working girls on the top storey that the body of one was found still seated on a charred stool beside the machine at which she had been busy when the first cry of "fire" petrified her with fright.

Horrible as must have been what went on in the smoke of that crowded upper room, what befell outside in the sunlight was more horrible yet. The building was furiously inflammable, and the first gush of flames had cut off all possibility of escape by the stairways. The elevator made one trip, but took down no passengers and never came back.

The only exit was by two narrow fire escapes, the lowest platforms of which were 25 feet from the street. Onto these overcrowded and steep lines, scorched, dancing hot by the jets from lower windows, pressed forward a mob of women, blind with panic, driven by the fire and the others behind them.

A net had been spread beneath the windows, and the girls began to jump. "Like rats out of a burning bin," was the way a fireman described that pell-mell descent. They poured out of the windows, rolled up on the heads of those below them and cascaded off the fire escape to the pavement, 60 feet below. Some of them stood in the windows outlined against the flames and jumped clear; others from the landings, still others from the steps where they stood. The air was full of them, and they fell everywhere into the net, on the necks of firemen, and 15 of them on the hard stone slabs.

When the awful rain ceased there were eight dead in the street and the gutters ran red. Seven were so badly crushed that they died in hospitals.

Clouds of smoke and showers of burning embers spread over the city and rained down on neighboring roofs. As the news flew—and it lost nothing in the telling—

JAP PREMIER MAY RESIGN

Victoria, Nov. 28.—Count Komura's health, according to Japanese papers, received here, is such that his resignation as Prime Minister is expected at any moment. Numerous suggestions are made as to a probable successor, the names of Baron Kato and Baron Motono being suggested.

When the count underwent a surgical operation a few weeks ago the physicians thought he would recover quickly, but it is feared that the operation was too great a tax on his strength.

600 FEDERALS ROUTED REBELS

Mexico City, Nov. 28.—An engagement took place at Chihuahua yesterday between 600 federal troops and 400 Maderistan, in which the rebels were routed, with a loss of 13 killed and many wounded. A number of federals were wounded, including one officer. The revolutionists were driven into the mountains.

San Angelo, Mexico, Nov. 28.—That 80 insurgents were ordered shot by the Government at Puebla, instead of forty, as told in press despatches, is the assertion made in letters received yesterday.

CANADIANS TO VISIT INDIES

Kingston, Jamaica, Nov. 28.—To encourage trade between Canada and the West Indies, it is announced here, business houses in the Dominion are arranging to send a large party of commercial men to visit Jamaica and some of the other islands this winter. A steamer of the Canadian Pacific Railway will convey the expedition. Trade conferences will be held on board during the cruise and at the various ports of call.

It is further announced that the steamer will carry nearly 1,000 tons of samples of Canadian products and manufactures for exhibition purposes.

INFANTS STARVING

Chicago, Nov. 28.—The citizens' strike committee, which has investigated conditions in the families of striking garment workers, reported yesterday that 5,000 babies are starving here, as a result of the labor war. The report was made at a meeting at Hull House, and a special babies' milk fund was started at once by members of the committee.

PRO-NAVY MEETING AT ST. JOHNS, QUE.

Montreal, Nov. 28.—The pro-navy demonstration, held at St. Johns, Que., on Saturday afternoon, was attended by 1,500 people, and speeches were delivered by Hon. L. P. Brodeur, Hon. R. Dandurand, Dr. Beland, M.P.,; Joseph Demers, M.P. for the County of St. Johns, Iberville; E. Lapointe, M.P., and others. There were a few interruptions, but on the whole the explanations of the Minister of Marine were listened to by a sympathetic crowd. It is understood that a series of such gatherings will be held throughout the province, and it may be that another test of public opinion will be taken at an early date.

Hon. L. P. Brodeur declared that he was responsible in a great measure for the bill, and he congratulated himself on the fact that the navy bill is the most patriotic act ever put on the statute book by the Cabinet of Sir Wilfrid Laurier.

Dr. Beland, M.P. for Beauce, asked his compatriots to pause and realize the fact that there is but one French province out of the nine composing the confederation, and at the way they are now going it will not take much to have the other eight allied against the lone province, and everyone knows which would be the sufferer in the long run.

WOODSTOCK'S NEW CHIMES

Woodstock, Nov. 28.—Edward Taylor, aged nine, lies at the point of death in the hospital as the result of being kicked by a colt, fracturing his skull.

A chime of ten bells pealed out from new St. Paul's Church last night in the playing of "The Maple Leaf," the Doxology and other airs. The chimes were purchased with the $4,000 left the church by the late William Gray, and were played yesterday for the first time.

Negro Lynched.

Mayo, Fla., Nov. 28.—Richard Lowe, a negro, was lynched near here on Saturday for entering the bedroom of the daughter of R. M. Cobb in this city late Friday night. Cobb was awakened by his daughter's screams, and went to investigate. As he entered the room, the negro jumped through the window. A searching party arrested the negro, who was identified by a portion of his hat.

Committed For Trial.

Cayuga, Nov. 27.—The adjourned preliminary hearing of the Smeltzers was heard yesterday at Selkirk before Magistrates Harris and Rusholm. Mrs. Smeltzer was bound over in $2,000 sureties to appear for trial, and Lloyd Smeltzer was sent up for trial, no bail allowed, the charge being "issuing threatening letters." The charge against Leah Smeltzer was withdrawn.

SECRETARY OF UNION TO DIE

Paris, Nov. 28.—A jury in the court of assizes at Rouen has imposed the death penalty upon Secretary Durand of the Coal Handlers Union, who was convicted of instigating the murder of Foreman Donge, during the strike on the docks at Harve in September. Donge abandoned his comrades and returned to work. Soon afterwards he was beaten to death in the streets. The actual participants in the crime were condemned to terms of from 8 to 15 years' imprisonment at hard labor.

The evidence introduced showed that on the day preceding the murder, Secretary Durand introduced a motion "to get rid of Donge," and that the union adopted the motion with but a single dissenting voice. The leaders of the general confederation of labor in Paris charge that the verdict was inspired by Premier Briand's recent attitude toward trade unions, and have called a public meeting to protest against the sentences.

FOR GOVERNOR OF MANITOBA

Winnipeg, Nov. 28.—It is rumored here that D. C. Cameron, defeated Liberal candidate for the House of Commons at the last general elections, will succeed Sir Daniel McMillan as next Lieutenant-Governor of Manitoba. Mr. Cameron has had considerable legislative experience in Ontario, and it is expected that the announcement of his appointment will be approved by all. He is manager of the Rat Portage Lumber Co., one of the biggest lumber companies in the west, and is prominent in the business, social and political life of the province.

NO TARIFF CHANGES

Washington, Nov 28.—The probability of President Taft recommending any tariff legislation in the coming session disappeared Saturday when Chairman H. C. Emery of the tariff board called at the White House. Mr Emery told the President that it would be practically impossible for the board to get data ready to submit to Congress for several months. The board is now at work on pulp and paper and the woollen schedules.

HIS LAST WORDS

Crippen's Affectionate Letters to Miss Leneve Published in London Papers.

London, Nov. 28.—The last statement of Dr. Crippen, who was hanged on Nov. 23, at Pentonville Prison, is published in a Sunday paper, in the form of two final letters, written to Ethel Leneve, one of which is dated Nov. 22. The letters are not reproduced in their entirety, it being explained that they contained certain personal confidences, but nothing in in the nature of a confession.

Crippen throughout declares his innocence, and hope that it will one day be revealed. The letters, which are printed as one, begins with protestations of passionate love for the girl, and repeats constantly the phrase: "God help us to be brave in the face of the end, now so near." Crippen continues:

"How can I endure to take a last look at your dear face. What agony must I go through at last, when you disappear forever from my eyes. I am comforted in thinking that, throughout the years of friendship, never have I passed one unkind word, or given one reproachful look to her whom I loved best in life, to whom I have given myself heart and soul, wholly, entirely, forever."

Crippen asks that Leneve have his body cremated, and, if possible, obtain the ashes, and dispose of them as she deem best. He complains that his statement, published on Nov. 20, omitted his criticisms of the crown's evidence, with reference to the scar and the absence of the navel, which he considered most important, and proceeds exhaustively to analyze the evidence on these points. He asks that Miss Leneve goes to no further expense in trying to secure further evidence, adding: "I can safely leave further evidence to a just God."

He expressed the hope that Miss Leneve will go to "Mrs. H.," where she will be free from the lying tales of newspaper men, and concludes:

"To-morrow I will be in God's hands. I have perfect faith that He will let my spirit be with you always."

The paper prints a fac-simile of Crippen's will, bequeathing everything to Miss Leneve.

THE TIGERS WERE BEATEN

Hamilton, Nov. 28.—The great University of Toronto Rugby football scoring machine overwhelmed the Hamilton team here on Saturday in the final game for the Canadian championship by 16 to 7. The Tiger is in his lair, and the Varsity bulldog who chased him there went away from Hamilton with his jaws fiercely set on the greatest honor to be won on a Canadian football gridiron. "Dooley" of the famous Varsity canine, decorated in his blue and white blanket, was a living picture of "What we have we'll hold."

More than twelve thousand spectators saw the Intercollegiate champions beat the winners of the Interprovincial championship. Other thousands were outside the enclosure trying in vain to get in. They rushed the fences, only to be driven back by mounted police until finally, by sheer force of numbers, they overcame the officers and joined the cheering throng inside. The football centres of the country sent their quota to add to the thousands who went from Toronto and the Hamiltonians who saw their favorites humbled by the splendid student team.

It is known that four choice seats in the grand stand brought $100, and for days before the game exorbitant prices were charged by speculators who had secured tickets. The streets of this city on Saturday were a riot of blue and white and yellow and black. The football game was before all else, and the contest, with the incidents attendant upon it, was one of the most exciting and interesting spectacles ever seen on a Canadian field of sport.

The celebrations of the Varsity supporters in Hamilton and Toronto were hilarious, but not more than usually violent.

CANADIANS DO BADLY THIS YEAR

Chicago, Nov. 28.—Canadians have not done nearly as well this year at the International Live Stock Show as usual.

Canadian exhibitors stand sixth in cattle, sixth in sheep and ninth in swine.

In the judging competition, the students from the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph, failed to do better than seventh, while Manitoba was fourth. First honors went to Missouri, with Nebraska second.

Michael Cudahy Dead.

Chicago, Nov. 28.—Michael Cudahy, founder of the packing firm bearing his name, died last night at a hospital here of pneumonia. He had been ill for five days.

Mr. Cudahy was born in Ireland Dec. 7, 1841. He came to the United States with his parents in 1849, the family settling at Milwaukee, Wis. When a boy of fifteen, he became an employe in a Milwaukee packing house.

N. S. COAST STORM SWEPT

Halifax, Nov. 28.—For the past twenty-four hours the Nova Scotia coast has been swept by hurricane weather, which has played havoc with the telephone and telegraph wires, and delayed shipping.

The Allan liner Virginian, the first homeward bound mail steamer, which sailed from St. John Friday afternoon, and should have reached Halifax Saturday morning, and sailed for Liverpool Saturday night, did not make port until yesterday morning. After rounding the Nova Scotia coast, Captain Gambell ran into the teeth of the storm, and was forced to slow down to five knots an hour. A blinding snowstorm was raging, and it was with the greatest difficulty that the ship was kept on her course.

In the Bay of Fundy the D.A.R. liner Yarmouth encountered the gale, and Robert Tupper of Round Hill, Annapolis, who was returning from Upper Canada with his bride from their honeymoon trip, was washed overboard and drowned.

In attempting to cross Halifax harbor in a gasoline boat Saturday night a machinist named Wambolt, was swept out of his boat by the seas and drowned.

LATE TICKS FROM WIRES

Mrs. Ada Slade, Toronto, gashed her throat with her husband's razor Saturday morning.

Harry Spalding of Winnipeg was killed by Nicola Bryska, who struck him over the head with a shovel.

The tug Saucy Jim was burned at the Christian Islands, and the tug Alaska was burned off Tobermory.

Bishop Fallon last night declared that the report that he had been called to Rome in the bilingual school or any other question was news to him.

Reva Green, a young girl from Detroit, and a companion, have disappeared from St. Mary's Academy at Windsor, and Detroit police are searching for them.

Huron County farmers met here on Saturday afternoon and passed a resolution in favor of reducing the tariff on farm implments, saddlery, woollen goods and clothing.

L. M. Keating, night operator on the Grand Trunk Pacific at Oscar went shooting last Tuesday, and has not returned. Searching parties are unable to find any trace of him.

The Methodist Church at Ilderton, near London, was destroyed by fire last evening, before the service. The fire started from an overheated furnace. The loss will be $6,000, well insured.

Lemuel Harmon, aged 52, shot and killed his wife and himself at Albany Saturday night. Their dead bodies were found early yesterday by Frank Harmon, their 18-year-old son, who was returning from a straw ride.

500 FLIERS IN THE WORLD

Paris, Nov. 28.—Prof. Sorea, lecturing before the civil engineers, said the dangers of aviation should not be exaggerated. The Aero Club of France has issued over 270 licenses and the total number of aviators in the world is about five hundred. The deaths have been about six per cent. The total distance flown may be estimated at 125,000 miles, or one death for 4,166 2-3 miles.

A movement for an international exhibition in Paris in 1920 was started this week by a number of senators acting in behalf of the commerce and industry group in the Senate who visited the Minister of Commerce and urged that such exhibitions ameliorate international relations and stimulate the prosperity of the country.

STENOGRAPHER TIRED OF LIFE

Toronto, Nov. 28.—"My head is burning now, and I was never properly asleep or never awake."

Leaving this message, Donald A. Graham, aged 25, a stenographer in the "head office of the department" of the Imperial Bank, ended his lif in his room, 9 Homewood avenue, Saturday night. Duncan J. McLellan found him dead in bed at 11 o'clock and summoned the police. An empty carbolic acid bottle was found in the room.

WIDE INFLUENCE BEING FELT BY SERVICES

The evangelistic services yesterday in Mark street church were in some respects quite remarkable.

In the morning practically the entire Sunday school made covenant with God to live the better life; also a number of other adult people, under circumstances that were profoundly affecting.

The meeting for men in the afternoon was well attended, and in the evening the large congregation was greatly stirred by the evangelist's logical appeals to reason and faith, a number again yielding themselves to the Saviour.

These meetings will continue all this week, the concluding service to be held next Sunday night.

SOCIALIST ASK KAISER ABOUT HIS THEORY OF DIVINE RIGHT

Herr Ledebour, the Leader of the Social-Democrats, Says There is a Crazy Streak in the Hohenzollerns—Chancellor Defends Emperor.

Berlin, Nov. 28.—The Reichstag debated on Saturday a Socialist interpellation on the Kaiser's famous divine right speech at Koenigsberg on August 25. In this address the Kaiser arrogated to himself the office of a divine delegate, and in that character avowed his determination to rule in his own way, regardless of the views or opinions of the hour.

On the whole, the events of the day denote a victory for the Kaiser and the failure of the Social-Democrats to arouse the press or popular enthusiasm against the monarch on account of the speech. To a certain exent, also, it established the fact that the largest proportion of the national representatives are still strong supporters of the monarchic system, and are willing to accept, although perhaps with some reluctance, the doctrine of divine right claimed by the Kaiser. At the same time, if they accept this claim, they do so on historical grounds, and with the proviso that the Kaiser shall not employ it to override or modify the constitution.

Herr Ledebour, the Socialist leader, opened the discussion. He charged the Kaiser with breaking the promise which he solemnly gave the nation in November, 1908, when, after the national agitation caused by the interview with him published in The London Telegraph, he announced through the Imperial Chancellor that he had become convinced that the greatest reserve on the part of the crown was indispensable to the interests of German policy.

Herr Ledebour declared that the Kaiser was hereditarily afflicted with the same illusions which destroyed the Stuarts and the Bourbons, and he warned the sovereign that the Hohenzollerns were heading in the same direction.

The Socialist leader concluded with the defiant assertion that the German Social Democracy avowedly aspires to establish a republic, and will bend all its efforts to that end. This statement was greeted with prolonged Socialist cheers.

Dr. von Bethmann-Hollweg, the Imperial Chancellor, responded on behalf of the Government. He declared that never before had the Social Democracy of Germany so openly unmasked its revolutionary objects. Here the speaker was interrupted by Socialist cries of:

"Is that anything new?"

To this the Chancellor replied: "No; it's nothing new, but the country will be glad that its eyes have now been fully opened."

The remainder of the Chancellor's speech was a vigorous defence of the Kaiser's actions since November 1908. He said that none of the alleged breaches of the imperial word had violated the constitutional prerogatives of the crown. Dr. von Bethmann-Hollweg closed by declaring that he not only defended the Kaiser as Imperial Chancellor, but also because of his own honest political convictions.

The most notable utterance was made by Dr. von Heydebrand, the leader of the Government Conservative party, who is sometimes called the "uncrowned King of Prussia."

Pointing his finger at the Chancellar, who was seated only a yard away, Dr. von Heydebrand declared that the bold avowal of the Socialists in favor of a republic, which the country had heard, made it imperative that he (the Chancellor) should not wait for the arrival of the revolution, but should take immediately such steps as would nip it in the bud.

The appeal of the Conservative leader to the Imperial Chancellor is regarded as forecasting an attempt to secure the renewal of Bismarck's anti-Socialist laws, for the purpose of suppresing all forms of the Socialist propaganda.

Comment of Vatican Organ.

Rome, Nov. 28.—The Osservatore Romano publishes comments, evidently inspired by the Vatican, on the discussion Saturday in the German Reichstag of the speech made by Emperor William at Koenigsberg on Aug. 25, pointing out that the debate furnished proof of the irrefutable truth, contained in the Emperor's speeches both at Koenigsberg and Beuron, that the throne and altar cannot be divided in Germany, religion being necessary in the struggle against error in modern times.

In addressing the abbot and a number of Roman Catholic dignitaries in the Benedictine Monastery at Beuron, the Emperor said: "The Governments of Christian princes can only be carried on according to the will of the Lord. The altar and throne are closely united, and must not be separated."

The Vatican official organ, in the course of its comment, says: "The two finest speeches of the German monarch were noble, just and constitutionally correct. While irreligion and domagogy imperil the principles of authority and order, it is a relief to near certain truths nobly vindicated by the authoritative and august lips of a powerful sovereign."

Macleod, Alta., Nov. 24.—Henry Adams of Nanton, Alberta, was convicted in the Supreme Court of the attempted murder of F. C. Hunter of Nanton, and sentenced by Justice Stewart to ten years' imprisonment at hard labor in the penitentiary at Edmonton.

LATE WIRES

King Dissolves Parliament --- Hacked Wife with Razor---Trainmen Killed

(Special To The Review.)

London, Nov. 28.—There was only a small attendance when the House of Commons convened to-day and Home Secretary Winston Churchill was the only Minister present. Immediately after the Commons were called to order the members marched in a body to the Upper House to hear King George's speech. The King referred first to the death of his father, King Edward, saying England had lost a good friend and a wise ruler. He then expressed pleasure that the Atlantic fisheries question between Great Britain and the United States had finally been settled by the Hague tribunal in a manner satisfactory to all. Passing to the political situation he said: "I regret the facture of the conferences which had been arranged to solve the differences existing between the House of Peers and Commons. I had hoped that the wise counsels of the conferees would evolve satisfactory settlement."

The King then thanked Parliament for the work it had done in the brief period of its present session. Before the deliberations broke up King George signed the proclamation of dissolution for the present Parliament. After the meeting it was reported January 17th had been practically decided upon for the convening of the new Parliament.

Hamilton, Nov. 28.—Peter Virosky, a foreigner separated from his wife for some time, went to the woman's boarding house this morning and carved her with his razor. The woman is seriously wounded and the city hospital authorities say she is in a critical condition. Her husband is under arrest.

Belleville, Nov. 28.—George Thomas Ramsay, 21 years of age, was killed early this morning at the G. T. R. roundhouse in this city. Ramsey was operating a turntable when he was caught between two engines moving in opposite directions, the buffer beams of which crushed his life out.

Death was instanteneous. Ramsey was the eldest son of Mr. Thomas Ramsey, engineer of the G.T.R. pump house here.

"Go away," cried Kendrick.

"I cannot do that."

Kendrick's face assumed a livid pallor, and his eyes seemed to turn black with excitement. Trembling in every limb, but without hesitation, he advanced on Orde, drew a short riding whip from beneath his coat and slashed the young man across the face. Orde looked steadily at the boy. Once again Kendrick hit, raised his arm for the third time, hesitated. His lips writhed, and then, with a sob, he cast the little whip from him and burst from the room.

"Poor youngster!" Orde murmured.

The next day Carroll came to him with hurried, nervous steps, her usually pale cheeks mounting danger signals of flaming red, her eyes swimming.

Orde did not attempt as yet to draw from her the cause of this unusual agitation. A park bench stood between two dense bushes, screened from all directions save one. To this he led her.

"This thing has got to quit," said he grimly.

A carriage rolled near and discharged its single passenger on the pavement.

"It's Gerald!" cried Carroll.

The young man, catching sight of them, picked his way daintily and leisurely toward them.

"I have brought," said he, "a carriage, and I wish you would both do me the favor to accompany me on a short excursion."

The three—Carroll and Orde somewhat bewildered—took their seats. After an interval the carriage drew up opposite a brownstone dwelling. The three were ushered by a discreet and elderly maid into a little square reception room.

"I have brought you here, among other purposes, to hear from me a little brief wisdom drawn from experience and the observation of life," Gerald began, addressing his expectant and curious guests. "That wisdom is briefly this: There comes a time in the affairs of every household when a man must assert himself as the ruler. In all the details he may depend on the woman's judgment, experience and knowledge, but when it comes to the big crisis, where life is deflected into one channel or the other, then, unless the man does the deciding, he is lost forever and his happiness and the happiness of those who depend on him. This is abstruse, but I come to the particular application shortly."

"This may be all very true, Gerald," said Orde, "but I fail to see why you have brought us to this strange house to tell it."

"In a moment," replied Gerald. "Have patience. Believing that thoroughly, I have come in the last twenty-four hours to a decision."

He produced a paper and a package from his inside pocket.

"I have here," he went on suddenly, "marriage papers duly made out. In this package is a plain gold ring. In the next room is waiting by prearrangement a very good friend of mine in the clergy. Personally I am at your disposal."

He looked at them expectantly.

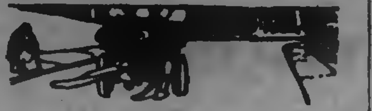
"The very thing!"

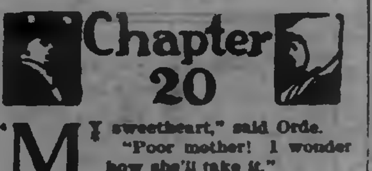
"Oh, no!" cried Orde and Carroll in unison.

Ten minutes later the three passed through the door into the back apartment.

They found waiting a young clergyman with two young girls. At the sight of Carroll these latter rushed forward and overwhelmed her with endearments.

In fifteen minutes the little party separated amid a chatter of congratulations. Mr. and Mrs. Orde drove away.





Chapter 20

"My sweetheart," said Orde. "Poor mother! I wonder how she'll take it."

In the hallway of the Bishop house Orde kissed her.

"Be brave, sweetheart," said he, "but remember that now you're my wife."

Orde sat in the dim parlor for what seemed to be an interminable period. Occasionally the sounds of distant voices rose to his ear and died away again. Finally he heard the rustle of the portieres and turned to see the dim form of the general.

"Bad business! Bad business!" muttered the old man. "It's very hard on me. Perhaps you did the right thing. You must be good to her, but I cannot countenance this affair. It was most high handed, sir!"

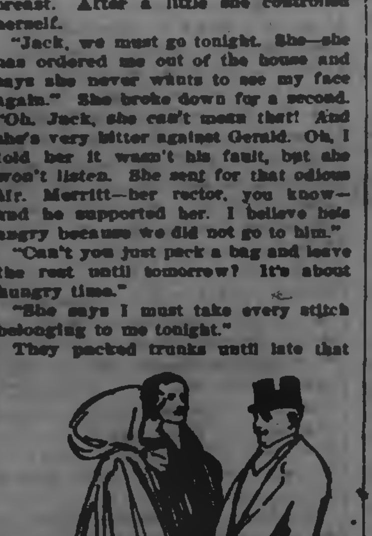
Finally, after another interval, Carroll returned. She was sobbing violently. She came to him and for the moment hid her face against his breast. After a little she controlled herself.

"Jack, we must go tonight. She—she has ordered me out of the house and says she never wants to see my face again." She broke down for a second. "Oh, Jack, she can't mean that! And she's very bitter against Gerald. Oh, I told her it wasn't his fault, but she won't listen. She sent for that odious Mr. Merritt—her rector, you know—and he supported her. I believe he's angry because we did not go to him."

"Can't you just pack a bag and leave the rest until tomorrow? It's about hungry time."

"She says I must take every stitch belonging to me tonight."

They packed trunks until late that night. Carroll and Orde walked together to the hotel. Next morning an interview with Gerald confirmed them in their resolution of immediate departure.



"And write your daddy, Carroll."

"She is set in her opposition now, and at present she believes firmly that her influence will separate you."

Gerald smiled his fine smile.

"Goodby," said he. "Going to a train is useless and a bore to everybody."

Carroll threw herself on his neck in an excess of passionate weeping.

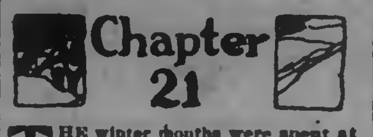
At the station the general appeared.

"There, there!" he fussed. "If your mother should hear of my being here it would be a very bad business. And you, sir, be good to her. And write your daddy, Carroll. He'll be lonesome for you." He blew his nose very loudly. "Here, my dear, open this envelope when you are well started. It may help cheer the journey."

He hurried them through the gate.

Carroll opened the envelope. It contained a check for $1,000.

"Dear old daddy!" she murmured. "Our only wedding present!"



Chapter 21

THE winter months were spent at Monrovia, where Orde and his wife lived for a time at the hotel.

Carroll soon became acquainted with the life of the place. Monrovia consisted of an upper stratum of mill owners and lumber operators, possessed of considerable wealth and some cultivation; a gawky middle estate of storekeepers and the lumber mill operatives. The class first mentioned comprised a small coterie, among whom Carroll soon found two or three congenials—Edith Fuller, wife of the bank cashier; Valerie Cathcart, whose husband had been killed in the civil war; Clara Taylor, wife of the leading lawyer of the village, and, strangely enough, Mina Heinzman, the sixteen-year-old daughter of old Heinzman, the lumberman. Though later the old German and Orde locked in serious struggle on the river, they continued to meet socially quite as usual, and the daughter of one and the wife of the other never suspected anything out of the ordinary.

Newmark received the news of his partner's marriage without surprise, but with a sardonic gleam in his eye. He called promptly, conversed politely for a half hour and then took his leave.

"How do you like him?" asked Orde.

"He's a very shrewd man."

Orde laughed.

"I don't dislike him," said Carroll. "I've not a thing against him. But we could never be in the slightest degree sympathetic. He and I don't—don't"—

"Don't jibe," Orde finished for her. "I didn't think you would. Joe's not much of a society bug."

Newmark had rented a small one story house situated just off Main street. Into this he retired as a snail into its shell. At first he took his meals at the hotel, but later he imported an impassive, secretive manservant, who took charge of him completely. Neither master nor man made any friends. Carroll and Orde, out for a walk, passed this quaint little place.

"Goodby," she said.

"Jack," she begged, "I want a little house like that for our very own."

"We can't afford it, sweetheart."

"Not to own," she explained, "just to rent. It will be next best to having a home of our own."

"We'd have to have a girl, dear," said Orde, "and we can't even afford that yet."

"A girl!" she cried indignantly.

"You couldn't do the housework and the cooking," said Orde. "You've never done such a thing in your life, and I won't have my little girl slaving."

"It won't be slaving; it will be fun, just like playing housekeeping," protested Carroll. "And I've got to learn some time. I was brought up most absurdly, and I realize it now."

"We'll see," said Orde vaguely.

Later Carroll brought the subject up again, armed with sheets of paper covered with figures showing how much cheaper it would be to keep house than to board.

"You certainly make out a strong case—on paper," laughed Orde. "If you buy a rooster and a hen and she raises two broods, at the end of a year you'll have twenty-six, and if they all breed, even allowing half roosters, you'll have over 300, and if they all breed you'll have about 2,500, and if"—

"Stop, stop!" cried Carroll, covering her ears.

"All right," agreed Orde equably, "but that's the way it figures. Funny the earth isn't overrun with chickens, isn't it?"

Two days later Orde took her one block up the street to look at a tiny little house tucked on a fifty foot lot beneath the shadow of the church.

"It's mighty little," said he. "I'll have to go out in the hall to change my collar."

They ended by renting the little house, and Carroll took charge of it delightedly. What difficulties she overcame and what laughable and cryable mistakes she made only those who have encountered a like situation could realize.

"Kind of fun being married, isn't it?" said he.

"Kind of," she admitted, nodding gravely.

The business of the firm was now in shape. Boom arrangements had been made, the tugs were in the water, supplies and equipments were stored away, the foremen of the crews engaged and the crews themselves pretty well picked out. Almost before they knew it January and February had flown.

"We must pack up, sweetheart," said Orde.

"It's only yesterday that we came," she cried regretfully.

At Redding they explored together for three days the delights of the old fashioned house. Then Orde assumed his woods clothes and marched off down the street, carrying his bag on his back.

"He looks like a conqueror of wildernesses," cried Carroll, straining her eyes after his vanishing figure. Suddenly she darted after him. She clasped him by the shoulders.

"Goodby," she said. "You'll take better care of my sweetheart than you ever did of Jack Orde, won't you, dear?"

FIRST NEWS OF MUTINY.

British Were Warned by W. Brendish, a Telegraph Operator.

There has just been retired from the service of the Postmaster-General a servant who may be said to have practically saved India to this country. This is W. Brendish, telegraph master, the sole survivor of those who were present in Delhi in May, 1857, and who, in the courageous discharge of his duty on the memorable 11th of that month, rendered invaluable service to the state.

It was Mr. Brendish who, without orders and acting on his own responsibility, despatched the telegram which warned the authorities of the Punjab of the outbreak of the terrible mutiny. "The sepoys have come in from Meerut and are burning everything," he wired. "Mr. Todd is dead, and, we hear, several Europeans. We must shut up."

The fateful news was sent to Lahore by Mr. Brendish, who was then but a youth, while the mutineers were pursuing their work of slaughter in every part of the cantonment. It has been acknowledged that this presence of mind on the part of young Brendish saved India. The story is told by Mr. Brendish in a modest narrative of his services on that eventful day. The telegraph staff at Delhi, he says, consisted of Mr. Todd, assistant in local charge, and two young signallers, Brendish and Pilkington.

On Sunday, the 10th of that month, in the forenoon, the signallers at the Meerut office wired that eighty men of the 3rd Cavalry had been confined, and were to be blown away from guns for refusing to bite the Enfield cartridges only recently issued to the troops. No further news was received, and at 4 p.m. the line with Meerut was found to be interrupted. On the following morning Mr. Todd took a dak and started for Meerut, to ascertain at what point along the road the break had occurred. He got no further than the bridge of boats over Jumna, for he there met the mutinous 3rd Cavalry, who killed him.

The signallers remained at their post in the telegraph office, which was fortunately outside the city walls, about one mile distant from the Kashmir Gate and from the Flagstaff Tower. They saw a regiment of native infantry with two guns pass along the road from cantonments towards the city, and learned afterwards that they had joined the 3rd Cavalry. Later on, heavy firing was heard in the city, and Brendish, who was at the signalling instruments, kept on wiring to Lahore all news that was brought to him.

At noon he went out on the road to see what was going on, and presently there passed a wounded British officer, driving from the city, who called out: "For God's sake get inside and close the doors."

"We did so," says Mr. Brendish, "but even then Pilkington and I did not feel we were secure, as we were but two lads encumbered with the wife and child of Mr. Todd, whose sad end was not yet known to us, and surrounded by servants who perhaps were prepared to take our lives, but who were doubtful as to the termination of events."

For two hours more the boys held on, listening to the firing within the walls. At 2 p.m. Brendish went to the Umballa instrument for the last time and signalled to the hands at the other end of the wire the historic message, ending "and now I am off," the meaning being that they were leaving the office.

He and his comrade had persuaded Mrs. Todd to accompany them to the Flagstaff Tower, where a number of Europeans had already congregated, as it was the only possible place of safety. They remained there until sunset, and witnessed the blowing up of the magazine. That night the refugees fled, and the two signallers eventually got safe to Umballa.

A Latham Incident.

An Italian paper has a good story of Latham, whose accomplishments include prowess with the gun. The aviator made a long stay in Abyssinia, and indulged in big-game shooting. One day he brought down two elephants, male and female. The law of Abyssinia required Latham to pay for his authorization two of the tusks. He sent those of the female, the smaller ones. The authorities demanded the larger, but the aviator flatly refused. Then began Fort Chabrol anew. Latham barricaded himself in his house, which the soldiery surrounded. He was well armed and well provisioned. The siege lasted a month, and it was brought to an end by Menelik learning of the incident. The Negus ordered the forces to retire, and returned the trophies to the heir-at-law of Nimrod and Icarus.

Base Canard.

Spring chickens were scarce, and they had killed the ancient gamecock for Sunday dinner.

"Ah," said the old farmer reverently, "this certainly was a game chicken. In fact, he was the bravest in two states."

The star boarder glared at the carcass of the deceased fowl.

"If I only had an axe," he mumbled.

"And what would you do with an axe?" demanded the farmer curiously.

"I'd assassinate the man that started that expression, 'The bravest are the tenderest'."

He Was Engaged.

An Irishman being prosecuted for a breach of the peace, a witness for the accused was told by the magistrate that he might have stopped the fight.

"Indade, no, your honor," said Paddy. "I was too busy fighting a friend of my own."

A Double Purpose.

"They say that melody will make cows yield more milk."

"Then the installation of a sextette of operatic milkmaids might increase the dairy output and also keep the boys on the farm."

Robb and Sons' foundry and auto supply store at Humberstone was burned with a loss of $15,000.

you do not have to work close to the stove, which is usually far from the window. You can work where you wish, and be warm. You can work on dull winter days in the full light near the window, without being chilled to the bone.

The Perfection Oil Heater quickly gives heat, and with one filling of the font burns steadily for nine hours, without smoke or smell. An indicator always shows the amount of oil in the font. The filler-cap, put in like a cork in a bottle, is attached by a chain. This heater has a cool handle and a damper top.

The Perfection Oil Heater has an automatic-locking flame spreader, which prevents the wick from being turned high enough to smoke, and is easy to remove and drop back, so the wick can be quickly cleaned. The burner body or gallery cannot become wedged and can be unscrewed in an instant for rewicking. The Perfection Oil Heater is finished in japan or nickel, is strong, durable, well-made, built for service, and yet light and ornamental.

FRIDAY, NOV. 25, 1910.

TRACED TO ITS ORIGIN

One example, plain and forcible, of where the Nationalists got much of their ammunition, was given in the House by Mr. Borden. The Minister of Marine, Mr. Bordeur, had refered to a cartoon used in Drummond and Arthabaska, which pictured Jean Baptiste holding up a flag while another gentleman was taking care of his coat and at the same time picking his pockets, and used it to support his assertion that the election had been won "by appeals so desperate that when the smoke of battle has cleared the public conscience was aroused with shame and indignation." Mr. Borden quoted the Minister and then explained that the cartoon was first published in Le Canada, the Liberal organ in Montreal, with which Mr. Bordeur himself was closely connected. When the Minister tried to hedge, the copy of Le Canada which contained the cartoon was produced by Mr. Borden, and exhibited in the House.

It was all right, from a Liberal point of view, to publish the cartoon in 1904—it was even laudable to make such attacks then when they were directed against the then Conservative leader, but when it is republished in 1910 it should produce "shame and indignation." It should; it was shameful, but it was no less shameful in 1904. There was nothing in the time or in the circumstances to make the picture or the appeals that it accompanied in 1904 to 1906 less dangerous or criminal than then they are this year.

If there is danger in the Nationalist propaganda, and there may be, and if their attitude and appeals are disloyal as Sir Wilfrid Laurier says they are, they have learned them in the Liberal school and have adopted the role played by Liberals, even to using the pictorial "arguments" formerly used by the Liberals.

CONSULT THE PEOPLE

Last session Mr. Borden's resolution on the navy question contained a clause which said;—"That no permanent policy should be entered into involving large further expenditures of this character until it has been submitted to the people and has received their approval." This session Mr. Borden's resolution expresses regret that the Government has given no indication of an intention "to consult the people upon the naval policy of Canada."

The establishment of a navy is a matter of the first importance. It is a question of the greatest importance whether this country shall enter upon the large expenditures that will be necessary to establish and equip vessels of war, and that will entail large annual expenditures in the future. It is a new departure: a new policy of far-reaching consequence, and no Government and no Parliament should commit the country to a policy of such great importance without first consulting the people upon it. That was the question taken by the Conservatives last year, and it is their position to-day.

At the same time Mr. Borden made his position clear. He does not believe it possible to maintain the naval supremacy of the Empire by a series of disunited navies not under one control. It can only be maintained by one great naval force under one great central control. And he believes that Canada and the other dominions, if they contribute to the defence of the Empire as a whole, should have a voice in the councils of the Empire relating to the choice of peace or war. In view of these things Mr. Borden's position is that a permanent policy should be worked out and then submitted to the people.

The Government, however, does not propose consulting the people. They have entered upon the establishment of a navy—an expensive and useless navy—and have purchased the Rainbow and the Niobe. They have had enacted the rules under which it shall act, including its separation from the Imperial navy, and all this they have done without giving the people an opportunity of being heard. What do they care for the people? Seemingly about as much as was expressed by a celebrated remark of Vanderbilt, the United States Railway king.

The question is a very important one, considered in relation to the naval policy, and it is of still greater importance that the principle should be established that the Government can strike out on entirely new lines, and commit the country at any time to new responsibilities and heavy expenses without giving the people an opportunity of being heard.

FOR THE SAKE OF PEACE

Discussing the prospects of reciprocity with the United States, Sir Richard Cartwright said in the Senate—

"Others may have different views, but my opinion is that no one thing can be done by Canada which shall be one-quarter as great a service to the British Empire as the promoting in every way equitably of friendly relations between the two Anglo-Saxon powers. And I, will go farther, and say that if there is one thing more than another calculated to bring about something like a condition of general disarmament, it would be an alliance between those two great nations."

Canadians are a peace-loving people. They desire peace themselves, and desire it for the nations of the world. But it would not aid the cause of general peace, or hasten the time when the nations will disarm, if Canada were to make a trade bargain with the United States that would injure our commerce and industries, or that would give our American cousins an advantage over our British brothers in the Canadian markets.

The Liberal leaders have been so exceedingly anxious for an arrangement with the United States regarding the tariff, and have advocated policies so suicidal from a Canadian of a British point of view, that there is good ground for uneasiness when they again propose to negotiate, while they are in a position to give their views effect.

The men leading the party to-day are the men who, by the policy they adopted in regard to reciprocity, then known as unrestricted reciprocity, led to the retirement of Hon. Edward Blake from Canadian public life. There should be great care and watchfulness shown when the matter is taken up.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The Liberals appear to be very much put out with Mr. Borden because he did not go to the rescue of the Government in Drummond and Athabaska.

When the United States excluded Canadian produce by a high tariff this country turned to Britain and found a better market there. And it is still there

In Berlin, Germany, the chief of police has proclaimed war upon the long hat pins. It is a wonder the Suffragettes have not made use of this weapon.

When one reads of the English Premier being hustled by a mob, another Minister being lamed, and windows wrecked, it is too large a call on credulity to claim that the persons who committed these acts are ladies who should be given votes so as to introduce a mild influence into politics.

FORTY SIX YEARS OLD TO-DAY

Forty-six years old to-day, and the pioneer store of the village, is the creditable record of R. Graham & Sons' general store, Lakefield.

The business was started when Lakefield only had a population of three hundred, and has prospered correspondingly while that citizenship swelled to its present state of 1,700.

GOOD SLOPPING METHOD.

One With Which the Swine Herder Will Realize Fine Results.

Large clover pastures are becoming more popular every year, and many farmers are using ten acre fields for this purpose, says a well known authority on dairy matters. Under such a system large numbers of sows and pigs are turned in together. How to slop them satisfactorily is a problem that often confronts a farmer.

As commonly done a man is about knocked over by the sows and pigs, and the big greedy sows gobble the food down before the rest get a chance at it. This is neither pleasant for the feeder nor satisfactory to the hogs, except to the few lucky ones who capture most of the prize. Some way of slopping should be devised whereby the breeder will not be molested and whereby the big and small alike will get their share.

One of the most satisfactory methods of slopping ever used or seen used calls for a space about one rod wide and two or three rods long, fenced off for this purpose. This is divided into two parts, one division being used for the sows, the other for the small pigs. Each is fitted with a gate, which should swing easily and be large in order that the hogs may pass through it in large numbers without too much crowding. Across the gateposts of the part the pigs are to use a board should be nailed high enough to let the pigs pass through, but not high enough for the sows.

With such an arrangement slopping can be easily and satisfactorily done. The feeder can pass into the lot, close the gate and fill the troughs without the sows scrambling all around him. If necessary he can throw a few ears of corn to divert their attention while he gets into the feed lot with the slop.

When the trough is full the gate is opened and the sows are let in together. Under such circumstances both large and small sows ought to get an equal chance at the feed provided the trough is of reasonable length, whereas when the slop is turned in pailful by pailful while the sows crowd around it is always the big ones that get the feed.

COPPER BULL RINGS.

Impossible to Place Faith in Those Made of That Material.

Just about as much faith can be placed in an ordinary copper bull ring as in the ordinary bull, says an expert breeder. Do you know that it breaks like glass? The bull knows it, and it only remains for him to take the notion and the ring will be ready for repairs. Some people are not as scary about bulls as others and never lose any sleep imagining that a bull calf will suddenly wake up with the notion that he is the owner of the earth and the inhabitants thereof. Still, there are many occasions that require a safe method of handling even a quiet bull.

Although many bulls are as peaceable as a lamb, yet people could, if they so wished, show quite a little collection of rings that have been broken. A stranger enters the stable and gives Taurus a friendly pat on the back that frightens him almost into a fit. Timidity would be the last thing thought of in a bull, and many farmers find it very common. He may be tied temporarily to a fence when a horse comes up on the other side. In all such cases the result is a broken ring or chain if the bull is one of the scary kind.

CHAMPION GUERNSEY BULL.

It is astonishing what a bull's nose will stand. Something must break when he is in the breaking mood. The safest ring is a steel one that can be had at some hardware store. It costs less than the copper ring and is worth more.

The Queen's Gift.

Many pretty stories have already been told of Queen Mary's kindness of heart, and the latest to hand is a very charming one. A young married woman, who recently arrived at Bridlington with her baby, found herself in very distressing circumstances, and, in her want and perplexity, she wrote a letter to Her Majesty, telling her of her sad and needy position. The Queen promptly had the matter investigated, and it was proved to be a genuine case, deserving assistance. Then the kind Queen sent some money to a trustworthy person to be expended in relieving the woman's distress, and thus rescued her from her sorrowful plight by wise and timely aid. Those who know how royal ladies are inundated with applications for pecuniary help will appreciate the mingled good sense and generosity with which the case was dealt.

The Nurse's Reward.

It is Lady Roberts who tells this story. She was once visiting the hospitals at the base of operations in India, and was so pleased with the nurses' work and their devotion to the sick, that she exclaimed: "Really, I think the sisters deserve a medal for this campaign as much as anyone and I hope they will get one." "I don't know about a medal," said a gallant colonel, who was in attendance, "but they are sure, at all events, to get plenty of clasps."

A verdict of suicide was returned in the case of the unknown man found at White Man's Creek near Brantford.

Gompers Re-elected.

St. Louis, Nov. 28.—Samuel Gompers was Saturday afternoon re-elected president of the American Federation of Labor.

James Duncan, John Mitchell and James O'Connell were re-elected as first, second and third vice-presidents by unanimous vote.

John P. Lennon of Bloomington, Ill., was re-elected treasurer, and F. Morrison, Washington, D.C., re-elected secretary.

D. A. Hayes, Philadelphia; William D. Huber, Indianapolis; James P. Valentine, Cincinnati; John R. Alpine, Chicago; H. B. Perham, St. Louis, were re-elected fourth, fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth vice-presidents by unanimous vote.

The proposition to grant the Western Federation of Miners a charter in the American Federation of Labor, was referred to the executive council. President Gompers overruled the point of law raised by James O'Connell of the machinists.

The convention by unanimous vote endorsed women suffrage, and placed itself on record as favoring the organization of all classes of labor in the country, including negroes. Some of the Pacific coast delegates objected to the proposition to include the Asiatic races, and it was suggested that the remedy was the exclusion of Orientals from the United States.

New B. C. Legislator.

Vancouver, B.C., Nov. 28.—Alex. Lucas, formerly Conservative organizer in British Columbia, was Saturday elected by acclamation in a bye-election in Yale, a constituency made vacant by the resignation of Premier McBride, who also sit for Victoria City. The Liberals decided not to contest the seat, which at the general election gave the Premier a majority of over 100 against Stuart Henderson, the sitting member.

Lucas is about 60 years of age, was born in Ontario, and was the pioneer newspaper man of Calgary.

Killed by Yard Engine.

London, Ont., Nov. 28.—Ira B. Harris, aged 54, a machinist, was instantly killed at the Wellington street crossing of the G.T.R., by a yard engine Saturday night. The crossing is a dark one, and it is thought that he must have disregarded the gates being down, and walked directly in front of the engine. He was badly mutilated, the left foot and the top of his head being cut off. His hat was found later on the pilot step of the yard engine. He leaves a wife and three daughters.

Warships Handed Over.

Rio de Janeiro, Nov. 28.—At seven o'clock last night all the warships which took part in the mutiny were handed over to officers named by the Government, who took command.

OBSERVATIONS on the EYE

Many animals can see with each eye separately, but man cannot do so. The horse, for instance, can see on both sides of him, and when we stand in front of him he can see us with only one eye at a time, because both his eyes cannot act together. The ancient Greek spoke of the eyes as the windows of the soul. They might have gone further and said of the body also. By glancing at a person's eye we can estimate his character pretty well and an observing physician can often tell by the eye the exact nature of a person's sickness.

"Look After Your Eyes"

When the eyes are affected, the whole general health is affected as well. We make no charge for examination. If your eyesight is perfect we will be pleased to tell you so. If, however, there is any defect which needs correcting, we guarantee to fit you with glasses that will surely correct it.

SUSPENDED SENTENCE WITH ALL COSTS OF CASE

Magistrate Edmison, Finds Richard Anglessy Guilty of Aggravated Assault on Joseph Young — A Doctor's Account in Dispute.

Richard Anglessey must pay all the costs of the case in which he was charged with assault by Joseph Young. They will exceed $50.00.

County Magistrate Edmison, in giving judgment Saturday afternoon made a conviction against the accused, and gave judgment of suspended sentence with all costs.

The assault took place on the morning of Friday, November 4th, on Anglessey's farm, near Young's Point, as Young took a short cut across the property in order to arrive at a threshing in faster time than the route by the road would have permitted.

The complainant's version of the affair at the hearing was to the effect that Angleasey came up to him from behind and struck him on the legs and then on the head with the handle of a pitchfork, inflicting a severe wound on the head. He received treatment by Dr. Graham, of Lakefield.

The defendant claimed he had acted in defence.

His Worship held that Anglessey had been the aggressor, and had made the attack. He was guilty of the offence alleged—aggravated assault.

Taking all things into consideration, including the ill-feeling that had existed between the two men, he did not feel justified in imposing the maximum penalty—three years' imprisonment. Instead of committing the accused to prison he would impose a suspended sentence, with costs of proceedings.

When the magistrate stated the doctor's bill to be $20, Mr. Gordon answered that he would like to get an itemized statement of the account. "I feel it is only a hold-up by an unknown doctor," said the defending counsel, and he asked for a week, in order that he might look into the matter.

His Worship decided on five days, and a further disposition as to the costs will be made Thursday.

High County Constable Cochrane's account was $16.13, the County Crown Attorney's $7, Magistrate Edmison's $2.35, and the witness fees amount to considerable.

SPECIAL MEETINGS AT ST. PAUL'S CHURCH

Large congregations assembled in St. Paul's church yesterday for the first of the evangelistic services which are to continue every night this week. The interest at both services was manifest and deep. The pastor will be his own evangelist, and will preach every night. He will be assisted by the choir, Miss Davies and Mr. Mulligan in the service of song. The Torrey-Alexander hymn books will be used. The subject of yesterday morning's sermon was taken from the text: "Prepare to meet thy God." He drew a parallel between conditions in Israel in the time of Amos, and those which exist in many places to-day. It was a time of great outward prosperity, and hence a time of great wickedness, licentiousness and forgetfulness of God. A rich luxury prevailed among the higher classes. Society from the highest to the lowest had become corrupt. Even the women were given to the cups. Sensuality and profligacy were everywhere to be found. And yet, through it all they kept up a form of religion. But it was only a form. The picture which Amos draws is a "sanctuary hot with religious zeal, and hot, too, with passion and the fumes of wine." And what was the message of the prophet of God to a people like this? He called upon them to repent. He pointed out the doom and destruction that awaited them if they failed to repent. He showed them the meaning of the judgments of God which had fallen on the nation, and that the end of all was to recover Israel from her sin and folly. But as Israel refused in response to either mercy or judgment to return unto the Lord, God gave them up, saying as he did so: "And because I will do this unto thee, prepare to meet thy God, O Israel." The pastor closed his sermon with an earnest appeal to the people to repent and accept the mercy of God while yet it is offered. If a man will not meet God at the mercy seat, he must meet Him at the judgment seat.

Mr. Pogue will take for his subject to-night, "The Joy of Salvation."

CHALK TALKS FOR THE KIDDIES

That there is a spirit of revival in Peterborough is manifest by the number of churches that are holding special services this week, and last night there were some large meetings. The Gospel Hall have been conducting special meetings for two weeks. R. McMurdo and D. Walker have been the evangelists till last night, when A. McMurdo, who has just arrived from New York, addressed the meeting.

A. McMurdo is a children's worker, and is here to conduct special children's services. He is an artist and illustrates his talks. Yesterday afternoon he gave a chalk talk on "The Gospel Ladder," which the children enjoyed.

This week the children will hear about Bunyan's Pilgrim's Progress, which will be illustrated by clever sketches on the blackboard. The meetings commence at 4 p.m. each night except Saturday, and a gospel meeting follows at 8.

BRIGHT SERVICES AT THE SPRINGVILLE ANNIVERSARY

Marked by services of an unusually helpful nature and by bright inspiring singing, the regular anniversary services at Springville Presbyterian church held yesterday, November 27th, will not be easily forgotten by the members of that congregation.

A speaker whose abilities are too familiar to need any reference, had been secured for the occasion, the Rev. J. D. Morrow, pastor of Dale Presbyterian church, Toronto. His discourses yesterday were of such a character as to set all earnest minded people thinking seriously of the problems of the church, his morning subject being; "Fight," in which he demonstrated that the Church is not fighting her battles as she ought and that some decisive stimulant is needed. His evening topic was "What Must I do to be Saved."

In addition to his addresses, Mr. Morrow gave a couple of vocal solos, both of which were excellent and highly appreciated. The congregations at all the services were very large and the offerings were also distinctly gratifying and generous.

Special mention is due to the musical part of the services. In the morning it was conducted by the choir and in the evening by a male chorus of about thirty of the young men of the congregation. Several selections of hymns sung to the tune of popular melodies were given and proved to be a pleasing variation. "Give me the Wings of Faith to Rise" was sung to the tune of "Tenting To-night." "Only a Beam of Sunshine," a grand chorus given by the young men, in which the solo part was taken by Messrs. Fowler and McConnell was sung with splendid effect. Previous to the evening service a fifteen minutes' song service was held in which they sung the favorite hymn "O'er Jordan's Dark and Stormy Waters" to the melody of "Old Folks at Home." "Sometimes the sky is Over-cast," was given to the tune of "Auld Lang Syne."

A voluntary by the young men entitled "The Fight is on," was another appreciated number. A beautiful and feelingly given duet entitled, "Sun of My Soul," was sung by Miss Bryce and Mrs. Easson, of Keene. This latter was one of the most pleasing musical selections of the day. The morning anthem was "There is a Friend."

A special feature of the morning worship was the presentation of diplomas from the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church of Canada to Mr. Harold Whitefield and Miss Vulda Trew for reciting without a mistake the shorter catechism. Lilliam Hooten received a diploma and also the "Red Seal" attached for the exceptionally creditable performance of repeating four hundred scripture verses without a single mistake.

Those who received childs' diplomas for memorizing Scripture verses were Ethel Reynolds, Marion Clarke, Donald Sanderson, Janet Sanderson, Ina Marsh, Robert Whitfield and Grace Whitefield. In addition to this Miss Mellie Wilkinson recited 200 verses securing the "Gold Seal" to the diploma which she won some months ago.

The Last Two Dandelions

"Tis the last rose of summer, left blooming alone," wrote Thomas Moore, but now we have the last dandelion, or rather two of them. They were picked at noon by a north end resident. What will be next? We have had late strawberries, raspberries and sweet peas. Will some one come along with some late potatoes?

"Blot Out" at Park Street Church —Dr. Luttrell Spoke

Yesterday's services at Park St. Baptist church will go down in the history of the church as both unique and practical, as well as scriptural. The pastor, Rev. W. C. Riddiford, had announced a few Sundays ahead that November 24th would be "Blot Out" Sunday, and that on that day a free-will offering would be taken to try and blot out the current account debt.

The response was generous, for at the close of the evening service the pastor announced that about two hundred dollars had been taken in during the day, from all sources, and others to hear from.

The special speaker for the day was Evangelist Dr. Sam Luttrell, and he was greeted by large and appreciative audiences.

The afternoon mass meeting for men was well attended, and proved a great blessing to all.

Dr. Luttrell will remain over for the Wednesday night prayer service. The public are cordially invited to be present.

BARN DESTROYED 22 PIGS BURNED

Samuel Brown, Again a Heavy Loser by Fire—Blaze Started on Roof of House But Prompt Action by Neighbors Saved the Home.

As people watched the reflection in the northern sky, Saturday evening, and wondering as to the cause, the fire fiend was laying its hand heavily and for the second time, upon the property of Samuel Brown, who resides in Douro, and about three miles from this city.

BARN DESTROYED

A large frame barn, built on a concrete foundation, was totally destroyed, together with twenty-two pigs, 200 bushels of grain, 6 ton of hay, from 12 to 15 ton of straw, a quantity of stalked corn, a straw cutter, considerable harness, a heavy coat, and a number of articles, such as would be used in a barn and stable.

HOUSE STARTED

The barn was on the east side of the Lakefield track, and about fifty yards north of the house, which is rough cast. Burning embers, alighted and started the roof, but prompt work on the part of neighbors, extinguished the blaze, and saved the home.

Mrs. Brown and two children, who were in the house, first noticed the barn ablaze. The fire started, they say, in the upper part of the building. The origin is unknown, but combustion was likely the cause.

The barn was owned by Amos Jones, who carried some insurance, but Mr. Brown suffers a complete loss.

NEIGHBORS HELPED

The original number of pigs was forty-two and they were kept underneath the first floor of the barn, a trap door, used, in feeding them, being open at the time. All other doors and windows in the foundation were closed. Frank and George Hinds, Wm. Bell and another neighbor, Torpey by name, put forth all their efforts to save the property, and by their work managed to get out half of the number of animals. The remainder were burned to a crisp. A wet blanket was used to smother the blaze which started on the roof of the house.

A horse belonging to Mr. Brown had been borrowed about six o'clock, by the Hinds family, for a trip to the city, on account of injuries to their own animal, and as a consequence escaped the fire.

Mr. Brown informed The Review that he had finished some work about the barn at four o'clock, and when he left everything was alright. He had not been smoking. He left his home about four o'clock, and the first intimation he received of the fire was when in a barber shop, a young man came in with the exclamation of "somebody is getting it pretty hot."

SECOND FIRE

This is the second heavy loss he has sustained through fire. A year ago last winter, his home in Auburn was destroyed with all its contents.

He is grateful for the kindness shown by his neighbors, as he knows, that only for their prompt action his home would also have been destroyed.

PERFORMANCE OF REAL CLASS

The Belmont minstrels are going through their rehearsals with a snap and accuracy that is winning the hearty commendation of their director, Mr. Holly Shepard.

There are many intricate movements and dances in the big entertainment Mr. Shepard will present, but the boys are picking up the work in surprisingly apt fashion and promise to graduate with flying colors.

The press in the different cities where Mr. Shepard has given his production, pronounce it as the liveliest best drilled and most spectacular performance on the boards outside that given by the recognized professional minstrel organization.

"YE MUST BE BORN AGAIN" A GENUINE REVIVAL NEEDED

"Ye must be born again," St. John, 3rd chapter, 7th verse.

A week's mission at St. Luke's church was opened yesterday morning by the Rev. J. Bennett Anderson, the well known temperance lecturer and evangelist, and large audiences listened to his discourses at both morning and evening services. In the evening he chose for his text the above words and preached a strong, forcible sermon, and revealed a true interpretation of the meaning of the Master when he spoke those words to Nicodemus, the ruler of the Jews. Nicodemus took the literal meaning of the words when he received them in reply to his query as to what he must do in order to inherit eternal life. Until he understood the spiritual meaning which Jesus had reference to he was completely at a loss. Just so there are many people who do not understand the word of God, that is, the spiritual meaning.

WE NEED A REVIVAL.

And those of us who do understand, we want reviving. We want a genuine revival. We want pure, undefiled religion, dedicated to serve Him. Let us hold fast to that which is good; the freedom of sin is nothing but a sham.

WE CANNOT DECEIVE GOD.

Many men to-day of mighty intellect know practically nothing of the spirit of God. We want men to-day who believe in the Bible, who believe that there is a God, a devil and a hell. To-day that is the reason why there is so much uncertainty in regard to things spiritual. Our opinions won't matter a bit on the last day. Your work may deceive men, but you can never deceive God. His eye sees all.

As for himself, the speaker would sooner drop dead than become a traitor to God.

SOME MEN WE CAN TRUST.

The Bible is something to be sure of. There are some men who are naturally better than others. Every one will admit that there are some men to whom they would be more willing to trust their children to than others. Some men are so full of blasphemy and filthy that they are a danger to the community. Then there is the man who does not profess any religion, and yet lives an almost blameless life. Men who have been put down as infidels have done more for good than many so-called Christians. There are lots of men who profess a lot, and you would think they were angels of the first water but yet they have their doubts about God. But when we think of the lowly Jesus, how He was crucified and was lifted up, and is seeking to-day to redeem sinners, how can we doubt Him!

WE MUST ACCEPT CHRIST.

In concluding his appeal the speaker said, "Are you going to put everything on one side which concerns your soul and pay attention to the trival things of life! No; you must accept the precious blood of Calvary of sanctifying power."

Mr. Anderson urged the people to attend the mission meetings, which will be held in the church during the coming week.

The 1911 Winter Show of Poultry Association Looks Like a Winner — Meeting Thursday

Members of the Peterborough Poultry Association are reminded of the regular meeting this Thursday, when Brahmas and Orpingtons will be judged.

The directors are busy arranging details for the Annual Winter Show, to be held in January. At a recent meeting, seventy-five special prizes were placed. Last January the show was a big success, but the Association is attempting a higher mark for the 1911 exhibition.

THE REAL ATHEIST

The Man Who Sets High in the Synagogue and Does as he Pleases

At the Princess yesterday, Mr. Burnham spoke on the religion of today, with the recent materialism of Edison Tolstoi, etc., particularly in view. Materialism was impossible he maintained. He said also he had met but few atheists. The real atheist, the speaker said, was the man who went to church regularly, sat high in the synagogue, subscribed well, was thoroughly orthodox, and lived as he pleased. This man laughed at God, regarded virtue as highfalutin, and all honour to be made use of for his own worldly advantage.

The man who prays with the prayers, agrees with the clergyman, endorses the creed and tells filthy stories with relish, is no friend of religion. He is the man for whom Dante reserves the deepest hell.

TORONTO PROUD OF YOUNG SOLDIER

Alan B. Rogers Joins the British Army — Is a Splendid Specimen

Toronto Star.

West Toronto, Oct. 13.—Ward Seven people are proud of the young soldier they are contributing to the British Army in the person of Alan B. O. Rogers, who leaves to-day for England to receive his commission as a lieutenant in the Imperial Army. He has been assigned to the India service. Alan is claimed as a Junction boy. Although he was born in Calgary, he came here at an early age with his father, Mr. E. R. Rogers, now Inspector of Prisons, and received his preliminary education in the Annette street school and Junction High school, subsequently he took a course in Trinity College School, Port Hope, and the Military College, Kingston.

He holds the heavyweight championship as a boxer, and long-distance runner at the Military College. He is a splendid young Canadian, standing six feet five in his stockings, and erect as a palm tree. He is a striking figure wherever he goes. He is well liked in the Junction, and particularly by his brethren of Victoria Lodge, A.F. and A.M., by whom he was initiated immediately upon attaining his majority this summer.

Mr. Alan Rogers is a nephew of the late Col. J. Z. Rogers and Mr. R. B. Rogers.

SIMPSON STARRED FOR THE TIGERS

Mr. J. S. Knapman, was one of the small number of local enthusiasts, who witnessed the game at Hamilton, Saturday.

It was the best game in years, Mr. Knapman says, and the performance of Ben Simpson for the defeated team, shows that player to be anything but eligible for the "has been class." He was the prominent man for Hamilton, and had it not been for his grand work, the score of Varsity would have been doubled.

The College boys distinctly outplayed the Tigers and their speed, contrary to the opinions of many dopesters, was too much for the weighty opposing line. Captain Gall and Maynard were the shining lights for the winners.

The twenty-five policemen, failed utterly in their attempt to handle the crowds and by a rush on the gates, 1500 persons went into the grounds free of charge.

This crowd started to gather at eleven o'clock for rush tickets, and instead of allowing a gradual entrance, all were withheld, with the result that shortly after two o'clock a combined assault on the fence, gained the day.

Despite the excitement occasioned by the win of their team, the Varsity students and supporters, kept themselves well in hand and behaved in a very creditable manner.

ANNUAL MEETING OF CITY HOCKEY LEAGUE

To-night is "getaway night" for the Peterboro City Hockey League and all those interested should be on hand in the Oriental Parlors, at eight o'clock.

The business before the meeting will be the hearing of reports, election of officers and a general discussion as to the welfare of the league this coming season.

It is not likely that Keene will be represented, and the three remaining clubs, West Ends, T. A. S. and Strathconas have suffered considerably by the departure of what were their stars last season.

However, fresh diggins will permit of new men being secured. The Athletic section of the Sacred Heart Church will have a team, but whether it will be entered in senior company remains for the future to decide.

SHOT 59 AND MADE RECORD

In making a score of 59 out of a possible 60, Mr. Norman Perry established a record in last week's rest shooting contest at Yeote's gallery. Duggan and Curran were tied for second place, but the latter didn't show up to shoot off the tie.

BATTLING NELSON JOINS RANKS OF DOWN AND OUTS

San Francisco, Nov. 26.—"Battling" Nelson, of Hegewisch, will no longer menace the lightweight belt. For the first time in his fighting career, the "Durable Dane," a shell of the once great pugilist, was knocked out to-day beyond all dispute. Owen Moran, a sturdy lad from Birmingham, England did the feat in the presence of one of the largest crowds that ever assembled at a glove contest in this city. Moran knocked Nelson out in the eleventh round of a scheduled twenty-round event, his victory being clean, and leaving no room for argument as to his complete mastery over the one-time champion. But he was compelled to drop Nelson five times in the round, for despite the force of the Briton's right-hand punches on the point of the chin, the wonderful fighting spirit of the Dane was ever present.

One second after the final count had been tolled off and Referee Benjamin Selig, above the din, shouted, "You're out, Moran wins," Nelson was on his feet with blood streaming from his mouth and nose, loudly importuning the referee to allow him to continue. Moran, from the first tap of the gong, proved himself the complete master of the situation. There was not one round of the eleven that could be credited to Nelson. The Dane was always the aggressor, his evident intention being to force Moran to fight close. In this he was accommodated, but the fight was scarcely two rounds old before Moran showed that he, too, could fight at the Battler's old game. Round after round Moran would step back, side step and dance around the aggressive Nelson, all the while shooting in straight, forceful punches to the jaw and head. He seldom suffered a punch in return. The eleventh and final round opened with neither fighter perceptibly in distress. Moran, who apparently had been biding his time for a finishing blow, got his chance when Nelson, with bowed head, rushed into close quarters. Moran flung his right forward, catching Nelson flush on the jaw. Down the Dane went to his haunches for the count of nine. It was the same kind of a blow which several months ago caught Tom McCarthy off his guard. He subsequently died as a result of the fight, and the ousting of the Jeffries-Johnson bout from California followed.

Nelson tottered to his feet, bleeding and dazed. Moran stood back waiting for him. Again the Briton's powerful right shot out and Nelson dropped to the mat once more. The performance was thrice more repeated. Moran each time reaching Nelson's unprotected jaw with his right. With the last knock-down the referee and the timekeeper counted the fateful ten.

THE TURF

In a letter to the Canadian Sportsman, regarding the sale of Joe. Pachen to Mr. W. J. Cowan, of Cannington, to Thos. Hodson of Orillia, says I bought Joe Pachen from H. S. Osborne Pittsfield, Mass., and paid one thousand dollars for him. At that time he was three years old on June 25th, and I bought him July 13th, 1908. He was a very big, loose built, big-gaited fellow, and would trot as fast as he would pace, and did not seem to care which he did. But regardless of all those write-ups you have seen, I had every confidence in his some day being a fast horse. His every move showed it, but I knew I had to wait two years until he got strong. And after buying him, the first few few months he was in the hands of Sid. Passmore. Owing to my business requiring all my own time, I never raced him very much; started at a few local fairs, just to give him a little racing experience, and he seemed to be full of race soon as he got in company, but a loafer when alone. It was no secret to me when I sold this horse, as to his extreme speed. It was Cowan's long cheque that made me sell, as I had many offers for him and always refused, as I always refused, as I always wanted to keep the horse. He had stepped quarters in 30 seconds on our track here, which is not a fast track, and beat 2.15 on the ice here on Orillia bay, before going to Ottawa last February, and at no time in his life has he ever been to the limit of his speed. When he stepped a mile in Toronto with Havis James in 2.10 1-4, it was because he went out to do a mile in 2.10 and rated him according if he had wanted a mile in 2.07 he could have had it that very day, and, if given a chance, there is no horse living will beat him in a race, when six years old and get properly ready. Much credit is due his trainer, Jim Powell for his perfect manners and the well developed, big, sound, strong, horse that he is.

SPORTING COMMENT

Hackenschmidt and Dr. Roller are billed for a wrestling bout at Montreal to-night.

Berlin will not have a professional hockey team this season.

That report of two football enthusiasts walking from Toronto to Hamilton, for the game Saturday, looks likely. It's safe betting, they didn't have to make the return trip square heel and toe.

Montreal has a one-armed boxer who challenges any middleweight in Canada.

Jack Johnson will be $25,000 richer if he fights Joe Jeannette and Sam Langford. He can get a guarantee of $30,000 to fight in Paris and $15,000, win, lose or draw, for a bout with Langford in London during Coronation week.

Harry Smith, playing for R. M. C. against the Grand Trunks of Montreal at Kingston Saturday, had his ankle sprained. The Cadets won 22—10 and took the Canadian Intermediate Championship.

Looking at that 16—7 score, reminds us of another Dominion championship game when a local O.R.F.U. champion fourteen took the count. If we are not mistaken the figures were 77—6.

Pete Campbell did not play Saturday, but the honor of being carried as a spare man, is not a small one by any means.

THE RUSSIAN PEASANT.

Stupid and Poor, a Good Fellow Who Merely Exists.

The Russian peasant does not live; he merely exists. "Nitchevo" ("it is nothing"), he merely says when anything happens to him. Nothing matters, nothing could be worse, and "Nitchevo" is his panacea for all evils. And yet the Russian moujik is really a fine fellow. Ordinarily, H. P. Kennard tells us in his book, "The Russian Peasant," he is a splendid, well built man, large limbed, large headed and healthy. He is equally unaffected by 20 degrees of frost or twenty glasses of vodka. He is clothed in uncured sheepskins and carries in winter more clothes than the average Englishman could stand up in.

He is unspeakably stupid, however, and his dream of happiness is to gorge, to sleep as much as possible through the winter and dance and sing in the summer. But the stranger's first objection to the moujik is that he smells—not because he does not wash himself. As a matter of fact, in every village there are public baths—baany—and the peasants wash themselves there unfailingly every Saturday in order to be allowed to go to church on Sunday, for the Orthodox church enjoins cleanliness.

The Russian peasant is always poor and generally in debt. He plows the land in the same way that his father plowed it and gets as little for his labor. His main worry in life is how to pay the governor's taxes. If he says he cannot pay he is flogged, or perhaps he will sell part of his next year's power of work—i. e., work for nothing for several months—to raise a loan, and of course he is worse off than ever the following year.

On Christmas night at dusk the marriageable village girls go out into the streets and meet their young men, and one says, "What is your name?" The young man answers "Foma," and she replies, "My husband's name is Foma."

Some days later at the girl's home relations are gathered together. There comes a knock at the door. The starosta and the young man enter, carrying loaves of bread. The starosta says something like this:

"We are German people, come from Turkey. We are hunters, good fellows. There was a time once in our country when we saw strange footprints in the snow, and my friend the prince here saw them, and we thought they might be a fox's or marten's footprints or it might be those of a beautiful girl. We hunters, we good fellows, are determined not to rest till we have found the animal. We have been in all cities from Germany to Turkey and have sought for this fox, this marten or this princess, and at last we have seen the same strange footprints in the snow again, here by your court. And we have come in. Come, let us take her, the beautiful princess, for we see her in front of us, or can it be that you would keep her till she grows a little older?"

Thus does the moujik ask for a wife.

Inventor Davy and Love.

Sir Humphry Davy, the inventor of the Davy lamp, found love something of a delusion, if not a snare. Writing to his mother, he said, "I am the happiest of men in the hope of a union with a woman equally distinguished for virtues, talents and accomplishments." And in a letter to his brother he expresses his rapture thus: "Mrs. Apprece has consented to marry me, and when the event takes place I shall not envy kings, princes or potentates." The widow must have been a person possessed of great powers of fascination, for Sir Henry Holland makes mention of her as a lady who made such a sensation in Edinburgh society that even a regius professor did not think it beneath his scholarship to go down on his knees in the street to fasten her shoe. The sequel need not be dwelt upon further than to add that the marriage turned out to be altogether a mistake.

Fergusson and the Rabbits.

Robert Fergusson, the poet, was first matriculated at St. Andrew's university in the session of 1764-5. It was the custom at this time for each bursar to take his turn in invoking "blessing" at the meals. The college table having been surfeited with an unbroken diet of rabbits in various forms of cookery, Fergusson, on being called to say grace, repeated what are now celebrated lines:

For rabbits young and for rabbits old,
For rabbits hot and for rabbits cold,
For rabbits tender and for rabbits tough
Our thanks we render, for we've had enough!

It may be added Fergusson was not sent down, but the rabbits were "rusticated."

The Quipus.

The quipus, upon which the ancient Peruvians kept their records and accounts, consisted of a thick main cord, with smaller cords tied to it at certain distances. Upon these smaller cords the knots were tied by means of which the reckoning was kept. The length of the main rope varied from a foot to several yards. The cords were of various colors, each with its own proper meaning—as red for soldiers, yellow for gold, white for silver, green for corn, and so on. The reckoning seems to have been largely regulated by the distances of the knots from the main cord and the sequence of the branches. —New York American.

Same Effect.

"Cyril," said his mother as they sat down to the breakfast table, "did you wash your face this morning?"

"Well, no, mamma," said he slowly, evidently casting in his mind for an excuse, "but," he added reassuringly, "I cried a little before I came down stairs!"—Delineator.

The C.P.R. has purchased a central site for its new railway office building in Edmonton for $70,000.

JUST A FALLACY

To Think That Left-Handed Pitchers Bother Left-Handed Hitters

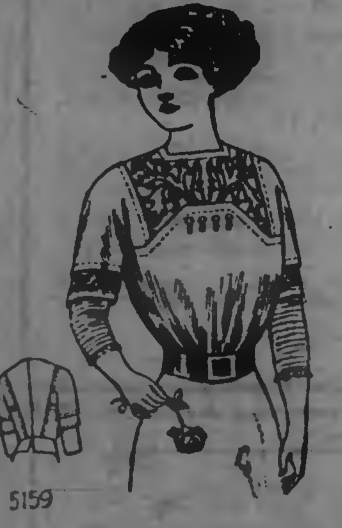
SCOTLAND YARD IN NEW YORK

From The Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Scotland Yard recently came in for some general criticism because of the manner in which it fumbled the Crippen case in the earlier stages. The justice of this criticism was of course, questioned in some quarters. It remains for Mayor Gaynor so far to indorse the idea underlying Scotland Yard as to model the New York police department after it. The recent shake-up of the metropolitan force is frankly an effort to copy the methods that have made the English department famous. The distinguishing feature of Scotland Yard is its centralized control. The same quality gives the United States secret service much of its efficiency. In New York, the detective branch of the department is to be separated entirely from the uniformed men. Plain clothes men will report to plain clothes officers. There will be a precinct organization of detectives, who will have none to do with gambling or disreputable houses; their business will be to run down criminals. The Gaynor reform will be watched with interest. No other mayor has made the police so much a personal study as has this man, whom Tammany thought it could control, and this Scotland Yard plan appears to embody his ripest thought on the subject.



LADIES' WAIST.

All Seams Allowed.

The waist pictured above is one of our newest models, and a very pretty one it is. The effect over the shoulder is that of body and sleeve cut in one, but it is only a small portion of the body that is cut with the sleeve. The waist closes in the back, and the backs are perfectly plain, the sleeve section and the lower part of the front lapping on the backs, and the upper part of the front lapping on the yoke. The fullness is gathered into a peplum. The lower part of the sleeves has two tucks, and sewed to the upper one is an undersleeve of allover tucking. The waist is made without collar, which is a very popular style. This waist may be made of silk or satin, or velveteen would make up splendidly with the yoke of allover lace or braided with soutache; also the space between the tucks on the upper sleeve portion may be braided to match. The pattern (5159) is cut in sizes 32 to 42 inches bust measure. To make the waist in medium size will require 2¾ yards of material 24 inches wide, 2 yards 36 inches wide, or 1¾ yards 44 inches wide, with ⅝ yard of allover tucking 18 inches wide.

The above pattern can be obtained by sending 10 cents to the office of this paper.

NOBBY TOP COAT

For the young girl in her teens here is a smart coat of heavy serge in black and white check. Over the shaped revere of light blue cloth is a flat collar of black velvet, and the cuffs of blue are edged with a band of velvet. The belt of black velvet closes through a large mother-of-pearl buckle.

KITCHENER FAVORS THE SINGLE LIFE

But His Theory that All Soldiers Should be Bachelors is Not a Good One—Feminine Protest

Much has been written of "K. of K." Of his silence, his awe-inspiring blue eyes—eyes that can flash fire on occasion, and his well-known dislike for women.

Not long ago he raised a storm of feminine protest by declaring that "a soldier married is a soldier spoiled." But this statement he failed to back up by the name of a single great soldier who was a bachelor. On the other hand, as Miss Dora D'Espaigne Chapman pointed out, numbers of famous generals, from Alexander the Great upwards to our day, are well known to have been married men.

Did not Napoleon, who adored his Creole wife, do his best work during his Italian campaign when he was deeply in love with Josephine and was writing her passionate love-letters.

While most great soldiers who fought so ably in the Indian Mutiny and the Boer War were married.

Then, again, Kitchener himself is a soldier's son, and if his father before him had held the views expressed by "K. of K." England would have been one able soldier the less.

"If the officers of the Army of to-day are not to marry, where will you look for the officers of the Army of to-morrow?" asked an officer's wife to whom Lord Kitchener had held forth on this pet subject, thereby, it is said, reducing the great soldier to silence.

DAINTY DISHES

Cheese Salad.

Make a salad dressing of one tablespoonful of vinegar to three of oil, a dash of mustard, salt and pepper to taste. Into this dressing rub some grated or sliced cheese until the whole is smooth and about the consistency of thick cream. Serve it with lettuce or cold potato and sliced beetroot.

Browned Apples.

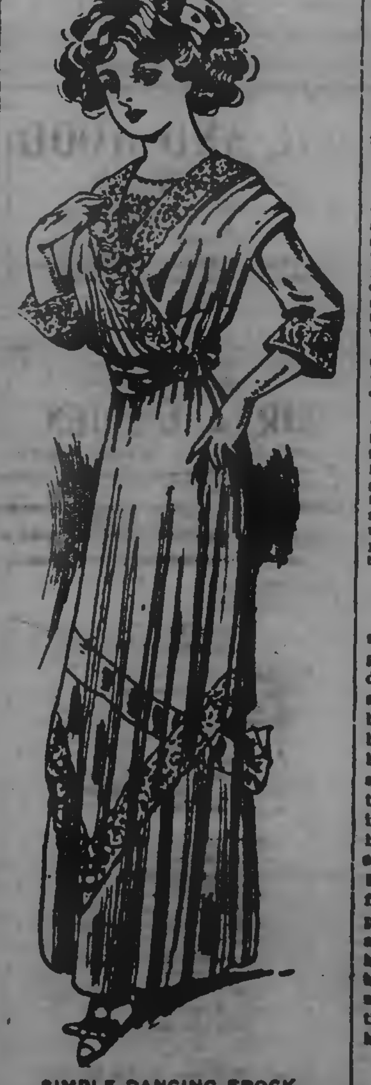
Pare and core six large cooking apples and fill the centres of each with butter. Place these in a buttered fireproof dish, and put a few bits of butter on them. Cook in a moderate oven, basting them freely with butter. Before serving put a little red currant jelly in the centre of each.

For Potato Salad.

Take the remains of any cold potatoes, cut them into moderately thick slices and place them in a shallow dish, scattering between each layer chopped parsley and onion, and if you have it, a little sliced beetroot and celery. Pour over all some nice salad dressing and serve. Garnish the top if you like with slices of hard-boiled egg.

Stuffed Cabbage

Is a very good dish. Take a good-sized cabbage, remove the outer leaves and cut off the stalk. Scald the cabbage in boiling water for ten minutes, make a nice hole in the middle, and fill it and between each leaf with sausage meat. Bind the cabbage round carefully, and stand it in a saucepan with some gravy, a slice of ham, and sweet herbs. Let all stew gently, and when done place the cabbage on a hot dish, untie the string, and pour the strained gravy round it. Garnish with balls cut from turnips and carrots the size of a marble. Boil these in salted water till tender. Serve hot.



SIMPLE DANCING FROCK

White crepe de chine or messaline would work out well in a frock of this type. The style is exceedingly simple with its plain skirt veiled with a pointed tunic of white chiffon, under which is draped a broad band of blue satin ribbon, joining on left side near back under a rosette bow. The bodice in surplice fashion is trimmed with bands of lace matching that on tunic. The draped girdle is blue satin.

THE CHRISTMAS PUDDING

Many cooks will be making the yuletide puddings now, as these improve by keeping. For a really good rich pudding the following ingredients are required. Suet, 1 lb.; flour, ½ lb.; breadcrumbs, ½ lb.; currants, 1 lb.; sultanas, 1 lb.; raisins, 1 lb.; mixed peel, ½ lb.; sweet almonds, 3 ozs.; bitter almonds, 1 oz.; brown sugar, 1 lb; the rind of a lemon; a grated nutmeg; a pinch of salt; 8 eggs; milk, ½ pint; brandy or home-made wine, ½ pint. Chop suet finely, mixing it with flour. Clean currants and sultanas; stone raisins; blanch, skin and chop the almonds; put all together in a large basin, eggs next, then the milk and brandy. Stir a good long time until all the ingredients are mixed. Put into well-greased pudding basins, cover with greased paper, tie a well-floured cloth over top, place in a pan of fast boiling water, and boil steadily for eight hours. Hang in a dry place till needed.

COUNTING THE PEOPLE.

First Census Proposal in England Raised a Fine Row.

It was in 1753 that a proposal to count the people was first made. Thomas Potter, son of the archbishop of Canterbury and member for St. Germans, introduced in that year a bill "for taking and registering an annual account of the total number of the people and of the total number of marriages, births and deaths and also of the total number of poor receiving alms from every parish and extra parochial place in Great Britain." It was inevitable, of course, that directly this proposal was made the precedent of King David should be quoted. And many were the jeremiads as to the alternative evils which would befall the country. Those submitted to David were mild in comparison. Mr. Thornton, member for York city, said:

"I did not believe that there was any set of men or indeed any individual of the human species so presumptuous and so abandoned as to make the proposal we have just heard. I hold this subject to be totally subversive of the last remains of English liberty. The new bill will direct the imposition of new taxes, and indeed the addition of a very few words will make it the most effectual engine of rapacity and oppression that was ever used against an injured people. Moreover, an annual register of our people will acquaint our enemies abroad with our weakness."

Matthew Ridley, another opposing member, added that his constituents looked on the proposal as ominous and feared lest some public misfortune or an epidemical distemper should follow the numbering. However, the bill passed the commons only to be promptly rejected by the lords. Not until 1800 was the proposal again made, and on this occasion it was brought to a successful issue. The first census of England and Wales was taken in March, 1801.—Westminster Gazette.

GENEROUS GEORGE.

Washington's Tips and Compliments to Patty and Polly.

Those who take tipping in the somewhat solemn spirit of the social investigator may find their minds enlivened by the perusal of an excerpt from the writings of our first president, which shows what a graceful turn appreciation and courtesy may give to the custom.

In 1789, on his return from his New England progress, Washington lodged at Taft's inn, at Uxbridge, Mass., where the domestic service—as at many inns in the country—was performed by the landlord's daughters. Somewhat later Washington wrote to Mr. Taft:

Hartford, 8 November, 1789.

Sir—Being informed that you have given my name to one of your sons and called another after Mrs. Washington's family, and being, moreover, very much pleased with the modest and innocent looks of your two daughters, Patty and Polly, I do for these reasons send each of these girls a piece of chintz, and to Patty, who bears the name of Mrs. Washington and who waited upon us more than Polly did, I send 5 guineas, with which she may buy herself any little ornaments she may want, or she may dispose of them in any other manner more agreeable to herself.

As I do not give these things with a view to have it talked of or even to its being known, the less there is said about it the better you will please me, but that I may be sure the chintz and money have got safe to hand let Patty, who I dare say is equal to it, write me a line informing me thereof, directed to "The President of the United States at New York." I wish you and your family well and am your humble servant, GO. WASHINGTON.

The Shark is a Slow Swimmer.

One ill service nature has done the shark—namely, that of placing a triangular fin on his back which acts as a danger signal and gives warning of his approach. Happily the shark has not been gifted with sufficient sagacity to be aware of this peculiarity, for had he been so he would unquestionably abandon his habit of swimming close to the surface of the water and would in that case be enabled to approach his victim unobserved. The shark is a slow swimmer for his size and strength. Byron observes, "As darts the dolphin from the shark." But Byron was a poet and does not appear to have been a close observer of the habits of inhabitants of the water or he would have known that a shark would have no more chance of catching a dolphin than a sheep would of overhauling a hare.

Sardine Fishing.

In sardine fishing there are many uncertainties. There is a twenty-eight foot rise and fall of tide in the bay of Fundy, and especially constructed wooden picket inclosures are staked out in the water to gather in the fish. Last season a man erected an inclosure in what he supposed to be excellent fishing territory, but got nothing. He deplored his loss and for a time failed to go near it. "Why don't you seine it again?" somebody asked. "What's the use?" he replied. "Let me try it," the other persisted. "Yes, and you may have all the fish you get." The other man pulled out $1,700 worth at one haul.—Frank Leslie's.

A Sailor's Hands.

A sailor is betrayed by his hands, though his gait might betray him. They are permanently half shut. Walking, talking or sleeping the sailor has his hands half shut and could not open them flat if he tried. This is the result of years of climbing and pulling ropes.—London Chronicle.

RULES FOR WIVES.

To Which is Added Some Feminine Advice to Husbands.

Some presumptuous Frenchmen published a list of commandments for wives, one of which ran: "Now and then acknowledged gracefully that thy husband knows more about some things than thou. After all, thou art not infallible." A second and still more daring rule for wives was, "Never be aggressive in thy arguments with thy husband, but always consider him as superior to thee." This was too much for French feminists, and no wonder. One lady answers the presumptuous man indignantly:

The weaker sex has not merely duties; it has also rights. Feminism is advancing, and nothing will stop it. The weaker sex is the equal of the sterner. Equality forever! Here are the commandments which women oppose to those of men.

The lady then gives her rules for husbands with more spirit than logic:

Woman has a right to have whims; it is a privilege of her sex. Never put her out. She might have hysterics, which would impair her health and cost the money in doctor's bills.

Another commandment runs:

Where, then good lady, does "equality forever" come in, if woman not only has privilege because she is a woman, but is decidedly superior to man? Surely, the strong minded suffragist would spurn privileges of sex. In another rule the lady seems to show some sly knowledge of her sisters.

If, good man, thou desirest mountain air ask thy wife to come to the seaside; she will immediately propose a holiday in Switzerland.

Man was created before woman as a preliminary sketch for the masterpiece. Remember, then, O husband, that thou art but a rough draft.

This ought to shut any husband up finally.—Paris Cor. London Telegraph.

Our word "sugar" is said to be derived from the Arabic "sukkar," the article itself having got into Europe through the Arabian Mohammedans, who overran a great part of the world in the seventh, eighth and ninth centuries. According to Dr. Van Lippman, a Dutch writer, as a result of the Arab invasion of Persia sugar found its way into Arabia, whence again its culture was carried to Cyprus, Rhodes, Sicily and Egypt. In the last named country the preparation of sugar was greatly improved, and the Egyptian product became widely famous. From Egypt the industry spread along the northern coasts of Africa and so entered Spain, where, about the year 1150, some fourteen refineries were in operation. Columbus introduced sugar cane into the new world.—Argonaut.

SIGN OF THE GOLDEN LION.

DETECTED BIG CRIMES

Inspector Dew the English Pinkerton Retires From Scotland Yard — Some of the Best Known Cases on Which He Has Worked.

(Lloyd's Weekly News.)

Lloyd's Weekly News was on Saturday authoritatively informed that Chief Inspector Dew, of Scotland had tendered his resignation to the chief commissioner of police.

It is a coincidence that the day is that of the final scenes in the High Courts of a case which has made the retiring officer's name famous. Although coinciding with the dismissal of the Crippen appeal, it is stated that Mr. Dew's decision has not been in any way affected by this case. He had already seriously considered his resignation before he was concerned in it, but consented to remain in office until its completion.

Chief Inspector Dew will not actually leave Scotland Yard for several weeks yet. When he does, it is stated, he will set up in business as a confidential inquiry agent.

Joining the Metropolitan Police Force nearly twenty-nine years ago, Mr. Dew has been associated with the leading criminal cases of the past quarter of a century. He first came into prominence at the time of the "Jack the Ripper" crimes. For his services in relation to those cases he was promoted to the rank of detective sergeant.

Since that time rapid progress has marked his career, until he came to one of the foremost positions in the service. After some years as inspector at Bow street, he attained the aim of detective of the C.I.D.—he was four years ago appointed a chief inspector in succession to Mr. Frank Froest.

Chief Inspector Dew has produced [illegible] in hundreds of forgery charges. Several difficult murder cases were cleared up by him and many bogus frauds were exposed. Mr. Dew, after months of inquiries, had the satisfaction of securing the conviction of a clever swindler named Nicholson, who as an "orthnologist" specialist, obtained thousands of pounds by a clever advertising method in connection with the solving of easy rebuses.

It was in 1907 and 1908, when the Druce case was in full swing, that Mr. Dew was given a watching brief by the commissioner, as the result of which one Saturday night in January, 1908, he arrested at Sisters avenue, Lavender Hill, Miss Robinson, the Australian witness, on a charge of perjury. It will be remembered that Miss Robinson, the daughter of an ex-policeman, swore that she was an Australian, and that she was formerly a maid in the service of the fifth Duke of Portland at Welbeck, and that she knew, both from the duke and the late Charles Dickens, that Druce was an assumed name of the Duke.

Prior to her arrest Miss Robinson had created some sensation by offering a hundred pounds reward for the recovery of a mythical dairy which she said had been stolen from her to prevent her giving evidence in the case. Inspector Dew arrested her on the collapse of the Druce prosecution, and secured her conviction on the perjury charge at the Old Bailey.

THE NEWS BOYS ENTERTAINED

The friends of the Gospel Hall have arranged a series of entertainments for the carrier boys and news boys of the city. Mr. Adam McMurdo, of New York, a clever chalk artist, will give an hour of his entertaining work in the Gospel Hall at 7 p.m. All the newsboys and their friends are invited. The entertainment will be given on each evening of this week at the same hour.

The hour will be of great interest to the boys as the chalk sketches will be humorous, descriptive and personal. Some of the boys will be hit off in characteristic attitudes, just as they are seen on the streets selling the Daily Review. Come along boys, Bring your eyes, ears and friends.

THOUSAND NEW BOX CARS FOR THE GRAND TRUNK

The Grand Trunk railroad has put upon the road recently nearly a thousand or more new box cars These cars are very strongly built, are uniform of size and additionally strengthened by iron bases and crossbars. They are nearly all of sixty ton capacity and present a very solid, serviceable appearance.

The cars are being distributed all along the line, and several trains have passed through Peterborough.

MORPHINE WORSE THAN DEATH

Montreal Witness.

There is no use letting morphine dealers off with a fine of $25, which is the maximum punishment that can now be imposed by our courts. Druggists who sell the poison to victims should do a term in the penitentiary. To spread the cocaine habit is worse than murder. It degrades its victims to a lower state than the beast. Better to give a person strychine and kill him or her at once than to give them cocaine."

It was Dr. Guerin, mayor of the city, who uttered these words at a meeting of the Board of Control this morning. The mayor asked that he and Dr. Lachapelle be authorized to communicate with Sir Lomer Gouin attorney-general for the province, and with the Crown prosecutors with the object of having new legislation passed bearing on the evil. The mayor on a visit to the Hotel Dieu found a boy suffering from the dire effects of the drug. From this lad he secured the names of a number of victims, associates of the patient, and also of certain druggists from whom the users obtained their supplies. This led to the raid reported a few days ago. "I would not excuse physicians who give prescriptions with cocaine or morphine in them," continued His Worship. "Such prescriptions should be filed and open to inspection by the authorities."

Dr. Lachapelle remarked that the custom of druggists of repeating prescriptions of this character, sometimes for years, to the same person, was most pernicious, and should be put a stop to. A person should be required to present a new order every time such prescriptions were wanted. He would fine dealers for first offencesfences and jail them with the fences and jail them with the would put morphine and opium on the same list. The authority asked for was heartily granted by the board.

Y.W.C.A. AT HOME

The beautiful homelike drawing rooms of the Young Women's Christian Association looked unusually bright and attractive on Saturday afternoon, the occasion being the third annual reception to the faculty and students of the Normal School.

A cheerful grate-fire in the reception hall conveyed a warm welcome to one hundred and fifty guests, who were cordially received by members of the Social Committee.

An impromptu program, given by Misses Leary, Campbell and Bannie, and Miss Laura Logan, violiniste, was greatly enjoyed.

The tea room was most artistically decorated in yellow and green—the school colors—chrysanthemums and foliage and colored tapers being tastefully used. The dainty house luncheon was served by the association house members. In fact the "At Home" seemed to be equally enjoyed by both guests and hostesses.

CONCERNING FORMER LOCAL MANAGER

Says the Hamilton Spectator—

Coming direct from Montreal on his purchase of the Semi-Ready store on James street north, Alfred Temple is an Ottawa boy, and it was in the capital where he first began his business career. Some years ago he went to Peterborough to take charge of the Semi-Ready tailoring department in Cressman's big store, and the success which he achieved there attracted the attention of a Montreal merchant, who sought and secured his services.

Shortly before leaving the commercial capital of Canada Mr. Temple was offered the management of the largest department store in Montreal, but he wisely considered that his long and successful experience had fitted him for the ownership of a business of his own.

To the Spectator man Mr. Temple modestly admitted that his friends offered him a festival time on the occasion of his departure, but his whole mind was looking forward to the day of his arrival in his chosen city. "I intend making some changes additions and alterations to the present store and will also enlarge the scope of the Semi-Ready business in Hamilton," he said. "I am going to add some new departments, and they will be in keeping with the better type of quality, so ably presented in the Semi-Ready clothes."

WHAT LOVE IS

(By Laura Jean Libbey in Chicago Tribune.)

What is love, that all the world
Talks so much about it?
What is love that neither you
Nor I can do without it?

Love is a mystical, gossamer, golden thread of heaven's own weaving, so minute no human eye may behold it. At either end are powerful magnates, which draw two human hearts together, though the width of the world lies between them at birth.

Love is the sunshine of life, beautiful in its morning, most soul satisfying at life's noon, and dearest, tenderest, truest as life's sun fades into the gloaming. Love is that which is earthly of the soul which God has loaned to human beings, for the breath of heaven, the taint of earth is in it. It is the root of the world's joys, and where its seed has been planted in rank soil is the source of its keenest, bitterest woes. It is the yearning of another heart to respond unto its own.

There is love—and love. One, the poppy which buds and blooms in an hour, and as quickly falls into decay. The other, the perennial rose whose beauty and perfume lasts forever.

Love hallows its object, never debases it. Love is the nectared cup which youth and maid sip with reveling delight in its newness and sweetness. Love is the draft which brings contentment to man and womankind, and recompenses for all life's pains.

Love is heaven's truest messenger. It can transform the humblest cot, wherein are mated hearts into an earthly paradise. Love is what the object of its affection makes it. A tree whose branches reached joyously up toward heaven's sunshine, or a noxious weed, poisoning the air upon which it feeds, a thing which brings death to those who fondle it.

Love is the treasure which comes free to all mankind, the oil of contentment which lubricates the heart, keeping it from wearing and rusting out.

Love levels all ranks, knows no rule to guide its selection of a mate, knows no counting in days or years as to the length of time love should ripen until it reaches perfection. The glance of an eye, the touch of a hand gives its birth. Love is a drowsy god, ever slumbering in the breast until it is awakened by its mate.

Love is the brightest jewel in the world's diadem. Implanted in every human heart is the craving for love, the realization of the attraction of another heart and that only the welding of these two hearts together can make life complete.

The depth of love is as boundless as the ocean's immeasurable depths, and loves bark is as easily wrecked as a toy sailboat sporting with a fickle wave.

Love is, in some breasts, gentle as a zephyr of the dews of heaven; in others like a sirocco last of a tornado, wrecking all within its path into ruin and chaos.

Love is one of the things in this great world that makes life worth living. Heaven pity those who strive to exist without it. When the heart is empty, life is lonely. All the wealth and honor the world can bestow cannot equal the priceless treasure of love.

CEDARDALE ITEMS

Special to the Review.

Cedardale, Nov. 28.—Most of our young people attended the school concert at Lakehurst on Friday night. They report that it was a great success, and showed careful preparation on the part of Miss Flynn and those associated with her in the work. The pieces that were most appreciated by the audience were the selections of Mr. Simpson and the dialogues.

Mr. Orok is our minister at present and we expect him to be with us all winter.

W. J. Weir, of Bury's Green, spent Saturday under the parental roof.

Mr. Harry Shearer, of Hall's Bridge, spent Sunday evening at Mr. R. Shaw's.

Jas. Allen was a guest at Lakehurst last week.

W. Maguire and family left last week for British Columbia, where they intend to reside in future.

Miss Mary McConnell, who has been under the weather for a few days is, we are glad to say, entirely recovered.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Review does not hold itself responsible for opinions expressed by its correspondents

To the Editor of the Review.

Dear Sir,—Some people have asked me why we do not refute the calumnies against the Catholic Church, contained in the lectures of J. H. Burnham. My answer is, that we consider it beneath our dignity to argue with a man who makes statements that are not only absurd, but positively "idiotic."

Permit me to give you a couple of examples. In an editorial of the Peterborough Review, October 28th, 1909, Mr. Burnham attacked Christians in general. He accused them of "cringing to the questionable rich," of being "very inconsistent," of "believing one thing and persistently doing another," of being "irredeemably stupid." We believe every reasonable man will admit that these allegations are not only notoriously false, but ridiculously absurd. It is, therefore, no surprise to us to find the man who, a year ago censured all Christians, to-day abusing Catholics. The question naturally arises, Is J. Hampden Burnham himself a Christian?

Example No. two I take from a letter I wrote to the Examiner November, 1909.

Not long since Mr. Burnham delivered in several places a lecture on Indian women. From what he said one would conclude that he believed Indian women occupied a sort of ideal state in life. He expatiated on their freedom, and the high place of honor they held among the people of their tribe. In proof of this high honor he adduced the fact that Indians trace their descent of all rank, titles and possessions, not through the father, but through the mother. Francis Parkman in his works (Frontenac Edition Vol. III., page 41-42) mentions this fact, but draws therefrom a very different conclusion. His words are, "This rule of descent was noticed by Champlain, among the Hurons, in 1615. That excellent observer refers it to an origin which is doubtless the true one. The child may not be the son of his reputed father, but must be the son of his mother—a consideration of more than ordinary force in an Indian community."

In his lecture at the Conservative Club, November 19th Mr. Burnham said, "I think I have some degree of knowledge of the history of Canada." But in the above instance we have him giving a positively idiotic interpretation of a simple fact of history. But idiotic as his interpretation of this plain and simple fact of history, evidently is, it is our opinion that he knows much more about Indian women than he does about either the Church, the State or politics in Canada or any other country.

Therefore, we wish to have nothing to do with a man of his calibre. If we are obliged to deal with bigots, give us a Margaret L. Shepherd in preference to a J. H. Burnham. We refuse to recognize people of their stamp. We detest ignorance, imbecility and prejudice, especially when accompanied by conceit and pomposity. If we are to have opponents, let them be men able and capable of reasoning.

W. J. McCOLL.

GILBERT GETS CHILLY WELCOME WHEN INTRODUCED BY MONK

Nationalist Member for Drummond-Arthabaska Takes His Seat, But all the Occupants of the Front Benches Are Busy Looking at Something or Other.

Ottawa, Nov. 29.—An incident unique in Parliamentary practice, and quite without precedent in the history of the House of Commons, occurred yesterday afternoon when Arthur Gilbert, Nationalist member for Drummond and Arthabaska, was introduced to Mr. Speaker. Speculation as to who would escort Mr. Gilbert to the House was relieved when F. D. Monk (Jacques Cartier) and Dr. Eugene Paquet (L'Islet) retired from the chamber before the orders of the day were called.

Amid a silence more ominous than accidental Mr. Gilbert shook hands with the Speaker, and proceeded slowly to his seat on the back row farthest from Mr. Speaker. If Mr. Gilbert was welcome, nobody tried to make him feel so. There was not a sound, and it is significant to note that the occupants of front seats on both sides of the House found it convenient to be otherwise engaged while this interesting ceremony was in progress. Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Mr. Borden found something interesting in the memoranda on their desks. George E. Foster was in a brown study, hat pulled well over his eyes, and Hon. Wm. Paterson seemed to be counting squares on the ceiling. The Nationalist, if there were any, were not conspicuous by their presence or demonstration. P. E. Blondin, J. A. Lortie and W. B. Nantel, the three followers of Mr. Monk, were not in the House.

Apart from the introduction of Mr. Gilbert, member for Drummond and Arthabaska, the feature of yesterday's sitting of the House of Commons on the debate on the address in reply to the speech from the throne, was Hon. Wm. Paterson's vigorous onslaught on the position of the Conservative party in the light of Mr. Borden's amendment offered in lieu of that by Mr. Monk. Mr. Paterson persistently asked the question, when the Conservative party was anxious for an immediate contribution to the imperial navy a year ago, why did hon. members present a change of front now and urge the delay consequent upon an appeal to the country. He suggested it was due to the influence of Mr. Monk upon that party.

Mr. Borden, he said, had suggested to the Prime Minister the insertion before the word "organization" of some such word as "immediate" or "early" in the original resolution. The Prime Minister acceded to this view, and the word "speedy" was inserted.

Continuing, his voice increasing in volume and raising in pitch, the Minister of Customs, said: "Mr. Borden made a suggestion and wanted one word inserted, that would indicate that they were to act promptly. Now the whole tone of the Opposition is, 'Do not go into the creation of a navy; ask the people.'"

In conclusion, he said, that if the Government would build a Canadian navy in close co-operation with the Admiralty, the Conservative party would endorse it.

Continuing after recess, Mr. Paterson asked what position would Canada occupy if the matter of naval organization were stayed until a general election. Hon. gentlemen opposite, recognizing the need for immediate action last year, were in favor of making a gift of $25,000,000 to the Mother Country. Now they do not propose that anything should be done in the matter of self-defence at all, "Is it because the member for Jacques Cartier (J. D. Monk), whom they tried to read out of the party, is in the party again, and has assumed the leadership?" (Liberal cheers.)

Dr. Sproule (East Grey) declared there was an absolute need for a plebiscite or reference to the people on the naval question, and described the Government's attitude as "arbitrary, autocratic, tyrannical, and out of harmony with the principles of constitutional government, as known and carried out by the Imperial Parliament and the colonial dependencies of the Empire."

He condemned the Government for its apathetic policy towards the Hudson Bay Railway. The construction of a bridge across the Saskatchewan River at the Pas Mission was poor management, because it was not known whether a bridge at that point would serve the railway when located.

Furthermore, if the Government make no better progress with that bridge than it had done with the Quebec bridge, he was inclined to sympathise with the people of the west.

Discussing the fiscal situation, Dr. Sproule charged the Government with being without a fixed policy of any kind. The feeling of the country, he asserted, was totally against reciprocity, and there was no mandate from the people to warrant the Government entering upon the negotiations.

Further, he chided the Government with not being able to take a licking like good sports. The verdict in Drummond and Arthabaska had not satisfied them. He argued that there was no greater sinner in Canada to-day than the Minister of Marine and Fisheries in raising the race cry. On the same issue the Government would be beaten in seven out of ten constituencies in Quebec.

George W. Kyte (Liberal) Richard Blain (Conservative) and D. B. Neeley (Liberal) also spoke.

W. B. Northrop (East Hastings) moved the adjournment.

Dr. Schaffner, one of the Conservative members from Manitoba, has given notice of the following resolution: "That the present system of operating terminal and transfer elevators is detrimental to the interests of the western grain producers, and that the Government should take immediate steps to operate terminal elevators at Fort William and Port Arthur, and the transfer elevators between these terminals and the Atlantic seaboard."

Mr. Armstrong, the Conservative member for East Lambton, will ask if the Government has done anything to put a stop to the use of the mails for the furtherance of "Get-rich-quick" schemes, such as Sheldon's, and enquiries further if the Government has made any effort to prosecute the guilty parties.

Dr. Black (Hants, N.S.) introduced a bill to amend the Medical Act. He explained that it contained one provision of more than ordinary importance, viz., the placing in the federal laws an enactment giving to a medical practitioner qualified to practice in any Canadian province, the right to practice in any other province.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier promised that the public accounts committee would be organized not later than Wednesday. Mr. Borden suggested that the auditor-general's report for two years be referred to the committee. Sir Wilfrid promised to look into the matter.

WHOLESALE THIEVERY IN HOUSE

Ottawa, Nov. 29.—Ninety-six dozen towels were stolen from the Parliament buildings while the House was in session last year, was the statement made to-day. The wholesale thievery of brushes, combs, towels, umbrellas, rubbers, walking canes, pocket knives, soap, and a host of other articles have been going on for years, but it has not assumed gigantic proportions.

Dishes have been disappearing from the Government cupboards with consistent regularity. Street car tickets and odd change have been taken from coat pockets, the drawers of desks have been ransacked, and pens, pencils, tobacco, pipes, and cigars abstracted.

One day during the recess an individual who had been ordered by the sergeant-at-arms to remain outside the precincts of the Parliament buildings, was discovered by a newspaper correspondent in one of the lobbies, carrying off a grip which contained some valuable papers.

Nothing whatever in the shape of attempt to stop the petty thievery can be observed. The Dominion police patrol the lobbies, but they cannot see what is going on inside the rooms.

Ex-Minister to China Dead.

New York, Nov. 29.—George F. Seward, president of the Fidelity and Casualty Co., died at his home here yesterday at the age of 70 years. Mr. Seward was a former United States Minister to China, and was a writer on political and financial matters.

Picture Shows Blamed.

Chatham, Nov. 29.—Two young lads, convicted of stealing, confessed in the Police Court that motion picture shows were the cause of their downfall. It is likely that some action will be taken by the municipal authorities.

INVESTIGATION WILL BE RIGID

Newark, N.J., Nov. 29.—"If I find any city or state official guilty of negligence in the inspection of this building," said Prosecutor of County Mott yesterday, as he stood by the ruins of the factory in which 24 girls lost their lives by fire last Saturday, "there will be the bitterest sort of prosecution."

Accordingly, a coroner's jury of six was sworn in, the first of its kind that has sat here in twenty years. There will also be separate enquiries by the grand jury, which visited the scene yesterday; by the State Labor Department, and the city building department.

Funeral of many of the victims were held yesterday afternoon. Many of the girls and women killed were supporting their families, in part or in whole. One woman left a blind daughter almost penniless, and there is much actual want in other households. A relief fund, started Sunday, has now reached $2,000.

THAT TRUNK MURDER MYSTERY

New York, Nov. 29.—A new turn was given the trunk murder mystery yesterday by statements of witnesses who declared that Albert Callier, the supposed victim, was seen alive in 1905, three years after the crime was supposed to have been committed.

The trunk containing the body, recently found in a tenement basement, is declared to have been left there in 1902, by William Lewis, waiter, for whom a widespread search is now progressing. The investigation of the mysterious crime is turning to-day largely in the direction of enquiry whether the murder may have been committed in a later year than 1902, and if the trunk was empty when left by Lewis. New enquiry into the identity of the victim was also undertaken.

WAS NOT WOUNDED

San Antonio, Texas, Nov. 29.—That Francisco I. Madero, leader of the Mexican revolution, is safe and uninjured, is the news brought direct from Madero to San Antonio. The courier said that Madero is now gathering his forces in the Laguna district, near Lerdo and Parral. Madero was not wounded at any time, said the messenger. He is constantly gathering allies to his standard.

As far as the confiscation of the Madero estates was concerned, the courier said that Madero was not much concerned, since the bulk of his interests were in the hands of friendly Americans.

Insurrectionists Fortified.

Chihuahua, Nov. 29.—Government troops have returned to Chihuahua from their fight with the revolutionists, four miles west at Fresno on Sunday. Two thousand reinforcements are expectd before the Government resumes its attempt to reopen the Mexican and Northwestern Railroad, which is tied up as a result of the fight.

The insurrectionists are said to have been reinforced by a band from Parral. They now number 1,000, and they have fortified positions at various points.

Sunday's fight was the first real fight of the insurrection in this part of Mexico. Three hundred insurgents attacked the Government's rear guard of 400 troops, who were marching along the Mexican and Northwestern (Chihuahua and Pacific) Railroad. Seven dead insurrectors were brought in Sunday night. The Government lost one killed and seven wounded. The fight lasted three hours, both sides taking shelter behind boulders and in ditches.

GOUIN JOINS PELLETIER

Fort Monroe, Va., Nov. 29.—Sir Lomer Gouin, Prime Minister and Attorney-General of Quebec, and J. T. Mullasky of Montreal, arrived here yesterday to join Sir Charles A. Pelletier, Lieutenant-Governor of Quebec, who is here for the benefit of his health. All will remain here for a month. Lieut.-Col. C. P. Townley, U.S.A., commandant of Fortress Monroe, made an official visit to the Canadian visitors.

Walked Off Breakwater.

Port Elgin, Nov. 29.—A sudden death occurred on Saturday night, when Rev. Conreid Boltender ended his life by walking off the breakwater and drowning. About noon on Sunday the body was found in a standing position on the harbor side. The late William Boltender was in his 74th year, and had been for years a minister of the Evangelical denomination, although retired for the past few years.

A Male Suffragette.

London, Nov. 29.—H. A. Franklin, the male suffragist who attempted to assault Mr. Churchill, while the Home Secretary was returning to London after a speech at Bradford on Saturday night, was arraigned in Bow street police court yesterday and remanded for one week. Bail was refused. Franklin is a nephew of Postmaster-General Samuel.

THE GEORGIAN BAY CANAL

Montreal, Nov. 29.—The City Council yesterday adopted the following resolution: "Whereas, the construction of the Georgian Bay Canal would afford for the produce of the northern and western part of the American continent the shortest and most advantageous route, and would add an incalculable element of progress and prosperity to the commerce, agriculture, and industry of Canada, and thereby to the City of Montreal would accrue immense advantage, be it resolved that the Parliament of Canada be requested to carry out this essential national enterprise with the shortest possible delay."

On Trial for Murder.

Cambridge, Miss., Nov. 29.—A girl just past her seventeenth year, Hattie Le Blanc, will be tried in the Middlesex County Superior Criminal Court here this week for the murder at Waltham, Nov. 20, 1909, of her employer, Clarence F. Glover. The little French-Canadian girl is the youngest of her sex ever tried for first degree murder in the annals of New England courts. Her aged father has come from his home in West Arichat, Cape Breton, to aid his daughter.

BITTER STRUGGLE BETWEEN PARTIES

Ottawa, Nov. 29.—Further bitterness has been introduced into the struggle between the two political parties here by the fact that the Government on the occasion of R. L. Bordens speech last Thursday deported from the usual Parliamentary courtesy of detailing the Premier or a Minister of the crown to follow the leader of the Opposition, and instead put on H. H. Miller of South Gray. In Parliamentary practice this is regarded as a deliberate insult.

No Prohibition for Missouri.

Jefferson City, Mo., Nov. 29.—Prohibition was defeated in Missouri at the recent election, according to official announcement yesterday, by 218,145 votes. It received 207,261 votes, with 425,406 against it, and carried only 87 of 115 counties.

GREAT HAVOC IN NEW YORK FROM BLACKHAND BOOM

Special to the Review

New York, Nov. 29.—Five thousand persons were thrown into a panic to-day when a bomb was set off in front of the restaurant of Francisco Labarber, 258 Elizabeth street. The place was wrecked and Labarber narrowly escaped being killed.

Windows throughout the neighborhood were shattered by the force of the explosion.

Labarber declared to the police he believed a band of black mailers who had hounded him several years ago set off the bomb.

In 1907 his one-year-old son, Pietro, was kidnapped, and the father received letters demanding $2,500. The letters stated that unless the money was paid the boy would be killed.

The letters were turned over to Lieut. Petrosino, who was afterwards assassinated in Sicily. Labarber finally received a letter stating that the boy was dead.

Nothing further was ever heard from little Pitrio.

NO REPRIEVE FOR PARKER

Belleville Ontario.

No word has been received here from Ottawa regarding a commutal of the death sentence passed upon Robert Parker seven weeks ago by his Lordship Sir William Mulock for the murder of William Masters in April last.

The date of the execution is set for December 3rd, and according to that the prisoner has only a little over a week to live. He is guarded day and night by special guards, and is visited occasionally by the Rev. H. H. Kenny, pastor of the Tabernacle, who is acting as his spiritual advisor.

The opinion is expressed on the one hand that by reason of the largely signed petitions presented some weeks ago to the Hon. A. B. Aylesworth, Minister of Justice, the prisoner's sentence will be commited to life imprisonment. Others believe that the gallows will have its due.

Reports have been circulated that the gallows is under construction and that the traps are being prepared. There seems to be no foundation for these rumors. Mr. Collins, turnkey, declares that there is no special change in Parker's behavior. The Rev. Mr. Kenny informs us that he is always glad to see a minister, and that he has become apparently very anxious under the terrific strain.

No information whatever can be obtained from the guards, whose mouths are shut. Only one statement seems to have come out which is that Parker said he wouldn't go to Kingston. What that means is very difficult to say.

12 YEARS

Youth Who Sent Blackhand Letter to J. C. Eaton Gets Stiff Sentence.

Special to the Review.

Toronto, Nov. 29.—James McCauley, the youth who sent a "Blackhand" letter to John C. Eaton, head of the T. Eaton Co., a few weeks ago, demanding $200, was sentenced this morning to 12 years for the offence. The authorities found two other minor cases against McCauley, and gave him two years on each. The sentences are to run concurrently.

BELIEVED TO HAVE SUICIDED

Niagara-on-the-Lake, Nov. 29.—Following a family quarrel, Mrs. John Davis left her home early Sunday morning and the police believe she committed suicide by jumping into the river. The river about Niagara wharf was dragged without success yesterday. Early Sunday the woman's husband reported to Chief Reid that his wife had threatened to kill herself.

Collapsed Under Snowslide.

Fort William, Nov. 29.—An ironclad annex to elevator A collapsed yesterday under a huge slide of snow from the roof of the main building. It was built a year ago and valued at $6,000.

WENDLING ON TRIAL FOR MURDER

Louisville, Ky., Nov. 29.—Joseph Wendling, charged with the murder of little nine-year-old Alma Kellner, who for months was supposed to be the victim of a mysterious kidnapping plot, was yesterday placed on trial in the Criminal Court here.

The child disappeared on Dec. 8, 1909, leaving her home to attend mass at St. John's Church. No trace of the missing girl was found until May 30, when bones identified as hers were found buried in the cellar of the St. John's Church parochial school. Wendling, a former janitor of the church and school, who had disappeared Jan. 19, was arrested in San Francisco July 30, charged with the murder.

SERIOUS CHARGE AGAINST LAWYER

Goderich, Nov. 29.—M. O. Johnston, a prominent lawyer of this town, was arrested Saturday night on serious charges preferred by John Hummel, a mason. The arrest comes as a sequel to the story of the livery rig which was brought to light at the time of the Anderson murder investigation. Johnston kept the rig out till a late hour, and it is alleged that Mrs. Hummel was his companion.

The other day Hummel returned from Vancouver and gave Johnston a very severe thrashing, injuring his head in the process. He threatened to kill Johnston when his head got better, if he did not leave town, but was persuaded to let the law take its course.

POLICEMAN MISSING

Niagara Falls, Ont., Nov. 29.—Strangely missing since Friday morning, the disappearance of Policeman Charles Brown yesterday created a sensation here when it became known. Brown returned home from duty Friday morning, changed his clothes and left the house without breakfast. No cause is known for Brown's disappearance. He has spent five years on the force and has never once been on the carpet. He has a wife and three small children.

Deserted by Bandit.

Tampico, Mexico, Nov. 29.—Miss Grace Rolf, the 17-year-old Nebraska girl, who disappeared from a ranch near Tampico several weeks ago in company with Segando Selivero, a noted bandit, has been found and brought here. She claims she suffered indignities at the hands of Selivero and was almost exhausted from the ill-treatment and exposure, when found. Miss Rolph was found Satusday about fifty miles inland from Tampico, deserted.

LATE TICKS FROM WIRES

Three more jail guards at Montreal have been suspended as the result of the investigation into the supply of cocaine to prisoners.

Earl Grey, Governor-General of Canada, yesterday celebrated his 59th birthday anniversary and received many telegrams of congratulations.

It is rumored that Gen. D. G. MacDonald, quartermaster-general of the Canadian militia, will shortly retire on pension and be succeeded by Col. J. L. Biggar.

The Dominion Government has completed the plans for the new Plaza Laurier, Ottawa, which will make a beautiful square of the Sappers and Dufferin Bridges and the now vacant space between them. The cost will be the neighborhood of $100,000.

WELL-KNOWN CONTRACTOR DEAD

Brockville, Nov. 29.—At "The Point," Maitland, the death took place yesterday afternoon of R. G. Hervey, a well-known railway contractor, who built the Brockville and Westport, recently purchased by Mackenzie and Mann. He also constructed a line in Nova Scotia, which too, is a part of the Canadian Northern system. His work stands at many points in the United States.

Mr. Hervey is credited with having made a propositon to Sir Alexander Mackenzie, then Premier of Canada, to build the transcontinental line subsequently completed as the Canadian Pacific Railway. Mr. Hervey was assured of the necessary financial assistance in England, but the Government of the day had no faith in his scheme and turned it down.

He leaves three daughters and one son, Chilton Hervey, consulting engineer, Montreal.

Squeezed to Death.

Belleville, Nov. 29.—At an early hour yesterday a fatal accident occurred at the G.T.R. roundhouse in this city, the victim being George T. Ramsey, a young man of 21 years of age. He was operating a turntable, when he was caught in a narrow space between two engines, which were moving in opposite directions.

ULSTER MEN BITTERLY OPPOSED TO HOME RULE

Meeting Held in Belfast and on Motion of a Presbyterian Minister a Declaration is Drawn up and $50,000 Subscribed to Purchase Arms Rather Than Submit to an Irish Parliament.

London, Nov. 29.—With the dissolution of Parliament yesterday all formalities preliminary to the election of a new Parliament were completed. The proclamation of dissolution summoned the new Parliament to assemble on Jan. 31, 1911.

Among the first of its members to be elected unopposed will be Arthur J. Balfour, the Opposition leader, the Liberals having decided not to contest his seat for the City of London. On the Stock Exchange, where regular dealings have been instituted in bets on the election, the feeling yesterday seemed to anticipate a reduction in the Liberal majority.

In Ireland the struggle is growing more bitter every day. A meeting of delegates representing every Ulster county constituency was held in Belfast yesterday, at which a resolution was adopted, on motion of a Presbyterian minister, to draw up a solemn declaration refusing to pay rates or taxes imposed by a Dublin Parliament, or obey its decrees, while $50,000 was subscribed on the spot to organize the Ulster men into regiments and purchase arms.

At night a monster union demonstration was held at Ulster Hall, Belfast, an overflow meeting of 20,000 people being held in the open air. Both aroused the greatest enthusiasm. Lord Londonderry declared the American dollars enabled John Redmond to hold Asquith in the hollow of his hand. If a home rule Parliament were established, he said, it might be found that Ulster would utterly decline obedience to the law.

Sir Edward Carson, former Solicitor-General, now Conservative M.P. for Dublin University, said they never would consent to their country being sold for American dollars. Walter Hume Long, Unionist M.P. for Strand, spoke in the same strain, and other speakers advocated stern resistance to the law, if home rule was forced upon Ulster.

The first independent woman suffrage candidate is announced in the person of a prominent advocate, W. Mirlees, who will contest a division of Glasgow. The Socialist party has decided to run a third candidate in Battersea, thus seriously endangering John Burns' chance of re-election.

Yesterday's dissolution of Parliament brings to a crisis the supreme struggle now in progress to limit the legislative powers of the House of Lords, and thereby permit the elective branch of Parliament, the House of Commons, to exert larger powers in effecting legislation, more particularly measures relating to Irish home rule and the financial budgets.

The House of Commons has a Ministerial majority of 124, and the present standing of the various elements is a follows: Liberals 275, Labor members 40, Nationalists 71, Independent Nationalists 11, Unionists 273.

Of the foregoing, the first four groups are generally counted as supporters of the Ministry, giving a Ministerial strength of 397, as against the Unionist strength of 273, or a net Ministerial majority of 124.

BELIEF IN HISTORY OF JEWS NOT NEEDED SAYS SCHURMAN

President of Cornell University Declares That Necessity For Assent to the Traditions of the Jewish People is Absbrd and an Outrage on Free Moral Personality.

New York, Nov. 29.—"To make belief in the history of the Jews a condition of the salvation of the human soul is, in this scientific age of the world, not only a physical impossibility, but an intellectual absurdity and an outrage on free moral personality," said President Jacob G. Schurman of Cornell University, in an address here last night. Dr. Schurman was speaking at the dedicatory exercises of the new buildings of the Union Theology Seminary in this city. He declared that the buildings are a "striking expression of the spirit of religious progress," which, he said, is, however, "larger than any institution."

"Whether we like it or not," he said, "a change is taking place in the attitude of religious men. It may certainly be claimed that in their solicitude for improving the condition of the poor they may cite the example of the founder of the Christian Church. And apart altogether from history, we cannot imagine that the condition of the poor is always to remain what we see it to-day in any civilisation calling itself Christian.

"A theological student, therefore, who wants to improve the condition of society, must master the social sciences, and especially the sciences of economics and government. As time goes on, I expect to see some of the studies which now find a place in the theological curriculum, and which are the mere survival of problems that our age has grown, eliminated, and in place of them there will be substituted subjects dealing with the problems of our own age, and from our modern scientific point of view.

"The only way that some clergymen can see to improve the condition of society is by the adoption of socialism. I believe, however, that with a thorough training in the social, economic and political sciences, the evils complained of may be abated under our present individualistic system of government."

FIVE MEN ARE BLOWN TO ATOMS

Durant, Okla, Nov. 29.—Five men were blown to atoms and nine others were entombed beyond hope of rescue by a gas explosion in the mine of the Choctaw Asphalt Co. at Jumbo, near Antlers, Oklahoma, yesterday.

The accident occurred just as the day shift was going to work. Five men were in the cage and fragments of their bodies were blown from the shaft, which is 290 feet deep. The other nine men were already in the mine. All the miners were white.

The cause of the accident is not known. All efforts to reach the entombed miners have been futile, as the explosion wrecked the shaft.

It is understood that Albert Chevalier, the well-known English actor, is billed at the Russell for that night, but the Wolfes claim they hold a written contract signed by Mr. Small granting them the use of the house on the night in question. If the contract is broken, plaintiff asks for $5,000 damages.

IS THE INSTITUTE RESPONSIBLE?

Increased attention is being given in the press throughout the province in regard to the expressed deficiencies of our educational system. It is recognized that in spite of all that is being done the whole tendency of what is termed higher education—the High School or Institute—is to inculcate in the boy a very pronounced idea against life work as a mechanic, farmer or anything but a profession or some kindred means of gaining a livelihood.

In two localities there is some discussion of local interest, and an attempt is being made to trace the proposition of those who have gone out from the high schools and entered the several walks of life.

In Peterborough something of the same sort might be done. The records of the Institute would show names of students. It would not require much time and effort to trace their future for the past ten years.

Then there is the ever recurring problem—how to keep the boys and girls on the farms. That the farms are being practically deserted by the rising generation is certain. That town or city life offers seemingly more opportunity for the present is certain. It is easier to offer advice relative to staying on the farm than it is to go back, even if we come from the farm ourselves.

The Kingston Standard, discussing one phase of the problem, says:—

> "Only a small percentage of the boys and girls of the villages and towns of Ontario attend the high school—most of them never go higher than the public schools. Why do these latter also seek the cities? Is it not because they think they see greater opportunities in the larger places? And as a fact are there not larger opportunities in these places than in the small towns? As a fact places that were small twenty years ago have increased quite rapidly in population. Take for example, Peterborough, Berlin, Brantford. These places have grown, and grown fast, in twenty years. But if they have, they have had certain natural advantages which have been the attractive force to draw population. Enterprising citizens have, of course, their influence; but unless their influence is supplemented by natural advantages, the smaller town will not grow. The high schools have been spending too much of energy and time on culture subjects and we are right in insisting on a change to a more practical type of school, or rather on schools that will fit boys and girls for work other than the so-called professions. This is, as we understand it, that aim of the Common or Technical Education, which will likely bear fruit in a report favoring what is now being strongly advocated."

As a proof that the high school unfits the pupil (male pupil) for real work take the business of printing. It is something more than an occupation while not a profession. If there is one business where education should count it, is that of printing.

What are the facts? So far as can be ascertained no one pupil passed in the high school or institute in Peterborough has taken up the printing business as a life work, in fifteen years. And yet no business is offering better opportunities and better remuneration than printing. Those that do offer are the culls. If they can't get into insurance, bookkeeping, agents work, they will do anything to escape learning a good, honest trade.

Surely, if we have regard for the future, we must do something else than look to the immigrant to supply our trade needs with trade workmen, while the country is begging for trained, skilled men, competent to direct and to rise, in their chosen business.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The great Middle West has been given a start that will carry it along for some years, in the matter of immigration. The drift of our policy has been to bring in people to build up the West. It is now about time that we turned attention to the East and furthered a policy that will help to retain in the East the desirable immigrant.

Those who buy and read United States and English books on the ground that Canadian writers do not and are not producing good and adequate work, are shutting their eyes to the fact that during 1910 Canadian authors and publishers have placed on the market ninety-six new works, including fiction, biography, stories and history, all as good as the world produces anywhere, at any time.

There is a commendable evidence of public spirit and endeavor to do good shown by adherents of the several local churches and workers in the religious field. Almost every Sunday afternoon special services and addresses are arranged for, and the public urged to attend. Advantage is taken of the fact that the hours from four to six are open hours, and a time that people wish to fill up in other ways than strolling about. The local picture theatres are turned into audience halls, and the services gain large and interested audiences.

IT IS NEWS WORTH GIVING TO THE WORLD

How Ravages of Kidney Disease are Checked in Quebec

Mrs. Julien Painchaud, for seven years a sufferer, finds quick relief and complete cure in Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Whitworth, Temiscouata Co., Que., Nov. 28.—(Special.)—With the coming of winter the ravages of Kidney Disease are again felt in this province, and the fact that a sure cure is vouched for in this village is news worth giving to the world. Mrs. Julien Painchaud is the person cured and she states without hesitation that she found her cure in Dodd's Kidney Pills.

"For seven years my heart and kidneys bothered me," Mrs. Painchaud states. "I was always tired and nervous. I could not sleep. My limbs were heavy and I had a dragging sensation across the loins. My eyes had dark circles under them and were puffed and swollen. I was so ill I could hardly drag myself around to do my housework.

"A neighbor advised me to try Dodd's Kidney Pills, and I found relief in the first box. Six boxes made me perfectly well."

If you have any two of Mrs. Painchaud's symptoms your Kidneys are diseased. Cure them and guard against serious, if not fatal results, by using Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Have you seen one of our Visiting List Records? They are a very necessary book and you will find it very valuable in keeping track of your calls and reception days. On sale at all bookstores or at the Review Office for 50 cents.

SIR THOMAS ON GRAIN ROUTE

Toronto World.

Sir Thomas, however, spoke definitely about hoping to have the new line from Midland (Georgian Bay) to Peterborough, the new grain route, ready for next year's crop. The grades of this new section would be so light that one train would move 50,000 bushels from the bay to Peterborough, two trains to Smith's Falls, and one train from Smith's Falls to Montreal. The section from Peterborough to Smith's Falls would later on be improved as near as possible to the standard of the other two sections.

Ontario, he said, would have a lot of other improvements—in all likelihood the company would soon start work on the line from Smith's Falls to Toronto through the Lake Ontario towns—Cobourg, Port Hope, Oshawa, Whitby, striking the existing line somewhere east of Toronto. This is another big proposition.

A gentleman, more or less in touch with the management, volunteered the statement last night that the improvements at North Toronto would be in keeping with the big station improvements now going forward in Montreal.

"Is there to be a hotel in Toronto?" he was asked.

"I cannot say just now," he replied. One thing Sir Thomas said, There was no reason why the Grand Trunk and the Canadian Pacific could not agree as to a new union station in Toronto, whether it was to be uptown or down. But he'd say no more until he brought his plans to town, when he would meet the city's executive.

Man's Early Building.

The ruins of successive human habitations unearthed in Asia show how man advanced from primeval savagery to the pomp of Babylon and Nineveh. First he improved the caves in which he dwelt by leveling the floors and cutting windows to give him light. Afterward he constructed entirely artificial habitations for himself, at first roughly made tents of boughs and leaves, then huts of mud and finally dwellings of wood and stone.

SWORDS OF JAPAN

Old Samurai Blades Are Looked Upon as Sacred.

HANDLED WITH REVERENCE.

A Curious Formula of Etiquette Follows When "the Steel Bible of Bushido" Is Drawn From Its Sheath by a Hand Which Grasps It in Peace.

If one were in a friend's house in Japan and should ask to examine one of the old samurai swords that rest in the lacquered sword rack in a place of honor there a curious formula of etiquette would be followed by the host.

He would go to a closet and return with a little square of silk in his hand. This he would wrap about the shark skin handle of the sheathed sword before touching his bare hand to the sheath. Then, with his right hand grasping the silk covered handle and the fingers of his left gingerly raising the lacquered hilt from the rack, the Japanese host would lift the sword to the level of his forehead and bow to it.

All this in reverential spirit and with utmost gravity. The square of silk preserved for no purpose but this and having its own name in the Japanese vocabulary, is to prevent the defilement of the handle by a hand which grasps it in peace. The bow is meant for the spirit of the swordsmith who forged this weapon. The reverence is for the sword itself, "soul of the samurai," in the Japanese poetical conception and aptly called by foreigners "the steel Bible of Bushido."

But this is only the beginning of the formality. When the Japanese host unsheaths the blade he does it with the edge toward his own body and the point directed away from his guest. When the guest receives the sword in his own hands he must be careful to keep the outer edge always away from the direction of his friend the host. If he wishes to examine both sides of the blade he must even turn his back so that never will the menace of the sharpened edge be directed toward his friend.

After the examination is completed the sword is returned to its scabbard, and the owner receives it with another bow and places it once more on its rack.

The etiquette of the sword is no empty thing. With the high spirited Japanese, who have not forgotten the many centuries of chivalry and of hand fighting behind them, the delicately curved and curiously welded sword of the samurai has a significance almost sacred. There is a philosophy of the sword no less stern than the use of the weapon.

In the old days when the Japanese fighters wore the war masks and the steel armor seen nowadays in the curiosity shops the boy was taught that as the shining blade must be kept free from spot and corruption, so must his soul be ever clean. Neglect of the blade brings rust; neglect of the soul an impure character.

Then the sharp edge was held not only as a constant guardian of personal safety and honor, but as a sacred disciplinarian to punish whenever its possessor stepped from the narrow path of the Yamato spirit of chivalry. Again, the sword was emblematical of true gentility, which is never overbearing or vulgar in deportment, but sternly self repressive.

No man knows when first the forge for fighting weapons was set up in the dawn of Japanese history nor who was the man who first replaced the rude bronze blades of a primitive folk by the tempered steel of the Yamato blade. There is in the imperial collection of swords at the castle of Nara the weapon worn by the Crown Prince Shotoku, who compiled the constitution of seventeen articles in A. D. 603, the oldest sword known in Japan. From that weapon, which was straight and not curved as all other swords of Nippon are, down to the fall of the Tokugawa shogunate in the middle of the last century there is an unbroken history of the art of the swordsmith. Twelve centuries of recorded art in swordmaking and the names of over 10,000 makers constitute the history of the sword in Japan.

The Japanese blade, placed almost on a par with the Damascus product in art and utility, differs from the Arabian weapon in one material detail of manufacture. Instead of having a uniform high temper, which gives the remarkable flexibility possessed by the Damascus blade, the Japanese sword has two tempers, a hard and a mild steel.

The edge of the blade is hard with the finest temper, the body and back of a milder temper, sufficient to give some elasticity. A Japanese sword cannot be bent half double with the pressure of a hand; it is nearly rigid.

Though sword manufacture has ceased to be in Japan today outside of the government arsenals, which turn out only the accepted military blade of the modern army, the country is filled with prized relics of the past art, and these are relics which the Japanese will not sell. A possessor of one of the old swords, keen and blue white in luster as the day it was forged, would sell his house, even himself maybe, before he would part with his iron Bible of Bushido for money.—Japan Magazine.

Chapter 22

ORDE had made his dispositions as the general disposes of his army. At this point five men could keep the river clear; at that rapid it would require twenty, and yet an emergency might call for thirty. Those thirty must not be beyond reach. Among the remoter wildernesses every section must have its driving camp. The crews of each would be expected to keep clear and running their own "beats" on the river. As fast as the rear crew should overtake these divisions either it would absorb them or the members of them would be thrown forward beyond the lowermost beat, to take charge of a new division downstream. A walking boss would trudge the river trail or ride the logs holding the correlation of these many units. Orde himself would drive up and down the river, overseeing the whole campaign.

Orde found himself rather short handed. He had counted on three hundred men for his crews, but scrape and scratch as he would he was unable to gather over 250. However, later, when the woods camps should break up, he would pick up more men.

"I'm working for you now."

"They won't be rivermen like my old crew, though," said Orde regretfully to Tom North, the walking boss.

Until the logs should be well adrift Orde had resolved to boss the rear crew himself.

The rear crew being farthest up stream, Orde had taken the contract to break the rollways belonging to Carlin, which would be piled on the bank. Thus he could get to work immediately at the breakup and without waiting for some one else. The lumber in Carlin's drive would keep the men below busy until the other owners should also have put their season's cut afloat.

The ice went out early. When the river ran clear in its lower reaches he took his rear crew to Carlin's rollways. This crew was forty in number, a hard bitten, tough band of veterans, weather beaten, scarred in numerous fights or by the backwoods scourge of smallpox, compact, muscular, fearless, loyal, outspoken and free to criticise—in short, men to do great things under a strong leader. The breaking of the rollways began. The logs had been hauled to the river, where they were banked in piles twenty and even thirty feet in height. The bed of the stream itself was filled with them for a mile, save in a narrow channel left down through the middle to allow for some flow of water; the banks were piled with them, side on, ready to roll down at the urging of the men.

First the entire crew by means of its peavies rolled the lower logs into the current to be rapidly borne away. Some tiers would be stuck together by ice and considerable prying and heaving were necessary in order to crack them apart. But forty men soon had the river full. Orde detailed some six or eight to drop below in order that the river might run clear to the next section, where the next crew would take up the task. These men walked to the edges of the rollway, rolled a log apiece into the water, stepped aboard, leaned against their peavies and were swept away by the swift current. The logs on which they stood whirled in the eddies, caromed against other timbers, slackened speed, shot away. Never did the riders alter their poses of easy equilibrium.

The evening of the second day Orde received a visit from Jim Denning, foreman of the next section below, bringing with him Charlie, the cook of Daly's last year's drive.

"This fellow drifted in tonight two days late after a drunk, and he tells a mighty queer story," said Denning.

"He says a crew of sixty bad men from the Saginaw have been sent in by Heinzman just to fight and annoy us."

"Well, where are they?"

"Don't know."

"Bring him over and let's hear the story," said Orde.

"It's straight, Mr. Orde," said the cook, approaching. "There's a big crew brought in from the Saginaw waters to do you up. They're supposed to be over here to run his drive, but really they's goin' to fight and raise h—, for why would he want sixty men to break out them little rollways of his'n up at the headwaters? He only owns a 'forty' up there, and it ain't more'n half cut anyway."

"I didn't know he owned any."

"Yes, sir. He bought that little Johnson piece last winter."

"Is he breaking out his rollways below?" Orde asked Denning.

"No, sir," struck in Charlie, "he ain't."

"How do you happen to be so wise?" inquired Orde.

"Well," explained Charlie, "when I got back from the woods last week I just sort of happened into McNeill's place. I wasn't drinkin' a drop!" he cried virtuously in answer to Orde's smile.

"Of course not," said Orde. "I was just thinking of the last time we were in there together."

"That's just it!" cried Charlie. "They was always sore at you about that. Well, in blew old man Heinzman and McNeill himself. I just lay low and heard their talk. They didn't see me, so they opened her up wide."

"What did you hear?"

"Well, McNeill he agreed to get a gang of bad ones from the Saginaw to run in on the river. And McNeill said, 'That's all right about the cash, Mr. Heinzman, but I been figgerin' on gettin' even with Orde for some myself.' He's payin' them $4 a day. Now, who'd pay that fer just river work?"

Orde nodded at Jim Denning.

"Hold on, Charlie," said he. "Why are you giving all this away if you were working for Heinzman?"

"I'm workin' for you now," replied Charlie with dignity. "And, besides, you helped me out once yourself."

"If that crew's been sent in there it means only one thing at that end of the line," said Orde.

"Sure. They're sent up to waste out the water in the reservoir and hang this end of the drive," replied Denning.

"What would you do?" asked Orde.

"Well," said Denning slowly and with a certain grim joy, "I don't bet those Saginaw river pigs are any more two fisted than the boys on this river. I'd go up and clean 'em out."

"Won't do," negatived Orde briefly. "In the first place, as you know very well, we're short handed now, and we can't spare the men from the work. In the second place, we'd hang up sure.

"It isn't a fair game. Delay will hang us. Taking men off the work will hang us. I've got to see what can be done by talking to them."

"Talking!" Denning snorted. "You might as well whistle down the draft pipe of hades! They'll kill you, sure!"

"I'm scared. I'm willing to admit it. But I don't see what else to do. Of course he's got no rights, but what good does that do us after our water is gone? And, Jim, my son, if we hang this drive I'll be buried so deep I never will dig myself out. No; I've got to go."

Chapter 23

A GROUP of three small log cabins marked the Johnson and later the Heinzman camp. From the chimneys a smoke arose. Twenty or thirty rivermen lounged about the sunny side of the largest structure. Orde clucked to his horses, and the spidery wheels of the buckboard swung lightly over the wet hummocks, to come to a stop opposite the men.

"Hello, boys!" said he cheerfully.

No one replied. Orde looked them over with some interest. They were a dirty, unkempt, unshaven, hard looking lot, with bloodshot eyes, a flicker of the daredevil in expression, beyond the first youth, hardened into an enduring toughness of fiber—bad men from the Saginaw in truth and, unless Orde was mistaken, men just off a drunk and therefore especially dangerous, men eager to fight at the drop of the hat and ready to employ all the terrifying weapons of the rough and tumble.

"Who's your boss?" asked Orde.

"The Rough Red," a man snarled.

Orde had heard of this man, of his personality and his deeds. Like Silver Jack of the Muskegon, his exploits had been celebrated in song. A big, broad faced man, with a red beard, strong as a bull and savage as a wild beast, it was said that while jobbing for Morrison & Daly in some of that firm's Saginaw valley holdings the Rough Red discovered that a horse had gone lame. He called the driver of that team before him, seized an iron starting bar and with it broke the man's leg. "Try th' lameness yourself, Barney Mallan," said he. To appeal to the charity of such a man would be utterly useless. Orde saw this point. He picked up his reins and spoke to his team.

A huge riverman planted himself squarely in the way. The others, rising, slowly surrounded the rig.

He drove deliberately ahead, forcing the men to step aside, and stopped his horses by a stub. He tied them there and descended. A huge form appeared above the river bank.

Orde made out the great square figure of the boss, his soft hat, his flaming red beard, his dingy mackinaw coat, his dingy black and white checked flannel shirt, his dingy blue trousers tucked into high socks, and, instead of driving boots, his ordinary lumberman's rubbers. In a moment he thrust through the brush and stood before Orde. He stared at the young man, and then, with a wild Irish yell, leaped upon him. Orde, caught unawares, was unable to struggle against the gigantic riverman. He was pinned back against the wall, and the Rough Red's face was within two feet of his own.

"And how are ye, ye ould darlint?" shouted the latter, with a roll of oaths.

"Why, Jim Bourke!" cried Orde.

"Why, Jim Bourke!" cried Orde.

The Rough Red jerked him to his feet and pounded him mightily on the back.

"You ould snoozer!" he bellowed. "Where th' blankety blank did ye come from? Byes," he shouted to the men, "it's me ould boss on th' Au Sable six year back—that time, ye mind, whin we had th' ice jam! Glory be, but I'm glad to see ye!"

"I didn't know you'd turned into the Rough Red," laughed Orde.

The Rough Red grinned.

"What have ye been doin'?"

"That's just it, Jimmy," said Orde, drawing the giant one side, out of ear shot. "All my eggs are in one basket, and it's a mean trick of you to hire out for filthy lucre to kick that basket."

"What do ye mane?" asked the Rough Red.

"You don't mean to tell me," countered Orde, "that this crew has been sent up here just to break out those measly little rollways?"

"Thim?" said the Rough Red. "Thim? Not much! Thim's my bodyguard. They can lick their weight in wild cats, and I'd loike well to see th' gang of highbankers that infists this river thry to pry thim out. We were sint here to foight. Me boss and th' sucker that's droiven this river has a row on!"

"Jimmy," said Orde, "didn't you know that I am the gentleman last mentioned? I'm driving this river, and that's my dam-keeper you've got hid away somewhere here, and that's my water you're planning to waste!"

"What?" In a tone of vast astonishment, the Rough Red mentioned his probable deserts in the future life.

"Luk here, Jack," said he after a moment, "here's a crew of white water birlers that ye can't beat nowheres. What do ye want us to do? We're now gettin' $4 a day and board from that murderin' ould villain Heinzman, so we can afford to wurrk for ye cheap."

Orde hesitated.

"Oh, please do now, darlint!" wheedled the Rough Red, his little eyes agleam with mischief. "Sind us some more peavies, and we'll hilp ye on yure rollways. And till us afore ye go how ye want this dam, and that's th' way she'll be. Come, now, dear, and ain't ye short handed now?"

Orde slapped his knee and laughed.

"This is sure one deuce of a joke!" he cried. "It sure be!

"I'll take you boys on," said Orde at last, "at the usual wages—dollar and a half for the jam, three for the rear. I doubt if you'll see much of Heinzman's money when this leaks out."

Chapter 24

THUS Orde, by the sheer good luck that sometimes favors men engaged in large enterprises, not only frustrated a plan likely to bring failure to his interests, but filled up his crews. It may be remarked here, as well as later, that the "terrors of the Saginaw" stayed with the drive to its finish and proved reliable and tractable in every particular.

The Rough Red's enormous strength, daredevil spirit and nimbleness of body made him invaluable at this dangerous work. The crews on the various beats now had their hands full to keep the logs running. The slightest check at any one point meant a jam, for there was no way of stopping the unending procession.

Jams on the river, contrary to general belief, are of very common occurrence. Throughout the length of the drive there were probably three or four hangups a day. Each of these had to be broken, and in the breaking was danger.

Orde after the rear was well started patrolled the length of the drive in his light buckboard. At times he remained at one camp for several days watching the trend of the work. The improvements made during the preceding summer gave him the greatest satisfaction, especially the apron at the falls.

No trouble was experienced until Heinzman's rollways were reached. Here Orde had boomed a free channel to prevent Heinzman from filling up the entire river bed with his rollways. When the jam of the drive had descended the river as far as this Heinzman had not yet begun to break out. Hardly had Orde's first crew passed, however, when Heinzman's men began to break down the logs into the drive. Long before the rear caught up Heinzman's drive was in the water, mingled with the sixty or eighty million feet Orde had in charge.

The situation was plain. All Heinzman now had to do was to retain a small crew, which should follow after the rear in order to sack what logs the latter should leave stranded. As it was impossible in so great a mass of timbers and in the haste of a pressing labor to distinguish or discriminate against any single brand, Heinzman was in a fair way to get his logs sent downstream with practically no expense.

"Vell, my boy," remarked the German quite frankly to Orde as they met on the road one day, "looks like I got you dis time, eh?"

Orde laughed.

"FRUIT-A-TIVES" SAVED MRS. WEBBER'S LIFE

After Three Doctors Had Given Her Up

Clanbrassie, Ont.

Two years ago, the doctor made forty-four calls on me and then said he had done all he could for me. I was suffering with intense Kidney Trouble and severe inflammation had set in. Two other doctors were consulted and agreed that nothing could be done to help me.

On the recommendation of a neighbor, I took "Fruit-a-tives" and they cured me. To-day, I take "Fruit-a-tives" as my only medicine. I am in excellent health and "Fruit-a-tives" is the medicine that cured me after I had been at death's door for months.

I am glad to be able to give you this testimonial. It may benefit some other woman suffering as I suffered, as I believe that I would not be alive to-day had I not used "Fruit-a-tives."

OBSERVATIONS on the EYE

Many animals can see with each eye separately, but man cannot do so. The horse, for instance, can see on both sides of him, and when we stand in front of him he can see us with only one eye at a time, because both his eyes cannot act together. The ancient Greek spoke of the eyes as the windows of the soul. They might have gone further and said of the body also. By glancing at a person's eye we can estimate his character pretty well and an observing physician can often tell by the eye the exact nature of a person's sickness.

"Look After Your Eyes"

When the eyes are affected, the whole general health is affected as well. We make no charge for examination. If your eyesight is perfect we will be pleased to tell you so. If, however, there is any defect which needs correcting, we guarantee to fit you with glasses that will surely correct it.

THAT HOUSE OF REFUGE MATTER

Discussed by Committee of Whole Council—Mayor Appointed to Take up Question With the Protestant Home Board

The special committee appointed to consider the Peterborough House of Refuge question have come to the conclusion that some definite action is necessary. Mayor Morrow reported at the meeting last night of the committee of the whole council.

The Protestant Home, his Worship continued, had been looking after the Protestant poor of the city to quite an extent. They had an endowment fund to meet the expense in this connection, and a number of inmates were being paid for from private sources.

In connection with the House of Refuge scheme the Protestant Home Board had expressed their willingness to erect such a home on condition that they be given a free site and a grant of $10,000. On these conditions they would erect a $20,000 structure and furnish it, the home to be under the management of the Protestant Home committee. The other proposal was for the city to erect the House of Refuge itself, and have it under the control of the City Council or a special committee from the council. In this case a by-law would have to be submitted to the ratepayers.

The mayor remarked that the tax rate was pretty high now, and he wouldn't like to see it go any higher. It was for the council to decide if the matter should be taken up now or left over till a later date.

Ald. Morgan said he had given the question careful consideration. He didn't think the people would object to a little increase in taxes for so worthy a cause. He favored the proposition as suggested by the Protestant Home Board.

Ald. Buller didn't. He thought the city should own the House of Refuge, appreciating at the same time the excellent work done by the committee in the direction of the Protestant Home affairs.

Other aldermen expressed their opinions and the mayor was finally deputed to consult the Protestant Home Board and go into the matter definitely.

At the meeting when the matter was first brought up Rev. Father McColl pointed out that the Catholics of the city would not desire a home for both Catholic and Protestant poor. The Catholic poor would be provided for at the House of Providence.

TEACHERS AND PUPILS HONOR PRINCIPAL DUNLOP

Mr. W. J. Dunlop, who has been the principal of the Queen Alexandra School for the past two years and three months, and is leaving the city to accept an appointment on the Faculty of Education at Toronto, was honored yesterday afternoon after the closing hour by the teachers and pupils, by whom he has been held in the highest esteem.

The presentation of a handsome leather travelling bag, initialed in gold, and filled with a number of suitable "travelling companions," was made by Miss Alberta Curtis, on behalf of the teachers and all the pupils, and remarks appreciative of Mr. Dunlop's work and interest in the school life were made by Mr. W. H. Walker.

Mr. Dunlop left on the 4.38 train this afternoon for Toronto. He is succeeded at the Queen Alexandra School by Mr. W. L. C. Richardson, late of King Edward School.

THE LIBRARY BUREAU IS THE SUCCESSFUL TENDERER

The Committee of the whole Council last night gave the Property Committee authority to purchase fittings to the amount of $1400.

When the Property Committee held its session, the tenders for the library fixtures were opened. The Library Bureau, Ottawa, was the lowest ($1053) and this tender was accepted. Local firms also tendered but only one would supply the fuel equipment and the tender was too high.

GOOD MEETINGS AT ST. LUKE'S

Lecture on a Trip on the Rhine in Connection With Service Friday

In spite of the inclement weather there was a good attendance at St. Luke's church last evening for the mission service. The theme of the address given by Rev. J. Bennett Anderson was "Jesus Saves." A strong appeal was made for dependance upon the love of Jesus.

Every evening during the week the services will be continued. On Wednesday and Thursday fifteen minutes before the regular hour of service will be taken up in the singing of hymns of praise. On Friday evening the service will be combined with a lecture by Rev. Dr. Langfeldt on "A Trip on the Rhine," illustrated by limelight views.
